Considering who it is who has attacked me, I feel that I could not regret it in any way; but as, in considering how terrible so much has been misrepresented, I feel that I should be committing a crime against myself and everyone that know me, if I should pass the matter over in silence.

In Hubbard's letter, of July 13st, he says he is giving a true statement; but I will give you some of his statements and you may pick out the truth if you can. In the first place he says that I did not offer to help put the balloon on the wagon, but the Hubbards swore in court that Hubbard's did not drive there for to offer such, but I can bring five others who were there to prove to such. Again, I suppose that everyone who read his letter think that I was in the field and that he saw me when this controversy took place, which he has stated took place between him and me; but both of the Hubbard's swore in court that they did not see me on the night of the 12th of July, and I am quite certain that neither of them saw me within the space of two months before and ten days after the 12th of July, with the exception that the boy saw me that evening about sunset, when he first drove there. Surely this will make matters look in a different light. Was it not stated in the Post that the balloon was driven after three times, and did not Hubbard state in his letter that it was driven after twice, and the Hubbards swore in court that it was driven after but once. Hubbard stated in his letter that when his son came to get the balloon that Mrs. Campbell resisted; the Hubbards swore in court that there was no resistance given from any one. Now I may state that the Hubbards' evidence has been such the whole way through. I believe there was printed in THE SUN in November, 1889, a letter from the Clerk of the Peace at Whitby stating that Hubbard had stolen a team of horses and that he had served his time in jail, and that twice he had signed a libel. The editor of the Post told me about this letter, for he was then employed on THE SUN. Now this Hubbard is the man that has been swearing against me, and I dare say that I could make him sign another libel, but where is the use?

Now, I suppose the public think that Hubbard was alone in this affair; but the committee on sports supported him. Now if this is not one of the most cowardly and meanest things that a committee could be guilty of. Just think, a committee of the public, consisting of twenty or thirty—I do not know how many—stooping to take up a private affair against a single man. Now, you must remember that the committee had no right to meddle with this matter, as the secretary told me that all they had to do was to pay the man for the exhibition and let him recover the balloon as best he could. I would rather that the committee had been manly enough to take up the matter themselves, for then there would have been none of this false swearing and they would have brought no disgrace upon themselves. And I would have them to remember that Hubbard is not a very becoming man to stand behind and support, and that they must, in a measure, consider themselves responsible for what Hubbard has done and sworn; but instead of their acting like men, they have acted just as if they belonged to some third sex. Some time ago they told me that they had $500 in the treasury and that they would willingly spend that amount and that they had plenty to carry the matter on for three years, but whether or not they have spent all this money yet I do not know, neither do I care; but I think they might have spent it to a more charitable purpose. Now this zealous effort of the committee and their signal defeat has made it manifest that I was entirely justified in taking the rope, and surely they have been served just as busybodies ought to be served.

Now, so far as the trespass case goes, I may say that it was only a trap set to catch the one who said that the rope was stolen, and to give me a chance to clear myself; and it has turned out just as I intended. I know that Hubbard was a passionate fellow and knew just how to deal with him, but I did not think that the committee were so foolish as to get entrapped; however, they have got entrapped and I have dealt with them just as I would with so many blind men, and have compelled them to carry it through. Every time we met in court the opposite party wished to have it hushed up and nothing more said about it, but I was resolute and would listen to nothing of the kind, for I had done nothing wrong and was not going to have it hushed up if I had done wrong. Everything has ended to my satisfaction, and I would tell this committee that life is a mad game to none but those that make it so, and that in matter such as this that all that is necessary is to exercise a little patience and things will all turn out well in the end, for as things must be, so they will be, for there is no such a thing as chance. On their part it was only a little chimerical hop and so let it end, and I trust that any ill feelings over this matter shall no longer exist, and there is no reason why any should exist.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I remain,
Yours truly,
JOHN J. HANNAHSON.

Orangeville, Oct. 18, 1890.

Several days ago, while a number of men were engaged in taking out gravel near Primrose, Mr. Robt Yool, and his son received injuries by falling off the bank upon which they working. Mr. Yool, sr., was jammed against the wheel of the waggon with such force as to break one of his legs in three places below the knee. He was buried almost to the shoulders by the falling earth, and sustained bruises about the chest. Under the care of Dr. Robbie he was, at last accounts, progressing very favorably. Mr. Yool's son did not receive any serious injury, although he is still a little lame.

The beautiful residence and grounds situated on 3rd avenue here, belonging to Thomas Wilkins, are being offered for sale cheap. Big bargain for some person. Apply at once to D. B. Brown, the money lender and estate agent.

Timely Wisdom.

Great and timely wisdom is shown by keeping Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry on hand. It has no equal for cholera, cholera morbus, diarrhœa, dysentery, colic, cramps, and all summer complaints or looseness of the bowels.

THE SUN
FOR 1891.

Some people never with THE SUN's opinions about men and things, and some people don't; but everybody likes to get hold of the newspaper which is never dull and never afraid to speak its mind.

Democrats know that for twenty years THE SUN has fought in the front line for Democratic principles, never wavering or weakening in its loyalty to the true interests of the party it serves with fearless intelligence and disinterested vigor. At times opinions have differed as to the best means accomplishing the common purpose; it is not THE SUN's fault if it has seen farther into the millstone.

Eighteen hundred and ninety one will be a great year in American politics, and everybody should read THE SUN.

Auction Sale
OF VALUABLE FARM PROPERTY!

PURSUANT to the Power of Sale contained in a certain Mortgage, there will be offered for sale, by Public Auction, at the PAISLEY HOUSE, in the TOWN OF ORANGEVILLE, in the County of Dufferin, on Tuesday, the 28th day of October, 1890,

At the hour of 2 o'clock in the afternoon, by Emery McLean, Auctioneer, the following property, namely:—Lot Number Twenty-three, in the First Concession, East of Hurontario Street, in the Township of Mono, in the County of Dufferin, containing by admeasurement Two Hundred Acres.

One hundred and twenty acres of the said property are cleared and under cultivation, and the balance of the property is covered with beech and maple bush. The soil is a good sandy loam. There is a Log House, Frame Stable and Barn and a Frame Granary on the property, also a well of good water. The fences are in a fair condition. There is a post office and blacksmith shop within a mile and a quarter of the property. The place is distant from Orangeville about ten miles.

TERMS—Ten per cent of the purchase money must be paid on the day of sale and the balance within thirty days thereafter. The property will be sold subject to a mortgage, the amount of which will be made known on the day of sale. For further particulars apply to the Auctioneer, or the undersigned.

Dated at Orangeville, the 8th day of October, 1890.

Equal Rights.

All have equal rights in life and liberty and the pursuit of happiness, but many are dropped in the race by dyspepsia, biliousness, lack of energy, nervous debility, weak-ness, constipation, etc., by completely curing these complaints Burdock Blood Bitters confers upon them health and energy.

Money to loan at very lowest rate of interest, on Farm or improved Town property. Apply to Frank Irwin, over Endacott Brothers' store.

The People's Mistake.

People make a sad mistake often with serious results when they neglect a constipated condition of the bowels. Knowing that Burdock Blood Bitters is an effectual cure at any stage of constipation, does not warrant one in neglecting to use it at the right time. Try it now.

Use J. R. Dolda' Condition Powders, the best in the market for Horses & Cattle.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Old Sores and Ulcers.—Daily experience confirms the fact which has triumphed over all opposition for more than fifty years, that no one are known equal to Holloway's remedies for curing bad legs, bad breasts, sores, wounds, diseases of the skin, eruptions, skin diseases, burns, scalds, and, in fact, all the maladies where the skin is broken. To cure these infirmities quickly is of primary importance, as compulsory idleness at indoors weakens the general health. The easy means of cure are found in Holloway's Ointment and Pills, which drive out the evil and expel their cause. In the worst cases the Ointment has succeeded in effecting a perfect cure after every other means had failed in giving adequate relief.

A DAUGHTER OF AN EARL.

LADY BLANCHE MURPHY'S ROMANTIC MARRIAGE.

The Death of the Husband for Whom She Gave Up Rank and Fortune Recalls an Interesting Story—Eloped With an Organist.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—"Kind hearts are more than coronets, and simple faith than Norman blood," was the sentiment that inspired Lady Blanche Elisabeth Mary Augusta Noel, eldest child of the Earl of Gainsborough, one of England's proudest peers, to forsake her eminent social station, a luxurious home in Rutlandshire, loving relatives and warm friends to elope with Thomas P. Murphy, the penniless organist of her father's chapel. She died in a foreign land and the husband for whom she sacrificed everything breathed his last in a Boston hospital last Sunday. Such a genuine romance is rarely found outside the covers of a novel.

The dowager and Murphy's old friends the priests, had him appointed organist at the Church of Brompton Oratory, the most influential place of Catholic worship in London. Murphy soon found that he was not strong enough to perform upon the organ. As it was ruining his health he resolved to resign.

At that time the Brompton Fathers received an application for an organist from Lord Gainsborough. Murphy was given the position.

Murphy was born in London, of Irish parents, and was left an orphan at an early age. He was cared for by Catholic clergymen who were interested in his musical talents.

Through the offices of these kind men young Murphy became the protege of a wealthy Catholic dowager in London. She sent him to Leipsic to begin at the root of his art, and later had him schooled in the famous conservatory of music in Brussels.

He was then about 20 years old, short in stature, slender, blue-eyed and with a poll of curling blond hair.

Lady Blanche was the daughter of Lord Gainsborough and the Duchess of Fife, and was the 17th granddaughter of the Earl of Essex. She was a highly cultivated woman, a fine linguist and skilled musician. When young Murphy came to her father's estate, Exton Hall, Rutlandshire, she was 24 years old. Many noblemen had paid court to her, but she was fancy free. She led the chapel choir, composed of tenants on her father's estate. Rehearsals gave the musician and his employer's fair daughter ample opportunities for flirtations that ended in lovemaking. They concealed their affection for months, until her father learned the true state of affairs and intimated to Murphy that his resignation would be acceptable. Murphy wanted to explain, but was politely inducted to the family carriage and driven to the nearest railway station, and went to London. Before long the lovers began conducting a clandestine correspondence that finally resulted in the making of a rendezvous in London.

In September, on the Earl of Gainsborough's estate, the annual harvest festival was celebrated with wine and wassail, and beef at the table for hours with his tenants and neighbors. Lady Blanche had shrewdly fixed on this time of festivity to fly to her sweetheart in London. She left her home attired in a housemaid's frock and cloak, walked three miles across fields to a railway station, and a few hours later joined Murphy in London.

The lovers were found on the eve of their marriage and the earl offered the organist a handsome annuity if he would leave Her Ladyship and go to the Continent. This offer Murphy declined, and his wife told her father that if her affianced had consented she would have entered a convent.

They were then married by a Catholic priest of Westminster diocese. Lady Blanche's father held in trust for his daughter several thousand pounds, bequeathed to her by an aunt, but she was too proud to ask for it.

London newspapers were filled with serious and semi-humorous stories of the elopement, and to escape this humiliation husband and wife sailed in the steerage of the ship Plymouth Rock for New York. The captain of the vessel, a generous Yankee, insisted on bringing them over in his cabin without extra cost. They reached this city penniless, and for several weeks were on the verge of starvation. Then, through the influence of some Catholic clergymen, Murphy was made organist at St. James' Church, and later secured a better position at the Church of the Holy Innocents.

Over the signature of Lady Blanche Murphy the wife wrote innumerable stories, sketches and serious articles for Lippincott's Magazine, The Galaxy and The Catholic World and Tablet. Her husband's income was increased through the generosity of "Boss" Tweed, who made him a Twenty-fifth building inspector, or something of that kind, for which he drew salary without work.

Tweed and his associates fell and with them went Murphy, who became organist of a church in Yorkville. Lady Murphy in her time of direst need would not ask the Earl for money, in the hope that he would forgive her husband and herself.

Agents of Baring Brothers in this city frequently notified her to draw on her father through them. Poverty and sickness finally broke her spirit and five years after her marriage she accepted several thousand dollars, with which she bought a farm near North Conway, N.H.

There settled there and discovered that the pastor of the church to which Murphy was the organist was a Mr. Noel, a relative of her family. Her love for her husband and father never faltered, and she was a devout Catholic. In 1881 her father died, and she only survived a year longer. Her body was taken to her brother, the present Earl of Gainsborough. After his wife's death Murphy sold the New Hampshire farm and lived recklessly on the proceeds until death called him.

Miss Keough then sued him for damages, and in the Justice Court to-day recovered a verdict of $5.

Survivors Rescued.

NEW GLASGOW, N.S., Oct. 14.—A rescuing party succeeded in boarding the dismantled and disabled hulk of the bark Malmerby off Little Harbor this morning and the four survivors were brought to shore. Seven in all were saved. None of the bodies of the 16 who were drowned have been recovered. Many other wrecks are reported. The storm is abating somewhat.

THE AUSTRALIAN STRIKE.

ALMOST AS DISASTROUS AS A BOMBARDMENT WOULD BE.

Osman Digna Preparing for Another Attack Upon Suakim—A French Chateau Sacked and Burned by Robbers—Blazing Over the Opium Tax.

SYDNEY, N.S.W., Oct. 14.—In a speech in the Chamber to-day Sir Henry Parkes, the premier, declared that the present strike in Australia had been almost as disastrous to the country as a bombardment would be. The country, he said, would suffer less at the hands of an enemy than it had suffered through the strike. He denounced the stoppage of supplies of railroad fuel, and described the action of the strikers as almost tantamount to a parricide. The government, he said, was determined to be supreme.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—At a meeting of the Trades Council to-day it was resolved to call a delegates' meeting on Oct. 28, representing 153,000 men, to consider the raising of £30,000 for the Australian strikers.

Osman Digna to Attack Suakim.

CAIRO, Oct. 14.—Osman Digna is preparing to attack Suakim. Arrangements are being made here to send reinforcements to the Suakim garrison.

Thrown Out of a Window.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—George Gibbs was charged in Marylebone police court on Saturday with throwing Gertrude Cooper, an actress, out of her window in the middle of the night. Miss Cooper and her mother lodged in the prisoner's house, and having frequent cause to complain of missing letters, some containing money, expressed the belief that Gibbs had appropriated them. The same night Gibbs entered her room after she was asleep, dragged her from bed, and after a severe struggle carried her to the window and threw her from it, head foremost, to the ground, 50 feet below. In falling she grasped the rails of a balcony and clung to them shrieking "murder," until the police rescued her. The prisoner was committed.

Steamed Up the Zambesi.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—The Times' Lisbon correspondent says a telegram from Mozambique confirms the report that a British force of 800 has penetrated to Manica and two gunboats have entered the Zambesi. This news has removed all restrictions on the part of the Ministers to Senor Souza, who had visited the King on Saturday night to decline the task of forming a new Cabinet. Thus the crisis is ended and the papers abuse England with greater violence.

When the British squadron pushed up the Zambesi to break the Portuguese blockade of the river they found a line of wooden boats stretched from bank to bank and chained together. One British man-of-war steamed ahead at full speed and broke through the line, sinking a Portuguese vessel.

Decline the Appointment.

DUBLIN, Oct. 14.—The Irish Times says William O'Brien and Timothy Harrington, who were appointed on the committee to visit America on behalf of the Irish cause, have refused to accept appointments.

From Paris to London in a Baggage Trunk.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—The Austrian tailor who traveled from Vienna to Paris inside of a baggage trunk has performed the same feat by traveling in a trunk from Paris to London. When he arrived here he was taken from the trunk in an exhausted condition.

The Creditors Recover Something.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—The bankruptcy court has issued an order stopping payment on a draft for £7000 drawn against that sum which was deposited with an American banking firm by James P. Field & Co., the London bankers who recently failed. The order was issued at the instance of the firm's creditors.

A Monument to Lessing.

BERLIN, Oct. 14.—Prince Frederick Leopold to-day unveiled a monument in the Thiergarten to Gotthold Lessing, the illustrious author and literary reformer, who died in 1781. Many high officials were present. The clergy refused to take part.

A French Chateau Sacked.

PARIS, Oct. 14.—The Count de La Grange's chateau, near Dom-front, in Orne, has been sacked and burned. The entire building was destroyed. There were many valuable works of art in the chateau, all of which have been lost. The police are seeking the culprits.

A Surtax on Rice.

PARIS, Oct. 14.—The cabinet has resolved to cover the deficit in the budget by means of a surtax on rice and pharmaceutical and hygienic specialties.

Kansas and North Carolina.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—The population of North Carolina is 1,617,949, increase 317,590 per cent. 15.04. of Kansas, 1,879,095, increase 427,981, per cent. 43.91.

Still Another Execution in Quebec.

SHERBROOKE, Que., Oct. 14.—The jury in the case of Blanchard, on trial for murder of Calkin in November last, rendered a verdict of guilty. He has been sentenced to be hanged on Dec. 12.

The depravity of human nature is something that philosophers cannot comprehend, leaving aside the general run of humanity. The other day a tramp, probably at his wits end to secure a five cent piece, considered the novel idea of cutting some of the sprouts growing from poplar trees leading to Our Lady's church at Guelph, and sold them as a souvenir, taken from the swamp where Benwell was killed. Many took the bait, and paid five cents for their experience, and 10 cents as the case might be.

The accident delayed them for a day but on Friday the couple, undaunted, left Brampton for the west.

A meeting of our citizens who are interested in the establishment of a cash market at Alliston, took place in the fire hall on Thursday evening last. Such encouragement did its promoters receive that committees were formed to take immediate action and the council is to be asked at its next meeting to set aside certain market days. The advantages to be derived of bringing the producer and consumer of farm and dairy produce into direct intercourse are alike beneficial to both, and should receive encouragement from all right thinking people. Ladies only, address POND LILLY COMPANY, No. 3, Fisher Block, 131 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, Mich.

A PRESENT TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.—It is with pleasure that we announce to our many patrons that we have made arrangements with that wide awake, illustrated farm magazine, the American Farmer, published at Fort Wayne, Ind., and read by nearly 200,000 farmers by which that great publication will be mailed direct, FREE, to the address of any of our subscribers who will come in and pay up all arrearages on subscription and one year in advance, and to any new subscribers who will pay one year in advance. This is a grand opportunity to obtain a first-class farm journal free. The American Farmer is a large 16 page journal, of national circulation, which ranks among the leading agricultural papers. It treats the question of economy in agriculture and the rights and privileges of that vast body of citizens—farmers—whose industry is the basis of all material and national prosperity. Its highest purpose is the elevation and ennobling of Agriculture through the higher and broader education of men and women engaged in its pursuits. The regular subscription price of the American Farmer is $1 00 per year. IT COSTS YOU NOTHING. From any one number ideas can be obtained that will be worth thrice the subscription price to you or members of your household, YET YOU GET IT FREE. Call and see sample copy.

TREASURER'S SALE OF LANDS IN ARREARS FOR TAXES IN THE COUNTY OF DUFFERIN.

BY virtue of a Warrant issued by the Warden of the County of Dufferin and authenticated by the Seal of the said County, bearing date the 29th day of August, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, and to me directed for the collection of the arrears of taxes due for those years and over upon the lands hereinafter mentioned and described being in the County of Dufferin; these are therefore to give notice that unless the said taxes, together with all costs and charges, be sooner paid, I shall on SATURDAY, the TWENTY-SECOND DAY OF NOVEMBER, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, at the hour of TWO o'clock in the afternoon, at the Court House, in the Town of ORANGEVILLE, in the said County, proceed to sell by Public Auction the said lands, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge such arrears of taxes and costs and charges incurred.

R. T. HAUN,
Treasurer County of Dufferin.

A DANGER SIGNAL!

A Cold in the Head may be aptly termed a danger signal warning you that if neglected that dangerous and disagreeable disease, Catarrh, is sure to follow, perhaps leading to Consumption and the grave. At the season of the year by Cold in the Head more prevalent than during the Spring months and at no other season do the people of this country suffer so instant neglect either of these troubles, but apply NASAL BALM, the only remedy that will give instant relief and effect a thorough cure. The following testimonials from among thousands in our possession bear witness to its sterling merit.

Alex. Burns, Sydbury, Ont., says: I may state that I have been affected with Catarrh seven or eight years, and it was attended by consequent symptoms such as foul breath, constant dropping into the throat, hawking and spitting, partial deafness, ringing in the ears and sickening pains in the head directly over either eye. I have used powders and douches, but all to no effect, the only result arising from the use of such was temporary relief, followed by the usual symptoms in a more aggravated form. The results arising from the use of Nasal Balm: Sweet breath, stoppage of the dropping into the throat, (consequently less hawking and spitting), clearness of hearing, and not once since I began its use have I had pain in the head. In fact, it is my opinion that a careful and persistent use of the Balm will effect a cure in the worst case of catarrh.

NASAL BALM
INSTANTLY RELIEVES
Cold in the Head.

A. W. Mallory, Malloytown, Ont., says: My daughter suffered for years from a most distressing and annoying Catarrh. Her case was under the treatment of eminent physicians in the United States and Canada. Two months use of Nasal Balm has had more beneficial effects than all former treatment combined.

L. D. Dion, Dept. Railways and Canals, Ottawa, says: I am very glad to give you to-day the testimony that Nasal Balm has completely cured my catarrh, from which I suffered for nearly three years.

If Nasal Balm is not kept in stock by your dealer it will be sent post paid on receipt of price (50 Cent for small and $1 for large size bottles) by addressing

Newspaper Decisions.

1. Any person or persons who take a paper regularly from the post office, whether directed in his name or another's, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for payment.
2. If a person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and then collect the whole amount whether the paper is taken or not.
3. The courts have decided that refusing to take a newspaper or periodical from the post office or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intended fraud.

JEREMIAH DEHAM.

Jonks had a queer dream the other night. He thought he saw a prize-fighter rise, and in the middle of it found a dreadful little champion who used and deliberately knocked down, one by one, a score or more of big, hurly-looking fellows, as they advanced to the attack. Climbs up they came in him, the valiant pigmy proved more than a match for them. It was all so funny that Jonks went up laughing. He announces for the dream by the fact that he had just come to the conclusion, after trying nearly every little dreamer pill on the market, that Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, or they Sugar-coated Granules, really "knock em" and hold all the big pills hollow! They are the original and only genuine Little Liver Pills.

Beware of imitations, which contain Poisonous Minerals. Always ask for Dr. Parmelee's Pellets, which are Little Sugar-coated Pills, or Anti-Bilious Granules. Some 5 Doses.

SICK HEADACHE,

Bilious Headache, Dizziness, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the stomach and bowels, are promptly relieved and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. They are gently laxative, or strongly cathartic, according to size of dose. Sentient, Cheapest, Easiest to take. 25 cents a vial, by Druggists.

Poetry.

AUTUMN GLORY.

Evenings—some joy—much sadness—falling leaves,
These come of Autumn; or men say they come;
But also come the glorious-hued woods.
If sadness comes of Autumn, rather than
Would I be sad, yea, and forever more,
Then that mine eyes should cease to see its leaves
In all their beauty are to earth they fall
Had the keen-visioned prophets of the East,
Who, in melodious yet fire-filling words,
Spake of the Lord of Hosts as clothed about
With royal purple robes, while clouds of fire
Around His throne Him hid from mortal ken—
Had they sojourned with us and seen His work
In these autumnal woods whose gorgeous shades
Make the bright rainbow's self turn pale for shame
Of its poor are of fleeting, colored mist;
Then had they with more splendid imagery
Clothed their thought, and placed the Lord Most High Upon a sylvan throne, whose curtains vast
More golden were than ore of Ophir's mine;
More ruddy than the ruby's sparkling ray,
Or cheek of some sweet, untaught, blushing maid
When the first whispered words of love she hears.
If on the earth He set His judgment Seat,
Even such a throne might the Almighty take,
And—while the Autumn wind amid the leaves
Played solemn music fitting for the time—
To His tribunal call the mighty ones
Whose names are blazoned on earth's honor roll—
Poet and sage, soldier, and priest, and king—
And promise Heaven to him who of them all,
By art or knowledge could but tinge one leaf,
A tender, opening bud of early Spring,
With one of all the myriad, Heavenly hues
In which their Maker paints the falling leaves,

* * * * * * *

From that dire fate may Heaven itself forefend.
Man is but mortal; an all-powerful hand
Alone can robe the woods in such array
As fills our souls with worship and amaze.

CHAPTER LVIII.

PUZZLING QUESTIONS.

THAT marriage is a lottery, is a true saying; that some draw rich prizes, others bitter blanks, is equally trite and true. The world had not quite made up its mind as to the result of Lady Clotilde's marriage. Some, who looked no deeper than the surface, declared it to be a happy one. Lord and Lady Dyncourt were generally seen together; no one ever heard an unpleasant or disagreeable word pass between them; the gentleman was, to all appearances, kind considerate, and attentive, the lady happy.

"It was said that Lord Dyncourt would have no heir," every one agreed on that point; but "every heart knows its own bitterness," and Lady Clotilde knew the height and depth.

She had married Lord Dyncourt because she loved him, and she looked forward to a kind of ideal happiness with him. She saw only the better and brighter side of his character; she was disposed to make a hero of him. She did not think it possible that he should be anything except good and great. She loved him exceedingly. She had been greatly admired, sought after; she had many lovers, but the only man who ever touched her heart, was Basil, Lord Dyncourt she never cared for another."

There never was a marriage that gave greater promise of turning out well; they were both young, gifted with beauty, wealth, and rank—everything that could make life desirable; the future before them seemed bright as the sun that shone on their wedding day—there was no cloud to dim its radiance.

How, then, had such a marriage prospered? "Excellently!" said the world. What said Lady Clotilde? Even to her own self she shrank from owning the truth—that she was disappointed; that she was unhappy; that a something without a name—a shadow—had grown between her husband and herself; a distance, a coldness that increased as the days went on. She could not explain it; she could not tell how it was; she could not remember even when it had begun. She could not trace the first origin of that coldness and chill sense of disappointment that so soon destroyed her happiness. Was it that she fancied he did not give to her the same superabundant, grand, generous love that she gave to him? Was it that she found him less noble, less heroic, more commonplace than she had fancied he would be? Was it because at times, in the hush and the deed of night, she heard the name of another woman on his lips, and heard him murmur words of endearment, such as he never addressed to her?

She remembered so well the time that happened first—how she had listened to him with a beating heart, and, when morning dawned, had said to him:

"Basil, did you dream of me last night?"

Laughing at the question and serious face, he answered:

"No; I ought to be ashamed, perhaps, at the confession, but I really did not."

"Whom were you calling 'love,' and speaking so gently to, then?"

"I did not know that I ever talked in my sleep," he replied, hastily.

"You did; you often do. Basil, do not be afraid to tell me; did you love any one before you met me?"

He answered by a carrless laugh.

"Why, Clotilde, what a question! I was not a statue, neither did I live in a desert, and men, my dear, are but men."

"That is no answer to my question," she said, wondering at the evasion. "Did you love any one before you knew me?"

"I may safely say, Clotilde, that I lived in a chronic state of being in love from the time I was seven years old until now."

"I never thought of you as such a general lover," she said, slightly piqued.

"Did you not? Why Lady Clotilde, I wonder that you have never discovered my weakness before."

"You will not answer my question," she said. "You will not tell me whether you really loved anyone before you loved me."

Again the careless laugh that jarred upon her feelings, that hurt her as a physical pain, then he replied, gayly:

"Of course I never cared for any one one thousandth part as much as I care for you; "but the ring of the words was false, she felt that the words themselves were false, and from that hour a dark shadow, slowly, but surely, arose between them.

She was too noble a woman to yield to curiosity; one might have listened to his dreaming words; she might have looked among his papers; she might have played the spy upon him in a hundred different ways, but she was far too noble for that.

The grand dream of her life was destroyed, she could no longer delude herself into thinking that she was the sole object of her husband's love. Cruel doubt and jealousy had begun what is always fatal work; and though she would never own it even to herself, Lady Dyncourt's short dream of happiness was at an end.

If the desire of her heart had been given to her; if she had had little children to love, and to love her, she would not perhaps have dwelled so continually on this one theme; her thoughts would have been better and brighter. Her dream had always been one of love, and no other.

Women feel nothing more keenly than the gradual downfall of an idol. Lady Clotilde had made an ideal hero of her lover, in her girlish, romantic fashion; she had endowed him with grand and noble qualities; she had to watch these ideal qualities disappear, one by one; she had thought him the very soul of truth and honor; she had to find out that he was no more truthful than other men; that though perhaps he would have scorned what the world calls a lie, he was guilty of the same evasions, the same equivocations as other people. He was, in fact, no hero, and after a time she was obliged to own that to herself.

The thing, perhaps, that startled her most, was his light way of speaking of things she held in the highest honor. Love was but a jest, inconstancy, rather a subject of pride than otherwise; in fidelity, a mere matter of course; and when once or twice she had shown him plainly that she did not like to hear such sentiments he had laughed and called her a pretty prude.

"You make life a tragedy, Clotilde," he said to her, "and it was never intended for anything but a farce."

"You dishonor what I honor most," she said, coldly.

Yet, despite this intangible difference, this something without a name, there was never any open disagreement between them. Lady Clotilde was not the only one condemned to see her life laid bare and waste; she bore it with perfect dignity, she made no murmur, no complaint. Did she love her husband the less? Those who understand a woman's heart best can answer the question.

The strange likeness existing between the child and her husband puzzled her. Mrs. Rymer's husband must have been related to her husband's family. Perhaps he was one of the poorer, younger branch. She resolved to lose no time in making inquiries. It would have been a source of greatest pleasure to her if she could have traced the least relationship between her husband and this boy; it might lead to his being adopted by Lord Dyncourt.

So she asked Silvia many puzzling questions, and it was well that she had really heard and her husband mention his family. Lady Clotilde said to her one day:

"It seems strange that your husband should never have mentioned his family or connections to you."

"It is strange," said Silvia; "but it is quite true."

"I suppose," continued Lady Clotilde "that you were all the world to each other?"

"Until I lost him," said Silvia, "that we most certainly were."

Lady Dyncourt resolved in her own mind that she would not rest until she had done something worth doing for the beautiful widow and her little boy.

THE BIRCHALL PETITION.

WOODSTOCK, Oct. 29.—The petition started in London, which is being circulated on Birchall's behalf, has not been numerously signed in this town. It was in circulation two or three days last week, and up to to-night only nineteen signatures had been received. Rev. Mr. Wade, Birchall's spiritual adviser, and one or two other clergymen and doctors were among the list of names. Several ministers refused to sign the petition.

Birchall spends three or four hours daily writing his autobiography. The work will be of respectable proportions, as he intends writing about forty thousand words. In the preface he states that the book is not written for the purpose of securing fame, but that he might make some provision for his faithful wife. It will contain a complete story of his life, which has been varied and exciting. He has plenty of reading matter to while away the hours. He gets ten or twelve papers regularly, and is well posted on current events. He is also constantly in receipt of letters, tracts and religious books, but finds very little time to read all of them. He keeps up his spirits wonderfully, but when alone occasionally becomes depressed.

DEATH ON LAKE HURON.

A Steamer Burned and Eight of her Crew Burned.

PORT HURON, Oct. 20.—The steamer Annie Young of the Lake Superior Transit Company took fire and burned to the water's edge off Lexington at 9 o'clock this morning. The steamer Ed. Smith went to the rescue and took thirteen of the crew off and brought them here. The balance of the crew, eight men, took to the yawl boat and were drowned. Their names are McNard of Port Huron, J. Donnelly, J. Crosby, J. Gallagher, J Connley and three deck hands, names and residence unknown. The Young left here at 6:15 this morning, wind blowing fresh from the north east. She had a cargo of coal and merchandise. She was built in Detroit in 1869, was of 693 tons burden and valued at $30,000. The tug Kittie Haight has gone out to tow her into the river. The mate was very badly burned about the face and hands. He is in care of the Marine Hospital. The Young was bound up with a cargo of coal and general merchandise for Escanaba and Gladstone.

THE CANADIAN HEN ALL RIGHT.

THE Guelph Mercury (Grit) observes:—"Advices from Washington state that since the enforcement of the McKinley tariff the price of eggs has already gone up."

Exactly so, adds the London Free Press. The United States consumer, and not the Canadian producer, pays the duty. The faddest theory was, that the moment the moment the duty was put on, the price here would fall by the amount of the customs import on the other side. We see that it is not so. It is the added price to the American that counts from the McKinley point of view. The consumer pays more for his eggs for the benefit of the American farmer. If this did not follow, there would be no virtue in the new tariff. As it does follow, the Canadian producer is not for the present hurt, and will not be until the Americans can raise enough "hen fruit" to fill the whole demand of their own markets. When that takes place—in two or three years, perhaps—the Canadians will have "made other arrangements" for the disposal of their eggs. Even now this commodity is sent to England at a profit. By the time the plans of transportation are perfected there will be no obstacle to the Canadian hen.

FARM NOTES.

Pigs, especially sows, derive much benefit from the moderate feeding of waste fruit. Windfalls from the apple trees and those unfit for barrelling could not be put to better use.

The best wool, like the best mutton, is produced by sheep that are well fed and attended. Neglect and poor feeding weakens the strength of the fibre, checks its growth, makes it of a hairy nature and lessens the weight of fleece.

It will not do to keep a young and spirited horse standing in the stable too long without work. He must be kept in exercise, even if only turned out on a lot.

Profitable feeding must be steady feeding—in spasmodic feeding the feasts may do actual harm, and the short rations surely entail loss. Do not cram one day and starve the next.

Almost any kind of cabbage will head well if well cultivated and planted on rich land. The complaints that cabbage do not head are usually indicative of defects in these two particulars. But for those who experience this difficulty and want the variety most sure to form a solid head, the Winningstadt is to be commended.

There is no need to dung mellow soil after clover seed has been sown in order to cover it. The rains will do this better than man can. Even the brush harrow recommended for this purpose is worse than useless. On winter grain, a dragging of the hardened surface, to mellow it before sowing clover and grass seeds, will insure a better catch.

Good butter can be made in cold weather, if enough pains are taken. The trouble with women is, that the cooking, dish-washing and other work are considered more important than the milk and cream. This kind of management will not do, other things must wait for the butter making. If the room where the milk is set be a cool one, the milk must be heated up to about 135 degrees and then the cream will rise sooner, but it is better to have the temperature of the milk room about 70 degrees, and it should be kept as uniform as possible. When this is done, the cream will rise in 24 hours or 36 hours at the farthest. If it takes longer, there will be danger of the cream becoming bitter and full of white specks. Such cream never makes good butter.

Rising News.

Rising experts hoop that cholera never attacks the bowels of the earth, but humanity in general find it necessary to use Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry for bowel complaints, dysentery, diarrhœa, etc. It is a sure cure.

GRAND VALLEY.

The saw mill is now kept steadily running day and night.

A number from this locality secured prizes at the Orangeville show.

Rev. Mr Charlton, of Mount Forest, delivered an interesting missionary sermon in the Methodist church here on Sunday afternoon.

On Friday night week the barn on Mr. Kirkland's farm took fire and was destroyed with the season's crop. We understand the loss of the contents falls on Mr. Byers, who has the farm rented. Small insurance on the contents; barn fairly well insured. The origion of the fire is not known.

Moved by Mr. Simpson, seconded by Mr Carroll, that N Gordon, School Inspector, be paid $15 expenses of arbitration Union School Section Caledon and East Garafraxa, as per award of arbitrators, and the reeve give his order for the same.—Carried.

The following accounts were passed and ordered to be paid viz:—Hugh McDonald, $1 for plank on culvert; Russel & Hutcheson blank forms, $3 97; Clerk drawing map, $3 00; J. J. Nickle raking stones on Orangeville and Reading road and filling root on townline Amaranth and E. Garafraxa, $9.75.

Moved by Mr. Carroll, seconded by Mr. Fearns, that this council do now adjourn to meet at Marsville on the 15th day of December.—Carried.

JOHN PRESTON,
Clerk.

A BENEFICENT DISCOVERY.

The Noblest Achievement of Science.

The iron horse, with its tireless strength, its pulses of vapour and its heart of flame, is a glorious exponent of the creative capacity of the human mind, and the metallic nerves through which intelligence courses over a continent prove by every flash of thought which traverses them that man possesses one attribute essentially grand, the power to annihilate space and time. But vast and important as have been the results of making steam and lightning the common carrier and messenger of the world, the discovery by which weak or impure blood can be vitalized or restored to new vigor and purity by means of internal and external remedies is of infinite value. The resources of vegetable chemistry as developed and applied by Thomas Holloway have proved equal to this mighty task. His famous remedies impart to the stream of life a disinfecting principle which frees the system from all impure and poisonous elements. The powers of chemistry are almost beyond calculation, and as he has brought them to bear upon all the varieties of disease in those invaluable vegetable compounds known as HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT they have compassed their highest and holiest object.

Steam, as the great motor, is a subsidiary agent. Its usefulness consists mainly, in conveying substantial benefits with speed and certainty, to the fields in which they are to operate. It is simply the bearer of blessings, not their originator. Of all the freight which it carries over land and sea, there is perhaps none so precious as Holloway's remedies. It is scarcely a figure of speech to say that whithersoever it conveys them it flies "with healing on its wings."

Under the influence of the Ointment the skin, however disfigured by eruptions or excrescences, becomes a tabula rasa, pure, spotless, and transparent, and the erasure of blemishes is not accomplished by driving back disease into the secret recesses of the system but by neutralizing the morbid material which feeds it.

The Pills act upon the internal fluids and the organs which secrete them upon the sanitary principle. They destroy the morbid particles subjected to their chemical action, as infallibly as an alkali neutralizes an acid; and at the same time impart a mild and constant electric action to the secretive and excretive machinery.

The sanction of governments, the patronage of princes the approval of all Christian nations, the gratitude of pagan millions attest the worth of these twin curatives. In fact there is no region with which England or any country has any commercial intercourse where Holloway would not find himself at home. Some estimate may be formed of the extent and variety of his foreign correspondence, from the fact that sixty corresponding clerks, of which number sixteen are accomplished linguists, are employed in conducting it. He is the centre of a sanitary circle that belts the world.—Daily Republic.

This is just where the shoe pinches. We always suspected that the difference between salaries and wages is that those who are salaried—specially in the civil service—get their pay whether they earn it or not. Those who work for wages, however, have to earn every cent before they get it, and sometimes don't get it even then; and the following decision confirms this view: Judge Andrews of the Superior Court of the United States, thus defines the difference between salaries and wages:—"Wages earned," says the learned judge, "is an apt expression in regard to laborers who are only entitled to pay for services actually rendered, but is entirely inappropriate when used concerning public officers or clerks who receive annual salaries, and are entitled to be paid so long as they hold their offices or places, without regard to the services rendered.

BOARD OF TRADE.

A meeting of the Executive council and a general meeting of the members of the board of trade were held on Monday evening of this week at which by-laws were adopted similiar to those of the Guelph board of trade. It was also decided to move in the matter of re-establishing the market and in securing an amendment to the market by-law of the town so as to make Thursday of each week a market day. A market committee was appointed and it is intended to leave no stone unturned to make a weekly market successful. A Railway committee was appointed and instructed to enquire into the feasibility and cost of a right-of-way for a tramway to run from North terminus of the old C. V. R. roadbed to the Mono quarries. A discussion also took place in regard to the desirability and practicability of making changes in the customs of trade with reference to butter and poultry which will be rendered on Friday evening of this week at a general meeting of the members.

GOOD ROADS WANTED.

(Ingersoll Chronicle.)

ATTENTION cannot be too frequently drawn to the importance of good roads. In cities, even, the pavements of the streets are a better index to the popular taste and to public spirit than are the halls of public buildings. In the country, roads are the measure of public and private enterprise. They favor or hinder intercourse according as they are good or bad, and upon intercourse depends to a large extent the intelligence and refinement of a people. The Romans knew well not only how to conquer, but how to civilize and to govern. They were the road builders of their time. There are miles and miles of road still in use in England that was laid down seventeen or eighteen hundred years ago. In France they are older and more extended. Along these lines have grown up some of the largest and most prosperous cities in the world. Through many centuries, the thoroughfares furnished all the advantages of navigable waters. But the argument drawn from the profit and loss account is the one most effective in these days, and that is the one which readers are most likely to meet with pretty often in our public prints. Several estimates made by experts upon economic questions have been recently published. Professor Ely, of John Hopkins University, reckons that "per rods cost the farmer, on an average, fifteen dollars per horse." Professor Jenks, of Knox College, Illinois, argues that "with good permanent roads freight could often be hauled ten miles on wagons cheaper than it could be taken one mile on a dirt road to a railroad station, unloaded, put on the cars, and carried to its destination." These are the opinions of specialists who have no doubt gone over a great many columns of statistics in making up their estimates. There is no practical teamster who will not admit the reason abiteous of their conclusions. The greatest obstacle, perhaps, to the improvement desired arises from the circumstance that there are as yet no really good roads in this country, and from the other fact that the science of building roads has never been studied by our people.

EDITORIAL NOTES

THERE are visible in the changed tone of the Liberal press signs of a recognition that a mistake was made when Canada's commercial ruin was predicted as the result of the enforcement of the McKinley bill. The idea seems to have struck the statesmen that a nation that is good for anything has a backbone in its anatomy.

OLIVER MOWAT, Premier of Ontario, accepted an invitation from the Society of Christian Endeavor to deliver a lecture on "Christianity" in Knox church, Woodstock, on Sunday last. The lecture was not brief in any sense of the word, for it occupied two pages in the Globe, making twelve columns of "solid brevier." What Ollie doesn't know, we are led to believe, isn't worth knowing.

SIR RICHARD CARTRIGHT has been talking to a few of the farmers down at Norwood lately. The gallant knight, as usual, boomed the neighboring republic for all it was worth. He said the Canadian government did a great deal to provoke the passage of the McKinley bill. Well, this is probably true; the government of Sir John Macdonald didn't hand over part of the British empire to the powers that be at Washington.

On Wednesday of last week the last of three bullets was removed from the body of Mrs. Slater, who was shot by her husband on the 18th of August. Slater is serving a term of seven years in the Kingston penitentiary.

H. S. SPORTS.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES.

The Rev. M. L. Pearson delivered the second of his trio of sermons on "The Trades" last Sunday evening to a large congregation.

The choir of the church under the direction of Mr. Rowland, leader, and Miss Haley organist, is rendering magnificent music every Sunday.

Next Sunday morning the pastor will preach specially to the children concerning the death of the late Miss Brownie Bennett. The Rev. D. C. Hossack, B. A., will preach in the evening.

The lecture room of the church is being beautifully fitted up. Chairs replace the old benches, and the aisles are covered with matting, and the walls are being decorated with attractive mottoes. The vestries are also being carpeted, and a large room furnished which will be used as a church parlour, and class room of the juvenile department of the Sunday school.

The Literary Society meeting on Tuesday evening was a great success. The place was crowded, the program was excellent. The special feature was a debate "Resolved that woman exerts a greater influence over men than money." The affirmative was sustained by Misses Dolan and Vandusen, the negative by Misses Pearson and Smith. The judges decided in favor of the affirmative.

ASPHYXIATED.

A Young Man Suffocated in the Seldon House, Owen Sound.

Early this morning a young man, Peter McLean, was found dead in his bed at the Seldon house. He arrived last night by the Pacific and registered his name only, without address. Before retiring for the night Mr. Shipman, the proprietor of the Seldon, gave special instructions to the nightwatchman to explain to the young man how to turn off the gas, which he did, turning it on twice and lighting it, showing him how to turn it off. Mr. McLean wished to be called at 6 this morning as he wanted to take the stage for Allenford, en route for Southampton. As no response was made when the night watchman knocked at the young man's door this morning, he called up the landlord, who broke the door open only to find the poor fellow dead. Medical aid was quickly summoned, but he was pronounced quite past help. It is thought an inquest will be unnecessary, as there is every evidence to show that he was asphyxiated. A paper was found in his possession (The New Weekly Herald) addressed to Donald S. McLean, Lake Linden, Michigan. Peter McLean, according to his time-book, worked at Harris's Mills, Lake Linden.

Coroner Cameron and County Attorney Frost were so satisfied with the explanations as to precautions given by Mr. Shipman of the Seldon that an inquest was not deemed at all necessary.

The Y. P. A. of St. Andrew's church will hold their meeting on Tuesday evening. A good programme will be rendered.

The weather during the past week closely resembled winter. It jogged the memory of the citizens to prepare for Jack Frost.

Jack Carney, the East Garafraxa farmer who mysteriously disappeared a couple of weeks ago, hobbed up serenely last Friday.

Rev. D. C. Hossack's discourse in St. Andrew's church next Sunday morning will be to the A. O. U. W. Sister lodges are cordially invited to attend.

If you want to borrow money on mortgage, or to sell a mortgage, the right person to call on is F. Irwin. Office over Endacott Bros. store.

The Methodist Y. P. A. executed a splendid program at its last meeting in the church Tuesday evening. Every inch of space in the room was occupied.

The attendance at the High School convocation has so far increased that next year it will be necessary to secure the town hall for the evening entertainment.

The old brick building, formerly occupied by R. Monaty as a blacksmith shop, on west Broadway is being torn down, and it is said a carriage factory is to be erected in its place.

The best entertainment of the season will be held in the town hall on Thursday evening next, Thanksgiving day. The glee club of the Toronto University Medical School will render some choice selections.

The charges of house-breaking preferred by Monsieur de Charles Coulter against Tommy Wright and Danny Gahan will be enquired into by Mayor Walsh on Saturday, having been enlarged from last Saturday.

The musicale held in the town hall on Tuesday night by the choir of St. Andrew's church, under the leadership of Mr. T. H. Rolfe, was a delightful entertainment and should have been more extensively patronized.

Last Saturday evening we received a beautiful picture, "The Angelus" from the Fireside Weekly, Toronto. On Nov. 4 a story entitled "Rez Burchall's Career, or the Mystery of the Bleheim Swamp," will be commenced in that journal.

Owen Sound is pretty well supplied with newspapers; the Times issues twice a week, the Sun four editions and the Times has been transformed into the Evening Times. Until a short time ago there were only two weekly papers published at the alleged "Liverpool of Canada."

Gale & Co. will keep their gallery open on Thanksgiving day, to accommodate the public. Those who want to secure a really first class picture should not fail to give them a call before going elsewhere. Remember the stand south side Broadway, over Young Bros. hardware store.

While the other two local papers are throwing mud and calling each other the vilest names THE SUN shines on and furnishes its thousands of readers with choice news, untainted by scandalous paragraphs unfit to be read by respectable people. FOR SALE.—Horse, harness and wagon, nearly new, for sale; eighty dollars can buy them. For information apply at this office.

HANGING DATES.—J. R. Birshell, at Woodstock, on Friday, November, 14th. Arthur Hoyt Day, at Welland, Thursday, December, 18th. Remi Lamontagne, at Sherbrooke, Friday, December 19th.

FARM SOLD.—The two-hundred acre farm on lot 23, first concession east, township of Mono, was sold by public auction at the Paisley house last Tuesday afternoon. A Toronto man named Carry bought the property for $3100.

HORSE SALE.—Mr. E. Beatty will hold the first horse sale of the season on Nov. 1st, at 2 P. M., when fifteen first-class mares and geldings will be offered for sale. This being the first sale of the season purchasers may rely on getting extra good stock.

A BARGAIN.—For sale cheap, that well known property on East Broadway, middle of the "Jewell" property, being lot 1, Plan 8, Kightley Survey, on which is erected a good brick building. Apply to Francis Irwin, agent. Office, over Endacott Bros. store.

THE SONG-MASS.—This charming drama, the issue of Mrs. B. T. Hann's compositions, is on the boards for tonight. All the parts will be filled by local amateurs, and a first class performance will be the result. Undoubtedly a crowded house will witness the first public rendition of "The Sale Bill."

BARGAINS.—To bargain hunters, as well as all parties who wish to load up with cheap and seasonable goods at about half prices. Call at Gilmour, Kent & Co.'s who are closing out a Bankrupt Stock recently bought at 58½ cents on the $. The rush is now on and those who buy first will buy best.

AUCTION SALE.—Auctioneer Patterson will sell by public auction on Friday, November 7th, the farm stock, implements, etc., of Mr. Joseph Webb, on lot 23, con. 1, township of Adjala. Everything will be sold without reserve as Mr. Webb has rented his farm for a term of years. The sale will commence at 12 o'clock, sharp.

FUNERAL.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Huston, relict of the late James Huston, formerly of Caledon, who died on Saturday, took place from her residence Spring street, to the Town cemetery on Sunday afternoon. The deceased had reached the advanced age of 80 years. The Rev. J. E. Moyle conducted the religious service.

SOLD AGAIN.—An advertisement appears in an American paper reading thus:—"Agents wanted for fast selling articles needed in every family. It catches them all. Samples light, and clean, and can be carried in the vest pocket. Send 20 cents for sample, and take in all that's going." It was answered by a resident of a neighboring township, who received by return mail a package containing a fine-tooth-comb.—Ingersoll Chronicle.

NOT READ EM!—An exchange says: "Ask some men for an advertisement or a few locals, and they will say they don't believe in advertising, as a paper is never read. Let him be caught kissing his neighbor's wife, or trying to hold up the side of a building, and his tune changes instantly, and if the printing office is in the garret of a 17 story building, he will climb to the top and beg the editor to keep quiet and not publish it in the paper you know.

FEMALE DEBATERS.—The debate at the Methodist Y. P. A. meeting on Tuesday evening was conducted by four young ladies in a manner that surprised everybody. The subject was, "Resolved, that women has more influence on man than money." For the affirmative Misses Dolan and Vandusen did great work. Misses Pearson and Smith championed the money theory by forcible addresses, but, strange to say after so many examples to the contrary the world over, the affirmative won. THE SUN compliments the four young ladies for the way they handled the question.

DEATH OF BROWNIE BENNETT.—It is with sincere regret we have to chronicle the death of Miss Brownie, youngest daughter of Mr. J. M. Bennett, which occurred at the residence of her uncle, Mr. Edward Bennett, Bythia street, on Tuesday morning last at the early age of 13 years and 7 months. A short time ago the deceased contracted that dreaded disease, typhoid fever, but it was never thought it would end fatally. She bore her sufferings nobly until the end, death taking place at the time mentioned above. The funeral took place to the Forest Lawn cemetery on Wednesday and was largely attended. Mr. Bennett and the other relatives have our heartfelt sympathy.

The Rev. Elwin Radcliffe, B. C. L., Rector of St. Paul's church, Mt. Forest, placed his resignation with the church wardens, Messrs. Perry and Wood, Sunday week, to take effect the latter part of November (D.V.). The Rev. Mr. Radcliffe has accepted the curacy of Manningford, near Marlborough, in the county of Wiltshire, England; of which his uncle, the Rev. E. Everett, M. A., is the Rector. Mr. Radcliffe will be able to reside at home with his father, a gentleman of nearly 81 years of age, Rector of North Newton, the two parishes being barely three miles apart.—Mt. Forest Representative. The rev. gentleman mentioned in the above has many friends in Orangeville who regret his departure, but they all join in wishing Mr. Radcliffe a safe journey.

TO SPORTSMEN.—It does not seem to be generally known that the exportation of patridge or quail from the Province of Ontario is absolutely prohibited. By an amendment to the game laws of Ontario, passed at last session, patridge or quail shall not hunted, taken, or killed for the purpose of exporting the same out of Ontario, and in all cases the onus of proof that they are not shall be upon the person hunting, killing, or taking the same, or in whose possession or custody the same may be found. "The sale of quail is also prohibited, by Section 2 of Chap 70, of 1890, which reads as follows: No person shall by himself, his clerk, servant, or agent, expose or keep for sale, or directly or indirectly, upon any pretense or any device, sell or barter, or in any consideration of the purchase of any other property, give to any other person any quail hunted, taken, or killed in the province of Ontario, and the subsection shall continue to force until the 15th day of October, 1892."

DEATH OF MRS. MCKIM.—We clip the following obituary notice from the Toronto Advocate of the death of Mrs. McKim, wife of Mr. W. A. McKim, who was engaged in the hardware business in Orangeville some years ago:—"Last Sunday, after a long illness, brought on by la grippe, Mrs. Maggie H. McKim, beloved wife of Mr. W. A. McKim, merchant, of this town, passed calmly and serenely away to her everlasting rest. She had long been suffering, but bore her affliction with the fortitude and calmness of the Christian whose hope is well grounded on the Rock of Ages. She died at the residence of her sister, Mrs. Forbes, in Orillia, where she had been staying for some months. Her funeral, which was very largely attended, took place on Tuesday from Mr. Forbes's to the cemetery. Amongst the Methodist and others from Barrie attended the funeral, among whom were Messrs. Stanley, Fee, Reedy, Vair, Marr, Neill, Fraser and Ewan. Rev. R. N. Grant, officiated at the funeral, Mrs. McKim being a consistent member of the church. A number of other ministers also attended the funeral. Some very beautiful floral offerings had been sent, among which was a magnificent pillow from the employees in Mr. McKim's Barrie establishment. A wreath of immortelles with the words "Maggie" inside spoke of love for the departed, and sympathy for those who are left to mourn. Deep sympathy of many, both in Barrie and Orillia, is felt for Mr. McKim in the irreparable loss he has sustained. In February last they lost their only child.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Charles Lee of Concor paid THE SUN office a friendly call last Friday.

Rev. J. E. Moyle, of Toronto, has taken up his residence on west Broadway.

Miss Mary Mercer, of this town is visiting friends at Brampton and Salmonville.

Mr. Robt. Johnston, engineer C.P.R., and son Harry visited at Worcester last week.

Mr. Will Hughes, of Hughes Bros., was on a business trip to Grand Valley on Tuesday.

The Rev. Mr. Pearson and the Rev. Mr. Hossack will change pulpits next Sunday evening.

Mrs C. J. Potch returned to Toronto last week, after spending a few months with relatives in Amaranth.

Rev. J. L. Gilmour, the talented pastor of the Baptist church, is spending a few weeks' holidays at New York.

Messrs. J. J. White and W. W Bradley attended a Masonic supper at Brampton on Wednesday of last week.

Miss Annie Mousey, of West Toronto Junction, who has been visiting friends in Orangeville and vicinity, returned home last Thursday.

Assistant Corkill of the high school teaching staff has been dangerously ill for the past two weeks. We are glad to say, however, he is improving.

Mr. P. Mousey, publisher of THE SUN, and J. C. Reid, county clerk, were yesterday called to Whitby to give evidence in a criminal libel suit brought by Fisher Monro, formerly of this town, but now proprietor of the Cannington Independent, against Editor Robinson of the Gleaner of the same place.

ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS.

The Entrance Examinations to High Schools and Collegiate Institutes for 1890 and 1891 will be held on December 22nd, 23rd and 24th, and July 4th 5th and 6th. The following is the limit of studies in the various subjects:

Drawing and writing—Drawing-book No. 5 of the drawing Course for Public Schools. The proper formation of the small and capital letters. The pupil will be expected to write neat and legibly. Candidates for examination in Drawing and Writing must place their drawing and copy books in the hands of the presiding Examiner on the morning of the first day of the examination. Every exercise must be certified by the teacher as being the candidate's own work, and the drawing and copy books should show his progress during at least three months. Drawing in any blank exercise book will be accepted so long as it covers the prescribed course, and no discrimination will be made in favor of work contained in the authorized drawing book.

Agriculture and Temperance.—Paper will be set in the usual optional bonus subjects. A candidate may choose which of them he will and he cannot take both. The examination in agriculture will be based on the first seven chapters of the authorized text book in Agriculture.

Value of Subjects.—Reading, 50 marks; Drawing, 50; Neatness, 25; Writing, 50; Orthography, 30; Literature, 100; Arithmetic, 100; Grammar 100; Geography, 75; Composition, 100; History, 75; Temperance, 75; Agriculture, 75. Of the marks for each of Drawing and Writing, 25 will be assigned to the paper on the subject, and a maximum of 25 may be awarded as the result of the inspection of the candidate's drawing-book or copy book.

Glencoe Transcript:—"Robert Donnelly visited Biddulph on Monday and sold twenty tons of hay off the Donnelly homestead. He had the pleasure while there of notching that the old log house, in which the gang accused of murdering his parents and brothers represented they played cards on the night of the tragedy, was a total wreck, and that the late occupant, who was one of those accused, had left bag and baggage to endeavor to build up a new home in Michigan. Fortune, on the other hand, has smiled upon the remaining members of the family who were so cruelly dealt with, and Robert says he will be prepared to pay the last dollar owing on the old homestead when it falls due the 3rd of December next."

Timely Wisdom.

Great and timely wisdom is shown by keeping Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry on hand. It has no equal for cholera, cholera morbus, diarrhœa, dysentery, colic, cramps, and all summer complaints or looseness of the bowels.

MONO CENTRE.

Miss Emily A. Glover has gone on a lengthy visit to Arthur.

Mrs. John Laidlaw, who has been so ill for the past few weeks, is we are glad to say, recovering.

We notice by posters that our vacant hotel will come under the auctioneer's hammer on the 11th of November. We think if some enterprising firm would buy the property and convert it into a good mill it might prove a success financially.

Owing to the excellent weather of the past few weeks threshing in this vicinity is almost completed. The yield on the whole has been fair and if they receive a fair recompense for their labors some of the young men (including widowers) may contemplate matrimony.

Mr. Thos. Trewhell, jr., having decided on leaving the home of his childhood, has purchased a valuable farm in Tecumseth where it is expected he will in future reside. We are sorry you are leaving us, Tom, but as such is life we can only say that we wish you health and prosperity in your new home.

SHELBURNE.

(Free Press.)

Miss McTavish, sister of Rev. H. W. McTavish, is spending a few hell days here, having recently graduated at the Toronto General Hospital as a nurse.

Mr. A. B. Noble has purchased, from Mr. Wm. Jelly, the premises adjoining his store, at present occupied by Mr. J. M. Beattie. Mr. Noble intends next spring to erect a handsome two story brick building on the property. It is a valuable business site, and there is every reason to believe that his enterprise will be profitable to himself as well as of advantage to the village.

The Ontario Conference of the United Brethren in Christ will not be formally opened until to day (Thursday), when Bishop Weaver, D. D., of Dayton, Ohio, is expected to be present. Preliminary to the conference very well attended and interesting Ministerial Association meetings were held Tuesday and yesterday, most of the ministers of conference being in attendance. Rev. Dr. Downey, of Berlin, the President of the Association, preached an able sermon Tuesday evening, and Rev. Dr. McKee, of Dayton, Ohio, Treasurer of the Home Frontier and Foreign Missionary Society of the church preached last night. The indications are that a very harmonious and profitable session will be held. There will be preaching every evening until the close of conference. On Sunday there will be preaching morning, afternoon and evening in the U. B. Church, and the Shelburne Methodist pulpit will be supplied morning and evening by prominent ministers connected with the United Brethren denomination. Rev. Dr. McKee is expected to take one of the services in the Methodist church.

GRAND VALLEY.

Mr. R. Beale is opening out an oyster parlour in this village.

Mr. Wm. Duffy has leased Mr. John Williams' farm, east half lot 6, con. 7, Amaranth, adjoining the farm occupied by his brother, Joseph Duffy.

Some fine work in wood carving was exhibited by Mr. Geo. Gordon, of Laurel at our exhibition last week. The work was carefully examined by many and all expressed their admiration of the genius on the handiwork.

On Saturday week Mr. Geo. McBride who works in the saw mill here, had his left eye injured by an obstruction thrown by the large circular saw. He was off work for a few days, but is able to return to his work again.

The potato crop this year has been severely attacked by the rot, and dealers are not over anxious to buy up the tubers, as it is uncertain where the disease will stop. A car load was shipped by our potato dealer, and when their destination was reached a large quantity had taken the rot and, of course, there was a loss to the shipper. The vegetable does not command over 25 cents per bag at present.

On Saturday week, while at work at Mr. Alfred Duffy's threshing, Mr. Samuel Graham, jr., had the misfortune to have the tine of a pitchfork run clear through his left hand by a careless young man who was working next to him taking away the straw from the machine. The wounded hand, however, is improving rapidly. It is marvellous the number of accidents caused by forks in the hands of careless users of these dangerous instruments when not properly handled.

The exhibition held here last week was a success financially as well as in the superior quality of the exhibits. We understand that $122 was taken at the gates. Considering the large number of members and their families who received free tickets, this speaks well for the attendance from outsiders. Efforts will be made the coming year to make an advance and outstrip all other shows in this and adjoining counties. Larger prizes offered and other classes introduced will have a tendency to largely increase the entries and boom the show.

Two more divorce applications for next session were duly filed in Ottawa on Friday last. Thomas Bristow, a farmer, of the Township of Collingwood, County of Grey, will apply for a bill of divorce from his wife, Olive Emeline Bristow, of Midland, County of Simcoe, on the ground of adultery and desertion. Mrs. Isabel Carpenter, assistant matron of the Home of the Friendless, Hamilton, will apply for a bill of divorce from her husband, William H. Tapley, of Montreal, on the ground adultery.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE,

CHANCERY DIVISION.

In the Matter of the West Half of Lot Number Eighteen, in the Sixth Concession, East of Hurontario Street, in the Township of Mono in the County of Dufferin.

NOTICE is hereby given that James Steward, of the Township of Mono in the County of Dufferin, Yeoman, has made an application to the High Court of Justice for Ontario, for a certificate of title to the above mentioned property under "The Quieting Titles Act" and has produced evidence whereby he appears to be the owner thereof in fee free from all incumbrances except a mortgage dated the 24th April 1889, in favor of the North British Canadian Investment Company (Limited), whereforeany other persons having or pretending to have any title to or interest in the said land, or any part thereof, other than under the said mortgage, is required on or before Tuesday the thirteenth day of May, now next ensuing, to file a statement of his claim verified by affidavit, at my Chambers at Osgoode Hall in the city of Toronto and to serve a copy on Messrs. McMurrich & Urquhart at their office in Long Chambers, No. 9 Toronto Street in the city of Toronto, as solicitors for the said James Steward, and in default, every such claim will be barred and the title of the said James Steward will become absolute and indefeasible at Law and in Equity, subject only to the reservations mentioned in the 24th section of the said Act.

GEO. S. HOLMESTED,
Referee of Titles.

Dated this 18th day of October, 1890.

THE SUN
1891.

Some people agree with THE SUN's opinions about men and things, and some people don't; but everybody likes to get hold of the newspaper which is is not afraid and never afraid to speak its mind.

Democrats know that for twenty years THE SUN has fought in the front line for Democratic principles, never wavering or weakening in its loyalty to the true interests of the party it serves with fearless intelligence and disinterested vigor. At times upinions have differed as to the best means accomplishing the common purpose; but THE SUN's finish if it has seen further into the millstone.

Eighteen hundred and ninety one will be a great year in American politics and everybody should read THE SUN

EXCHANGE ECHOES.

Spicy Items Clipped and Condensed from Our Brightest Exchanges.

Dundalk has been infested with the tramp fraternity lately.

The citizens of Georgetown are seriously thinking of buying a fire-engine.

Mr Richardson, of the Winnipeg Tribune, has been sent to trial for criminal libel.

The Wardlow pulley company are asking Georgetown to give them a bonus to start a factory there.

Sir John Macdonald is going to lay the foundation stone of a new Methodist church at Ottawa on Thanksgiving Day.

Fergus and Elora are slowly assuming the guise of modern towns; the streets will be lighted by electricity in a few days.

Mr C. E. O. Hager, of Hagersville, has invented a stamp moistener which does away with the necessity of licking the stamp with the tongue.

A minister, while lecturing on 'Japan' at Ingersoll last week, was robbed of his gold watch and chain, but they were afterwards recovered by the police.

Miss Annie Bingham, daughter of Robt Bingham of Acton, died a short time ago from the effects of lock jaw, caused by stepping on a rusty nail.

McKay & Co., of Toronto, have made arrangements to ship several large consignments of barley grown in the vicinity of Toronto to Albany during the next few weeks for the American brewers.

T Sherbano, of Purple Valley, Ont., while sitting in a chair at a political meeting telling his friends how well he felt, gave a gasp and fell over dead. He was 45 years old and highly respected.

Albert, the six-year-old son of Peter Peddie, Esquesing, climbed a tree in pursuit of a squirrel the other day, when a limb broke and the youth fell about fifty feet to the ground. Fortunately his descent was broken by the limbs of the tree or Albert might have been a corpse instead of a badly scared boy.

Mr Isaac Anderson, a gentleman well known in Galt, was married at Oswego, N Y., on Wednesday of last week to Miss Clara M. Wellington, a popular young lady of that city. On their tour they met with rather an inciting incident being guests at the Leland House, Syracuse, the night it was burned, but fortunately Mr Anderson and his young wife escaped with no serious loss further than discomfort.—Galt Reporter.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Weak Stomach.—The wisest cannot enumerate one quarter of the distressing symptoms arising from imperfect or disordered digestion, all of which can be relieved by these admirable Pills. They remove cankery taste from the mouth, flatulency and constipation. Holloway's Pills rouse the stomach, liver, and every other organ, thereby bringing digestion to that healthy tone which fully enables it to convert all we eat and drink to the nourishment of our bodies. Hence these Pills are the surest strengtheners and the safest restoratives in nervousness, wasting, and chronic debility. Holloway's Pills are infallible remedies for impaired appetite, constipation, and a multitude of other disagreeable symptoms which render the lives of thousands miserable indeed. These Pills are approved by all classes.

DELIVERS AN ADDRESS TO 5000 PEOPLE.

The Irish Question Must Be Settled Before All Others—Opponents of Home Rule Accused of Having Blasphemed and Defiled Their Consciences.

EDINBURGH, Oct. 31.—Mr. Gladstone addressed 5000 persons in the Corn Exchange here this evening. Ireland, he said, continued to eclipse all other subjects. The country now fully recognized that the Irish question must be settled before others. The opponents of Home Rule had hoodwinked and defeated their constituencies by pledging themselves against coercion, promising local government and expressing themselves against granting large advances of British money to buy out landlords. Yet their first favorite measure after gaining power was coercion. Local government was vanishing in thin air and there was a proposal before Parliament granting £40,000,000 to buy out the landlords. The Conservatives took credit for setting Ireland right by firm and resolute government. Their administration of the law was worse than the law itself. The state of things was such that the Irish ought to hate the law, though he would not say they ought to break it. The Government itself was a perfect pattern of illegality. Its methods tended to provoke the people.

Mr. Gladstone then referred to the Tipperary affair. It was grossly illegal, he said, to close the doors of the court house against the people. The appointment of Magistrate Shannon to try the case was a gross scandal, not merely because he was an executive officer but also because he had been involved in a serious personal altercation with Mr. Dillon. If such tricks were played in England by warehousemen of power a very short way would be found to remedy such abuse. After the examples of police misconduct at Mitchelstown and Tipperary it was impossible to respect the police or the administration of law by the police. Their brutality and harshness constituted the crowning insult of absenteeism—the greatest that could be inflicted on the people at such a time. Mr. Balfour appeared to feel that it was not a part of the business of the Minister for Ireland to live there. Besides, how many of those present knew whether there were a Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland or not? (Laughter.) Nobody heard of him. Absenteeism, which was among the honest signs of degradation in the last century, seemed now a constant habit, the Irish Minister flaunting his absence in the face of the people. The Government vaunted itself on peace in Ireland, yet kept six times more policemen there than in England and Scotland. British taxpayers paid £1,300,000 yearly to the Irish police simply to assist in collecting rents for the landlords. English and Scotch landlords met their tenants fairly and had not found it necessary to appeal for the help of policemen to collect their rents. Yet British landlords had less more on rents than Irish landlords had. If the Government would grant a general election the state of public opinion would prove that the country was worn over to Home Rule. On this great question of Ireland Mr. Gladstone concluded. The last of the fortresses of bigotry and oppression would go down before the Liberal attack. Justice to Ireland would rid the empire of an intolerable nuisance and a deep disgrace and would gild with a glow brighter than that of any former period the closing years of a glorious reign.

The speech was received with enthusiastic cheers.

An Odd Inducement.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The Chronicle says that the style of political oratory adopted by Balfour and Morley leads to confirm the report that the dissolution of Parliament is near.

The present (1885) Parliament was elected in July, 1885, being the third elected within a period of six years.

THE UNITED LEAGUE.

Is the Proposed Name For the New Baseball Organization.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—At the meeting of the directors of the Players' League here to-day, a communication was received from the Brotherhood, expressing confidence in the board's ability to safely conduct the affairs and protect the interests of the Brotherhood. A reply was sent in which the directors promised to make a still stronger effort in their interest.

The conference of leagues was next considered. Al Johnson of Cleveland, chairman of the committee on conference with the representatives of the National League and American Association, reported that a number of meetings had been held but no positive agreement had been reached except that each body had expressed a wish to meet upon some common and satisfactory ground. A common name was agreed upon, he said, that of United League. This report was accepted and Arthur Irwin, Edward Hanlon and J. McTammany Ward were added to the same committee.

PROCURESS ARRESTED.

A Canadian Girl Saved from a Fate Worse than Death.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 31.—Catherine Cook, a disreputable woman of Grayling, Mich., visited London, Aylmer, St. Thomas and other Canadian towns recently and enticed Minnie Graham, a young St. Thomas girl, from her home, on the pretense that she would secure work for her. On arrival here a hackman named Welch became suspicious and informed the authorities. The Graham girl was sent back to St. Thomas and the procuress was jailed.

The Daily Wreck.

JOLIET, Ill., Oct. 31.—A collision occurred today on the Elgin, Joliet & Eastern Railway between a freight train and a construction train. Thomas Lawler, foreman of the construction gang, was killed and eight others were injured. ### ONTARIO CURLERS.

The Tankard Question—Officers of Clubs for the Year.

TORONTO, Oct. 31.—The semi-annual meeting of the Ontario Branch of the Royal Caledonian Curling Club was held yesterday in the Walker House, President John Harvey of the Hamilton Thistles in the chair. After transacting the preliminary business connected with the opening of the curling season, the secretary-treasurer's report was presented, showing the great interest centered in the game and showing a prosperous year's work.

The special committee sent in their report of their interview with the Grand National curlers who were in session here last July. It was proposed to establish an International tankard match every fifth year between United States and Ontario curlers, the first contest in February, 1892, on Canadian ice was recommended and adopted.

The executive committee reported that clubs unable to pay their district medals matched last season, owing to a lack of funds, be included on this year's allotment. It was recommended that a committee be appointed to revise bylaws and regulations; also that the annual club dues be increased from $1.50 to $2, and members' rates be increased from 10 to 15 cents, but that no club pay more than $25 in fees. A hot discussion followed on the last clause named fees. The rate was finally fixed at 15 cents per man with no limit to the amount paid by any club. With this alteration the report was adopted.

These officers were elected:

President—Dr. Rossiter, Peterboro.

First Vice-President—W. Hodgson, Toronto Granites.

Second Vice-President—Dr. Beaton, Orillia.

Chaplain—Rev. D. J. Macdonnell.

A W.F.'S PLEA FOR PARDON.

Mrs. Marshall Issues a Letter to Woodstock Citizens.

WOODSTOCK, Oct. 31.—As a telegraphic was yesterday every few signatures were being attached here to the Marshall petition, he condemned man's wife has now decided to use her influence to secure signatures to-day to the following appeal to the public, praying for a commutation of her husband's death sentence. It was as follows:

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Oct. 31, 1890.

DEAR SIR,—May I ask you to sign the enclosed petition for the commutation of my husband's sentence. I shall indeed feel deeply grateful if you will help me to save him from the gallows. I am, dear sir, yours truly, (Signed) FLORENCE MARSHALL.

A HALIFAX SENSATION.

Mysterious Death of a Policeman Who Had Previously Been Shot at.

HALIFAX, Oct. 31.—Coast life John Mitchell was found lying on the road 3½ miles from Langley on Monday night. McPhee, a constable, had shot at the man a short time before. Mitchell was charged by McPhee with illegally selling liquor without a license. The police claim that Mitchell was not far from the place when McPhee was shot at. The police claim that Mitchell was only a spectator on the left ear. It is surmised that he died of heart disease, and that out of his wagon.

Glass Mills to Go Up.

FINDLAY, Ohio, Oct. 31.—This morning every window glass factory in Findlay was sold into the new trust organized to control the production and sale of window glass. This trust embraces all the window glass houses in the United States west of Pittsburg, except that at Celina, Ohio, which is owned by Findlay parties. The effect of this combination will be to increase the price of glass.

Shouldn't Have Done It.

TIPPERARY, Oct. 31.—The trial of the defendants indicted for conspiracy was resumed before Magistrates Irwin and Shannon to-day. One of the witnesses, who gave evidence yesterday for the crown, testified that he had many times told that hereafter his family would not be supplied with milk.

Michael O'Brien, one of the defendants, asked that a summons be issued against Mr. Balfour compelling him to appear before court and stand under oath what he had said at Newcastle. The court declined to issue a summons, declaring that it refused to be the medium for anything illegal or improper. David Sheehy, one of the defendants, took part in the discussion and made remarks which were endorsed by the magistrate as contempt of court. He was committed to jail for one week.

Two Engineers Lost Their Lives.

TREASURER'S

SALE OF LANDS

IN ARREARS FOR TAXES

IN THE COUNTY OF DUFFERIN.

BY virtue of a Warrant issued by the Warden of the County of Dufferin, and authenticated by the Seal of the said County, bearing date the 19th day of August, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, and to me directed for the collection of the arrears of taxes due for three years and over upon the lands hereinafter mentioned and described, being in the County of Dufferin; these are therefore to give notice that, unless the said taxes, together with all costs and charges, be sooner paid, I shall, on SATURDAY, the TWENTY-SECOND DAY OF NOVEMBER, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, at the hour of TWO o'clock in the afternoon, at the Court House, in the Town of ORANGEVILLE, in the said County, proceed to sell by Public Auction the said lands, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to discharge such arrears of taxes and costs and charges incurred.

R. T. HAUN,
Treasurer County of Dufferin.

Newspaper Decisions.

1. Any person or persons who take a paper regularly from the post office, whether directed in his name or another's, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for payment.
2. If a person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and then collect the whole amount whether the paper is taken or not.
3. The courts have decided that refusing to take a newspaper or periodical from the post office or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intended fraud.

ASLEEP ON THE TRACK.

A little child, tired of play, had stretched his head on a railroad track and fallen asleep. The train was almost upon him when a passing stranger rushed forward and saved him from a horrible death. Perhaps you are asleep on the track, too. You are, if you are suffering the healing cough, the hectic flush, the loss of appetite, growing weakness and fatigue which have once fastened themselves upon you. Wake up, or the train will be upon you! Consumption, which time itself could scarcely hold upon its victims, while they are unconscious of its approach, must be taken in time, if it is to be overcome. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has cured thousands of cases of this most fatal of maladies. If taken in time, and given a fair trial, it is guaranteed to benefit or cure in every case of Consumption, or money paid for it will be promptly refunded.

For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Asthma, Severe Coughs, and kindred affections, it is an efficient remedy.

THE FRONT GATE.

An old and crippled gate am I
Still twenty years have passed
Since I was hung so high and dry
Between these posts to fast;
But now I've grown so powerful weak—
Despised by man and beast—
I'm scarcely strong enough to speak,
Although I'm never greased.

'Twas twenty years ago, I say,
When Mr. Isaac White
Came kind of hanging round my way
'Most every other night,
He hung upon my starboard side
And she upon the other,
Till Susan Smith became his bride,
And in due time a mother.

I groaned intensely when I heard—
Despite I am so aged—
My doom breathed in a single word:
The baby was a girl!
And as she grew and grew and grew,
I lead bemoaned my fate;
For she was very fair to view,
And I—I was the gate!

When in due time, a lover came,
Betraying my rule,
A dapper fellow, Brown by name,
The grown-up baby woo'd.
They sprang upon me in the gloom,
And talked of moon and star?
They're married now and live at home
Along with me and pa.

My lot was happy for a year
No courting night or day—
I had no thought, I had no fear,
Bad luck would come my way.
But oh! this morning, save the mark!
There came a wild surprise,
A shadow flitted, grim and dark,
Across my sunny skies.

A doctor, with a knowing smile,
A nurse with face serene,
A bustle in the house the while,
Great Scott! what can it mean?
My hinges ache; my back is weak,
My pickets in a whirl;
I hear that awful doctor speak;
It is another girl.

CHAPTER LXI.

SILVIA'S CONFIDANTE.

WHILE she lived, Silvia never forgot the hour that followed. From the drawing-room came the sound of silvery laughter, the murmur of musical voices, Mrs Greville's clearest and most distinct of all. The fragrance of costly exotics seemed to tremble on the air. Just before her, on a small stand, stood a large vase filled with white lilies, and ever afterward the faintest breath of their perfume seemed to bring most vividly before her the noble, earnest face of Lady Clotilde Dynecourt.

"I will tell you the story of my life," she had said, and Lady Clotilde looked at her with an expression of most eager interest.

"Will you, Silvia? You may trust me quite safely. I have loved few as I love you, and I feel that your life holds a romance—I have always thought so."

But Silvia had shrunk back, pale and shuddering. What kind of story was hers to tell a noble lady, whose pure ears had never been defiled by hearing of the wicked ways of the world? And yet she, in all the pride of her dignity of her patrician purity, was not more innocent and guiltless than Silvia herself.

"Why should I fear?" she said to herself. "I loved, I trusted, and I was deceived; but I was innocent."

"I see you are half repenting," said Lady Clotilde. "I will not urge you, but I am a true friend, Silvia, and I should like to know some sensible reason why you will not marry Mr. Compton."

"You shall know," cried Silvia, with sudden passion, "even if in telling you I must lose what I have learned to prize—your good opinion."

"You will never lose that," said Lady Clotilde, earnestly; "it is yours for life."

"The reason why I cannot marry Mr. Compton, or any one else," said Silvia, "is that, although I call myself a widow, I believe that my husband is living; and, though I honestly and honorably believe myself to be a true and lawful wife, the man I loved and trusted told me he had betrayed me—that I was not his wife at all."

She spoke hurriedly, with a kind of suppressed passion, as though she half feared the consequences of her words, yet was resolved to utter them."

"I know you will be surprised," she continued, "surprised and shocked, but it is better that you should know the truth at once. I have often wished to tell you. I have often wondered if you would care even ever so little for me if you knew my story."

For an answer, Lady Clotilde bent down and kissed her.

"I could sooner mistake a snowdrop for a poisonous weed than you for aught than the purest and best; to be deceived is a misfortune, not a crime."

Tears filled Silvia's eyes as she listened to the kindly words. How little she who uttered them knew that they were addressed to the victim of the husband she believed and trusted in. She kissed Lady Clotilde's hand in a passion of rapturous gratitude.

"Now I can tell you all," she cried; "and no word of my story has passed my lips before."

Half kneeling, half sitting, on the little stool at Lady Clotilde's feet, her hands clasped, her beautiful face raised with an expression of wistful supplication, Silvia told the story of her life. It was like an idyl—a romance. The story of her simple girlish life, passed so happily in the pretty village home; the dawn of that great golden light of love, when her here first came; the gradual growth of the girlish love into woman's deepest and most passionate idolatry; the marriage in the quiet Scottish manse; the one year of paradise, when earth indeed seemed heaven; the new love and happiness that baby brought with him, and then the cruel awakening—the cruel blow. Lady Clotilde listened intently, her white, jeweled hand resting over and anon on Silvia's fair head, then touching the beautiful face with caressing fingers.

"It was cruel," she said, in a low, dreamy voice. "It was the most cruel and heartless deed ever done."

"It seemed doubly cruel to me," said Silvia, with a deep tearless sob; "because it was so totally unexpected. You—if you will pardon my presumption for comparing myself with you—you know how firmly grounded is your faith in your husband and your home—mine was just as firm. You know the terrible anguish that would be yours now if your husband wrote to you and said your marriage was no marriage. You can imagine what that would be to you. Ah! Lady Clotilde, it was the same to me."

"It would simply have killed me," said Lady Dynecourt; "I should not have survived it one day."

"So I thought," said Silvia, gently; "but Heaven is good, and the love of life is strong. I went out to die—I held that which would have brought me death in my own hands—yet I am here, living, telling you my story, as though it had happened in another life. Shame anguish, and despair do not always kill."

"You had no warning of what was coming, Silvia?" asked Lady Clotilde.

"No; none. My husband—I shall always give him that title, for he is my husband before Heaven—left me with a smile and a kiss, saying he should return—I remember the words—at five. I waited for him unsuspiciously, as you await the return of your husband now, and I have never seen him since. The letter was brought to me, and it drove me mad."

"It was most heartless, most cruel," said Lady Dynecourt. "Why, Silvia, he who could act so cruelly is not worth sorrow or regret; he is worthy of nothing save contempt."

"I cannot help loving him," she said gently. "I try to despise him, but I cannot, because—I think it is because I loved him once so very dearly. I try to say to myself, how despicable, how cruel, how selfish he was, but some still small voice in my heart always pleads for him. He was Cyril's father, and I cannot forget that."

"And you have never heard anything from him or about him?"

"No; I have done my best. For some long time after that cruel letter I was like one stunned by a violent blow—I could not even think clearly—and no doubt as to the truth of what he had said entered my mind. Years afterward, and then quite accidentally, a chain of circumstances, which I need not stop to explain, led to my finding out that he had deceived me; that my marriage, according to the Scotch law, was perfectly legal and valid; and that if I chose to make my claim, he would be obliged to own that I was his lawful wife. It is not altogether for my own sake that I would seek justice, but for Cyril's; it will make such a difference to my boy."

"You did very wrong not to urge it, Silvia," said Lady Dynecourt, so unconscious—Heaven help her!—of what her own fate would be if that claim were allowed, "not only for Cyril's sake, but for your own: it is monstrous that a young life like yours should be so cruelly blighted. You are bound in honor and in conscience to do the best you can for yourself."

"I loved him so dearly," said the girl, unconsciously, "that it seems to me I have no self left—it would only be for Cyril's sake."

"Then," said Lady Clotilde, "for Cyril's sake why not do it?"

"For the simple reason that I cannot find him," said Silvia. "Nor do I know what steps to take in order to find him. I might, perhaps, obtain some clew if I could make my story known; but that, for his sake, I would never do."

"You are wrong," said Lady Clotilde, impetuously. "Such conduct as his to you should not go unpunished. You do wrong to all womankind when you pass it over in silence and oblivion. Perhaps if men were more often held up to public scorn for such cowardly actions, there would be fewer of them."

"I could not punish him," replied Silvia. "I who loved him so dearly could not be the one to bring retribution on him."

"What rank—what position did he hold in life, Silvia?" asked Lady Dynecourt.

"I cannot tell. When one has been deceived, it is difficult to believe any thing. Now that I know more of the world, I am inclined to think he must have belonged to the higher class—a class that can afford to gratify every whim. I have grown wiser since the days when I thought my village home the fairest under the sun; knowledge does not always bring happiness."

A strong impulse urged Lady Dynecourt to ask if she thought Rymer an assumed name, but she repressed it, not willing to elicit any information that Silvia did not voluntarily give to her.

"You have had excellent opportunities for seeing most of the habitues of the great world," she said, thoughtfully; "among them, have you seen no one who reminds you of him?"

"No," replied Silvia; "he was as superior to every one I have seen as the sun is to the stars."

Lady Dynecourt smiled faintly.

"You loved him well, and the glamour of love is upon you still," she said.

But Silvia, looking earnestly at her, said:

"Lady Dynecourt, you have not the legal knowledge of a clever lawyer, but you have the instinct of a noble and true lady; will you answer me one question?"

"Yes," was the quiet reply; "that I will, if it be in my power."

CHAPTER LXII.

A WIFE'S DECISION.

Silvia paused for one half minute. She had felt some suspense before the counsel's reply had reached her, but she felt greater suspense now. A lawyer she felt might be mistaken, but a noble and honorable woman never could be. One like Lady Dynecourt, whose heart, mind, and soul were naturally noble, delicate, and refined, would have a quicker, keener, surer insight into things than mere legal men could ever give. She felt, therefore, as if her fate, her future, her fortune, her life, were to be directed, when she looked up into Lady Clotilde's face, and said:

"Will you tell me your own, honest, unbiased opinion, whether you think my marriage legal or not?"

"If you tell me all the details, you shall have my earnest unbiased opinion. I know little or nothing of what constitutes the marriage of my country, but I think, in common with every one else, I know what constitutes a marriage before God and man."

Silvia then related every detail—the honest, good faith in which she herself was married, the ceremony that took place, even the names of the witnesses. She omitted not one detail, and Lady Clotilde, little, ah! little dreaming upon whom she sat in judgment, said:

"Your marriage I should consider as legal and binding as though it had been celebrated in an English cathedral before thousands of people."

"If you say so, no doubt shall ever cross my mind again," cried Silvia.

"I do say so. I believe you are a wife, even as I believe I am one myself; and, Silvia, you should not be content to remain quiet; for the sake of religion and morality you should take some steps. Only think how terrible it would be if the man who is absolutely your husband should marry again!"

Silvia's face grew pale.

"It may even be so," continued Lady Dynecourt; "then think what shame and sorrow would fall on innocent heads. You must avert what evil you can, Silvia. Have you any idea as to whether he would think of marrying again?"

A vague, distressed expression came over the beautiful face.

"Your question gives me many anxious thoughts," she replied. "When that cruel letter of his came it drove me mad. And afterward, when I tried to recall every word, I found that I could not do so—it seems to me like a dream. There are times when I fancy that he was going to England to marry some lady in his own rank of life; then again I think it must be a fevered fancy. If it were really so, Lady Clotilde, and I made his fault known, I should place him in the hard, cruel clutches of the law."

"Then you would do right; the law was made for such offenders. You must think of others, Silvia. If he is married, then there is some one else most cruelly deceived; some one else who thinks her self a wife, and who is after all no wife. The consequences of one sin are terrible and never ending."

"Yet I could not punish him," said Silvia, musingly. "I think, I do not say I am sure, but I think that if I were to meet him again, even if he had wife and children by his side, I could only forgive him. I have borne the bitterness of death, I think. Oh, Lady Dynecourt—do not say I am weak and foolish—I think I should bury my wrongs in my own heart, and let him pass on. If I know myself, I could never bring on another the same unhappiness I have felt myself."

"We shall not agree, Silvia," said Lady Dynecourt. "I like right at any cost. I would do right, no matter what it cost me."

"Ah, but, Lady Clotilde, if he should have now the love of another woman, if he should have made another his wife. Think what she must suffer if he were punished and his crime brought to light."

"Certainly she must suffer. You suffered, did you not? But, supposing her to be a good and true woman, do you think she would thank you for the weakness that allows her to keep a position at once so false and so degrading?"

"I do not know," said the gentle voice. "It would be hard to bear."

Lady Clotilde raised her head with a lofty pride that was natural to her.

"I know, speaking for myself," she said, "that I would rather bear any suffering than be deceived. That I could not bear. The position of a person deceived on any vital point always seems to me more or less contemptible. Give me truth, no matter what goes with it."

"But such suffering as that, Lady Clotilde."

"Better ten thousand times to be so endured than deception should be continued. I put myself in the place of such a woman. Do you know what I should do, Silvia?"

"Something noble and grand, I am sure," said Silvia, with admiring eyes.

"I should recognize my position at once. I should go to the man I had believed to be my husband. I should say to him: 'Before God and man, your faith and truth belong to the woman you married in Scotland, and even though my heart break, I bid you farewell forever.'"

"Would you really do that?" asked Silvia.

"Undoubtedly. I would not remain under his roof or bear his name one hour after I knew such a truth."

Silvia sighed deeply.

"I am not so brave or so strong as you," she said. "You are the noblest lady I have ever met. And, oh! Lady Dynecourt, is it possible that you will care for me as much, now you know my story, as you did before?"

Lady Clotilde smiled.

"I shall care for you even more, my dearest Silvia; but I shall never cease urging on you the need of seeking justice. Now I hear Mrs. Greville's visitors going. How long I have been here! Silvia, my husband is coming home, as I told you, very soon, and I am having the picture gallery and the drawing-rooms redecorated. Will you come and give me the benefit of your good advice? Mrs. Greville tells me you were quite famous in Rome for your great artistic taste."

Silvia glanced with a sky-bright smile at the noble face.

"I do not think that I ever was or ever shall be famous," she said. "I am only a wayside flower; but I cannot tell you how much pleasure it will give me to help you."

"Before Lord Dynecourt left England," continued Lady Clotilde, "he sat to Winterhetter for his portrait; it has not been sent home yet, but I hope it will come before my lord himself. I have had all the pictures rearranged, so as to give it the best place in the gallery. Why are you smiling, Silvia?"

"Because it makes my heart very glad to hear you," she replied; "it is like listening to the sweetest music. Do you know, Lady Clotilde, that you are the first happy wife I have known; you are the first who has spoken happily of love—husband and home—that is why I would sooner hear you than listen to the sweetest music in the world."

Lady Clotilde connected a sigh with a smile.

"You have seen the darkest side of life. Certainly there may be a happier experience in store for you; it is not impossible that you may be on the list of happy wives yourself. Never despair. Then you will come to me to morrow? I shall ask Mrs. Greville if she can spare you for some few days."

"That will be quite a pleasure to look forward to," said Silvia, more brightly than Lady Clotilde had ever heard her speak yet; and so with kindly words they parted.

DUFFERIN FALL ASSIZES.

The McGibbon v. Hall Case Dismissed—Tolton v. C. P. R. Held Over—Hilts v. Becker Settled—His Lordship's Address.

The Dufferin fall assizes opened in the court house, Orangeville, on Tuesday morning before his lordship Chief Justice Armour. The grand jury consisted of John Aiken, W. R. O. Hewat, Orangeville; Simon Jelly, S. R. Irwin, Andrew Peal, Shelburne; John Hall, John Johnston, Matthew Lunktree, Amaranth; Robert Donaldson, John Keyes, Robert Brown, John Fearns, East Garafraxa; Richard Allen, Hugh McGuire, Samuel Crozier, John Barclay, Jos. Anderson, Mono; William Wilson, Walter Cawley, Charles Anderson, Melancthon; Samuel Legate, George Clayton, East Luther; George Rutledge, James Tait, Mulmur. After the above gentlemen had been sworn in the judge made a few remarks. He said there were no criminal cases to require their deliberation. A case of larceny had been improperly remanded to the assizes; only cases of great importance should come up for trial at the assizes, for the judges were generally overtaxed. Such cases as murder, manslaughter, robbery, housebreaking and criminal libel should be tried at assize courts. The only duty required of the grand jurors this time was to examine the jail and report.

There were sixteen cases entered. This is the second largest number of cases on the calendar since Dufferin was proclaimed a county, the largest number being twenty four. However, none of the suits are of very great importance, and several of them have been settled or withdrawn. The first case that came up for trial was MCGIBBON V. HALL et al.

It was an action brought by Duncan McGibbon, a farmer residing near Creemore, against Wm. Jas. Hall and the Dominion Grange Mutual Insurance Co. to recover damages for malicious prosecution. The plaintiff insured his property with the company and had afterwards sustained loss by fire. The plaintiff, McGibbon, pressed the company for the amount of his insurance, and the defendants resisted the claim and had an inquest held as to the cause of the fire and the value of the property consumed. After the inquest was held the defendants claimed the plaintiff was guilty of perjury and caused his arrest. His Lordship dismissed the case without costs. Bigelow, Q. C. (Toronto), for plff; McKay (Orangeville), for Hall; Creasor (Owen Sound), for Mutual Grange Ins. Co.

TOLTON V. C. P. R.

An action brought by Justice of the Peace Tolton, of Waldemar, against the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. for changing the course of a stream. Case left over until the spring assizes.

KIDD V. KIDD

The plaintiff, John Kidd, brought action against his son, Thomas, for ejectment. A verdict was entered for the plaintiff and he was also awarded $60 damages. W. L. Walsh for plff; Myers & Robb for deft.

ROBINSON V. BROOKS.

Mrs. Robinson brought this action against the defendant, Brooks, compelling him to vacate some land in Mulmur. After several witnesses had been examined his lordship ordered a life lease to be made out to the plaintiff. N. G. Bigelow for plff, Myers & Robb for defts.

BELL V. GALLAUGHER.

Barrister Bell, of the law firm of Fisher & Bell, Alliston, to recover the amount of an account. The defendant in this case, Mr. Paul Gallaugher, formerly of Erin, died about three months ago. The matter was referred to the local master.

HUSTING V. AINSLEY.

This case was struck off the docket, the plaintiff's counsel not appearing.

MCGRUTHER V. CALLAHAN.

This action was brought by Mrs. McGruther an elderly lady, against her neighbor, Barney Callahan, for slander and assault. From the evidence submitted it appears these residents do not live on very neighborly terms, and do not seem to care what style of language they use. The alleged slander and assault occurred one morning when Mrs McGruther was driving Barney's geese off her property when Barney ran down and it is said kicked her on the leg. Mr. Walsh addressed the jury at some length and was followed by Elgin Myers, Q. C., for the plaintiff. The judge charged the jury, calling their attention to important points in the evidence. The jury, after being out a couple of hours, returned with a verdict for the defendant, each to pay their own costs. Myers & Robb for plff; W. L. Walsh for deft.

[The remainder of the report will be concluded next week.]

The Hamilton Spectator makes the announcement that it will abandon the morning edition, and devote all its energies to an evening edition.

BURNARD V. NELSON

TWENTY-FIVE DOLLARS FOR CRIMINAL ASSAULT.

An Orangeville Broommaker Sues a Caledon Man for Three Thousand Dollars—The Jury Returns Out Nearly Three Hours.

The most interesting for those who attend court out of mere curiosity was instituted before Chief Justice Armour and a jury at the assizes yesterday. The women turned out in good numbers to hear a repetition of the Ritchie-Robb seduction case which was tried the previous day. The fair plaintiff in the suit is a lady named Ellen Burnard, who conducts a dress and mantlemaking establishment on the third flat of the building occupied by the Bank of Hamilton. George Nelson, the defendant, is a well-known resident of Caledon, and is said to be the owner of a good farm in that municipality. The alleged assault is said to have taken place in the plaintiff's rooms in January last. As the result of the assault complained that she was indisposed for six weeks thereafter. The evidence would not look very well in a moral journal like THE SUN, consequently we refuse to publish it. His Lordship read a letter written by the plaintiff to the defendant, in which the former truly estimated the height of the latter's feelings toward her. While the judge was reading the epistle he was frequently interrupted by the snickering of the crowd.

Mr. Walsh addressed the jury on behalf of the plaintiff, and set the case in a good light. Mr. Myers followed for defendant. After the judge's charge, which was strongly against Nelson, the jury retired at about 12 o'clock. It took the jury just two hours and forty-five minutes to agree to a verdict. At a quarter to three they returned with a verdict awarding the plaintiff thirty-five dollars and costs.

A SCENE.

Immediately after the verdict both Miss Burnard and Mr. Nelson left the court room and came face to face with each other at the foot of the stairs. The plaintiff, thinking she had not received full justice, jumped at the defendant and caught him by the hair of the head with one hand and by the whiskers with the other. Before she could be taken off she gave Mr. Nelson, as she afterwards described it to a SUN reporter, a "real good pulling." And both wended their way down town on different streets.

AMARANTH COUNCIL.

LAVERY, Oct. 25, 1890.

The Amaranth council met pursuant to adjournment. All the members present. The reeve in the chair. Minutes of previous meeting read and adopted.

Moved by W. Johnston, seconded by J. A. Turner, that the clerk notify John Cooney to remove at once all obstructions off the west side of the 5th con. line, opposite lot 13.—Carried.

Moved by E. Hamilton, seconded by J. Dudgeon, that E. H. Hannah be paid the sum of 50 cents for repairing road scraper for 8th line beat and the reeve issue his order for the same.—Carried.

Moved by W. Johnston, seconded by J. A. Turner, that the reeve issue his order in favor of Robt. Stevenson for $5 for covering culvert over drain 25, on 5th con. line.—Carried.

Moved by W. Johnston, seconded by J. A. Turner, that Charles R. Wheelock be paid the following sums:—Balance of contract on drains 28, 29 and 30, $40 15; surveying road allowance along 4th line, lots 25 to 30, $5; surveying along base line, con 4, $3; and surveying on drain No. 1 lot 8, con 4, $5 50 and the reeve issue his order for the same.—Carried.

Moved by W. J. Johnston, seconded by J. Dudgeon, that the clerk notify the council of East Luther to clear obstructions from the outlet to a drain running out of township of Amaranth and emptying into a creek on the N ½ lot 32, con. 6, of the township of East Luther.—Carried.

Moved by E. Hamilton, seconded by J. Dudgeon, that a by-law be introduced at the next sitting of the council to prevent all parties interested in drains or otherwise, from damming up or in any way obstructing the proper flow of the water; also to cause said parties to keep said drains cleared out to the original depth.—Carried.

Moved by W. Johnston, seconded by J. A. Turner, that the clerk correspond with Jas McMullen, Esq., M.P., asking for information as to the proper steps to take in petitioning the Government for a refund of the sum granted by way of bonus to the Toronto, Grey and Bruce Railway Company, or a part thereof.—Carried.

The council then adjourned to meet again on Monday, December 15th, at the usual hour.

M. G. VARCOE, Clerk.

The gopher is described in the dictionaries as "a species of rodent," and has been heretofore regarded as about as desirable eating as crow, or rats. It is an old saying, however, that "hunger is the best sauce;" and some of the starving people of North Dakota have been driven to eat what has hitherto been looked upon as vermin. Now, see the patriotism of the American papers! The Dakota papers at once come out and declare that they have tried gopher and "never tasted better flesh;" and by next year we expect to see mentioned in the glowing pamphlets issued for decoying unwary settlers, that Dakota possesses the grandest supply of gophers in the world, and that for delicacy of flavour, sweetness and tenderness, they are vastly superior to any other kind of flesh in creation.

Home Intelligence.

Market day tomorrow, 14 inst.

The price of hides has gone down.

The roads in town are in a passable condition now.

Regular meeting of the council on Monday evening.

Dufferin county council will meet on Tuesday, the 18th.

The fire brigade held a meeting at the fire hall on Friday night.

Mr. Jas. Gordon's foundry on Mill street has been closed up.

The brick work of the village factory building is progressing very slowly.

Weighmaster Hicks, of the Hicks' house, is kept busy at the weigh-scales lately.

Several of the local societies celebrated Guy Fawkes' night by indulging in sports.

Mr. Geo. Hawkins shipped a large number of cups to the European market last week.

Baker Rosenberger sold his stock by auction on Saturday evening. Jimmy Patterson wielded the hammer.

The Orangeville special market for the sale of butter, poultry, etc., will be reopened on Thursday the 13th instant.

The Birchall question will form the theme of Rev. Mr. Pearson's sermon in the Methodist church on Sunday evening next.

Messrs. Haley and Kidg are constructing Broadway and Mill streets by building a sidewalk through the Elgie house yards.

Thursday of each week has been appointed a special market day and the Orangeville board of trade are determined to make it successful.

It is confidently expected the highest cash price will be secured for butter, poultry, etc., offered for sale at the Orangeville market on Thursday of each week.

Rev. Mr. Pearson preached in the Methodist church at Mono Mills on Sabbath last. The last time the rev. gentleman occupied a pulpit in Mono Mills previous to Sunday was twenty-eight years ago.

Not a little surprise was caused in town on Tuesday when it was known that Mr. J. H. Hughes, fruit dealer and confectioner, had made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors. We are sorry that Mr. H. was compelled to assign.

The Young People's Association of Methodist church will shortly introduce a new feature at its meetings. It is proposed to charge an admission fee of ten cents, and for another dime you will be able to procure cake and a cup of coffee.

The ever pleasing semi monthly meeting of the Methodist Y. P. A. took place in the church on Tuesday evening. The edifice was filled to the doors, and the "boys" received several hard knocks at the hands of the female editors of the society's papers.

COUNTY TAX SALE.—County Treasurer Haun will hold a sale of lands in arrears for taxes in the court house, Orangeville, on Saturday, the 22nd inst. A list of the lots offered for sale will be found on our first page.

FINED.—Geo. Glendenning, of the township of East Luther, was fined $100 and costs by Wm. Osbourne, J. P., at Grand Valley, on Friday, for violating the Ontario Medical Act. The information was laid by W. Webb, of London, the detective of the C. P. S. O.

SOLD OUT.—Ald. W. P. King has disposed of his undertaking business to his brother, Mr. T. T. King, who takes possession immediately. Mr. W. P. purchased Wilson Bros' funeral directing establishment at Owen Sound, and he will leave for that town shortly.

BIRCHALL.—Rev. A. Henderson lectured on the "Life of Birchall and its Lessons" to a large congregation in St. Mark's church on Sunday evening. At the close of the service the congregation joined in silent prayer for the prisoner. Many members of the church were deeply affected during the prayer.

DOCTORS.—Among the candidates who have passed their final examinations before the Medical Council we notice the names of Dr. R. W. Rooney, Shelburne. Messrs. J. J. Harper, Rosemont, A. E. Henry, of Mono Centre, R. M. Mitchell, of Shrigley, have passed their primary examinations before the Council.

DEATH.—The death occurred on Thursday last, at his residence, in the South ward, of Mr. James Coleman, formerly of Mono township. The deceased had been ill only two weeks, and was 77 years old. He leaves a wife and grown up family to mourn their loss. The remains were interred in Mono on Friday.

CALLED HOME.—Miss Agnes E. Speirs died at her mothers residence, Erin, on Friday last. For some time deceased had been failing in health, and her demise was by no means unexpected. Miss Speirs, previous to her sickness, was employed as a tailoress in Mr. W. J. Johnston's shop here and was well liked by her acquaintances.

A TOWN FOR POINTERS.—Mr. R. T. Haun, manager of the Bank of Hamilton, Orangeville, and treasurer for Dufferin county, was in town yesterday taking stock how his brother, county treasurer Parker ran the show here as he (Mr. Haun) has a tax sale in the near future. This is the place to come for pointers.—Owen Sound Sun.

Auction Sale.—Auctioneer Jas. A. Patterson will sell on account of parties leaving the country, on Tuesday, the 18th, the farm of Mr. George Marshall, west half of lot 8 in the tenth concession, E. G. Garafraxa, commencing at 1 o'clock. Sale positive. Mr. Marshall has leased his farm and is retiring. Buyers should make a note of the date.

A WELL-KNOWN LAND SURVEYOR DEAD.—Mr. Hugh Wilson, Dominion land surveyor, died at the Queen house yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock, after an illness extending over a period of several weeks. Deceased was formerly a resident of Mount Forest. He was well known in his profession, and was a member of the board of examiners of the Provincial Land Surveyors' Association. The remains were last night taken to Montreal.—Empire of Saturday.

THE VARSITY BOYS.—The town hall could not have held many more people than were present at the concert given by the glee club of the Toronto University medical school on the evening of Thanksgiving day. The Varsity boys were assisted by the best local talent, and the combination rendered a first-class program, every piece receiving bursts of applause from the large audience. The receipts, which were very large, will be devoted to the spire fund of St. Mark's church.

THE FARTHER SHORE.—The death took place at his mother's residence, Island line, Mono, on Sunday last of Mr. J. F. Marshall, who had been confined to his bed for about two weeks with typhoid fever. Deceased was quiet and retiring in his manner and was highly respected by the entire circle of his acquaintances. The deceased was only 22 years of age. The funeral took place to the Forest Lawn cemetery on Monday afternoon. Rev. A. Henderson conducted the religious service.

JOHNSTON-HICKS.—On Tuesday the 4th, the residence of Mr. Robt. Hicks, Waldemar, was the scene of a happy event, being the marriage of his only daughter, Miss Charlotte, to Mr. John Johnston, proprietor of the Waldemar flour mills. The Rev. Mr. Scudamore of Grand Valley performed the marriage ceremony in the presence of a few intimate friends of the bride and bridegroom. The bride wore a handsome gown of brown silk. The newly wedded couple, amid general congratulations, left on a bridal tour to Winnipeg and other points.

ONCE IN A LIFETIME.—On Tuesday last the editor of the Herald very unexpectedly received a letter from a prominent man in British Columbia, offering him a situation as editor of a well-established newspaper in a thriving town in that province. The salary offered is $1,000 per annum with prospects of increase, vastly more than we can make here. The offer gave us the B. C. fever, but as it was impossible for us to accept the situation on such short notice, we were compelled to decline, and we expect to recover from the attack.—Dundalk Herald. What fools we mortals be!

THE VALUE OF A MARKET.—A "Mono Farmer" writes to THE SUN as follows: I saw a piece in THE SUN two weeks ago that the board of trade of Orangeville was going to boom the market days once more. I think that Thursday—the day appointed—is about the best day for us to sell our stuff. If the market is run in a proper manner it will be the means of bringing a great amount of trade to your town. Several of my neighbors have been in the habit of not calling at Orangeville to do their marketing for a long time, but since a market day has been chosen they will drive their stuff to the nearest market, which is Orangeville.

WEDDING BELLS.—A very pleasing ceremony came off Wednesday afternoon of last week, at the residence of Mr. Presley, Purple Hill, when his niece, Miss Rose Trimby, was united in the sacred bonds of wedlock with Mr. J. H. Baird, of the Toronto police force. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. Henderson, M. A., and was witnessed by the intimate friends of the contracting parties, after which ample justice was done a splendid wedding spread. The bride's assistants on the occasion were Miss Maggie Ellis, Miss Lizzie Cornelius and Miss Vinie Carpenter. Mr. Milton Walker, of Toronto was groomsman. The young couple will reside in Toronto.

FOOTBALL TOURNAMENT.—Thanksgiving day was a marked day for the footballers from Owen Sound, Toronto, Elora and this town. The games took place on the Dufferin lacrosse grounds both in the morning and afternoon. Play was fast and furious throughout the whole proceedings. The first game called was Orangeville Juniors vs Elora, in which the latter team came out second best. Then the Orangeville Seniors tackled the boys from the Sound, and after playing the allotted time Owen Sound won by two goals to nothing. Next the Marlboros (Toronto) faced the Juniors and succeeded in vanquishing our little boys. Finally the victorious Marlboros and Owen Sound tussled for the championship. The game was fast from the start, but it was plain the boys from Owen Sound were overmatched, and the Torontonians succeeded in winning. By this victory the Marlboros won the championship silver cup.

A SEDUCER SALTED!

John Robb, a Tonsorial Former, Mulcted in the Tune of Two Hundred Dollars.

TWO FAMILIES DISGRACED.

A Warning to Young Women—A Roundup Doctor Roasted by the Judge—Excellent Addresses by the Counsels—The Evidence a Feast for Gossipers.

One of the two most interesting cases for idle gossipers to listen to was that of Ritchie v. Robb for seduction. Mrs. Ritchie, an old lady who resides at Burk's Falls, took action against Thos. Robb, claiming damages for the seduction of her daughter, Sarah Ritchie. Thomas Robb was a prosperous farmer in the township of Tomvonotie a short time ago. He was the owner of a farm pretty well stocked and was considered fairly well off in this world's goods. But what a difference a brief space of time makes! Last Tuesday Thomas Robb stood before a judge and twelve of his peers in the Orangeville court house to receive punishment for of a young woman. The accused is a married man and the father of a family, who, by fate, are compelled to share the disgrace brought on by their protector's perfidy. The evidence, which is thoroughly disgusting and unfit for publication, was eagerly swallowed by the crowd that completely filled the court room. A large number of women were in the gallery, others were in the body of the room, and the way they strained their necks lest they should miss our word of the disgusting details was comical indeed. The men, both young and old, repeated the performance of the women.

After a jury had been chosen several witnesses were examined by Mr. Walsh, the plaintiff's counsel, and Mr. Myers subjected them to a very severe cross examination. Among the witnesses for the defence was Dr. Elliott of Creemore. The doctor is a young man of and sports small side-whiskers. It appears Dr. Elliott was called in during Sarah Ritchie's confinement, and he picked information out of the unfortunate girl that the judge thought he should not have divulged. For this he was severely castigated by Chief Justice Armour, and the crowd experienced the same feelings as his lordship. Another of the witnesses for the defence was the defendant's ten year old daughter. The little girl, as she stood in the witness-box, could barely look over the railing, and the sympathy of the crowd went with her. The evidence, on the whole, was very damaging to the accused, and when it was all submitted Mr. Myers rose and addressed the jury. During the address the speaker grew eloquent and made as good a case for his client as anyone possibly could. Mr. Walsh followed in a well worded address and pointed out the and wound up by asking the jury to bring in a verdict for the plaintiff. His Lordship occupied about twenty minutes in charging the jury. The charge leaned in favor of the plaintiff. The jury retired and remained out about an hour and a half, when they returned with a verdict awarding Mrs. Ritchie two hundred dollars damages and costs.

Some few weeks ago the defendant deeded his farm over to his wife, who was in court during the trial, and about six weeks ago he sold all his farm stock, implements, etc., with the exception of a small stack of hay. The plaintiff may not get a cent of the damages, but the verdict will be recorded against him and if he is ever worth the amount the plaintiff can swoop down on him at any time.

GRAND JURY'S REPORT.

To His Lordship Chief Justice Armour:

The grandjury beg leave to report that they congratulate the country on the apparent absence of crime, and they hope for its long continuance in such a creditable condition. There being no cases requiring their attention, and there being consequently little for them to do, they are enabled to complete their duties without a prolonged session and also to curtail the expense attending it.

They have examined the jail and found all departments therein in a proper condition. They observed specially that classification is practised therein to a very high degree, as well as the comfort of the inmates properly attended to. There are confined therein at present thirteen inmates, twelve of whom are males and seven females. Except for one man who has been committed six week of sentence to keep the peace, all the rest have been sent there on warrants, the most of them being aged and seemingly without other means of being cared for. There are ten cases very plainly—a man and a woman—who are so afflicted that they can scarcely move without assistance and requiring special care on the part of those in charge.

We have to thank the jail officials, the sheriff, the county attorney and the other gentlemen connected with the court, for their courtesy to us while discharging our duties. They cannot conclude without expressing the honor they feel by your Lordship's presence in this county and are pleased to see that notwithstanding your enforcement of law your health is so well preserved, and they hope it will long continue to enable your Lordship to administer throughout our growing province.

HUGH MAGUIRE,
Chairman.

FARMINGTON.

The roads are becoming passable now.

Mr. Jas. Golden is building a large addition to his barn.

Mr. Ed. Trimble had a high old time at his threshing yesterday.

The many friends of Mr. S. J. Brown, treasurer of Amaranth township, will regret to hear of the death of his little daughter, Martha Victoria, which took place on Thursday last. Deceased had been ill for the past six weeks with congestion of the lungs, and despite all that medical aid and loving parents could do, the little sufferer succumbed at the time mentioned above. She was a favorite in the household and 4 years, 4 months and 12 days old. The remains were interred in the Town cemetery on Saturday. In their loss the bereaved family will have the sympathy of all.

"No star goes down but climbs another sky,
No sun sets here except to rise on high."

CAMILLA.

Mr. Wm. Henry, an old resident of Mono Mills, after an absence of 17 years in Wisconsin, U. S. A., paid his friends at Camilla and Mono Centre a visit last week.

On Thursday last another standard bearer for industry and enterprise breathed his last, in the person of Mr. Wm. Jackson. The deceased was a pioneer of the right stamp, ever ready to do and dare for the benefit of the community. As an enterprising and successful farmer, he was well and favorably known, having resided in Mono township for the past sixty years. Mr. Jackson had been ailing for the past nine months from the effects of la grippe. He was a native of Ireland and was in his 77th year. Deceased was of a kindly nature ever willing to oblige a neighbor and always ready to help the worthy poor. He leaves a wife, two sons and two daughters well provided for. The funeral took place on Saturday to the Orangeville cemetery and was largely attended. Rev. F. Burt of Cardwell conducted the religious services. A feeling of sincere regret is expressed by all and the mourning relatives have much sympathy in their sorrow.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.—Go where you may, in every country and in all climes, persons will be found who have a ready word of praise for this Ointment. For chaps, chafes, scalds, bruises, and sprains, it is an invaluable remedy; for bad legs, bad breasts, and piles, it may be confidently relied upon for effecting a sound and permanent cure. In cases of puffed ankles, erysipelas, and rheumatism, Holloway's Ointment gives the greatest comfort by reducing the inflammation, cooling the blood, soothing the nerves, adjusting the circulation, and expelling the impurities. This Ointment should have a place in every nursery. It will cure all those manifold skin affections, which, originating in childhood, gain strength with the child's growth.

MELBOURNE.

(From the Banner.)

Mr. Henry Marshall has sold out his express business here to Mr. John Monroe. Mr. Marshall and family leave this week for Dentrom. Mr. M. has been a good citizen here and we would be pleased to hear of his success in his new home.

An attempt was made to rob the safe in J. A. Hutsal & Co.'s banking office, Wingham, during Friday night. The outer door of the safe was drilled and blown open, but the burglar proof box inside was too much for the burglars to contend with and they obtained nothing for their trouble. Mr. A. E. Smith, formerly of Shelburne, is the manager of the Wingham branch. Nothing was known of the occurrence until next morning.

A correspondent at Dundalk sends us the following item:—Will Matthews of the Dundalk Herald, has decided leanings towards the fair sex. Not long ago, he met a Shelburne girl at the train in Dundalk, expecting to take her to a concert, but a more favored swain appeared on the scene and Will had to survey the same with an aching heart from his seat in the window. Wrap your affections in silk, William. We hope that William, of the Herald, will survive this exposure of his defeat. Evidently he is sadder with the wisdom of it.

Mr. Anson Garneau, of Drayton, brother to Mrs Smith, wife of the editor of the Economist, was found dying on the street in Baltimore, Md., on Friday night, October 24, 1890. He was removed to the Hospital where he died shortly after. He had been shot and robbed. It appears his parents had a letter from him about the middle of October stating that he was going to take a pleasure trip for a couple of weeks and they were not to write until they heard from him. He was then living in Richmond Va. They suppose that he had only arrived in Baltimore a short time before he met his sad end. A letter in his pocket led to his identification.

FOR SALE.—Horse, harness and wagon, nearly new, for sale; eighty dollars can buy them. For information apply at this office.

CHOPPED WITH A KNIFE!

A Victoria Chinaman Kills His Fellow Countryman.

VICTORIA, B. C., Nov. 8.—About 3 o'clock this afternoon a brutal murder was committed in the kitchen of Mr. T. C. Milligan's residence. A friend came to visit the Chinese cook, Lung, and the two were soon heard to be quarrelling by Mrs. Milligan. She tried to enter the kitchen, but the door was locked. Becoming alarmed, she telephoned for the police, and in ten minutes an officer arrived. Finding Lung coming around the side of the house from the rear he arrested him. An entrance was then obtained to the kitchen, and several blood stains being noticed on the bed a search revealed the body of a China man beneath the bed. It was still warm and presented a horrible sight. The head was nearly severed from the body, being only held by the windpipe. Several ghastly stabs were discovered on the back of the skull, showing that the murdered man was first struck from behind with a heavy knife, then the neck gashed. The clothes were saturated with blood. Close by was found a carving knife, with which the wounds had been made. Every effort had been made to conceal traces of the crime. The kitchen floor had been washed, and in a box were found the clothes usually worn by Lung, which were also blood-stained. The clothes he had on when arrested were spotless, showing that he had changed his attire before attempting to leave the house. The name of the murdered man has not yet been ascertained. The prisoner is now in custody and an inquest will be held.

BOYS WITH A RIFLE.

MILTON, Nov. 10.—Two orphan children, Allen and Oscar Anderson, aged seven and five years, sons of the late Wm. Anderson, living with their grandmother, Mrs. McColl, near Camp Bellville, while left alone in the house for a few minutes about noon to-day undertook to load a rifle. Oscar was sitting on a chair holding the muzzle of the rifle against his breast while Allen put in the cartridge, and while in this position the shot was fired. The ball entered the breast, went through the body and the back of the chair and out of the open door. Allen immediately ran out of the house and gave the alarm, and when some neighbors arrived they found Oscar still sitting on the chair, quite dead.

St. Lawrence Canals.
RAPIDE PLAT DIVISION.
Notice to Contractors.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for the Lawrence Canals" will be received at this office, until the arrival of the eastern and western mails on Wednesday, the 3rd day of December next, for the construction of a lift lock, weirs, etc., at Morrisburg, and the deepening and enlargement of the Rapide Plat Canal. The work will be divided into three sections, each about a mile in length.

A map of the locality, together with plans and specifications of the respective works, can be seen on and after Wednesday, the 10th day of November next, at the office, and at the Resident Engineer's Office, Morrisburg, where printed forms of tender can be obtained.

In the case of firms there must be attached to the tender, the actual signatures of the full name, the nature of the occupation and residence of each member of the same, and further, an accepted cheque on a chartered bank in Canada for the sum of $6,000, must accompany the tender for Section No. 1, and an accepted cheque on a chartered bank in Canada, for the sum of $2,000, for each of the other sections.

The respective accepted cheques must be endorsed over to the Minister of Railways and Canals, and will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract with further security at the rates and on the terms stated in the offer submitted. The cheques thus sent in will be returned to the respective parties whose tenders are not accepted.

The Department does not, however, bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,

...ELL TELEPHONE COMPANY.

...n Interview with the President.

...C. F. Sise, of Montreal, was in the ...n town day and a Whig reporter accosted ...to learn anything regarding the proposed ...telephone war, approached him and ask...ed his opinion in the matter.

"The Bell telephone company," said ..., "has been operating exchanges in ...Kingston and Peterboro for ten years, ...and we are not aware of any cause for ...complaint against the service. The ...system has also been extended to many ...surrounding places. Our capital has ...been invested here, and we shall be only ...acting in self defence in protecting it. ...For this reason, since the Peterboro ...company commenced the war by placing ...instruments with our subscribers, ...we have instructed our local manager ...there to return to all our subscribers ...their prepaid rentals unearned from ...the first inst and to place them on the free-...list, as well as all others who may be ...desirable subscribers."

"What course will you pursue at ...Kingston and elsewhere?"

"If an opposition company expends ...money by erecting plant, etc., and ap...proaches our subscribers with offers of ...lower rates we shall then do as we have ...done in Peterboro. Of course, we shall ...not make any reduction from rates which ...have paid us barely six per cent. divi...dends until forced to do so by an oppo...sition that would deprive us of dividends ...altogether or drive us from the field. It ...is not a question of our remaining in ...Kingston, or of success in one place, but ...we have three hundred exchanges and ...each one is threatened by a like war in ...Kingston or Peterboro. If we are driv...en from one place, or buy out one op...position, we open the temptation to ...operators in three hundred places. ...The public must therefore see that we ...can neither buy out an opposition nor ...retire before it, especially in the latter ...case, the loss of Kingston or Peter...boro from our long distance lines would ...be a serious embarrassment."—Kingston Whig.

C. W. Embree is in charge of the new photo gallery, opposite the Queen's Hotel. This gallery is one of the best in the country, and with Mr. Embree as operator you may expect photos of a high class. Don't fail to call up and see his work before sitting elsewhere.

THE WORLD OF LONDON

AS CRITICISED IN EDMUND YATES' LETTER.

The Duchess of Edinburgh to be Queen-Consort—Valentine Prominent in Society—Murdered on the Wedding Night.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—The Duke of Clarence is looking much better and is undoubtedly stronger than he was.

The Duke of Edinburgh goes to Germany next week for a fortnight on a leave of absence in order to attend the royal wedding at Potsdam, and he will pay a brief visit to Coburg before returning to England.

Although it is the custom in Germany to delay sending in wedding presents until just before a marriage, Princess Victoria of Prussia has already received a large number from her relatives and friends. The most magnificent of them is the gift which Emperor Dom Pedro presents. It consists of a tiara, necklace, brooch and earrings of large sapphires, diamonds and pearls.

The Queen of Roumania has been greatly benefited by a visit to England. Her nervousness has entirely disappeared.

Count von Moltke has suffered more severely than is generally admitted from his recent excitement. His attacks of cramps are not of a very serious kind, but his eyes have suddenly become so inflamed as to cause much anxiety to his friends. He will leave Berlin for his beloved Creisau, on the Bohemian frontier, as soon as the doctors pronounce him fit to travel.

The next Budget may bring Mr. Goschen a great deal of glory but will certainly give some trouble. The brewers are working to secure the repeal of the three pence added to the beer duty ten years ago. They say that the added duty is really paid by them and is practically an income tax on brewers.

Sir Alfred Dent's remarks about a general election has been accepted on both sides as a warning that there is every probability that the Government will ride to safety through the storm of the session, but that Parliament in its fifth year is always liable to sudden breakup. At the Central Liberal Association Mrs. Alfred Dougan's assertion has created much activity, and in constituencies where Liberal candidates are still wanted the association will manage to bring them out without delay.

The death of the Naval Medical Service and senior F.R.C.S. of England caused great regret last week in his ninety-first year, without obtaining the knighthood or other recognition of his scientific services for which he longed so intensely. Robert McCormick was one of Sir Astley Cooper's favorite pupils at Guy's, and after taking part in most of the great Arctic and Antarctic expeditions of the century retired some 30 years since to a Botanic in Heath Lane, Wimbledon, which he furnished Rerum Vidit, where he surrounded himself with a collection of natural history specimens, wrote voluminous memoirs and nursed his grievance. EDMUND YATES.

A Huge Slice of Africa Secreted to England.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The territory of the fierce Barotse, who range over 225,000 square miles of land above the famous Victoria Falls, on the north side of the Zambesi River, has fallen up for British governmental protection. The king of the Barotse has solemnly promised to abolish the killing of alleged witches and the terrible custom of human sacrifices. Nothing of importance is done among the Barotse without a human sacrifice. In most cases a child. First the fingers and toes are cut off and the blood is sprinkled on the ground, huts, boats, or whatever may be the object in view. The victim is then killed and thrown into the river. The burning of men for witchcraft is carried on to a terrible extent. No a day passes but some one is tried and burned.

A WEDDING FEAST OF DEATH

A Bridegroom Murdered on the Day of His Marriage.

GLASGOW, Nov. 4.—A wedding feast in the Italian colony here last night was broken up by a murder. While the feast was progressing an Italian named Lorenzo Mare Antonio made his appearance in the room and was ejected. In a short time he returned and the bridegroom and a number of guests attempted again to drive him out. Antonio resisted, drew a knife and plunged it into the breast of the bridegroom, who fell to the floor a corpse. When the bride saw her husband lying dead before her she utters a wild shriek and fell upon the body unconscious. The assassin was overpowered and handed over to the police.

Continuing the Quarantine.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—The Central Chambers of Agriculture today adopted a resolution declaring that in view of the pleuro-pneumonia in New Jersey it was imperative the regulations regarding the importation of cattle should be maintained.

Soldiers and Civilians in Combat.

TRIESTE, Nov. 4.—A detachment of soldiers engaged in guarding at a railway station interfered with the relatives of 800 recruits who were going some distance to drill. Several soldiers were struck by civilians, whereupon the latter drew their sidearms and attacked their assailants. Several of the civilians were badly wounded.

Cable Flashes.

Mr. Myers has undertaken the task of forming a new cabinet for Victoria, Australia.

An extensive Anarchist movement has been discovered at Lyons. Five arrests have been made and others are expected.

In the New South Wales Legislative Assembly yesterday, a motion expressing want of confidence in the ministry was defeated by a vote of 46 to 42.

Advices from Hong Kong state that a plot to murder the king and royal family of Corea is reported to have been discovered. The brother of the king is implicated.

The body of a farmer named O'Mahoney has been found on a roadside at Schill. Investigation showed that he had been murdered. One man has been arrested on suspicion.

Lord Randolph Churchill announces that he will not be a candidate for Parliament, and that his arrangement from his party is so complete that he will withdraw from political life until [illegible] Meanwhile he will make a [illegible] and probably visit America.

Steamship on Fire.

COLLINGWOOD, Nov. 4.—The new iron steamship Augusta of Toledo on her way from Buffalo to Toledo, when at least of Collingwood lighthouse last night about 8 o'clock, was discovered to be on fire between decks the full length of the vessel. Communication with her coal bunkers was cut off so that in consequence she had to be beached half a mile west of Hackett's dock where she remained all night and until 6 p.m. today, the fire burning fiercely all the time between decks but was finally flooded out. Her cargo consisted of 1000 tons of hard coal and 400 tons of miscellaneous freight. The fire caught among a quantity of jute and oakum stored between decks.

Telegraphic Taps.

Gustavus Park, who pleaded guilty to manslaughter at Chatham assizes, was sentenced to two years' imprisonment in Kingston penitentiary.

Particulars are to hand regarding the murder in Dakota of John McLeod, who at one time worked in the Petrolia oil district. His first wife had died and he married a widow. The latter is charged with having put up a job with one Wood to get rid of McLeod.

Birth of a Midget.

WABASH, Ind., Nov. 4.—There was born to the wife of Frank Stone, near Wabash, last night, a baby weighing exactly 1½ pounds. The infant, a girl, is perfectly formed in every respect and is but six inches in length.

Another car load of choice Cataract Four just arrived at McKim's Feed Store.

While Charles Cummings, of North Orillia, was driving home from that town Monday his team took fright and ran away. He was thrown from his wagon and killed.

If you want to borrow money on mortgage, or to sell a mortgage, the right person to call on is F. Irwin. Office over Eudacott Bros. store.

The boys of Harriston are evidently more intelligent than they are credited with. The following communication, which was sent to the Tribune, explains itself: The working boys of this town thinking it better than frequenting the hotels or other public places have leased a room next to Dr. McCullough's office for the purpose of spending the long winter evenings in harmless amusements, and for fear some may have any suspicion of our doings we would invite anybody to call at our room and see for themselves. All are welcome. Thanking you for space, we remain, Yours etc. THE BOYS.

TELEPHONE WAR IN ST. PETERSBURG.

The local company which was formed in Petersburg with a capital of about $6,000, and with the avowed intention of doing business at half the rates charged by the Bell Telephone Company, and paying a much larger dividend than the Shareholders of the Bell Telephone Company ever received, has apparently discovered after all its constructing work has been done, that a big company has not the slightest intention of giving up the field to it.

The tactics pursued by the first comers are simple in the extreme. They have waited until the little company had spent what was supposed to be the amount of its capital, and now announce that they will give all their old subscribers, who are not interested as shareholders in the attempt to wreck their business, and all new subscribers who are likely to remain with them, free connection as long as the opposition lasts.

The officials of the Bell Company say this attack on them is a wholly unprovoked one, as no complaints were made of the service to Petersburg, which was excellent, and the regular rates charged by them are the lowest in the world for Exchanges of the size; and also that anyone who will take the trouble to make a few enquiries could find out in five minutes that the item of rent and salaries absolutely necessary for the proper conduct of the business would alone eat up all the revenue of a cheaper rate company, leaving nothing whatever for the equally necessary expenses of heating, lighting, stationary, interest on cost of construction and allowance for depreciation, accidents and damages, and last, but not least, repairs.

In addition to ordinary repairs a heavy and continuous expense, one good storm will often do damage enough to use up the surplus revenue of a single Agency for years.

GIDDY GIRLS.

The following extract which can be profitably utilized by the dashing and mischievous girls of this town, is taken from the Brampton Banner:

One of Brampton's giddy little girls in an evil hour was tempted to write to the sage who does the "answers to queries" in the Toronto News and just see the razzle-dazzle she received. What a mean, hateful old thing the News editor must be anyhow, to treat the sweet little rose blossom in such a fashion.

"1. Judging from my handwriting, what sort of a wife shall I make? 2. Do you think I shall marry the gentleman with whom I am in love? 3. Judging from his actions, I am sure this gentleman loves me, but I always endeavor to conceal my feeling of love for him, which I think leads him to believe that I do not care for him. How would you advise me to act towards him? 4. Do you think he loves me well enough to marry me, and what sort of a husband would he make? BRAMPTON.

"1. There is nothing that we can see in your handwriting to prevent your being a good wife, but the lack of ordinary common sense shown by your questions ought to be accepted as evidence that you are unfitted for matrimony. 2. We do not know whether you will marry the gentleman you are in love with or not, but if we were that gentleman and had to choose between marrying you and committing suicide, we would institute inquiries at once as to easy methods of self destruction. 3. If you really love him and want to save him from much misery, you will hide under the barn until you hear that he has married some good girl with brains enough to keep her from asking fool questions. 4. If he loves you well enough to marry you he has our most sincere sympathy, and if he has no better sense than to marry you he has scarcely enough to make a good husband. But it would be just like some big hearted, brainy man to tack himself on to a simpering idiot like you."

Oxygenized Emulsion OF PURE COD LIVER OIL.

Among the merits which distinguish Slocum's Oxygenized Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil above all other preparations are:

1st. The excellence of its method of preparation.
2nd. Its freedom from disagreeable taste and odor.
3rd. Its fitness for immediate absorption.
4th. The thoroughness in which it retains permanently its good qualities.
5th. And the fact that Slocum's Oxygenized Emulsion is the only Cod Liver Oil amalgamation in the market in which the oil is not mixed with the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, or some other equally injurious foreign substance, and consequently rendered worse than worthless!

All Pulmonary Disorders find Speedy Relief.
If you have any Throat Trouble ..... Use it.
If you have Tightness of the Chest ..... Use it.
If you have Difficulty of Breathing ..... Use it.
If you have a wasting away of Flesh ..... Use it.
If you have Weak Lungs ..... Use it.
If you have Bronchitis ..... Use it.
If you have Asthma ..... Use it.
If you have Catarrh ..... Use it.
If you have a Cold ..... Use it.
If you have a Cough ..... Use it.
If you are Feeble and Emaciated ..... Use it.
If you have Consumption ..... Use it.

THEY WHO USE IT---LIVE!

The approval my OXYGENIZED EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL has met with at the hands of the public is no doubt more or less due to the members of the medical profession, who have shown a preference in recommending its use in their daily practice.

If your druggist has not got SLOCUM'S OXYGENIZED EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL, and will not order it for you, do not take any preparation that contains Lime and Soda. In such case rather obtain of him the Pure Cod Liver Oil, which, though nauseous and repulsive to the taste, does not contain any foreign and injurious substance.

Miscellaneous.

"There was a Dog who lived in a garden
He caught such a cold he could not sing."

Poor, unfortunate Bobtailed! In what a sad plight he must have been. And yet his unfortunate condition is one that other bobtails suffer. Many a comic or partial voice opposite those owned by the "gentle home" is utterly spoiled by "cold in the head," or on the throat, or both combined. For the above complaint, we are not aware that any remedy was ever devised; but we believe to know that all human singers may keep their heads clear and throats in tune by the timely use of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, both of which are sold by druggists.

Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures the worst cases of Catarrh in the Head, no matter of how long standing, while for all scrofulous, throat, and lung affections, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is positively unequaled. It cures the worst humors, coughs and builds up the feeble and strength of those who have been reduced by wasting diseases. It is guaranteed to benefit or cure in all diseases for which it is recommended, if taken in time and given a fair trial, or money paid for it refunded.

Poetry.

TOO SICK TO GO TO SCHOOL.

When father, Jack and I were boys,
Full many a passenger
We used to go to the school
The stage-coaches used more
But company weather made us sick—
When Cousin Nathaniel came—
Not sick enough to feel bad,
But too sick to go to school.

Up rainy days thro' mud of west
Unbearably we sulked,
But when the pleasant weather came,
Our constitutions sulked,
Or if a snow chanced to come
It found us, as a rule,
Not sick enough to feel bad,
But too sick to go to school.

Oh, often in the morning
We woke in woful plight,
But after father went to work
Our illness all took flight.
We hunted up our fishing rods
And sought some shady pool—
Not sick enough to feel bad,
But too sick to go to school.

One day our father happened home
As we came struggling in,
And drew us gently o'er the edge
Of the potato bin.
That afternoon we sadly sat
Beneath the teacher's rule—
Quite sick enough to feel bad,
And too sick to go to school.

CHAPTER LXIII.

IN HER HUSBAND'S HOME.

MRS. GREVILLE smiled when Lady Dynecourt made her request.

"Spare Mrs. Rymer for a week?" she said; "we have not been parted for a week since she came to live with me. I cannot refuse you, but I shall be sorely puzzled."

While to Silvia herself, the fact of her spending an entire week with one whom she loved so entirely, and esteemed perhaps more highly than any other, was to her like a glimpse of Paradise. She prepared for her visit with a face of such rapturous happiness that Mrs. Greville pretended to feel jealous over her decided preference.

"You really ought to be sorry to leave me, Silvia," she said; "after living so long together you are bound to love me."

Silvia laughed, and it was almost the first time during those years that Mrs. Greville had heard the sound of that full, rich, silvery laugh. She looked up in amaze.

"Your laughter is like a chime of silvery bells, Silvia," she said; "how is it that I have never heard it before?"

"You have been very good to me," said Silvia, gratefully, "and I am sorry to leave you—you were it only for a day. But the idea of you with the world at your feet being jealous of me amuses me."

"It is fortunate for me that Lady Dynecourt has a husband; if she had not, she would never let you return; but, Silvia," continued Mrs. Greville, with more emotion than she was accustomed to display, "you will always remember whatever good or ill befides you, your home is here with me."

And then, with these words ringing in her ears, Silvia set out for the home that should by right have been her own—the home where the grand tragedy of her life was to be enacted.

It was a strange, grim, bitter fate that led her there—the house where the man she loved had spent the half of his life—where every picture, every work of art was in some way connected with him—where his feet for many years had trodden—the home that was associated with all his past, and where his future was to be even more tragical.

No suspicion of the truth ever dawned upon her as she entered Dynewold House no faint shadow of what was looming over her; no idea, even ever so remote, that she was for the first time entering the house that, if justice had been done to her, should have been entirely her own. Lady Dynecourt met her in that magnificent entrance hall, where royal princes had looked around in admiration—where luxury and art seemed to reign supreme. She thought to herself that if magnificence could bring happiness it must surely be found there. Lady Dynecourt smiled half sadly as she noted that look.

"Is this your first to Dynewold House?" she asked of Silvia. "How strange that I should have known and loved you, yet that you should not have visited me before."

She called no servant, but took Silvia up the broad, beautiful staircase to her room. She said, in her gentle voice:

"See, I have chosen a pretty room for you, quite close to my own. Oh! Silvia, I wish—oh! I wish that you were never going to leave me again."

"Surely you do not require a companion," said Silvia, laughingly. "I should find amusement enough in simply looking around me."

Then the sad, half-wistful expression she had noticed so often came again over Lady Clotilde's face.

"My husband is very kind," she said, "my home very beautiful, but, Silvia—Silvia, do you not understand the silence here is never broken by the sound of a child's voice, or the faint merry pleasure of laughter; there is no pretty face to make sunshine. I should be happy if Heaven in its mercy had given me one little child—only one, for my husband to have loved, and to have looked upon as his heir. Silvia, no science seems to me half so sad, so cold, so lonely as the pleasure of a great house where there is no child."

Then, after a few minutes, she shook off the profound silence that had fallen over her.

"Come with me to the picture gallery," she said; "the men are busy at work."

Dynewold House was not gaudy; the decorations were magnificent, but they were all in the most subdued and perfect taste—the most perfect harmony. There was nothing that gave any one the idea of novelty. It was the house of generations, the art treasures accumulated there bore the mark of many centuries. It was that very time of ancient grandeur that caused it to look so different to everything Silvia had ever seen before. One part of the picture gallery was already completed. Lady Dynecourt's taste was too perfect to allow her to bring into that home of the arts anything that was not in keeping with its character. The pictures were mellowed with time, and the statues were beautiful copies of the great masterpieces of the world; the recesses in the walls were filled with vases of costly exotics; a rich crimson carpet covered the oaken boards; the light that came through the windows was modulated by the artistically constructed blinds. Silvia uttered a cry of admiration as she entered the place, and Lady Dynecourt's fair face lighted up with an expression of eager delight.

"Do you think he will like it?" she cried with the impetuosity of a child.

For one moment Silvia forgot the absent husband.

"He!—who?—Lord Dynecourt? I should think he will be delighted," she hastened to reply.

Then Lady Clotilde took her hand and led her to a beautiful little alcove, where there was space sufficient for a large picture.

"This is the spot where my husband's portrait is to hang," she said, "and Silvia, do you know that last night, as I walked here alone in the twilight, a strange kind of half-vision came to me. Shall I tell you what it was?"

The profound melancholy tone struck dismay into Silvia's heart; what right had this favorite of fortune—this beloved child, this loved wife, this proud, beautiful, high-bred woman—what right had she with melancholy?

"Yes, tell me," she replied; "happy people never have visions."

"Do they not? Well, my vision was this. I saw my husband's portrait hanging there—the handsome, smiling face that I loved so dearly—and I saw the pictured face of another woman hanging by his side—not my face; and then it seemed to me that, though I had been long dead, I hovered there, a gray, silent shadow—unseen by anyone—still loving the handsome face that hung on the wall. It was a strange fancy, Silvia."

"Nothing but a fancy, though, Lady Clotilde, that came from the twilight and the shadows; it was nothing more."

"I know you are right; yet it took a strange hold of me, and it has left an impression on my mind that I shall die soon."

"It is nothing but nervousness," said Silvia, earnestly; "and I have always heard the most painful shape nervous disease ever takes is that of a constant troubling, intangible, groundless fear of death."

Lady Clotilde's face brightened.

"Is it a common thing?" she said.

"Ah, then I am glad I told you. I was afraid, thinking you would laugh at me. I began to think my picture gallery haunted."

"I hope it will be haunted by bright, happy, loving thoughts, and beautiful associations," said Silvia, with a low, sweet laugh, and then together they looked at the pictures.

There were gems by the ancient masters, pictures by modern artists; but what interested Silvia were the grand old family portraits, the warriors, the statesmen, the men who had done good service to king and country.

"There is a strange resemblance in all these faces," she said, thoughtfully; "it is easy to see they are all men of the same race."

"Yes; and the features, the brow, the eyes, the lips seem to descend from father to son. The Dynecourts have always been considered a very handsome race."

"There is something to me strangely familiar in the faces, too," continued Silvia. "I could fancy that I had known them all."

And so, unconsciously, she—the mother of the true heir of that noble race—walked among the silent and illustrious dead. Once she was almost startled. A picture of three children, a family group, painted by Sir Joshua Reynolds, stood against the wall. Lady Clotilde was speaking to one of the workmen, and Silvia turned it round to the light, wondering what it was. A cry of surprise rose to her lips, but she stifled it.

The boy, the center figure of the group, was the image, the very picture of little Cyril.

The impression was strong, as her to call Lady Clotilde's attention to it, but, remembering how sensitive she was, she forbore. She replaced the painting, but she could not drive the wonder and surprise from her heart.

Was it merely accidental, this likeness between her boy and the heir of Dynecourt, who had lived so long ago? Was it accidental? Of course it could be nothing else. But why was it—how could it be?

Not even the faintest suspicion of the truth dawned across her; the faintest foreshadowing of the truth never occurred to her. Her heart was full of silent wonder, and more than once that same evening she stole away to the dim twilight to look again upon the face that was so like her beloved and only child.

B'RCHALL AGAIN.

The Boswell Murderer Says Suicide is Cowardly.

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 4.—The new rules and regulations respecting the prisoner Birchall had went into effect on Saturday morning. The prisoner is not to be allowed to read the newspapers; no reporters are to be allowed inside the jail; all communications to the prisoner to go through Crown Attorney Ball; no more of the Bible of Birchall's biography to go out, except through Mr. Ball.

In conversation with a gentleman a short time ago Birchall remarked that "no man with any pluck would ever commit suicide." While this may be true it may not cause the jail officials to relax their vigilance. Birchall will be Executed if the Law will Allow of it.

Mr. Hilton, appearing on behalf of the plaintiff in the case of Greene v. The Globe, moved before the master-in-chambers at Osgoode Hall yesterday for an order for the examination of Birchall, the condemned criminal, as a witness on behalf of the plaintiff.

T. Langton, Q.C., appeared on behalf of the defendants and vigorously opposed the motion. He contended that it was unnecessary to examine Birchall for the purpose of the defendants in their state of defence admitted that the Greene was not the one meant. He cited from Cox's criminal cases as authority to show that a criminal under sentence of death could not be examined as a witness. An Irish case was cited by Mr. Hilton, a later case than the other, to show that the above case had not there been followed and that a convict had been so examined.

Whether the examination asked will be allowed or not depends largely on the construction put upon certain sections of the "General Evidence Act," and the learned master, in reserving judgment, said that he thought if it could be done the order for examination should be made.

Mrs. Birchall in Town.

Mrs. Birchall and her sister, Mrs. Westjones, were in town yesterday on their way to Ottawa, where they will present to the Minister of Justice the petition for a reprieve and commutation of Birchall's sentence. Accompanied by Mr. Dugald MacMurchy they visited the different places where the petitions had been deposited and collected them. They lined at the residence of Mr. G. T. Blackstock in the evening and then left for the Capital.

MINING IN ALGOMA.

Prof. Goldwin Smith and Mr. Duncan McIntyre Invest Heavily.

SUDBURY, Nov. 4.—Since the visit of the Iron and Steel Institute activity in mining matters has increased. A Griffin crusher passed through here from Boston to White Fish to be used in treating gold and silver ore. This marks the beginning of mining operations in earnest in the Fairbank district. The test pits which have been sunk in Fairbank and Creighton show that as depth is reached the ore increases in both quantity and richness. Mining experts who have been examining the district state that the indications in the vicinity of Gordon Lake and the Vermilion River are most favorable. Prof. Goldwin Smith of Toronto has been investing heavily in this district. Mr. Duncan McIntyre, vice-president of C.P.R., has also acquired considerable tracts of mineral lands. The Sudbury district is just now the centre of attraction for American and English capitalists.

HOME RULE FOR SCOTLAND.

Speech by Dr. Clark, M.P. for Caithness.

TORONTO, Nov. 5.—Dr. G. Clark, M.P. for Caithness, North Britain, addressed the Scotchmen of Toronto in Richmond Hall last night. The Hon. O. Mowat presided. There was a large attendance.

Dr. Clark is a man of mark in the Mother Country. A native of the county of Burns, he is one of the breed concerning whom the poet speaks when he sings of

Ayr, that never a town surpasses
For honest men and bonnie lasses.

He has been fascinated, using very observant eyes with brains behind them in the study of men and things. He became acquainted on his travels with the famous Boer leader, General Joubert, in whose campaign he arrived in the city on Monday from Montreal. He is Consul-General in London for the Transvaal Republic, and is a recognized authority on South African affairs.

But it is as a friend of the Scotch Crofters that he is best known in Great Britain. Some seven years ago, when the Crofter agitation was at its height, he did the cause yeoman service in Parliament, and when the Royal Commission was appointed he went north to Caithness to prepare the case for the Crofters. This visit had the result of immediately connecting his name with Caithness as the representative of the county in Parliament. His first election was in 1885, and on Mr. Gladstone appealing to the country on the question of Home Rule for Ireland he was again triumphantly returned in 1886.

Dr. Clark has decided opinions concerning Canadian affairs, maintaining that there are but two courses open to Canada, viz., annexation to the United States or a federation with the Mother Country. He wants a federation of the British possessions, in which Canada should have representatives at Westminster.

Mr. Mowat, who is an honorary president of the Caithness Association, briefly introduced Dr. Clark. He spoke of him as one who took a deep interest in the masses of the people, an old friend of humanity.

Dr. Clark fittingly acknowledged the address which had been presented to him and proceeded with his address. He spoke first of the Scottish crofters, and said they had now been put in possession of property with absolute security of tenure, the condition being that they pay a fair rent, and the question of what is a fair rent being determined by the courts. The case of the crofters had in the course of investigation been found to be rather understated than overstated. Mr. Balfour had denounced them as maligning the Highland landlords, and had stoutly maintained that no such things as Cruelty-crofts existed. But the case had been proved up to the hilt. They were now fighting the question as to whether the commissioners are carrying out the letter, not to speak of the spirit, of the act. The contest related chiefly to the full value of improvements. They had now to fight for the enlargement of holdings. The commission had already given a verdict in their favor, and Liberal members of Parliament were pledged to give what had been asked.

The speaker then referred to the poor people in Manitoba who had unfortunately come out in an unfavorable year and whose sufferings had been great. He was not against emigration absolutely, but so long as there were millions of waste acres at home and 50 per cent. of Hostile and the Laws was in the hands of sportsmen he would contend for the right of the people to occupy the land.

The Manitoban scheme was a complete failure, principally owing to the methods of carrying it out. They did not plant the proper people, but went old men, ignorant of agriculture. Many of them had gone to the timber trade some 500 miles farther west.

The best part of the address dealt with Scottish Home Rule. The movement was said to rest on mere sentiment, but such sentiment was not to be decried. Sentiment was at the root of all great national movements.

A Foot of Snow at Port Arthur.

WINNIPEG, Nov. 4.—There was a heavy snowfall east of Rat Portage yesterday. The snow at Port Arthur last night was nearly a foot deep.

$30,000,000 in Pensions.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Since the 1st inst. the Treasury Department has paid out $30,000,000 on account of pensions, exceeding a reduction of the surplus to that extent.

KONE OF THE DEAD FOUND

A THOROUGH SEARCH FOR THE SPANISH WRECK'S VICTIMS.

The Tugboat That Was Sent Down Has Not Returned and Additional Parties are Despatched to Recover the Bodies—The Bodies of Drowned Men Sometimes are Always the Worse.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—Twenty-five thousand sailors, the only survivors of the Spanish steamship Vizcaya, which was sunk in a collision with the cruiser Oregon off Barnegat, stood on the deck of the Spanish steamer Colonel Candal yesterday afternoon as she swung out from pier 51, North River. They were entered in new suits of clothes and each had money in his pocket, the gift of J. M. Ceballos & Co., the Argentine agents of the Spanish Transatlantic Steamship Company. The men will be shipped from Havana to their homes, where wives and children await their coming.

The tug which was sent to the wreck by the agents to cruise around the wreck of the wreck and to search for floating bodies did not return to the city, but Thos. Bennett, one of the employes, did. He reported to the first that the masts of both of the unknown vessels are swaying above water in a rough sea and a heavy wind. The wrecking steamer L. J. Morris left Bangalore, South Islands, at 11 o'clock last night fully equipped to remove the bodies imprisoned in the midship hull of the Vizcaya. Ceballos & Co. sent down J. Barrett, Michael Dillon and Thomas Bounis as their direct representatives. An undertaker, a corps of embalmers and two of the most expert divers in New York accompanied them.

A cablegram from Havana yesterday requested the agents to spare no expense in recovering the bodies of Mrs. Calvo and her child and maid, and to have them sent to Havana for burial. When the schooner's bowsprit swept the decks of the Vizcaya Juan Pedro, the millionaire planter of Cuba, was standing on the bridge with Capt. Canal and the third officer, and was seen to run and jump into the sea, which probably engulfed him. Mr. Ceballos has issued orders for the recovery of his body if possible. If found, Mrs. Pedro, who is in Madrid, Spain, will sail at once for her desolate Cuban home.

The captain of the tugboat has been instructed to telegraph at once to the agents here as each body is recovered and identified, so that a correct list may be obtained of the victims of the collision. Should the weather prove propitious and the sea calm the divers will go into the cabins, staterooms and forecastle of the wrecked Vizcaya.

The Spanish consul has received an official report from First Officer Felipe Haase, Second Officer Gabriel Casas, Chief Engineer Francisco Lesa and Seamen Ramon Martinez, Jose Casarrego and Ramon Ferro. It is a detailed statement substantially as given orally to the reporters, except that they unite in the declaration that the steamer did not carry any skylights, as the laws of navigation require. They fail, however, to say which officer was in direct charge of the steamship at the time of the collision, but admit that Capt. Canal was on the bridge with the third officer and was issuing orders.

Much comment was made yesterday over the singular reticence of the captain of the Hargraves and the mystery which surrounds him since he reached Philadelphia, especially in view of the damaging statements concerning his behavior by Mate Walker, who was refused admission into the lifeboat that saved the other nine members of the schooner's crew.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvo, who were drowned, had only recently lost their two-year-old daughter. The child ran to her nurse, who was warming some milk on an alcohol stove. The stove was upset and its burning contents spilled over the child. In spite of the efforts of the physicians she died in great pain from her burns. The death shook Mr. Calvo's mind and his physicians advised him to travel. He was on his way to France, intending to stop in Havana only a few days.

HIS BASE REVENGE.

A Jilted School Teacher Forbids Lady Teachers to Marry.

PORT DODGE, Ia., Nov. 3.—The Board of School Directors at Cherokee has just issued an order calculated to inspire mingled consternation and revolt among the teachers affected—or at least among those who have their given names in the feminine gender.

In Cherokee, as in most Western communities, the men considerably outnumber the women, so marriageable members of the latter sex are in great request, and very naturally enhance their worth accordingly. Even young women who condemned to be spent in home work do so only as a temporary expedient while making up their minds which one of their numerous suitors to make happy for life. As for the short and accomplished young ladies who disguise their potent sex from teachers' rectitude, they have had an embarrassment of riches in the way of matrimonial offers, running all the way from the big boys upon whom they used the said rectitude to the school directors themselves. The result has been that few of these fair pedagogues have taught more than one or two terms before resigning to get married. Of course this has sometimes interfered with their usefulness as teachers. It is difficult, even for the feminine intellect, to give undivided attention at one and the same moment to a problem in algebra and the momentous question whether the wedding dress shall be of cream satin or white tulle. Besides, when the wedding day happened to fall in the middle of a school term, it was often difficult to get another teacher to finish the work thus abandoned for more important business.

These considerations have moved the directors to promulgate the cruel decree that hereafter every teacher will be required to sign a contract agreeing not to get married during the school year. It is understood that the young ladies involved have so, yet sufficiently rec

Reminder of the Cases Disposed of by His Lordship Chief Justice Armour.

The following is a report of the cases tried at the Dufferin fall assizes since our last issue.

PATTON V. GRIBBIN.

This was an action to have a partnership declared between plaintiff and defendant, and for an account of the amounts due the defendant, T. J. Gribbin, to the plaintiff for managing his business. Judgment given found there was no partnership existing between the parties, and a reference was made to the master at Barrie to take the accounts but were plaintiff and the defendant, Gribbin, relating to his managership Action dismissed without costs. Stears (Midland) for plff; Pepler (Barrie) for defts.

SCOTT V. ERSKINE.

W. T. Scott, an executor of the will of the late Isaac Scott, of Caledon, brought action against the beneficiaries under said will to have the will construed. Myers, Q. C., for plff; Creelman for infants; Walsh for David Scott, Bigelow, Q. C. for other defts.

BURSTON V. BROWN.

This was an action on a mortgage made by defendants K. S. and D. K. Brown to plaintiff. Judgment by consent to plaintiff. Walsh for plff; Guthrie & Watt (Guelph) for defts.

RINGROSE V. SIMPSON.

The defendant, James Simpson sought to have it declared that a deed of lot 8, 4th con., Amaranth, from him to James Ringrose, sr., late of Amaranth made on the 6th May, 1885, was made to him to hold the land in trust for plaintiff. Judgment was reserved. Myers, Q. C. for plff, Walsh for deft.

BOOTH V. WILSON.

The plaintiff, J. E. Booth, formerly proprietor of the Gordon house here, brought this action against John Wilson, of Orillia, the assignee in insolvency of V. U. Crockett, who is now landlord of the Gordon, and against Crockett for interfering with the seizure of goods in the hotel covered by two chattel mortgages, one of which was made by John Coleman to the plaintiff and the payment whereof was assured by the defendant Crockett in favor of the plaintiff as collateral to the first mortgage and covering additional chattels to those covered by the first mortgage. The judge held that the first mortgage would hold, but the second was null and void because made by Crocket when insolvent. In regard to the plaintiff's contention that he did not know of Crockett's insolvency at the time of taking the second mortgage his lordship held that the fact that defendant could not meet the payment on mortgage when due was sufficient proof to plaintiff of the defendant's insolvency. Walsh for plff, Laidlaw, Q. C. for deft.

EDITORIAL NOTES

THE American committee for the relief of famine in Ireland has issued a circular withdrawing requests for American money and clothing, as Great Britain has practically promised to see that no famine shall exist.

VARIOUS witnesses—jailers, sheriffs, jail doctors and the like—have contributed before the Prison Commission to this question: What are the chief causes of crime? The most frequent answers were the following: (1) lack of parental control, (2) lack of education; (3) allowing children to be out at nights on the street corners, (4) intemperance. There are four good sermons here.

THE name of the miserable wretch who officiated at the execution of the unfortunate Birchall at Woodstock last week is Radcliffe a stewart employed by the Toronto Sunnyside Yacht Club. The day previous to the execution he swelled around Woodstock and estimated himself very high—a great deal higher than the people did. If this was the worst he did it would not have been so bad, but he kept blowing how he would jerk the unfortunate man into eternity. The press representatives and the public held him in contempt, and the the yacht club requested him to send in his resignation, which he did.

THE question of the expediency of abolishing the functions of grand juries in relation to the administration of the criminal law has on several occasions been brought to the attention of Parliament, and insinuations have from time to time been made to the Government by municipal bodies, judges and others interested in criminal jurisprudence that their abolition would be in the public interests. Therefore, it is the intention of the Minister of Justice to lay before Parliament a bill codifying the criminal law of Canada, both as regards substantive law and procedure. Before submitting it, however, Sir John Thompson has addressed a circular to all judges in Canada who are charged with judicial functions in criminal matters, as well as to the Attorney General of each province, to get their views on the question.

Dr. G. B. Bigelow, serving a term in Kingston Penitentiary for bigamy, has by his last will left $30,000 by his first wife, who died some time ago.

MUNICIPAL REVOLUTION.

A New Way to Repair the Streets—Ald. Bell 3½ Detailed to do it—Arrived too Late—Other Legislation Enacted.

The regular semi monthly meeting of the "great heads" of our town took place in the council chamber on Monday evening. This meeting, to a certain extent resembled any other meeting the council ever held. The members present sharp on time were Mayor Walsh, Reeve Lindsey, Ald. Youmans, Green, Gillespie, Coleman and Ketchum. Deputy-reeve Endacott was a little behind time, and Ald. Bailey was exactly half an hour late. Ald. King and Pinkney were absent. When the mayor announced there was no accounts to be dealt with the light smile on the faces of the aldermen who find fault with a 35 cent account and let a $300 one slip through disapproved into a grin of dismay. After his worship made the happy announcement he read from C. P. R agent Browne, requesting the council to correct an error in the tax sale list. Two lots belonging to the railway company were erroneously included in the list of lands in arrears for taxes. The same trouble occurred over these lots last year and they were sold, but—the C. P. R. got them back again. The Finance committee was authorized to deal with the matter.

COMMUNICATIONS

Caretaker Franklin of the town cemetery wanted instructions regarding a certain lot in the cemetery. Some several years ago an ex resident of this town bought a lot in the cemetery and one interment had been made. The purchaser, however, forgot to pay for the ground. Now, the caretaker can sell the lot and he wanted to know how to proceed. The Cemetery committee will decide the question.

REPORTS

Ald. Gillespie brought forth the F. & W. report, which recommended the payment of an account. The report was confirmed.

The Assessment committee's report, which recommended the correction of errors on the collector's roll, was read by Ald Green and was adopted.

BOARD OF WORKS

The mayor held a pretty large looking by-law in his hand, and asked if any member of the council would introduce it, the mayor to take the responsibility. Ald. Ketchum consented to go through the formality. The council went into committee of the whole, Ald. Green in the chair. All the repairs and improvements are to be under the supervision of a committee appointed by the council at its first meeting in April. The committee shall set out in detail the value, locality and estimated expense of proposed work. An overseer is to be appointed and he will hire necessary help and supervise all work. He will keep a book, which is always open to the council, with the men's time, etc., and he is to work when not engaged. The by law was pretty thoroughly discussed and will receive its finishing touches at the next meeting.

QUERIES.

Ald. Youmans wanted to know why the incandescent light was not put on Mill street. Ald. Ketchum replied that Contractor McDonald informed him he could not put a light there without going to considerable expense, and seemed indifferent on the subject.

The mayor thought the mud should be scraped off Broadway. Ald. Gillespie said the mud could be sold for tan cute a load; he also thought the drains should be flushed. The chairman of the R. & B was instructed to attend to the matter.

Mrs. Carpenter wanted a refund of taxes. The chairman of the Charity committee was instructed to give her two dollars.

Deputy reeve Endacott wanted to know if the insurance policies on town property had run out. The mayor thought it was the duty of the T. P committee to know all about matters like that.

TOO LATE

When Ald. Bailey arrived it was just 8 o'clock and the council proceedings were nearly at an end. The chairman had a detailed report of the R & B expenditures this year. The time for presenting reports had passed and the chairman was shut out. He moved a motion, asking for permission to introduce the report, but the council would not consent, so the mayor ruled the motion out of order.

GREAT SCHEMES.

The B. of T's Big Undertaking—Butter to be Graded—Booming Manufactures.

About twenty members of the Orangeville board of trade met in the council chamber on Tuesday evening. President T. Stevenson officiated as chairman and Secretary W. T. Bailey jotted down the motions as they were made.

THE INSURANCE QUESTION

After a talk on the question of Orangeville getting into a lower class on the Underwriters' books Mr Still stood up and delivered a speech. He said to lower the insurance rate and get the town from class D to B could be done by expending $2500. A chemical engine would have to be purchased at a cost of $2200, and some other little fixings would have to be made. The insurance saved in this way would pay all expenses in a little over a year. A committee composed of Messrs. W. Still, G. Endacott and J. R. Dodds was appointed to consider the matter.

The express rates were next attacked. Several were of the opinion that the express rates were too high. Mr. Dodds, the Dominion Express Co.'s agent here, said the rates to and from Orangeville were as low as any place between this town and Toronto. Messrs G. Endacott, Dodds and Leighton were appointed a committee to interview the superintendent of the express company, with a view to securing lower rates.

Mr. R. T. Haun, manager of the Bank of Hamilton, was elected honorary president.

FACTORIES AND BUTTER

S. Donner wanted to know why the old sawmill property could not be turned into a woolen-mill. He also wanted to know why a starch factory could not be started here. E. Sawtell thought the scheme feasible, and was glad to see Mr. Donner bring them forth. The butter question, which he introduced himself, was very important. He was sorry to see farmers from near Orangeville shipping their produce to Toronto. If butter was graded, then the buyers could give a good price for a good article.

A resolution was adopted recommending that the merchants grade butter according to quality into 1st, 2nd and 3rd class and make a difference of three cents per lb. between the grades.

The Railway committee was directed to correspond with the manager of the Grand Trunk Railway to see if there was any possibility of getting a branch of the G. T. R here.

A letter from Miss Burnard, plaintiff in the Burnard-Nelson criminal assault case which was tried at the assizes last Wednesday, is held over until next week for want of space.

We have received a communication in reference to the Brooks v. Robinson land case that was decided at the assizes last week. The public read a fair report of the case in THE SUN's last issue, and we think it unnecessary to reproduce a report of the trial.

A DRAWN GAME.—The Orangeville high school football club played the Mono Mills team a game at the latter place on Saturday. Two balls were buried during the fifty minutes that the play lasted, and neither side scored a goal.

A GOOD MOVE.—At the last meeting of the council Mayor Walsh suggested that the mud should be cleaned off Broadway between the waterworks and the Lennox house. The council "caught on" to the idea and ordered the much-needed cleaning to be done.

CHURCH PARADE.—The members of Court Gardiner, C. O. F., will attend the Methodist church on Sunday morning next. The Citizens' band will lead the procession. The lodge is in a flourishing condition, and those who want to see a good parade should look at the Foresters on Sunday morning.

OYSTER SOCIAL.—An oyster social was held in the school-room of the methodist church on Tuesday evening, which proved very successful, the receipts amounting to $52. A large amount of money has been expended recently in repairing the school-room. The proceeds will be devoted to defraying the expenses incurred.

CREDIT SALE.—An extensive credit sale of farm stock, implements, etc., will take place on the farm of Mr. Joseph Warnock, east ½ lot 11, 1st con. Caledon, on Tuesday, December 2nd. Everything will be sold without reserve as the proprietor has leased his farm. Sale will commence at 12 o'clock sharp. Mr Jas. A. Patterson is the auctioneer For list of articles see posters.

DEATH.—Mr. Phillip Collins died at his residence, Mill street, on Friday morning last after a brief illness. The deceased had been a resident of Orangeville for about twenty years and was in the sixty seventh year of his age. He leaves a widow and four daughters to mourn his loss. The funeral took place on Saturday to the Forest Lawn cemetery the Rev. Father Morris officiating.

LAID AT REST.—The death of another of the early settlers of Caledon township is announced, in the person of Jane McClellan, wife of Mr. Wm. Lemon, near Alton, at the age of 78 years. The respect in which she was held was shown by the large number of friends who attended the funeral. Much sorrow is expressed in the township at her death, and she will be much missed by all who knew her.

A POLICEMAN CLUBBED.—Police man W. J. Allen, of Toronto, was most brutally assaulted by a gang of toughs in the city when he was arresting one of their number. The peeler was knocked down and kicked about the face until he was unconscious. The timely arrival of other policemen prevented the toughs from doing any further damage. Mr. Allen is a brother of Messrs. Robt. and George Allen of this town.

AN IMPOSTER.—For the benefit of our readers we publish the following, which appeared in the last issue of the Collingwood Enterprise. "An ancient party is going about the town professing to teach ladies the art of painting fancy work for $1 50. He gets his money and then introduces the old transfer scheme, which of course requires no teaching other than can be obtained from fancy stores. It don't pay to invest in any of these perambulating frauds.

MARKET DAY REVIVED.—On Thursday last the amended market bylaw went into effect, and the board of trade can congratulate themselves that their efforts were crowned with success. A large amount of poultry, produce, etc., was brought in by the farmers and it was quickly bought up by town and foreign buyers. Good prices were paid for everything. Several new tables will be put in the room, which will be much more convenient for the farmers to display their goods.

A Source of Joy.

DEAR SIRS,—My young sisters were attacked by cramps so badly that we almost despaired and had little hope of curing them. At last we applied Hagyard's Yellow Oil and to our great joy it cured them perfectly, and they now enjoy the blessings of perfect health.

ANNIE JOHNSTON, Dalhousie, N. B.

Another car load of choice Cataract Flour just arrived at McKim Feed Store.

HE WANTS TOURS.—We found the following in our exchanges upon "Pedestrian" Bill Nye rides for Monday night: "A happy morning of contentment the old Methodist sharpness Mill would like to know why the thirty-two candle power kerosene bill not been passed long ago. The chicken can say dark nay and so poor fellows have spent quite a number of days on the sidewalk without knocking other people off. We need light at this place now more than at any other time of the year. Even if Dan Opbery's speech was reintroduced it would be away ahead of nothing."

HAPPY NUPTIALS.—A double wedding took place at St. Andrew's parsonage Wednesday afternoon, when Mr. David Hunter was united in the sacred bonds of wedlock with Miss Mary Jane Hughson, of East Garafraxa, and Miss Esther E. Hunter, of Caledon, was married to Mr. W. J. Smith, of East Garafraxa. Rev. D. C. Hossack performed the ceremonies, after which the newly-wedded couples accompanied by their friends repaired to the Paisley house where ample justice was done to a splendid spread. In the evening both couples left for Owen Sound where they will spend the honeymoon.

MORE UNFORTUNATE.—Very rarely do we find people anxious to go to jail. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Smoothpaper appear to be an exception. On Friday last the old couple attended the regular meeting of the Mulmur council held at Dean's hotel, Primrose, and begged the council to send them to Orangeville jail. The old people have resided for the past few years near Mansfield among their friends but the assistance given them was not enough to support them. The old gentleman for the past 28 years carried on the shoemaking business at Lavender, Ross' Corners, Singhampton, and other places. He was a good workman, steady and industrious, but never accumulated much money, and during the past five or six years has been unable to work. They were committed to jail by Justices Dodds and Love under the vagrancy Act. They have no children, and their relatives in Mulmur are not troubled with an over flow of the milk of human kindness.—Shelburne Free Press.

D. L. C. ENTERTAINMENT.—The Dufferin lacrosse club have engaged Austin & Kinsley's dramatic company to give a performance in the town hall to morrow (Friday) evening. The Berlin daily News speaks of the company in the following terms: The entertainment given in the Opera House last evening exceeded anything here for some time. From the time the curtain rose until it dropped there was almost one continual roar of laughter, only abating while the audience were held spellbound by the charming musical and vocal melodies the company are able to produce. Every member is both a musical and vocal artist of a high standard. Mr Austin, the manager, is capable of playing any instrument placed before him and his different specialities, esp cially the bells, were heartily cheered. Messrs. Field, Winchell and Patton are really kings of comedy. We are pleased to learn that Mr. Philip has been successful in securing a return date shortly, of this excellent company of artists.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Are remedies which should invariably be taken by travellers in search of health, pleasure or business. Many deleterious influences are constantly at work in foreign climes, tending to deteriorate the health; thus and the altered conditions of life will entail on those who travel the necessity of carefully attending to early symptoms of disease, and they will find the use of these remedies to be highly necessary, the action of the Pills being purifying and strengthening and of great service in cases of fever, ague, and all inflammatory diseases, whilst the Ointment is a sovereign cure in cases of piles, bad legs, bad breasts, wounds and ulcers. Holloway's remedies do not deteriorate the change of climate.

Twenty Chinamen passed through Montreal on Friday on their way from Boston to China. They appeared to have plenty of money, and all went over the C. P. R. in bond.

Jas. Stewart, auctioneer, Montreal, and formerly well known as a newspaper man and in society circles, died Sunday night very suddenly.

If suffering from Catarrh do not be discouraged because other remedies have failed. Nasal Balm gives speedy relief and is a certain cure. Try it. Sold by all dealers.

Use J. R. Dodds' Condition Powders, the best in the market for Horses & Cattle.

Young Bobby Johnston, of Barrie, was playing with a bottle of gunpowder and some matches a short time ago, when the powder exploded, almost blowing one hand off the boy. He is recovering.

Winter Sports.

The gay winter season exposes many to attacks of colds, coughs, hoarseness, tightness of the chest, asthma, bronchitis, etc., which require a reliable remedy like Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam for their relief and cure. Known as reliable for over thirty years. The best cough cure.

The bicycle riding craze has broken out in Barrie.

NASAL BALM
NEVER FAILS
It is a specific and speedy cure for Cold in the Head and Catarrh in all its stages.
SOOTHING, CLEANSING, HEALING.
Instant Relief, Permanent Cure, Failure Impossible.
Many so-called diseases are simply symptoms of Catarrh, such as headache, mental dullness, loss of smell, taste, hearing, hawking and spitting, offensive breath, dizziness, debility, etc. If you are troubled with any of these or kindred symptoms you may know Catarrh, and should lose no time in commencing a bottle of Nasal Balm. Be careful to take, instead of cold, dry snuffs, powders or douches, something that is safe, cleanse the nasal passages of the virulent poison, and allay the inflammation. Nasal Balm is sold by all druggists, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price (50 cents and $1 00 per bottle).

THE GALLOW'S VICTIM.

Birchall Strangled to Death on Friday.

CONNIE BENWELL AT LAST AVENGED

MAHAR

The Murderer Passes the Grim King of Terrors, Nearly With a Smile—An Almost Painless Death in Six Minutes—How He Spent His Last Night on Earth—An Affecting Parting From His Wife.

BENWELL'S avenger pulled the cord which ushered the guilty soul of John Birchall before his final Judge at 8:26 a. m. on Friday. Just before the fearful black cap was pulled down over the murderer's face three pinioned he fixed his fell in sweet, Birchall's eyes as lovely a morning for the season as had ever dawned under a Canadian sky. In that last life-look none could detect the agony of terror endured by the brink of the grave, and there must have been agony when under the lovely Canadian sky the felon first saw the ghastly scene—the scaffold, the dangling rope, the assembled crowd. Nervy to the last, his face was set, though very pale, and his lips were tightly compressed. He fearlessly and steadily gazed at the downcast faces of the men who were to witness his fate, then cast his eyes to the clear vault above. His step was firm. His attire consisted of the dark suit he wore at the trial, striped pants and vest and black box coat while he wore a white flannel shirt, black stockings and patent leather shoes. He had only a few minutes before been shaved and his hair was nicely combed.

THE FUNERAL PROCESSION

emerged from the jail at exactly 8:19½ prior to this hour, Public Executioner Radcliffe had coolly adjusted the paraphernalia of death, and had then re-entered the jail. Here he "prepared" the condemned man by pinioning his arms behind him with a leather strap. Birchall not only submitted cheerfully, but smiled, as far as he was able, the executioner in the task. Rev. Doctor Dean Wade, who had put on his surplice, was present in the cell.

THE CONDUCTOR.

Then the procession started and the 175 spectators, to whom the waiting and suspense became almost unendurable, saw Rev. Mr. Wade, Birchall's spiritual adviser, walking at the head of the procession, and in solemn tones repeating the death service from the ritual of the church of England:

I am the resurrection and the life, saith the Lord: he that believeth in Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live: and whosoever liveth and believeth in Me shall never die.

The prisoner walked in the steps of the clergyman. On his right hand was his friend, Mr. Arthur Leetham, a tutor in Montreal, and on his left Mr. George Perry, the son of the deputy sheriff, who has been Birchall's day guard for a considerable time.

AN AWFUL HUSH

succeeded the slight noise produced by the entrance of the procession. The most curious of the spectators, those whose presence at the last scene of all was not necessitated by duty but by a morbid curiosity to see an execution—shrank back appalled unable to look upon

The glare of that wild, despairing eye
Now bent on the crowd, now turned to the sky.

As the waves running in doubt and in fear
The path of the spirit's unknown career:

Those pinioned arms, those arms which never shall be lifted again, not even in prayer—

The hundreds of spectators who had climbed on the jail walls and in the trees surrounding strained their necks to secure a better view of the procession. Every effort had been made by the authorities to prevent the gathering of the morbid, but fruitlessly, as they would again clamber up as soon as driven away.

Just before reaching the scaffold a halt of upwards of a minute was made. Mr. Wade meantime continuing the recital. They were ready in front of the gallows and about 30 feet away and the suspense seemed terrible to the crowd.

A PRAYER FOR PARDON

But short space remained for the accused to make his last, his expiring peace with his offended Maker, and Mr. Wade gilded the horrors of eternity in those awful moments with a religion arrays itself in her brightest robes and bids the expiring criminal sink into her everlasting arms with hope if not with security. A dying and repentant prayer issued from the quivering lips of the blood-stained murderer, but his remarks were scarcely audible three feet away. At a sign from the deputy-sheriff Birchall was then moved forward to the scaffold, Rev. Mr. Wade continuing his recital.

Birchall walked with stern steps under the scaffold, and turning round faced the crowd. He stood as straight as an arrow and a piteous smile appeared on his face.

When Mr. Wade began the recital of the familiar words, "Man that is born of a woman hath but a short time to live and is full of misery," Birchall turned to his friend Leetham and kissed him. The hangman at once pinioned his legs, the strap being tied just above the knees. Rev. Mr. Wade then came to the end:

I heard a voice from Heaven saying unto me: From henceforth blessed are the dead who are in the Lord, even so saith the spirit, for they rest from their labor.

He then stepped forward and kissed the prisoner, who murmured the following latter part of the response, a.

Domine, cum venerit judicare, noli me condemnare.

O Lord, when Thou shalt come to judge, do not Thou condemn me.

Birchall had already informed the authorities that he did not purpose making any statement upon the scaffold, and did not make any reference to his case at all.

After kissing the prisoner the reverend gentleman drew the cap down over the condemned man's full and manly features with his, Birchall repeating after the spectators could not catch the words, "Good-bye, old man, for God's sake do your work well."

Rev. Mr. Wade then began the recital of the Lord's Prayer, the executioner meanwhile adjusting the rope. At the words "Thy will be done," the executioner pulled the cord which released the trigger and

BIRCHALL SHOT UPWARD.

A drop of ten feet was allowed the weight. As he descended the victim's weight jerked at the rope taut. The body turned partly round, and the knot at the left ear was plainly discernible. The executioner gently turned the body with the face to the wall and stepped back a couple of feet to admire his work, with a critical eye. Rev. Mr. Wade continued his reading and the words "O, Lord, with an iron hand" the spirit of the departed sounded with preternatural clearness. For 3½ minutes after the drop fell the body showed signs of life at intervals. His neck was not broken, death being due to strangulation. The heaving, the drawing together and then relaxation of the muscles of the arms and legs showed that life was still present. The executioner caught hold of the feet and steadied the dangling form. At 8½ exactly, two minutes after the drop fell, his pulse was still. Dr. McClung and was beating at the rate of 60 pulsations to the minute. For 1½ minutes longer the body continued to show signs of life, and 2½ minutes later the doctors pronounced all life extinct. Hospital bodies, if for weal or for woe is known but to God.

"PERFECT AND ALMOST PAINLESS had been the execution. The body was allowed to remain hanging for 12 minutes longer, or about 18 minutes in all, and at 8 o'clock the rope was cut and the body was cut down, and it was removed to a cell in the lower corridor to await the inquest. When the black cap was removed the dead man's face was found to be but slightly discolored and calm and composed. The windpipe was almost completely fractured. The usual formality of an inquest was gone through with. After viewing the body, the jury adjourned at 1:30 p.m. in order that examination might be held. This was conducted in the presence of the local doctors by Drs McKay, Clifton and Martin, and was to show if through their option. The examination showed that the gallows victim had but there were ample indications to show that Birchall suffered no pain. He must have become unconscious immediately after the cord was pulled. The convulsive movements of the upper verge ere were partially slightly, but not sufficiently to separate the spinal column. The heart was normal and the atria were empty, with the exception of a slight fluid. The kidneys were partially congested, liver normal. The brain subject 57½ ounces. The development of the skull, however, is striking but one out the report in his which Birchall had obtained being a man of culture. The minutes spent in the dock were present as that his bearing was superficial, that while he was a close observer of the ordinary affairs of life, his faculty ever notions of a much higher kind. At 11½ the jury were assembled the doctors proceeded to perform the post mortem, finding that the deceased died from strangulation as obtained with ease.

A POST-MORTEM

DIED BY STRANGULATION,

THE BURIAL.

The remains of Birchall were subsequently placed in an airtight metallic coffin and in the evening were interred in the jail yard but not buried beneath the scaffold as was generally supposed would be the case. The idea of incasing them in a metallic coffin was that another effort will be made to induce the Attorney-General to allow Mrs. Birchall to take the remains home that her husband. She is expected to leave with Mrs. Wm. Jones on Wednesday next.

RECEIVED THE INTELLIGENCE EARLY

Mrs. Birchall was made acquainted with the sad fact the execution had taken place by her sister, Mrs. Wm. Jones, who she awakened at 10 o'clock. She was partially dressed at the time of the light upon which had been given her during the night, and did not fully realize the import of the communication conveyed to her. However, she soon rallied and acted as though she had resolved to bear the result with as any more emotion than was necessary.

HIS LATEST LETTER.

Birchall handed the following letter to George Perry a day or two ago:

WOODSTOCK JAIL, Nov. 10, 1890.

If after my death there shall appear in the presence in any other manner whatever any confession that I had any hand in the murder of Mr. F. C. Benwell or any private knowled

BIRCHALL'S LAST NIGHT.

An Affecting Interview With His Wife—His Calmness.

The final interview between Birchall and his wife on Thursday night began at 9 o'clock and lasted till 1:45 a. m. on Friday morning. It was very affecting. During the five hours they were together they were closely watched by a guard, and Rev. W. H. Wade, the prisoner's spiritual adviser, was in the corridor in which the cell stands, where the interview occurred, to hand. Mrs. Birchall, the guard said, had Mrs. Birchall that she would never meet close. She commenced weeping hysterically and kissed her husband a number of times. Her last words were: "Bear up," and Birchall replied: "Good-bye, I'm be brave."

THE PARTING SCENE.

She was then escorted to the foot of the stairs, where she waved her hand to her husband in great contrast to the leaving of his wife was that of Birchall. He gave signs of little emotion; in fact, as stated previously, the parting with him was as if one was about to go on a journey of a few weeks' duration, instead of one which was to end for one of them in eternity. During the interview Mrs. Birchall presented her husband with a plain gold locket, in which were her picture and a lock of her hair. This he wore with him to the scaffold, and it was buried with him. Mr. West-Jones, who accompanied her some twelve miles, did not remain long, merely telling Birchall good-bye through the bars of his cell door. While Mrs. West-Jones was seated in Father Chiniquy's office to receive signs of the blood and tackle to be used in the execution. She inquired, "What is that horrid thing?" and, as if divining its use, cried, "Take me away." She was removed to Turnkey Forbes room, where she recovered her composure.

A WOMAN'S INFLUENCE.

Birchall, in the presence of the agony of his wife's grief, broke somewhat from his former calousness of conduct. After Mrs. Birchall parted with her husband for the last time on earth, Rev. Mr. Wade entered the cell, and remained with Birchall throughout the night. Birchall had announced his intention of remaining awake throughout the night and the rural dean shared his vigil, and together they sent up prayers to the throne of divine grace for pardon. Birchall at last seemed to feel himself satisfied of his salvation.

Meanwhile, in the corridor below, the hangman was peacefully reclining on a lounge, with the sound sleep of a babe but the snore of a traction engine.

HIS LAST BREAKFAST.

Birchall had early in the evening asked the cook to take him supper at 12 o'clock, which was done, but as he was then with his wife he could not be served. He left it untasted, but fed some of it to the black cat, which remained with him all the time. Birchall ate nothing until 6 o'clock, when Cook Whitehead took him up a couple of poached eggs, toast, canned raspberries and pretzels and coffee. Birchall looked at it and shook his head, saying he did not wish any food. On second thought, however, he fell to and ate heartily of the eggs, and a small piece of toast, and then pushed the tray away from him. Then he began to prepare himself for the gallows. He put on his white flannel shirt, with coat and vest over it, having previously asked Turnkey Forbes to see that this was replaced after execution by a white starched shirt, with collar and tie.

BIRCHALL'S PEDIGREE.

John Reginald Birchall, the victim of Friday's tragedy, was born, according to his own statement, on February 25th, 1860, and was therefore just 34 years, five months and 21 days old, although he might easily have passed for 30. His father was the Rev. Joseph Birchall, Rector of Church-Kirk, near Accrington, Lancashire, England, Rural Dean of Walley and Proctor in Convocation for the Archdeaconry of Manchester.

At the age of 14 he was sent to the large public school at Rossall, in Lancashire, but had not been there very long when his father died, leaving all his children, however, poorly provided for. Birchall was allowed to remain at Rossall until 1881, when his guardians removed him to a large school in Reading, Berkshire. Three years longer the lad remained at Reading and then went up to Oxford. Birchall's career at Oxford was a lively one, and there he began to lavishly spend the money which his father had left him, and which would have been sufficient to have supported a man of moderate tastes.

BIRCHALL'S CRIME.

It is unnecessary to review the case, the facts and circumstances being so well known and fresh in the minds of all. A mere statement of the crime for which Birchall suffered the extreme penalty of the law is sufficient. The body of F. C. Benwell, a young Englishman, Birchall had lured to this country in order to rob him, was found stiff in death with two bullet wounds in the head in Blenheim swamp on the 21st February last. Step by step the murder was traced to Birchall, and fixed by incontrovertible circumstances as having been perpetrated on the 17th Feb. The finding of the cigar case marked "F. C. Benwell" was the first accidental clew to the identity of both victim and murderer, and the evidence presented during the four days of the trial leaves no room for doubt that the guilty man was the surprisingly unique, cool, audacious prisoner whose doings have been the theme of the papers for the past few months.

HIS EXECUTIONER.

His executioner, Thomas Radclive, steward of the Sunnyside Yacht club of Toronto, is fair complexioned, of medium height, with large piercing eyes, and of determined appearance. He was no novice at the work, having been principal executioner in three other Canadian cases, and assistant at 18 others. His last was his most successful. His picture, along with that of the long, black, strangling rope twisted into the form of a B, commences this sketch.

Poetry.

CHILDREN.

What the heart is to the forest,
With light and air for food,
Ere their sweet and tender juices
Have been hardened into wood,—
That to the world are children;
Through them it feels the glow
Of a brighter and sunnier climate
That reaches the trunks below.

Come to me, O ye children!
And whisper in my ear
What the birds and the winds are singing
In your sunny atmosphere.
For what are all our contrivings,
And the wisdom of our books,
When compared with your caresses,
And the gladness of your looks?

THE BOY WHO MINDS HIS MOTHER.

Boys, just listen for a moment
To a word I have to say:
Manhood's gates are just before you,
Drawing nearer every day:
Bear in mind, while you are passing
O'er the intervening span,
That the boy who minds his mother
Seldom makes a wicked man.

There are many slips and failures
In this world we're living in;
Those who start with prospects fairest
Oft are overcome by sin;
But I'm certain that you'll notice,
If the facts you'll closely scan,
That the boy who minds his mother
Seldom makes a wicked man.

Then be guided by her counsel;
It will never lead astray.
Rest assured she has your welfare
In her thoughts by night and day.
Don't forget that she has loved you
Since the day your life began,
Ah, the boy who minds his mother
Seldom makes a wicked man.

SUNBEAMS.

It is pleasant to hear the truth—about other people.

Any person can enter vanity fair on his imagination alone.

A man's repentance is always the size of the whip produced.

She—Why do poor men always keep lots of dogs? He—to keep the wolf from the door.

Maddox—I don't believe that time is money. Graham—Then you never bet on a horse which came in three seconds after the winner.

When a man is old enough to see the beauty in a moonlight night he is just about old enough to get the rheumatism if he stays out in one.

"Pop," says Willie, "what make them call our old horse a 'plug?'" "Because he is such a stopper, Willie," said the old gentleman.

Book Agent to Editor—Can I sell you our new book, "Thoughts on the Hereafter?" Editor—No use for it; my desk is jam up to the steam heater.

Customer—Oi wan' to see some fur gloves." Dealer—"Any special fur?" Customer—"Sor?" Dealer—"What fur?" Customer—"Tu kape me hands warm, p' course."

First burglar—Eternal vigilance, Jim, is the price of liberty. Second burglar—I know it, Tom; but a good alibi is a handy thing to have at times.

A stingy Person.—"I'm not in it," said the traveller, as he stood on the station platform, and watched the last train disappear in the distance.

An Unkind Question.—Liteways—"It's very disagreeable, don't you know, to associate with one's inferiors." Bronson—"How in the world did you find that out?"

A Mutual Sizing Up.—Salvationist (stopping Jack on the road)—"Young man, are you ready to die?" Jack—"Look here, my friend, I'm entirely unarmed and haven't a cent about."

Customer—The milk is a little blue, don't you think? Milkman—If you had as many one horse jokes made about you as city milk has, you would feel a little blue yourself.

He (getting up from his knee)—I don't believe, Miss Eisenburg, you have a particle of affection for a human being. She (much shocked) Dear me, Mr. Sm——. He (bitterly interrupting) True. I forgot. There is one.

Little Brother—Can't you walk straight, Mr. Maugle? Mr. Maugle—Of course I can. Why do you ask? Little Brother—Oh, nothin, only I heard sister say she'd make you walk straight when she married you. And ma said she'd help her.

"My dear," said the caller, with a winning smile, to the girl who occupied the study while her father, the eminent literary man, was at his dinner. "I suppose you help your pops by entertaining the bores?" "Yes, sir," replied the little girl gravely, "please be seated."

"A GOOD PLACE TO DIE."

"What have you got to say about that?" demanded the angry colonel.

"I guess you didn't read the rest of the article," replied the editor.

"No, I didn't. I read the top lines, and that was enough. It made me madder than a whole nest of hornets, I can tell you, and I came right over, intending to throw you out of the window."

"Well, if you will read the rest of the article you will see that there is an error in the head line. The body of the matter praises up your hotel and table, and anybody can see that the head is a mistake. I wrote, "A Good Place to Dine," but the printer left the 'n' out. That's all all. Are you satisfied?"

"Yes; come over and take a drink."

I regret to say that the editor went.

The President has issued a proclamation fixing Thursday, November 27, as Thanksgiving Day in the States.

The newest "fake" advertisement reads: "Send ten cents and learn how to find the days of the month without a calendar." To those who "bite" the following interesting information is sent, neatly printed on a card: "Find out the date of the day before yesterday and add two."

A man named Wm. Gabe was found drowned in the Grand river at Kiera on Saturday afternoon. He was seen going towards his home about twelve the evening before but did not reach it, and on searching on Saturday his body was found in the river above the carpet factory dam, not far from his house. The night was fearfully dark and he evidently mistook the way and walked over the bank into the river.

ERMATINGER BROS.

THE SWAMPS ARE FULL.—The recent rains have well filled the swamps and we are in a good position for an early winter with lots of snow. There is not the slightest objection to the Northwest, Manitoba or any other manufacturer of good sharp winters, unloading their superfluous crops on us this season. We have tried mild winters mixed up with "la grippe," and prefer the old-fashioned kind, though they do make the coal and wood fly.—Galt Reporter.

Heart disease, the symptoms of which are faint spells, purple lips, nunoness, palpitation, skip beats, hot flashes, rush of blood to the head, dull pain in the heart with beats strong, rapid and irregular, the second heart beat quicker than the first, pain about the breast bone, etc., can positively be cured. No cure, no pay. Send for book. Address M. V. LUBON, 50 Front Street East, Toronto, Ont.

Miss Frances Cowgre, a handsome young brunette arrived in Belleville on Friday from New York. Her tale of woe, if all is true she relates, is indeed a sad one and is only another instance of the cruelty with which some men will wreck innocent girl's lives. She claims to have come from Tweed, where she has a respectable brother living. In January last, she says, a young man of that village named Walter P. Lynch seduced her under promise of marriage, but failed to carry out his agreement. He sent her to New York shortly after to live with her sister. She was there until a few days ago and represented to her sister that she was Lynch's wife. Failing to keep his oft repeated promise, the unfortunate girl a few days ago decided to return to Canada and secure a warrant for her betrayer's arrest. When the constable arrived Lynch had left.

All newspaper men will applaud the action of the Ottawa reporters in staying away from the banquet tendered Lord Aberdeen on Thursday evening. It seems that no cards of invitation were sent to any of the newspaper correspondents, but at the last minute they were asked in quite an off-hand way to go. The studied absence of the proper courtesies with respect to timely notification and cards of invitation and the lateness and manner of the afterthought invitations, coupled with a few invidious distinctions, forced the correspondents into declining to attend and resolving to pay no manner of attention to the event. The consequence was that no morning paper in Canada outside of Ottawa contained any reference to the banquet or the speeches.

FLAX-SEED EMULSION COMPOUND

BRONCHITIS

136 Lexington Ave.,
New York City, Sept. 19, 1888.

I have used the Flax-Seed Emulsion in several cases of Chronic Bronchitis, and the early stages of Phthisis, and have been well pleased with the results.

JAMES K. CROOK, M.D.

CONSUMPTION

Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 14th, 1888.

I have used your Emulsion in a case of Phthisis (consumption), with beneficial results, where patient could not use Cod Liver Oil in any form.

A. H. DROGE, M. D.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION

Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 28th, 1888.

I am strongly reminded of Flax-Seed Emulsion as helpful to the relief and possibly the cure of all Lung, Bronchial and Nervous Affections, and a good general tonic in physical debility.

JOHN F. TALMAGE, M. D.

GENERAL DEBILITY

Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 20th, 1888.

I regard Flax-Seed Emulsion as greatly superior to the Cod Liver Oil Emulsions as a nutritive tonic.

D. A. DORTON, M. D.

WASTING DISEASES

227 West 24th St.,
New York, Aug. 6, 1888.

I have used your Flax-Seed Emulsion, Compound in a severe case of Malnutrition and the results were more than hoped for—it was marvelous, and continuous. I recommend it cheerfully to the profession and humanity at large.

Oxygenized Emulsion

—OF—

PURE COD LIVER OIL.

Among the merits which distinguish Slocum's Oxygenized Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil above all other preparations are:

1st. The excellence of its method of preparation.
2nd. Its freedom from disagreeable taste and odor!
3rd. Its fitness for immediate absorption!
4th. The thoroughness in which it retains permanently its good qualities.
5th.—And the fact that Slocum's Oxygenized Emulsion is the only Cod Liver Oil unamalgamation in the market in which the oil is not mixed with the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, or some other equally injurious foreign substance, and consequently rendered worse than worthless!

All Pulmonary Disorders find Speedy Relief.
If you have any Throat Trouble.....Use it.
If you have Tightness of the Chest.....Use it.
If you have Difficulty of Breathing.....Use it.
If you have a wasting away of Flesh.....Use it.
If you have Weak Lungs.....Use it.
If you have Bronchitis.....Use it.
If you have Asthma.....Use it.
If you have Catarrh.....Use it.
If you have a Cold.....Use it.
If you have a Cough.....Use it.
If you are Feeble and Emaciated.....Use it.
If you have Consumption.....Use it.

THEY WHO USE IT---LIVE!

The approval my OXYGENIZED EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL has met with at the hands of the public is no doubt more or less due to the members of the medical profession, who have shown a preference in recommending its use in their daily practice.

☞ If your druggist has not got SLOCUM'S OXYGENIZED EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL, and will not order it for you, do not take any preparation that contains Lime and Soda. In such case rather obtain of him the Pure Cod Liver Oil, which, though nauseous and repulsive to the taste, does not contain any foreign and injurious substance.

SINGLE BOTTLES, $1.00; SIX BOTTLES, $5.00.

Newspaper Decisions.

1. Any person or persons who take a paper regularly from the post office, whether directed in his name or another's, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for payment.
2. If a person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and then collect the whole amount whether the paper is taken or not.
3. The courts have decided that refusing to take a newspaper or periodical from the post office or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intended fraud.

THREE DAYS STILL.

The County Councillors Have More Fine Business for a Three Days' Session.

WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON.

All the members were in their places shortly after three o'clock. An account from the township of Mulmur, $13, was referred to the R. & B. committee. Mr. Kadecott read the Finance committee's report, which recommended the payment of two accounts and a grant to the Dufferin Farmers' Institute of $25. Report was adopted. Mr. Allen submitted a report of the printing committee, which adjusted the payment of several accounts. Dr. Cavillier presented the report of the Education committee. The report recommended that Reeve Allen of Mono, P. S. Inspector Gordon and Judge McCarthy be appointed arbitrators regarding the formation of a new school section in East Garafraxa.

Rev. M. S. Gray was permitted to address the council regarding the recovering of bonuses granted to railways. The rev. gentleman said Mr. Semple, the member for Centre Wellington, told him if the municipalities affected would make any push they would undoubtedly recover all or part of bonuses granted. He advised the council to move in the matter.

The crown attorney was instructed to procure a sufficient number of blank forms to be used by justices of the peace.

THURSDAY.

All the members turned up this morning, most of them, however, looked as if they had taken an overdose at the warden's supper the previous evening and were consequently a little drowsy.

Mr. Jelly read the R & B. report, which was adopted.

Mr Hamilton presented the report of the special committee on the warden's address and other memorials. The report was confirmed.

Mr. Lindsay brought in the report of the County Property committee, which recommended the payment of several accounts, and was adopted.

Mr. Wansbrough read the report of the special committee appointed to consider the advisability of petitioning the Dominion government for a refund of bonuses given to railways. The report was confirmed. The clerk was instructed to have four hundred copies of the council minutes printed.

A cheque of one hundred dollars was handed to the warden, fifty of which was to pay for a supper for the warden's friends and the other fifty was to go down into his pocket.

After the usual vote of thanks to the warden the council then adjourned, and the Fathers hurried down town to catch the early trains for home.

EDITORIAL NOTES

THE shipments of live stock from Canada to England for 1890 are largely in excess of those for 1889. The shipments of cattle will aggregate 123,137 as against less than 85,000 last year. The shipments of sheep total 42,263. The ocean freights on this year's shipments amount to $1,746,240, and without this trade the ships now entering Montreal could not be run at a profit.

THE year 1892 will be, not only the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of the continent, but it will also be the twenty-fifth anniversary of the British North American provinces confederation. The "silver wedding" of the Dominion is an important event in our history, and should not be allowed to pass unobserved. The year also makes the centennial of the meetings of the Legislatures of the Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, under the Quebec Act, these being the first of the colonies granted a legislature by the Imperial Parliament. Canadians have every reason to be proud of the progress of their country in the past quarter of a century, and the important position it holds on this continent and in the British Empire.

Joseph Black of Proton lost seven head of cattle in a peculiar way last week. A straw stack, which had been built on high poles fell on the cattle and crushed them to death.

A gentleman named Powers arrived at Hamilton a few days ago in search of a girl named Mary Powers, who has fallen heir to a large fortune by the death of an aunt in Rochester, N. Y. The girl is now said to be serving a term in the jail at Peterboro on a charge of larceny.

The young ladies of Galt and vicinity have lately organized a walking club, with about thirty members. The object is of course recreation and pleasure. The members take long walks over a previously selected course each week, and thus add to their health and the color in their cheeks.

Raymond Drummond Hay, from Winnipeg, and another man, who is an ex-member of the Mounted Police, were fined on the sum of $160. They were on the way to England by New York and the old game of exchanging money was played on them.

MRS. BIRCHALL DEPARTS.

WOODSTOCK, Nov. 24.—Mrs. Birchall and Mrs. West Jones left here this afternoon at 5.12. They will be accompanied as far as New York by Mr. McMurchy, Mr. H. J. Finkle being unable to go, as previously arranged. Upon arriving there they will board the steamer Majestic of the White Star line, Tuesday night, which sails for England Wednesday morning. Quite a number of friends were at the depot to bid them good bye and wish them a safe voyage. A strange coincidence of their leaving was the fact that Judge MacMahon was seated to the same Pullman which Mrs. Birchall and Mrs. West Jones occupied. Mrs Birchall's health is now very good. She has no fear of being able to stand the journey home. She has been able to drive out and take a farewell look at the country and about town, and under she kind treatment of friends has been regaining her strength rapidly. Both ladies speak very warmly of those whom they met here. Their attentions did much to mitigate the sufferings of Mrs. Birchall during her stay in Woodstock.

Messrs. Finkle, McKay & McMullen, it appears, made no charge for professional services in defending Birchall, and the widow will naturally feel very grateful to them. From the first the firm was indefatigable in their efforts to establish the innocence of their client, and failing to do so made no charge. Mrs. Birchall repeatedly asked for their bill, and each time was met with the answer that she owed them nothing.

Mrs. Birchall declined to visit the grave in the jail yard so long as the body is there. She said to a friend: "I don't care to see the grave, but if the authorities will give me his body, as I believe they will after a while, I will return to Canada and have the remains interred in the cemetery." Mrs. Birchall took with her Birchall's clothes and several sketches he made while in jail here. These are the only mementoes the bereaved widow takes with her, save the gold locket with a lock of her husband's hair which he gave to her the night before the execution. Mrs. Birchall still believes her husband innocent of the actual killing of Benwell. She was greatly pained to hear that the Jury, Mr. Wade has intimated that her husband had confessed to him. "I will never believe that Reggie ever confessed to anybody," she said, weeping bitterly. He told me that he was innocent, and more, he implored me not to place any reliance in what other people might say after he was dead. If he was guilty of that terrible crime, I know he would have confessed to me. I pressed him to tell me all, and he said he had." Mrs. Birchall spent the day in saying good-bye to her lady friends who called to see her. She expressed herself as being very anxious to get away from Woodstock and again meet her people in England. Mr. Arthur Leetham, Birchall's college chum, who has been here for some weeks, will return to Montreal to-morrow.

PERSONAL.

Miss McEwen visited friends at Erin last week.

Mr. John Connor, of the Connor house, Dundalk was in town on Saturday.

Mrs. Samuel Wallace has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. T. Wilkins, of Strathford, for the past month.

Mr. T. L. Moffat, jr., representing T. L. Moffat & Sons, stove manufacturers, of Markdale, was a visitor at this office on Monday.

Messrs. G. H. Cooper and Jas. McLelland, of Scott lodge, Grand Valley, Messrs. J. H. Hersnell and J Patton, of Stephenson lodge, Toronto, and Messrs. R. C. Davidson and J. E. Knox, of Patterson lodge, Thornhill, were entertained to a supper by the members of Harris lodge, No. 216, A. F. & A. M., in the lodge-room on Tuesday night. A sociable evening was spent in speech-making, etc.

GRAND VALLEY.

(From the Star.)

Revival meetings are now being held in both Methodist and Presbyterian churches.

Mr. George Smith, of the 2nd concession of East Luther, lost a valuable young horse a few days ago. He was returning home in the evening when the horse stepped upon a sharp stake which fell up, striking the groin. The animal bled to death in a few minutes.

Mr John McPherson has been lying in a very low state during the past week from the injuries sustained by the accident which happened him Sunday week. On Monday and yesterday we are pleased to state, a slight improvement in his condition was noticeable, and hopes are now entertained that he will soon be in a state of convalescence. Three doctors have been in attendance.

SHELBURNE.

(Free Press and Economist.)

C. W. Marlatt, baker and confectioner, has gone to the States. Some of his creditors fear he will not return.

Mr. John Witter has sold his pacing mare to Mr. W. A. Collins, of Toronto. Mr. Collins says he intends to win some of the prizes at the Shelburne races with her on the 24th of May next.

Mr. Jas. Timney, of Shelburne, received a telegram on Saturday last stating that Mrs. Timney's father, Mr. John Borland, had been fatally injured by falling from a hand car on the C. P. R. near Cardwell Junction. Mr. Borland was in the employ of the C. P. R. Company. The funeral took place Sunday.

As intimated last week, Shelburne now has a town bell and hose tower. The tower makes a great improvement in the appearance of the town hall building, and is a credit to the architect, Mr. F. G. Dunbar, and the workmen. The bell rings at 7 a. m., 12 (noon) 1 and 6 o'clock. It will also be used for fire alarm purposes.

Dr. Norton entertained the bricklayers, stonemasons and carpenters that have been working at his new residence with an oyster supper at Pond's restaurant on Thursday evening. He also spoke in very complimentary terms of the contractors, Messrs. O'Brander & Hill, J. H. Crosbie and Ben Blair, who have had charge of the brick work, stone work and carpenter work respectively. When completed we have no hesitation in saying that Dr. Norton will have the finest residence in the county.

A very large assortment of Tea and Dinner Bells just the thing for a useful Christmas or Wedding present, and prices away down at MACADAM'S.

The O. H. S. junior football club oyster suppered at Mann's parlors on Thursday evening. The boys spent an enjoyable time and were sorry the hours fled by so fast.

The C. O. F., to the number of about one hundred, attended the Methodist church on Sunday. The Citizens' band accompanied them and discoursed appropriate music.

County Treasurer Hamm's sale of lands in arrears for taxes took place in the court house on Saturday. Toronto speculators were on hand, and the land drew fair prices.

The creditors of Jos. H. Hughes met at Sheriff Bowles' office on Friday and decided to wind up the estate. Messrs Geo. Robb and W. Hewat were appointed trustees, and the assets will be sold.

On Friday last a company of four sports went out a short distance to a swamp and returned with sixteen hares. A great many people would like to know if they were all shot on the same day.

At midday on Tuesday Broadway was the scene of a lively tongue fight between two well-known residents of the East ward. No blood was spilt, however, and the police force was not called.

Austin & Kinsley's "Two Old Chums" comedy, under the auspices of the Dufferin lacrosse club, drew a fair audience at the town hall on Friday evening. The play is a little slow, but there was plenty of fun.

Just as the people were going into the Methodist and St. Mark's churches on Sunday the electric light suddenly went out and the buildings remained in darkness for about twenty five minutes. Electrician Brown climbed the pole and remedied the cause of trouble, and the services went on as if nothing had happened.

Any person who furnishes reliable items to a newspaper is looked upon as a valuable friend to the editor. Many persons hesitate about sending a postal card or other information to a newspaper regarding the movements of themselves or their friends, lest the editor should think them anxious to see their names in print. He will think nothing of the kind, as he is glad to get such notes. Send a few and see.

AT REST.—Mr. Michael Maltby an old and respected resident of Amaranth township, died on Monday the 17th instant. Deceased was in the 65th year of his age. The remains were interred in the Laurel cemetery on Wednesday afternoon. The mourning relatives have much sympathy in their sorrow.

AN ERROR.—Policeman Wm. J. Allen of Toronto, who was clubbed by toughs last week, is not a brother of Messrs. R. H. and G. Allen of this town, as stated in THE SUN's last issue. The unfortunate pooler hails from around this part of the country, however, and he may be able to leave his bed on Tuesday.

THAT'S CORRECT.—A few days ago Principal Arnstrong visited all the rooms in the public school and caution all the "kids" against throwing mud balls at farmers' sons. The principal is the primest of the lot, and the farmers' sons, present Mr. Armstrong address they will not be slow in taking their own interests.

CASH SALE.—The extensive credit sale of farm stock, implements, etc., will take place on the farm of Mr. Joseph Warnock, east ½ lot 24, 1st div., Caledon, on Tuesday, December 2nd. Everything will be sold without reserve as the proprietor has leased his farm. Sale will commence at 12 o'clock sharp. Mr. Jas. A. Patterson is the auctioneer. For list of articles see posters.

BELLE STEVENSON COMPANY.—The Belle Stevenson Dramatic Co. has been engaged by the Dufferin lacrosse club to give performances in the town hall every night next week, commencing on Monday. This is an excellent troupe with plenty of variety, and nobody will become drowsy listening to them. The admission has been brought down to 15c and 25c cents. Everybody should attend.

WOULD IT WORK IN ORANGEVILLE?—There are two towns in Ontario where the authorities do not permit boys and girls to run the streets after 9 o'clock at night. In Berlin and Waterloo the curfew bell is rung at 9 o'clock and after that hour boys and girls must not be found on the street. The law is said to work well. It is not a bad idea that few can step in and do that which too many parents pay no attention to—look after the morals of their children. Boys and girls who are permitted to run the streets at night are not likely to have their morals improved.

ONWARD.—Since the meeting of the General Conference in Montreal last September, the Methodist Book and Publishing house makes another stride forward in its popular periodicals. A new paper for the young people, with the progressive name Onward, an eight page, well illustrated weekly, is issued at the low price of 50 cents a year, singly—over 5 copies, 50 cents a year. It is edited by the Rev. Dr Withrow, whose management of the Methodist Magazine and Sunday school periodicals of the Methodist church has been so successful. The Rev. William Briggs, Toronto, is the publisher.

THE FATAL ROPE.—Mr. T. L. Cranston, teller at the bank of Commerce, received by Tuesday morning's mail a six inch piece of the rope that jerked poor Birchall from time into eternity at Woodstock jail on Friday, the 14th. It is an ordinary three-quarter inch hemp rope, almost saturated with black oil for the purpose it was used. A friend of Mr. Cranston's at Toronto, and who is a member of the Sunnyside yacht club, procured the relic from Hangman Radcliffe, who was the club's steward until a few days ago. Mr. C. guards the rope as carefully as he guards the bank's cash, but he explained the whole business to a SUN reporter yesterday.

ADVERTISING FAKIRS.—An exchange sensibly remarks: Business men in the various towns throughout the country are constantly troubled with these fakirs. There are local fakirs also who publish calendars, etc., who sell space in the hotel registers, around the clock, etc. The best paying advertisement for a retailer is the one he puts in his local paper. Set your back against all other schemes. Let the matter in your advertisement be such as will attract attention. Tell the truth in it. Do not make extravagant statements. Briefly study advertising as carefully as you do any of the details of your business. If you do not make your advertisement in your local paper pay the fault is yours, because others have.

SALARIES INCREASED.—The high school trustees held their regular monthly conclave in the council chamber on Tuesday evening last, and after dealing with the regular routine business the question of engaging teachers for next year came up. Several of the trustees "kicked" about increasing the teachers' salaries, and an animated debate took place. Hostmaster Steele was reengaged at the old salary of $1400 a year. First Assistant Parker's salary was increased from $750 to $800, as also was Miss Moir's from $500 to $550. Mr. Corkill, who drew this year $700, was advanced to $750, but he thinks he should receive $800 and will not accept the "raise." The trustees, therefore, will probably have to advertise for another teacher.

A FINE HALL.—The Masonic fraternity of this town have about one of the neatest lodge rooms we ever had the pleasure of seeing. Through the courtesy of Messrs. Geo. Irwin and D. Dick, secretary and tyler respectively, a representative of THE SUN was shown through their rooms, which are situated on the third flat of the Jackson block. The lodge-room has been artistically papered by Mr. Robt. Irvine, and new carpet covers the floor. To the left of the lodge room is a large dining hall with tables, dishes, etc., and everything in readiness for immediate use. In the rear there are two comfortable waiting rooms. The whole space occupied by the society is illuminated by electricity. The membership of the lodge numbers about eighty active members, and a more orderly and respectable body than Harris lodge, No. 216, A. F. & A. M., would be very hard to find.

If you want to borrow any money you had better go to D. E. Brown, as he is always to the front with the cheap money.

GRAND OPERA AGAIN.—The tenth lecture of Grip's Dramatic Almanac is to be delivered in Orangeville next evening, if not subject to the prevailing snowing weather. Mr. Bengough's interesting pocket has been full of his amusing and instructive pieces, and he will probably give us some of the best things of the kind ever issued from the Canadian press. The calendar of events for the coming year—forecasting the future as well as the past—affords much food for laughter. Grip's Almanac will compare favorably with any similar publication on this continent in point of merit, originality and artistic excellence. It contains 32 pages, and is sold by all dealers for the remarkably low price of 10 cents. It will be sent by the publisher, Toronto, post paid, to any address on receipt of the price.

DOBBIN V. CRANSTON ESQRS.—The case of Mrs. Margaret Brown Dobbin, wife of the Rev. Mr. Dobbin, of Caledon East, against Alexander Cranston for defamation was before the Court of Common Pleas on Saturday on motion by the plaintiff to set aside the judgment for the defendant and to enter judgment for the plaintiff for the amount claimed, or for a new trial on the ground that the verdict was contrary to law and evidence, and that evidence had been improperly rejected at the trial and also on the ground of the discovery of new material evidence to support the plaintiff's case. The motion was dismissed with costs. This is the case in which it was alleged that the defendant had charged the Rev. Dobbin with unnatural offences and had said that Mrs. Dobbin was just as bad and also that Dobbin was not the father of Mrs. Dobbin's child. Dobbin had an apology handed by the plaintiff nothing more will be heard of this disgusting case.

BILL NELSON AGAIN.—The adjourned hearing of the charge preferred by John Gough against Bill Nelson, a Mono farmer, for trespass and intimidating came up for trial at the police court on Wednesday. Several witnesses were examined on each side, and a stubborn defence was set up by Bill's legal exponent, but all to no use. The court adjudged the defendant guilty, but adjourned to consult the county attorney as to what course should be taken on the bonds to keep the peace given by Nelson some few weeks ago. Appearances indicate, however, that it will go pretty hard with the defendant. E. Myers, Q. C. acted for the prosecutor. After the court Nelson went down to the Dufferin house, where Gough is employed as hostler, and threatened the entire household, using the most insulting and abusive language towards the landlord, who stood it with great forbearance. The police magistrate's decision will likely be known on Saturday.

FOUL PLAY AT MT. FOREST.—Mt. Forest was somewhat startled on Tuesday morning by the discovery by a north end citizen of the body of a child about two years old in an unused cistern. The cistern was closed, which at once led to the suspicion that the child had been wilfully drowned by some person or persons. On inquiry being made it appears that one Wm. Coutts and his wife had lived or boarded in a house across the street, opposite to that where the body had been found. They had two children, and as the parents were in far from comfortable circumstances, they had been trying to get some one to adopt the children. They succeeded so far as the oldest was concerned, Mr. Coutts' mother undertaking to keep it. One morning about three weeks ago Mr. Coutts stated to his landlord that he had disposed of the other to a farmer about four miles out, and nothing more was thought about the matter until the discovery of the child's body, when suspicion was immediately directed toward Mr. Coutts. A warrant was issued for his arrest and executed, he being found at his mother's. The coroner empanelled a jury and the inquest is now sitting.

AN HOTELKEEPER'S ADVENTURE.—A few days ago a certain east Broadway hotelkeeper was out shooting rabbits and met with a rather startling adventure. Mine host was walking along through the bush, when all at once he thought he felt something crawling up one of his legs. He tried to make himself believe the crawling sensation existed in his imagination only, but it was no go. Finally he dropped his gun and grasped his leg where the crawling appeared to be. There was something there, and it wasn't many seconds before the pants were off. It didn't take a magnifying glass for the now thoroughly scared hotelkeeper to see a snake, which measured over three feet in length, coiled around his leg. Quick as thought the snake was pulled off and dispatched. So thoroughly frightened was the sport that he left the locality and returned home. Of course he guarded the story well, only a few intimate friends being told of the appalling occurrence, and none had the gall to say the snake was where his feet should be. However, THE SUN's snake editor investigated the report and found it to be true in every particular. Local sports can save themselves a great deal of trouble when they go hunting by tying their pants at the bottom and pasting this paloo in their hats.

MacAdam's Boots and Shoes are giving great satisfaction. You want some before Christmas, don't you? Drop in and see what they are doing. For good Boots he has the value.

The law in Newmarket is well looked after. Reeve Lloyd took some cod off a lively street pig fellow up the street as around his house, and on interrogating being told was fined $1 and costs.

EAST LUTHER COUNCIL.

COURT ROOM, GRAND VALLEY,
November 7th, 1890.

The Council met to day at 2 o'clock p. m. at the call of the Reeve. Members all present; the Reeve in the chair.

Moved by John Barber, seconded by John McKee, that the following accounts be passed and the Reeve issue his orders for the same;—William McDonald, for sign for bridge, $2.50; William Losey, for nails, 16c; Hugh McDougall, arbitrating re union school with Melancthon and Amaranth, $4.50; Hart & Co., for stationery, $3.00; John Mitchell, filling hole in road, 50c.—Carried.

Moved by John Barber, seconded by John McKee, that the Clerk notify James A. Burkholder to open up the drain that runs into his farm, the N. ½ lot 22, con. 6, from the township of Amaranth.—Carried.

Moved by Daniel McLellan, seconded by William Scott Galbraith, that the Reeve issue his order for $20 to Thos. Smith for work done on ditch on side road between lots 24 and 25, con. 7.—Carried.

Moved by Daniel McLellan, seconded by Wm. Scott Galbraith, that the council refund the taxes (less the school tax) to Mrs. Ponsford, and also that the taxes (less the school tax) charged to the late George Davidson be refunded to his widow, Mrs. Davidson.—Carried.

Moved by Daniel McLellan, seconded by Wm. Scott Galbraith, that a grant of $10 be given on the Amaranth town line opposite lot 32, con. 10, and that the Clerk be instructed to notify Amaranth council to supplement the same, this being the $10 previously granted.—Carried.

A petition signed by Wm. Osbourne and 199 others, praying the Council to submit a by law for the prohibiting of the sale of intoxicating liquor in the township of East Luther was laid before the Council by Wm. Osbourne. A counter petition signed by John Park and 8 others was also laid on the table.

After hearing the various remarks by the different parties interested for and against the petition it was Moved by John McKee, seconded by Wm. Scott Galbraith, that the prayer of the petition of Wm. Osbourne and 199 other ratepayers of the township, asking for the submission of a by-law, be granted, and that the ratepayers have the liberty of deciding the matter for themselves. The yeas and nays were taken on this motion as follows: Yeas—A. C. Gaviller, W. S. Galbraith, John Barber and John McKee; nays—Daniel McLellan.

On motion of John McKee and Wm. Scott Galbraith a by-law to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquor in the township of East Luther was introduced and read a first and second time.

Moved by John McKee, seconded by Wm. Scott Galbraith, that a copy of the purposed by law to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquor in the township of East Luther be published for three successive weeks in the Dufferin Star, published at Grand Valley, the first of such publications being on Wednesday, the 12th day of November, A. D., 1890.—Carried.

The council then adjourned.

R. E. HAMILTON, Clerk.

MANGLED IN A THRESHING MACHINE.

TEESWATER, Nov. 25.—a fatal threshing machine accident occurred about five miles from here last evening. Thomas Smith, a young man about 24 years of age, son of Mr. Bleakney Smith who was standing on the cylinder cleaning up, as the threshing was about done, when the cap broke and let him into the cylinder. The poor fellow was dreadfully mangled, and died four hours afterwards.

FIRE RECORD.

ARTHUR, Nov. 26.—The barn, together with one horse, three cows, a lot of threshed grain, hay and implements owned by Archibald Irwin, of West Luther, was burned on Monday evening. Supposed to have been caused by a tramp. Insured in London Mutual for $1,100.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The stock of P. Levy, clothier, 153 Dundas street, was badly damaged by fire and water last night. Mr. Levy's loss will be very heavy. He carried a stock of clothing, gents' furnishing, etc., the value of which he estimates at $30,000, and the greater part of it is ruined. His insurance amounts to about $25,000. A sad incident connected with the fire was the fact that the smoke invaded the premises next door of James Smith, of the Albion restaurant, who is lying at the point of death. The family were in a state of consternation, and when a rumor was started that they were in need of help to escape suffocation, a ladder was promptly raised to the second story, and a fireman went in through a window to render any assistance that might be needed. All the while Mr. Smith lay unconscious, the family doing their best to exclude the smoke from the sick chamber, but with only partial success.

Mr. S. Hughes has been appointed for the Commons by the North Victoria Conservatives.

NASAL BALM
It is a certain and speedy cure for Cold in the Head and Catarrh in all its stages.
SOOTHING, CLEANSING, HEALING.
Instant Relief. Permanent Cure. Failure Impossible.
Many troublesome diseases are already recognized as the consequence of Catarrh, such as loss of smell, total blockage of the nasal passages, hawking and spitting, dropping down the back of the throat, and a general feeling of languor and lassitude. If you are troubled with any of these or kindred symptoms, you should be thoroughly cleansed, and nothing can do this so effectually as a bottle of Nasal Balm. Its wonderful healing properties are well known to be unequaled. Catarrh is being rapidly driven out of Canada, and we feel confident that the use of Nasal Balm will be the means of ridding many more of this most loathsome disease. Pleasant to use, and only a few days are required to effect a cure. Nasal Balm is sold by all druggists, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price, one dollar and a half per bottle.

Poetry.

OUR OLD FRIEND NEVERFAIL.

Oh, it's good to hitch a relative 'at's rich and can't run
When you holler out to hold on, and it's take and have his fun;
It's good to hear a man called lucky 'at thinks he's got Find out he's not,
Or strike some chap they call Inkeeper 'at is really red-hot;
It's good to know the devil's painted just a leetle black,
But just the best thing in the world's our old friend Neverfail,
When he wags your hand as honest as our old dog wags his tail.

I like to strike the man I owe the same time I can pay,
And take back things I've borried, and surprise folks that way;
I like to find out that the man I voted for last fall
That didn't get elected was a scoundrel after all;
I like the man that likes the pups and helps 'em when he can;
I like to meet a ragged tramp 'at's still a gentleman;
But most I like—with you, my boy—our old friend Neverfail,
When he wags your hand as honest as an old dog wags his tail.

BEYOND LIFE'S TROUBLED SEA.

Death? oh, yes; they call it so;
But it is not death to thee!
Only a stepping onward,
Beyond life's troubled sea.

'Tis true the body is left behind,
But another has been found;
There's only dust in the casket
They have buried in the ground.

But over the mystic river,
Where Christ and his angels dwell,
Live those who have loved us ever,
And those we have loved so well.

And we must bear life's burdens,
Whatever they may be,
Until we take the journey
Beyond life's troubled sea.

So let us not grow weary,
Nor count the hours too long,
For he who marks the sparrow's flight
Will hear our plaintive song.

And the welcome of our dear ones
At the gate for us will be,
When we too cross the river
Beyond life's troubled sea.

LEGAL INTELLIGENCE.

Some years ago a young man applied to the District Court of Dallas, Texas, to be examined to practise law. A lawyer was appointed to examine the qualifications of the candidate for admission to the bar. The young man was rather deficient in Blackstone and Greenleaf. It looked as though he lacked the requisite preparation, and the examining lawyer badgered him until his brow was beaded with perspiration.

"Do you know what fraud is in the judicial sense of the word?" enquired the examining attorney.

"I don't—I hardly think I do," was the stammering reply.

"Well, fraud exists when a man takes advantage of his superior knowledge to injure an ignorant person."

"So, that's it, is it. Then, if you take advantage of your superior knowledge of law to ask me questions that I can't answer, owing to my ignorance, and in consequence thereby I am refused a license, I will be injured, and you will be found guilty of fraud. Won't he, Judge?"

The lawyer was very thoughtful for a few moments, and then added reflectively:

"My young friend, I perceive that you have great natural qualifications for the bar, and I shall recommend that a large handsomely engrossed and richly engraved license be granted you in spite of your ignorance."

Big Interest.

The biggest interest on any investment is that obtained by buying a bottle of B. B. B. The dividends of strength, health and vigor are always realized, and there are no assessments. Burdock Blood Bitters, the great blood purifier, costs one dollar a bottle—about one cent a dose.

HE THOUGHT SO.

A middle aged woman called at a Grand River avenue drug store the other evening and asked for morphine, and the clerk replied to her request with

"Is it for your husband?"

"Oh, no, sir, I haven't got any."

"You don't think of suicide?"

"Far from it."

"What do you take it for?"

"Must I tell, sir?"

"You must."

"Well, then, don't you think that a woman 40 years old, who has had her first offer of marriage less than an hour ago, naturally want's something to quiet her nerves and give her a good night's sleep?"

The druggist thought so, and she got her nerve soother.

A young man named Cole was accidently shot in the face near Brampton on Thanksgiving day. The wound is serious though not fatal, but will disfigure the young man's face considerably.

Every man to his trade. Berry, the professional English hangman, says he has hanged over 100 persons since he succeeded Marwood in 1883, and that he scans the papers every morning to see if a job has been provided for him.

A Source of Joy.

DEAR SIRS,—My young sisters were attacked by croupe so badly that we almost despaired and had little hope of curing them. At last we applied Hagyard's Yellow Oil and to our great joy it cured them perfectly, and they now enjoy the blessings of perfect health.

SHELBURNE.

(Free Press Special.)

The bell tower on the town hall is nearly completed, and we expect to see the bell swung into position in a few days.

At a meeting of the public school board held last week, Miss M. Wilson, a former teacher, and Miss Taylor, of Orangeville, were engaged for 1891, to take the places of Miss Gray and Miss Hill.

A runaway team came down on Mr. John McCauley, of Hockview, who discovered by fire on Thursday evening last. The fire started about midnight. The barn and contents were insured.

Mr. T. J. Parks retains the leadership of the Shelburne brass band. Mr. J. Oldfield, of Dundalk, has come to Durham to lead the band there.

Mr. Robert Wellbourne, of Shelburne, went to England in September to bring out a shire stallion. He arrived here on Saturday last without the horse, it having died on the passage out. As the horse was a valuable one Mr. Wellbourne's loss will be heavy.

The Grand Union property, Stone Centre, advertised to be sold under mortgage in Shelburne on Tuesday, was destroyed by fire about 2 o'clock a. m. of the same day, opening a postponement of the sale. The place has been vacant for some time and incendiarism is strongly suspected.

Tuesday afternoon, before Magistrate Dunbar, Robert Baird, of Malmur, charged with using insulting and abusive language towards Mr. Jas. H. Crosbie and bride at Shelburne station on the evening of their departure for Hamilton, was fined $10 and costs. The complainant is a brother-in-law of Crosbie's. The case afforded considerable amusement at Baird's expense.

A STARTLING CONTRADICTION.

To the Editor of THE SUN:

DEAR SIR,—There is an old adage that says a prophet is not without honour save in his own country, and the saying is generally accepted as containing much truth. Indeed it is explained into the generally accepted belief that true merit, whether it be that of an individual, or that of some medicine or preparation, is much more likely to meet with popular approval at a distance than at home. Hence when Nasal Balm is pronounced to be the greatest remedy for cold in the head and catarrh, ever offered the people of Canada, it affords a striking instance of the fact that popular opinion, for once, at least, is wrong. From the outset its popularity in the home of its manufacture has been unbounded and constantly increasing. In evidence of this we offer testimonials from two Brockville gentlemen who are known throughout the Dominion.

D. Derbyshire, Esq., Mayor of Brockville and for the past two years President of the Ontario Creamery Association, says:—"Your Nasal Balm is truly a wonderful remedy. I may say that I was afflicted with a distressing case of catarrh accompanied by a number of its disagreeable symptoms. I had tried other remedies, but without avail, and well-nigh despaired of a cure, when I was induced to give Nasal Balm a trial. Its effects were wonderful, and the results coming from its use surprising. Briefly stated, it stops the droppings into the throat, sweetens the breath, relieves the headaches that follow catarrh, and in fact makes one feel altogether like a new man. No one who is suffering from catarrh in any of its stages should fail to procure immediate relief by using this remedy at trial."

James Smart, Esq., Brockville, Sheriff of the United Counties of Leeds and Grenville, says:—"It would be impossible to speak too extravagantly of the wonderful curative properties of Nasal Balm. I suffered for upwards of a month from a severe cold in the head, which, despite the use of other remedies, was becoming worse and developing into catarrh. I procured a bottle of Nasal Balm and was relieved from the first application and thoroughly cured within twenty-four hours. I cheerfully add my testimony to the value of Nasal Balm."

These are but two illustrations out of the hundreds of testimonials the proprietors of Nasal Balm have had from all parts of the Dominion, but they ought to convince the most sceptical. If your dealer does not keep Nasal Balm it will be sent on receipt of price—50 cents small size and $1 large size bottle—by addressing FULFORD & Co., Brockville, Ont.

A coroner's jury inquired into the cause of the death of James Kyle, a C. P. R. engineer who was killed in a collision near Owen Sound two weeks ago. The jury found that no one was to blame but the unfortunate engineer himself.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the greatest specific of the age for the cure of Blood Diseases, Suppressions, Irregularities, Female Weaknesses, etc. Give them a trial. Never fail.

A wood famine has existed in the village for the past few weeks, caused by execrable state of the roads. Those having wood in stock were enabled to sell a "jag" at any price demanded. Had our friends who desired to pay in wood placed it here before the roads broke up we might now have been posing as a capitalist instead of gradually freezing to death.

THE SUN FOR 1891.

Some people agree with THE SUN'S opinions about men and things, and some people don't; but everybody likes to get hold of the newspaper which is never dull and never afraid to speak its mind.

Democrats know that for twenty years THE SUN has fought in the front line for Democratic principles, never wavering or weakening in its loyalty to the true interests of the party it serves with fearless intelligence and disinterested vigor. At times opinions have differed as to the best means of accomplishing the common purpose; it is not THE SUN'S fault if it has seen further into the millstone.

Eighteen hundred and ninety one will be a great year in American politics, and everybody should read THE SUN.

GRAND VALLEY.

(From our own Reporter.)

Some of our prominent farmers and machinery are in town this week settling up their year's business with our local agents.

Mr. Jas. Tasker, of Amaranth, lost a valuable horse last week from injuries to its leg while ordering a colt from the pasture.

[illegible] Orangeville on Saturday, having been shot in the neighborhood of Monaco. The attack is the result of Luther not wishing to be [illegible] with hunters.

The DeForest District Council R. T. of T. met in Grand Valley on Thursday last. Considering the state of the roads there were good turnouts from the different districts. Mountain Chief of Jerseyville, being the only one not represented. The next meeting is to be held in Orangeville.

On Sunday Mr. John McKeown, editor of the Star, met with a very painful accident. It appears that while walking down the east walk in front of the residence of Mr. John Graham his feet slipped from under him, throwing him with terrible force upon the hard walk. It was thought at the time that no serious injury had been sustained, but yesterday afternoon he was forced to return to his bed [illegible] being held it was found that the spine had been [illegible] and he is now confined to his bed.

[illegible] Mr. Johnston, of Orangeville, brought an action against [illegible] Johnston for the value of the [illegible] the September sittings, but the [illegible] did not give a decision, so it came again on Thursday last before a jury who after couple of hours deliberation gave judgment for the defendants.

At the Chicago horse show, on Saturday night, the Canadian horse Rosebery beat the world's record for high jumping by one half inch, clearing seven feet one and three quarter inches.

Bitty Stomachs.

WHEN weakness, loss of appetite, lack of energy and other symptoms of dyspepsia appear, it is high time Burdock Blood Bitters was made use of. There is nothing else "just as good." It is B. B. B. that cures dyspepsia, so be sure you get it.

Oxygenized Emulsion PURE COD LIVER OIL

DR. SLOCUM'S OXYGENIZED EMULSION OF PURE Cod Liver Oil FOR CONSUMPTION, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, SCROFULA, AND ALL PULMONARY DISEASES.

DIRECTIONS

Take one teaspoonful half an hour before each meal. If the patient's digestion will not allow this, take less frequently.

PRICE $1.00

PREPARED ONLY BY T. A. SLOCUM, 186 Adelaide St. West, TORONTO, - ONTARIO.

Among the merits which distinguish Slocum's Oxygenized Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil above all other preparations are:

1st. The excellence of its method of preparation.
2nd. Its freedom from disagreeable taste and odor.
3rd. Its immediate assimilation.
4th. The thoroughness in which it retains permanently its good qualities.
5th. And the fact that Slocum's Oxygenized Emulsion is the only Cod Liver Oil manufactured in the market in which the oil is not mixed with the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, or some other equally injurious foreign substance, and consequently rendered worse than worthless.

CAUTION.

Holloway's Pills & Ointment

WHEREAS I AM INFORMED THAT one Joseph Haydock, of New York, is making and selling Pills and Ointment under the name of HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT, and that the same are being sold by certain persons in the British Provinces of America, to the detriment of the public and also to my injury and loss.

Now, I declare the said Joseph Haydock has no authority whatever from me to use my name in any way. He is not my agent. He holds no power of attorney of mine, nor have I any connection with him whatever.

Persons publishing the said counterfeit Medicines of Joseph Haydock, or keeping for sale, or selling the same in any part of the British American Provinces, will be prosecuted according to law.

I have no agent in the United States, nor are any medicines sold there.

Every Pot and Box of my Genuine Medicine bears on the label, the address 533 Oxford Street, London, and has affixed to each the British Government Stamp with the words Holloway's Pills and Ointment engraved thereon.

The trade mark of my said Medicines are registered in Ottawa and also at Washington.

Signed, THOMAS HOLLOWAY.

BRONCHITIS

128 Lexington Ave., New York City, Sept. 8, 1888.

I have used the Flax-Seed Emulsion in a case of Bronchitis, accompanied with bronchial vessels, where other remedies could not use Cod Liver Oil in any form.

J. H. DROGE, M. D.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION

Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 8th, 1888.

I am strongly recommending Flax Seed Emulsion as helpful to the relief and possibly the cure of all forms of Bronchial and Nervous Affections, and a good general tonic in physical debility.

JOHN F. TALMAGE, M. D.

GENERAL DEBILITY

Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 8th, 1888.

I regard Flax Seed Emulsion as greatly superior to the Cod Liver Oil Emulsions as generally prepared.

D. A. CORTOR, M. D.

WASTING DISEASES

New York, Aug. 6, 1888.

I have used your Flax-Seed Emulsion in a severe case of Malnutrition and the results were more than hoped for—it was marvellous in its effects. I recommend it cheerfully to the profession and humanity at large.

Newspaper Decisions.

1. Any person or persons who take a paper regularly from the post office, whether directed in his name or another's, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for payment.
2. If a person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and then collect the whole amount whether the paper is taken or not.
3. The courts have decided that refusing to take a newspaper or periodical from the post office or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intended fraud.

is a type of thousands of young girls who are engaged from the chrysalis state of their existence, as they enter upon their "teens." Nervous, excitable, irritable, affected by strange unknowables, forever wishing to walk a mystery unto herself, our girls need the judicious care, the most loving, patient counsel, and the aid of Dr. Pierce's favorite prescription, to safely carry them through this critical period, during which, in too many lives, slumbers the germs of all the lingering forms of disease peculiar to the female sex. But one bottle of "Favorite Prescription" will prevent all such diseases, or cure them if they have already taken a victim. "Favorite Prescription" is a legitimate medicine, carefully compounded by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate organization. It purely vegetable in its composition and perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the system. Sold by druggists, $1.00, or six bottles for $5.00.

THE WORLD'S CORONATION.

When God had made man, and the story
Of His beautiful world had been told,
He looked from the throne of His glory
And said, "There is something wanting!
Though the stars had been fired into gladness,
And glittered the garden with light,
Though the air from their touch had awoke
And spangled the night;

Though the feathered sweet minstrels of Had
Poured forth their melliflurous
Though it kissed to the winds had been given
As they swept o'er the plains,
And found the green billows that lovered
Like alms, for reaching to God;
Though clothed, like snow, had been showered
All over the sod;
Though the mellowed and mystical shadows
Of the kingly, tall cedars fell soft
When sleep came to dwell in the meadows
And its beauty stole in from the aloft
Though the stars saw their beautiful faces
In the river that sang to the sea;
Yet the word with its myriad graces
Longed, Master, to Thee.

With a sigh on its lips so is human Heart thrilled with a wonderful beat,
Then God crowned its glory with woman,
And his work was complete!

Ah, what is so rare as the blessing
Thou givest to man in her birth!
Though it for an angel's caressing,
She stoops to the kisses of earth!
And what is so rare as the splendor
Of the smile that she brought from above!
And what is so true, and so tender,
As woman's dear love!

She walks in the ways that are lovely,
Where bloom the rare roses and sweet;
In paths which the Master made holy
By the print of His beautiful feet.
Still, true to her heavenly mission,
She mingles her gold with our dross;
And meekly, in every condition,
She takes up her cross!

O, sweet, and still sweeter and sweeter
Than all He hath given beside!
In the glow of God's morning we'll meet her
That day when He makes her His bride.
And when in his starry evangels
He writes the world's history down;
Let fairer by far than the angels,
She will shine with the crown!

CHAPTER LXVI.

THE MAN WHO BETRAYED HER.

THE photographs were very beautiful. When she came to one representing scenes in France or Italy, she lingered over it; but when it was of a Scotch mountain or lake, those wild, weird hills, all covered with heather, there rose before her that home where her one brief life had been spent—the calm, shining lake, the purple, sloping hills, the old gray church, the sunlit garden, the pretty home—she heard the servant's voice, she saw her husband's face, and a low cry of anguish came from her lips.

"Shall I never be able to forget?" she cried. "Oh, bonnie Scotland! even your name, even the sight of the heather and the blue hills, is full of anguish for me!"

Then she stifled the sob that rose to her lips, for the drawing-room door opened, and a strange gentleman entered, ushered in by a footman.

"Tell Lord Dyncourt I will not detain him longer than five minutes," said the gentleman to the servant, "but my business is important."

Silvia looked at the hangings they were drawn almost close.

"There is no need for me to go away," she said; "I can take the little stand to the window and they can neither see nor hear."

She carried the stand to the window, and continued her occupation, arranging and numbering the photographs, without giving even a thought to the next room.

How long she had been dreaming over those pictures—how long that conversation in the drawing room had lasted, she knew not; it was the sound of a voice that roused her.

A voice that made the warm blood in her veins freeze and stand still—a voice that seemed to paralyze even her very heart and stop its beating—that brought great drops of anguish to her brow—that made her fall on her knees, with clinched hands, and wide-open, wild eyes. What was it?

The voice of the man she had loved so dearly—the voice that had wooed her in such soft, honeyed accents in the green lanes of Rosebank—the voice that had opened all paradise to her—that had whispered to her of love and poetry—that had lured her from home, and had never addressed her but in terms of love and tenderness.

"What is it?" she cried. "Ah! great Heaven! What does that sound mean?"

So she knelt, with wild, imploring eyes and outstretched arms. There was no mistake, it was richer, deeper, fuller, more manly in tone, but it was as surely the voice of the man she believed to be her husband as she was kneeling there.

She must see—she must see for herself! sound or fancy had mocked her. She must see what face went with that voice—to whom it belonged.

Gently and slowly, she rose from her knees; she touched the velvet hangings, and they parted half an inch; she looked, with wild, wondering, wistful eyes, and saw two gentlemen—one, quite a stranger to her, talking earnestly, evidently a visitor; the other, leaning in a careless, graceful attitude against the richly carved mantel piece, evidently the master of the house. Was the man who had betrayed her—the man who, calling himself Ulric Rymer, had married her?

For some few moments it seemed to her as if she itself must leave her—that even as she stood there she must die.

She was looking again on the face that had been all the world to her. Those lips had kissed her a thousand times; those eyes had looked into hers with love unutterable; it was the face she had worshiped as the morning star of her life—that face that had been her light, her sunshine.

It was the man she had loved with the deepest, truest love of her heart—the husband of her girlhood, the father of her child.

And who was he? What guilt lay between them?

Slowly the blue curtain fell from her hands; it was but as though a breath of wind had moved it; no one noticed it; and then she tried to regain her seat. She had seen enough; but the strength had all left her; the coldness and numbness of death seemed to have fallen over her; she had not the power to stir.

White, ghastly, cold, she stood, while the deep, rich voice and musical laugh sounded near him.

Who was he? The beloved husband of her dearest friend—the husband whom Lady Clotilde loved with her whole heart—the rich, powerful, mighty Lord Dyncourt—a peer of the realm, master of that magnificent mansion! Yet, surely as Heaven was above her, her true, lawful husband, the father of her child.

Her child! Those two words seemed to pierce her heart with a burning pain. A wild wonder if she were not mad or dreaming. If Ulric Rymer were indeed before her then she, not Lady Clotilde, was the true Lady Dyncourt, and Cyril—the child without a name—over whose fate she had mourned, was the true heir to that great princely race.

She tried, even as she stood there, to think it over calmly. She might as well have tried to stop, with her two little hands, the courses of a raging torrent. Her brain burned; the well-remembered voice seemed to be filling her ears with the strangest sound; a thick mist was spreading before her eyes, a chill like that of death was shooting through her veins.

Like a clear sounding bell these words came to her:

"If I am his wife, what is Lady Clotilde?"

Lady Clotilde, whose life was bound in his! Horror, fear, confusion, dismay, seemed to spread on every side of her. If her white lips could have moved it would have been to have moaned aloud in her misery; but the power of speech, as of movement, had gone from her.

As she stood, so she fell; the mist had blinded her, the chill had paralyzed her she fell like one dead.

The two gentlemen were exchanging adieus, they were deeply interested in talking, and did not notice the slight sound; no one entered the room, no one missed her until Lady Clotilde returned, and her first question was for Mrs. Rymer.

Then, after some delay, they found her lying in that pretty, silent room, like one dead. Lady Clotilde gave a cry of dismay.

"She's dead!" said one of the servants; but Lady Clotilde placed her hand on Silvia's heart.

"She has swooned, she is not dead," she said. "Carry her gently to her room and lay her on the bed."

So, when Silvia opened her eyes again it was to see Lady Clotilde's kind face bent with unutterable anxiety over her.

"Are you better, Silvia? You have been very ill," said the sweet voice.

"I must go home," she cried, wildly; "I am ill. Oh! Lady Clotilde, do not detain me—I shall die if I am kept here—let me go home."

Lady Clotilde looked as she felt—bewildered.

"My dearest Silvia, what is the matter? You frighten me. Certainly you shall go home, if you wish. What has made you so ill? I cannot understand."

But all the reply made to her was the one wild, pitiful cry.

"Let me go home, let me go home."

"It is a bad hysterical attack," said the doctor, who had been summoned; "and, Lady Dyncourt, I think the best plan will be to comply with the patient's request, and let her go home."

CHAPTER LXVII.

"WHY SHOULD SHE SHRINK FROM ME?"

Mrs. Greville sat with a look of unusual melancholy on her handsome face. It was not a habit of hers to be either very affectionate or very demonstrative, but she had learned to love Silvia; the beautiful, gentle companion had won her whole liking, and now that she lay dangerously ill, almost at the point of death Mrs. Greville felt more sad than she had done in her whole life before.

As she sat there, Lady Dyncourt was announced, and Mrs. Greville hastened to meet her.

"Is this true," asked Lady Clotilde, "about Mrs. Rymer's illness? I heard it last night, and I have hastened to inquire."

"Most unfortunately, it is true. It is to an illness I cannot understand. If I did not know her so well, I should say that some terrible secret trouble had suddenly overtaken her. It seems to me more mental than physical; yet what trouble could so suddenly bring her to the verge of the grave?"

"I should like to see her," said Lady Clotilde, impulsively.

"That is the strange part of the story," continued Mrs. Greville. "She sent for me this morning, and when I went she told me that she found she was going to be very ill, that she felt all the symptoms of a bad fever, and she implored me to have her sent to an infirmary."

Lady Clotilde uttered a little cry of wonder and surprise.

"I told her the very idea was absurd, that she was like my own sister to me, and that so far from sending her away I should have every possible care and attention lavished upon her."

"What did she say then?" eagerly inquired Lady Clotilde.

"She prayed me, with tears in her eyes, to consent. She said one of the maids told her she had been delirious in the night, and it would be so terrible, she added, if I were to be delirious here."

"Why here more than anywhere else?" asked Lady Dyncourt.

"That puzzled me," was the reply. "I cannot tell, only that it evidently agonized her to think of it. I told her nothing would induce me to consent. And then she prayed me, if she should be very ill, not to go near her but leave her to strangers. I can not help thinking that there is evidently something on her mind she fears speaking of."

"It certainly seems like it," said Lady Clotilde, musingly.

"The strangest part is, that just as I was going out of her room, she called me back, and said to me, for the love of Heaven not to allow you, if she were ill and delirious, to enter the room. I told her you should not; and that puzzles me most, for I am certain she loves you best in all the world, after her son."

Lady Clotilde looked thoughtful.

"As you say, it is strange. I do not understand it. I came purposely to see her; but as she has urged that wish upon you I shall not of course, go near."

The two ladies talked for some little time longer, but Mrs. Greville was evidently depressed and sad at heart. Lady Clotilde was surprised and hurt. As she drove home again her thoughts were all with the beautiful, gentle girl she had learned to love so dearly.

"I am in her confidence," she thought, "I know the story of her life. She could say nothing, even in the madness of fever, that I should not understand. Why should she shrink from me?"

And that thought pursued her and made her wretched. There was a secret and a mystery in it, and Lady Clotilde hated both; besides, what could it be? Why should she shrink from her best friend.

Although her husband was at home, and visitors constantly made Dyncwold House gay, Lady Clotilde could not and did not for one moment forget Silvia. She sent several times each day to inquire about her, and the answer was always the same. Mrs. Rymer was exceedingly ill. Lord Dyncourt had dismissed the matter in very few words. On the day of his return home, when he met his wife at dinner, he said, indifferently:

"So your friend is ill, Clotilde."

He looked up in astonishment when Lady Dyncourt told him where she had been found.

"Fainted in the boudoir, did she? Why, I was in the drawing-room myself talking to a gentleman on business, and I never heard a sound."

"It could not have been at the same time, then. I was quite alarmed," said Lady Clotilde. "Besides, I am so sorry and so disappointed that you did not see her."

"Is she so very beautiful, then?" asked Lord Dyncourt.

"I have never seen another face quite like hers," she replied. "It is not only beautiful, but so sweet, so loving, so gentle, with a veil of something like sadness over it. Oh, Basil, you would admire her."

"Well, I must live in hopes of seeing her some day," said Lord Dyncourt with a smile. "I am amused at your enthusiasm, Clotilde."

And with those few careless words he had dismissed the matter from his mind. If any one had told him that the gentle lady whom his wife had loved was his Silvia he had wooed, won, and deserted, he would not have believed it.

The great disappointment of Lord Dyncourt's married life was that he had no heir. He bore the deepest hatred against his next of kin.

"If I had but one son," he was always saying; "one son to succeed me, to carry on my name, to continue my race I should be happy. I shall hardly rest in my grave, knowing that the man I detest is in my place."

He said but little of his disappointment, but it was none the less hard to bear. No one who looked at the handsome face would have thought a canker worm preyed at the man's heart; no one could have imagined that, by night and day, one ungratified longing preyed upon him, robbing life of its pleasures and tranquillity. He was not a religious man—not even a moral man—but he did ask himself at times if the death of the only boy there was left on earth for him to desire was a punishment of his sin. He did ask himself if it would not have been better, despite Lady Clotilde's wealth and her high connections, if he had been content with Silvia and Silvia's beautiful boy.

Ah, for such a son to succeed him—for such a boy to take his name and honors! He had seen she but little of the child. It had seemed to him rather a trouble than otherwise, only that Silvia's passionate worship amused him; but of late, since the desire of a son and heir had been paramount with him he had begun to think more of little Cyril. He had begun to wonder if he were living or dead—what his mother had been able to do for him. Some faint shadow of parental affection awoke in his heart. Would he have believed it, if he had been told, that the little child whom his wife loved, and for whom he had been asked to use all his influence, was his own forsaken son?

Lord Dyncourt was not altogether a happy man, he had every luxury and magnificence this world can give; he was rich, powerful, eagerly courted; fair faces smiled on him, bright eyes brightened for him, but he was not happy. There was a vague, restless discontent always hanging over him; there were times when Silvia's loving face rose before him, and he hated himself.

"One thing is quite certain," he said to himself, "the vices of youth do not make pleasant companions for middle age."

He had loved her better than he thought; it had seemed to him so easy to woo her, to win her, and to leave her. Hundreds of men did the same thing, and suffered nothing. Either his heart was not quite hard enough, or he had learned to care for her more deeply and truly than he had imagined himself to have done.

Since the day he wrote that cold, heartless letter, he had heard nothing of her. His lawyers had not succeeded in tracing her. She had completely ignored all the wishes he had expressed; she had never applied for one shilling of the money set aside for her, which had now accumulated into a goodly sum. Perhaps, had he known where she was, what she was doing, how she fared, he would have been less haunted by her; it was the very mistery surrounding her that kept her alive in his thoughts.

Many laugh at what is commonly called magnetism; but there are depths in philosophy unknown to us. Why, when someone we love, or have loved, is near, and we do not know it do our thoughts run so continually upon them? Afterward to learn that they have been near, and wonder at it. So the thought of Silvia was constantly with Lord Dyncourt.

"I can not imagine," he said one day to himself, "why my thoughts are always going back to that time. I did not know that it was my nature to be so constant."

"Clotilde," he said to his wife, "what has become of your beautiful portegee? You promised me a rare beauty, and now I hear nothing of her. What is the reason?"

"She still continues very ill," said Lady Clotilde; "she has had a terrible fever. However, I hope she will soon be sufficiently recovered to see me."

"I like Mrs Greville," continued Lord Dyncourt, "she is one of the few women who are really amusing. When you go to see your portegee, I will go with you to pay court to the fair young widow."

And his wife smiled, all unconscious of what that visit was to bring forth.

A Horrible Murder.

A horrible murder involving the loss of one life attracts greater attention than the thousands of deaths occuring annually from scrofula and bad blood. We want to attract attention to Burdock Blood Bitters, the proved and popular remedy for those forms of disease. It cures even old chronic obstinate cases which have defied all other treatment.

SLANDERING THE PULPIT.

It seems that even the clergymen of the land are not to be exempt from the hate and malignity of the peripatetic orators of the Liberal party. Sir Richard Cartwright, in his tramp from cross road to cross-road, has grown more spiteful as the weather grows colder, the roads muddier and the audiences smaller. At Otterville he seems to have had a regular "blow out," and neither individuals nor institutions were spared from his caustic criticism and furious temper. Even the wife of the veteran Premier was singled out for a scurrilous attack, because in years gone by she accepted as a Christmas gift articles of jewellery from the wealthy president of the Canadian Pacific railway. The worst of all his slanders, however, was his attack on the pulpits of Canada. Speaking of the Rykert matter, he said, according to the authorized Globe report:—

"A thousand pulpits more or less have held up John Charles Rykert as an awful example. How many of them pious frauds have pointed out to their hearers that Mr Rykert is the natural outcome and very latest evolution of John A. Macdonald's system?"

From this, it would appear that every clergyman who has not gone out of his way to denounce the Government of the day is to be paraded from riding to riding—as "a pious fraud." The discrediting of the pulpit is to be a part of the Liberal plan of campaign.

THE TOWN COUNCIL.

Ald. Bailey's Big R. & B. Report Adopted—Other Business.

The town council held forth in the council chamber on Monday night. Mayor Walsh, Reeve Lindsey, Deputy-reeve Endacott, Ald. Youmans, Green, Ketchum, Gillespie, King, Pinkney, Bailey, Coburn were present.

An account from John Joll, $1 00, was ordered to be paid, and another from W. Franlin for $1 50 was referred to the R. & B. committee.

Mayor Melado of Wingham asked the co-operation of this council to prevail on the Ontario Legislature to let municipalities have the whole amount of license fees. An amendment hoisting the communication for two weeks was carried.

Jas. Etsomb, proprietor of the Ben Bow hotel, asked a rebate of taxes on the ground that his property was not so valuable as when his hotel had a license. Referred to the Assessment committee.

P. M. Pattullo sent in a statement of the fines he imposed, some of which have not been collected. The communication was held over until the next meeting.

The Assessment committee will consider whether Jas. Daniels' taxes should be refunded or not.

A complaint made by James Bennett that his cow had been illegally impounded and that he had to pay $1 20 for its release will be investigated by the Assessment committee.

T. Stevenson addressed the council to the effect that his property was too highly assessed and he wanted a rebate. Referred to Assessment committee.

Mayor Walsh informed the council that he had issued an invitation to the mayor, reeves and deputy reeves of municipalities interested in recovering the amount of bonuses granted to railways years ago to meet at Orangeville on Friday afternoon the 19th, to move in the matter.

After Reeve Lindsey had read the treasurer's statement for November, reports from F. & W. and Cemetery committees were read and adopted. Ald Bailey also brought in his detailed R & B report.

By-laws providing for the appointing of returning officers, polling booths, etc., for the approaching elections were read a third time and passed.

Mr. Stitt addressed the council on the matter of insurance. He said if the expenses of the secretary of the underwriters association were paid for him to visit Orangeville and inspect the town's fire department, he believed the usual rate would be very much lowered. The F. & W. committee will deliberate on the matter.

The by-law providing for fixing the number to compose the R. & B. committee was dealt with, in committee of the whole. Reeve Lindsey in the chair. The number was placed at five.

Ald. King, who is about to remove to Owen Sound, announced that this meeting would be the last he would have an opportunity of attending. The mayor and several aldermen complimented the retiring councillor and regretted his departure from town. Mr. King replied in a brief speech, after which the council adjourned.

THE completion of the fourth volume of Dr. Kingsford's History of Canada, bringing the history down to 1763, is the occasion of an interesting article by Principal Grant, published in the Week. He says that we have in Dr. Kingsford "a historian who has at the cost of enormous labor sought out and consulted original authorities, and who after sifting evidence and coming to his conclusions, does not allow himself to be biased on the one side or on the other by any consideration of so called courtesy or self-interest."

PARNELL'S RED HERRING.

HEALEY SAYS HE IS DRAWING IT OVER THE SCENT.

With a View of Postponing a Vote on the Question of the Leadership—A Stormy Scene at the Parnellite Meeting Yesterday.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Nothing was done at the morning session of the Parnellite party today, and an adjournment was taken until after the debate on the second reading of the Land Purchase Bill.

A sharp controversy took place temporarily the guide deputation, which had been sent to the delegates in the United States for the purpose of influencing their action. Mr. Kenny admitted he had misled his own views to the delegates.

Mr. O'Connor declared that the business had not been conducted fairly. He thought Parnell's action in leaving his constituents and unknowingly misleading guide deputationists had been seen in the delegates in the United States.

Mr. Campbell described the proceedings of Parnell's opponents as infamous.

Mr. Parnell was appealed to to decide whether the expression used by Mr. Campbell was orderly. He replied the country would decide on his proceedings.

Mr. Healy described the anthem of Parnell's friends as obstructive. Parnell disapproved this remark as insolent and inopportune. This disapproval was greeted with Theers of despondency by Parnell's friends, which were answered with cheers of derision by his opponents.

A Postponed Resolution Defeated.

Joseph Nolan's amendment, for the question of the retirement of Parnell should be postponed until members had personally some idea of the views of their constituents on the subject, the party then to meet in Dublin and decide the matter, was rejected 44 to 28.

Mr. O'Kelly declared that whatever might be the result of the meeting the question of Parnell's retirement would not be decided at Westminster. A decision ought not to be hurriedly reached. It would be best to give the country time to think. The power of the Liberal party to do anything for the furtherance of Home Rule in the future was limited by the House of Lords. Matters was always a barrier unless its members formed a revolution. But they would never see a revolution in England based upon Irish evidence.

Archbp O'Connor argued Parnell to withdraw, as henceforth it would be impossible for him to be the leader of the party.

Mr. Jordan charged Parnell of sacrificing the cause of the nation to his personal pride and vindictive ambition.

In the course of the discussion Parnell attacked Barry and others for sending deputations to America trying to influence the delegates there.

Mr. Sexton said he became aware last week that a number of messages were being received from individual members.

Parnell: "Where are they?"

Sexton: "They were from individual delegates to individual members."

John Redmond: Give the names.

Sexton: I received a telegram from T. P. O'Connor requesting me to give my views on the situation. I cabled, informing him that a majority favored the retirement of Parnell as necessary both for the Home Rule cause and the security of evicted tenants. I further added that if the errors were a way to support the majority substantially unanimity would be secured.

Col. Nolan: Mr. Sexton ought now to withdraw his expression of opinion in that telegram for he made a mistake. It is much an important expression of opinion that probably the telegram from the delegates in America were founded thereon. [Cries of "hear, hear."] Mr. Sexton first now see that unanimity does not follow the resolution voting against Parnell. [Cries of "hear, hear."]

Mr. Kenny: Unquestionably the effect of those telegrams has been to create false impressions at home and abroad.

A Large-eared Row.

Timothy Healy—Week's old tale this discussion about. It seems another piece of pure obstruction.

Parnell—That is a most insolent, impertinent observation. [Cheers.] Yes, most insolent and impertinent.

Barry—I the—

Parnell—Sit down, Mr. Barry.

Barry—But allow—

Parnell—I will not allow you, sir. Mr. Kenny is in possession of the floor.

Kenny—These telegrams to America certainly produced a false impression in implying that a majority of the leading men of the party were going in one direction.

Mr. Redmond: If any names were sent to the delegates in America all on one side ought to have been given. I hear that the delegates' telegram was read by certain members of our party in an English club and was received with cheers. If Parnell is to be deposed, it was a mean to place him without making it a matter to cheer in an English club. [Hear, hear.]

Timothy Healy said he regarded this line of debate as a red herring drawn across their path to sway them in coming to a decision on the question of Parnell's retirement.

There were angry colloquies between Parnell and J. F. X. O'Brien and Carroll and others.

How the Vote Stood.

The following voted in the minority on Nolan's Amendment:—

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| John P. Cosgrave | Joseph Nolan | Blake |
| Lyttle | Cortlet | Chandler |
| Campbell | Dalton | Fitzgerald |
| Edward Harrington | Hayden | W. Macdonald |
| Brassiba | Mahony | Maguire |
| John O'Connor | O'Hanlon | O'Kelly |
| Parnell | Richard Power | Quinn |
| John Redmond | Wm Redmond | Sullivan |
| Conway | J. E. Kenny | Lamon |
| Carew, Gilhooley, | O'Brien, | Leahy, Lalor, |

and Mahon were absent. No demonstration was made over the result of the division. Parnell declared himself more than satisfied. party will resume to-morrow the discussion of Barry's motion for the retirement of Parnell. Parnell's supporters are considering another amendment. Mr. Chaney will submit a resolution suggesting a compromise. It is rumored he will propose Parnell retire temporarily from the leadership.

A Letter from Harcourt.

Sir William Harcourt has written a letter in which he confirms McCarthy's statement made at the parliamentary meeting last night relative to what took place between them at the time of McCarthy's recent visit to him. Sir William further says he did not regard Parnell's proposals as practical. He told McCarthy the opinion of society was that immediate—a decisive accepting the proposals could be of no value to Parnell or any one else unless its contents were made known. Sir William says he did not attach any importance to Parnell's pledge of retirement review. The Irish party and the Irish nation possessed a higher and more lasting security than any secret negotiations or individual pledges in the unpromissable fact that no party, no leaders, could ever propose or hope to carry any scheme for Home Rule which did not have the concurrence and support of the Irish nation as declared by its representatives in parliament. Sir William says the statements of Parnell relating to his (Sir William's) views and conduct are unworthy of notice and opposed to the truth.

Liberals Confer.

LONDON, Dec. 3. Arnold Morley, Sir George O. Trevelyan, Campbell Bannerman, Sir William Vernon Harcourt, Earl Granville and Sanderson assembled at Gladstone's residence today and conferred for an hour with the premier.

The subject discussed was the retirement of the Liberal leader. It was decided to convene a meeting of Liberal peers and members of the House of Commons to hear a statement by Mr. Gladstone.

Harrington Summoned Home.

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Timothy Harrington, the only one of the Irish delegates here who is in favor of Parnell, still holding his position.

OUR HOMES.—We are in receipt of the first number of Our Homes, a 32-page magazine, issued monthly by Our Homes Publishing Co., Brockville, Ont. In their prospectus the publishers state that the magazine will be devoted to building, house-decoration, shower-keeping, house-furnishing, and choice fiction, and the initial number shows that the programme has been carefully carried out. An especially valuable feature is the publication of original architectural drawings with specifications for the construction of homes for workingmen and people of moderate means. The magazine is handsomely printed, on good paper, and should meet with success. To increase their list of subscribers, the publishers announce an error contest, in which cash prizes aggregating $3,050 will be given to the parties discovering the largest number of mistakes (wrongly spelled words) in their December issue. A copy of Our Homes, and the rules for competition will be sent to any address on receipt of 15 cents in stamps, by addressing Our Homes Publishing Co., Brockville, Ont.

WHO IS HE?—An old man named Sullivan residing in Orangeville, left his home unexpectedly last week, strayed through this section, but was overtaken at Avening and taken back.—Alliston Herald.

A NEW EXPRESS CO.—We have it upon reliable authority that an opposition express company will open an office here in April next. The new company, which will be composed of Toronto and Montreal merchants, intend to operate on all the railway lines in Canada.

BELLE STEVENSON HERE.—The Belle Stevenson variety company are on the boards here all this week. This company is above the average troupes that give Orangeville a call, and the hall should be packed every night. They play under the auspices of the lacrosse boys. Admission 10 and 15 cents.

COURTS COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.—The adjourned inquest on the body of the child found in a cistern at Mt. Forest about a week ago was closed on Friday night. The jury brought in a verdict that Wm. Coutts, the father of the child, had feloniously murdered the child by drowning. A warrant was placed in the hands of the constable, and the prisoner committed to await his trial at the next assizes. Garth Attorney Petersons was present at the close of the case.

THE FLAG COMES HERE.—The Empire's patriotic story flag for the county of Dufferin was won by John Holt. Kearns, one of our Opera room Kearns. The smart little fellow is in Mr. Reid's room, second division of the Orangeville public school. It speaks volumes for the teacher, as well as for the efficiency of the teachers, that the prize was won by an Orangeville boy. The flag will arrive before the Christmas holidays, and will probably flutter in the breeze from the tower of the Orangeville public school.

THE EDITOR'S DELIGHT.—Every now and again we hear of new evening games being gotten up. The latest is called "The Editor's Delight," which, though not quite new is well worth playing. The plan is this: Take a sheet of ordinary white paper, fold carefully, enclose a bank bill sufficiently large to pay all arrears and one year in advance, and address it to the editor or publisher of your favorite paper. What adds immensely to the pleasure of the game is to send along the name of a new subscriber or two accompanied by the cash.

HOW LIVE BUSINESS MEN SUPPORT THEIR TOWN.—We have just received a large order for job printing from a firm in Orangeville. It is evident they believe in getting first-class work at moderate prices, hence they send their order to the Advocate.—Erin Advocate. We always knew there were grip-sack publishers in the province, but we couldn't just find out where their den was situated. However, if the editor of the Advocate drops in to see us we will put him on the track of several "enterprising" customers who get printing done but fail to remunerate the printer.

A CRAZY ENGINEER.—On Thursday afternoon a very sad incident occurred to Engineer Joseph O'Brien as his train was coming round the horse shoe in the Caledon mountains. When about half way up the engineer stopped the train and got out of the cab and went over to a farm house near by and took possession. He said the house belonged to him and nobody had a right to it but himself. Some time ago the unfortunate engineer was driving an engine near Peterboro, when it struck and killed a woman. The accident is said to have unhinged the poor fellow's mind. The fireman took charge and brought the train here, when another engineer was secured.

MEDLEY WINS.—In the suit at Tuesday's division court brought by R. W. Medley, real estate agent, against John Beach, a Mono farmer, to recover $100, as his commission for selling a farm for Beach, Beach disputed Medley's account, claiming that it was not through the real estate agent's efforts the farm was sold. This suit was tried at the September division court, but a blind jury awarded Mr. Medley $10, without costs. The plaintiff appealed and got the case tried over again on Tuesday and the jury awarded him $81 and costs. The suit will probably cost Beach a trifle over $200. Mr. Walsh, for the plaintiff, knocked the legal talent for the defence out in one round.

HARD ON DEADBEATS.—The proprietor of a so called agricultural paper in Peterboro beats the record for cool, calious, persistent cheek. For the last two years or more he had been sending, about this time of the year, a 53 line, nonpareil notice for the benefit of his sheet, with the request that we insert it gratis. As regularly as the notices have come just so regularly have they been laid contemptuously a way in our well filled waste paper basket. Treating this gentleman with silent contempt has not prevented him asking us, from time to time, to give him $4.64 worth of advertising free, but we hope this notice will.—Mt. Forest Representative.

THE SUN received the same jug-handled generous offer, but we treated it precisely the same as we treat all such fakes. That did not have the desired effect, however, for on Monday we got a letter offering us the whole of one hundred and fifty cents for eight insertions of the 65 line nonpareil ad. We charge everybody, including merchants who advertise extensively, ten cents a line, and we don't intend to become an outsider a business for the fun of the thing. We are not running this journal for our health just now; and "gratis" newspaper men should be the last class of people to ask a fellow-publisher to work for nothing and board himself.

Undertaker King leaves town to-night for Owen Sound where he will reside in future.

Mr. Jas. E. Booth, proprietor of the Revere house, Toronto, was in town this week.

Miss Mattie Cavanagh, of Rhinebeck, N. Y., formerly of Orangeville, is visiting her sister, Mrs. T. Buchanan, at Everett.

A very large assortment of Tea and Dinner Sets, just the thing for a useful Christmas or Wedding present, and prices away down at MACADAM'S.

BROWSELL.

Mr. and Miss Crotz, of Base Hill, were the guests of Mr. Wm. Sandham last week.

John Wheatbread is erecting a portable sawmill on Lieut-Governor Jones' farm. John is ready for a shaver's midnight.

Rev. F. Burt, pastor of Harvid Angelrotary, is confidently expected to preach three week's consecutively under more easier.

Miss Nellie Hoop, of Wood County, is visiting at the residence of Mr. W. H. Bell. Look out, John; send your old friends an invitation when the event takes place.

The farmers around Cardwell are just in the midst of their threshing. The way we do things up here is to thresh in the daytime and dance at night. Lots of fun for the boys and girls.

Last Thursday night B. Cruikshanks gave a dance at the residence of Jimmy Armstrong, centre road. It is almost needless to say that anybody being within a radius of two miles of the happy scene was not invited, consequently your correspondent had to rely on persons from a distance for information. During the evening fruits, wines, and Ed Pedros were passed freely around, and the West throng did not delay long in tickle their palates. Messrs Jas. Buck, John Cruikshank, Jas. and W. McMaster handled the fiddle bows, and Prof. (?) Campbell of Brampton was master-of-ceremonies.

Echoes.

I would like to have been at Jimmy's dance, but then—Mike Leighton.

Me, too, Mike, but scarcity of invitations did the business.—Joe Jackson.

Up the centre and back, but I'm the boy that didn't put them through because I wasn't there—Jack Bracken.

Jimmy and I are most intimate friends and I can't tell how he missed me—Hughy Hughson.

I'm the only man around Cardwell that got a bid, but, for good reasons, I couldn't attend.—Jack B. Armstrong.

Old friends don't appear to recognize each other when parties are on the tapis.—Jack McMaster.

GRAND VALLEY.

(From the Star.)

We are pleased to note that the Presbyterian and Methodist churches have agreed to hold union revival services, which will probably be commenced this evening.

Hitherto we have had two drug stores in this village selling spirituous liquors for medicinal purposes. We are glad to note that Dr. Gaviller has handed his share of that business over to Dr. Hopkins, so that in future we shall only have one drug store handling spirituous liquors.

The saw mill, which was closed down last week, commenced sawing again on Monday, but the proprietor, Mr. Jas. Philip, expects to terminate operations this week for the winter, all the immense stock of logs floated down the river last spring having been converted into lumber and other material. During the season the mill has turned out no less than 55,000 railroad ties besides a large amount of lumber, and latterly while working day and night has furnished work for about 20 men. With a few more industries affording employment to such a number Grand Valley would very soon stand foremost among the towns of Dufferin.

SHELBURNE.

Mr. John Mowatt is confined to his room this week. He cut his knee badly with a nail sticking out of a box.

Commencing Dec. 1st, the merchants of Shelburne will keep their stores open until eight o'clock every evening in the week—for a longer time Wednesday and Saturday evenings, if necessary.

The Shelburne branch of the W. C. T. U. organized a Band of Hope last Saturday afternoon, in the Methodist church. We have not been informed who the officers are. A temperance sentiment and work among the youthful minds is essential and we wish the Band of Hope may flourish.

Not since the so called "Dr." Cadieux introduced the celebrated fly on the wheel spectacle story into a temperance address in a Methodist church in York county during the old Dunkin Act campaign, have we heard anything in the way of a "temperance" lecture in comparison with "Rev." W. F. Waddell's harangue of last Monday evening for coarseness and ridicule. In justice to the town ministers, however, be it said that they had not anticipated anything quite so coarse. A gentle hint given Waddell during last week prevented him from going too far in the Presbyterian church Sunday evening, but in the lecture room of the Methodist church on Monday evening he threw off all restraint. There was no argument in his address, and so far as the advancement of the cause of temperance is concerned it would have been much better if Waddell had never attempted to hold any meetings in this part of the county. As all our readers well know, the Economist has stood by the temperance cause when it meant anything but profit and advantage to the proprietor to do so, but we cannot and will not lend encouragement to, and pronounce as good, the attempts of every travelling adventurer who tells funny stories and talks temperance in order that he may make a few dollars out of the community. We understand that an exposure of the fellow is to be made through the columns of our contemporary, the Free Press, with the particulars of which we are not familiar. Mr. Waddell has no monopoly of the powers of ridicule, and our earnest hope is that the temperance people whose sympathies he has enlisted will not have to endure the ridicule already threatened by the opponents of the temperance cause. At the conclusion of Waddell's address Monday evening a temperance lodge was formed presumably a branch of the Independent Order of Good Templars. We have no fault to find with such an organization, and we hope it may go on and prosper.

GILCHRIST, KENT & CO.

Commence a Clearing Sale of their whole stock on Thursday, December 4th. On Wednesday, December 10th, they will sell by Public Auction from two o'clock until six in the afternoon and from seven o'clock until nine in the evening. The stock in the store in Orangeville must be closed out preparatory to the removal of the Bankrupt Stock here in January, this sale will be without reserve. Their store will be kept open every night during December until 9 o'clock. Posters delivered to all parts of the town.

FORESTRY.

To the Editor of The Sun:

Sir,—Perhaps, as your journal has been so active in the forestry question in the past, you will allow these lines admittance in your columns.

Some five or six years ago, a great number of farmers and others, at our request, were good enough to send our honorable Commissioner of Crown Lands a petition, praying that the system of selling pine timber on the Crown lands should be discontinued, instead of the Department of Crown Lands, which system, we contended, was productive of the greatest evil to the country, and especially to the settlers, who had purchased lots, and had to pay the government Bonus Commission, or else see the timber on their lots sold by the government, and immediately taken off by the lumbermen, without any benefit to the settler, who had purchased the land, and had to pay the government Bonus Commission, and then, perhaps, see the timber on his lot sold

Poetry.

"A FRIEND, LADS, A FRIEND."

Of all the good gifts that in royalest measure
Drop down to the earth from the beautiful skies,
A friend, lads, a friend, is the fittest to treasure—
A friend with a soul in his straight-looking eyes;
A near one, a dear one, a sterling and sound one,
Scarce twice is he found in our life's working day;
Thank God with rejoicing if only you've found one,
And love him and keep him for ever, and aye.

Ah, comrades, know (he'll said with decorum)
You'll get for the asking in hamlets, towns,
Who gaily will empty the glasses you pour 'em,
And laugh at your rallies and borrow your crowns,
But these jolly birds are of volatile feather;
They fly with the autumn and come with the spring;
If clouds are presaging a change in the weather
They'll bid you good-bye with a flick of the wing.

A friend, lads, God bless him! warm-hearted, stout handed,
He's loving and loyal and always the same;
But still to your follies he's open and candid—
You prize his approval, you shrink from his blame,
He'll laugh at your side when the Maytime is shining,
But closer he'll draw on the storm-beaten way;
He's like the old coat with the honest, warm lining—
You find out his worth in the wintry day.

THE FOOTSTEP ON THE STAIR.

Oh, the hours I have waited,
Listening for the footstep light,
That would tell me of the coming
Of a maiden beautiful bright.

Soft the footstep gently falling
On the old and winding stairs;
Yet I catch the farthest echo,
Ne'er it takes me unawares.

Every morn I listen for it,
Every eve I hark again,
For I know that it is coming,
And my waitings not in vain.

Whose this soft and gentle footstep
That I hear upon the stair?
Who this ever faithful maiden,
Young and sly, but oh! so fair

Ah, it is my landlord's daughter
Morn, and noon, and evening sent,
By her grim, persistent parent,
Up to ask me for the rent.

SUNBEAMS.

A hard case of insomnia—the poor man's coat when there's no nap to it.

So many people, when they find they are fit for nothing else, try to be good.

It would not be strange if Meyerbeer's music were of the intoxicating kind.

Some anglers assert that the keen sightedness of a trout is due to his "specks."

Willie—"Money talks, you know." Wallace—"That isn't surprising. Money is tight."

Somehow or other the man who snores the loudest always seems to go to sleep the first in a Pullman car.

If all women could cook as well as they can draw more marriages would occur.

Don't trust the man who always smiles; you will find when trouble reaches you that he is still smiling.

When a man is too refined to fight, if necessary, woman have no use for him except at a tea party.

There is something fundamentally wrong about the man who never gets mad.

An unmarried woman is a miss, while many married women are mysteries.

You never really know a man's disposition until you have eaten a delayed breakfast with him.

He—"What is the objection to Maud's marrying him? Isn't she old enough?" She—"Yes, but her mother is too young."

"He complains of swimming in the head." "Ah, yes, answered the doctor "I see, water on the brain."

As soon as a person gets the reputation of possessing undue curiosity every body feels like thwarting it.

There are only two kinds of husbands after all, one kind swears by his wife and the other kind swears at her.

It is difficult for a dissect comedian to give it to you straight.

A serious need these days is a gas meter that's intelligent enough to know when the family is at the seaside and honest enough to say so.

"Why do you always buy seats in the first row at the theatre, major?" "You see I'm a soldier, and a soldier's duty is to go to the front."

It is stated that there are no paupers, no frogs, no toads, no snakes in Alaska. Then what on earth do the rivals in business, politics, and society call each other?

Young mother—Do you think baby looks most like me or his papa? Nurse—Like you, mum. Mr. Jenkins is a mighty handsome man. Advertisement—Wanted—A companion and civil nurse.

Hard Up—"What would you do if you thought a friend was going to borrow money of you?" Tight purse—"I'd ask him for a loan first."

Bowser—"Pillers is an enterprising doctor, isn't he?" Waggle—"Yes, indeed! Why, he has a motto hung up in his office, 'Patients are a virtue.'"

"Mamma, what is the use of keeping the whip you use on me behind the motto, 'God bless our home?'" "Can you suggest a better place?" "Yes, mamma, put it behind the motto, I need thee every hour."

Now Free From Pain.

Mr. Frank Palmer, of Winona, Ont., says: "I have been troubled with lame back for about six months, then thought I would try Hagyard's Yellow Oil, which cured me. Am now free from all pains, and recommend Yellow Oil very highly.

A STARTLING CONTRADICTION.

To the Editor of THE SUN:

DEAR SIR,—There is an old adage that says "a prophet is not without honor save in his own country," and the saying is generally accepted as containing much truth. Indeed, it is explained into the generally accepted belief that true merit, whether it be that of an individual, or the virtues of some proprietary preparation, all alike have hitherto to stand with popular approval at a distance then at home. Nasal Balm, acknowledged as being the greatest remedy for cold in the head and catarrh, even offered the people of Canada, as it is a striking illustration of the fact that popular opinion, for once, at least, is wrong. From the outset its popularity in the home of its manufacture has been unbounded and continually increasing, as is evidence of the voluntary testimonials from two Brockville gentlemen who are known throughout the Dominion.

Dr. Derbyshire, Esq., Mayor of Brockville and for the past two years President of the Ontario Creamery Association, says:—"You: Nasal Balm is truly a wonderful remedy. I may say that I was afflicted with a distressing case of catarrh accompanied by a number of its disagreeable symptoms. I had tried other remedies but without avail, and well-nigh disposed of to cure, when I was induced to give Nasal Balm a trial. Its effects were wonderful, and the results arising from its use surprising. Briefly stated, it stops the droppings into the throat, sweetens the breath, relieves the headaches that follow catarrh, and in fact makes one feel altogether like a new man. No one who is suffering from catarrh in any of its stages should lose a moment in giving this remedy a trial."

James Smart, Esq., Brockville, Sheriff of the United Counties of Leeds and Grenville, says:—"It would be impossible to speak too extravagantly of the wonderful curative properties of Nasal Balm. I suffered for upwards of a month from a severe cold in the head, which, despite the use of other remedies, was becoming worse and developing into catarrh. I procured a bottle of Nasal Balm and was relieved from the first application and thoroughly cured within twenty-four hours. I cheerfully add my testimony to the value of Nasal Balm."

These are but two illustrations out of the hundreds of testimonials the proprietors of Nasal Balm have had from all parts of the Dominion, but they ought to convince the most skeptical. If your dealer does not keep Nasal Balm it will be sent on receipt of price—50 cents small size and $1 large size bottle—by addressing FULFORD & CO., Brockville, Ont.

HOW TO MAKE A GOOD COW.

How to make a good cow. Here is a different process. Begin with your scrub if you will. But feed her well and keep her warm and comfortable. Breed her to some good bull reared by some Christian farmer—that is, one who will do as he would be done by even to his cattle; for that is the essence of Christianity, as taught by the Great Teacher. When the cow is dried off previous to calving, don't stop feeding, but keep her in good, sleek condition. When the calf comes in it will have a belly full of good, rich milk, and will start well. Continue the well-doing by feeding sweet skimmed milk, as soon as it will eat a little crushed oats give a few by hand, and treat the young thing gently and give it confidence and good will. Give it good pasture, especially provided and prepared for young stock. Give it milk always sweet (and it will never need alum to dry up its bowels), unless it is four or five months old, give it a stall in the stable in winter, with the best of hay and its regular ration of oats. Continue until the second year, and breed it to a bull better if possible, than its sire. Perhaps you think this will never pay? Well, count up the cost of it, put the amount in your pocket, and go around and try to buy as good an animal with the sum, and you don't get one, for your neighbor's are not selling such young heifers for the cost of them. You will find it cheaper to rear them, anyhow. And you must have them, or you will be going around declaring that "farming don't pay."

In The Far West.

AWAY West in British Columbia, Hagyard's Yellow Oil is known and valued highly, as at home in Toronto. Miss Eleanor Pope, of Fort Haney, B.C., says: "For sore throat, coughs, croup, &c., &c., Hagyard's Yellow Oil is the best thing I have ever used."

MEN OF EXTRAORDINARY NERVE AND FIRMNESS OF PURPOSE.

Amongst men who have forced their way to fame and fortune, we may name, as an example to all, worthy of imitation the famous and justly celebrated Thomas Holloway, better known throughout the "wide, wide world" for his Pills and Ointment. Of these medicines it is not our purpose to speak—we are not writing puff, but solid plain facts, to show what can be done by great strength of mind; and that what one man has done another may do, provided that he has the ability and determination to use it with all his soul. We read of the Great Napoleon, whose ambition was to conquer the world, but Holloway has done something else, for, instead of shedding oceans of human blood, he has cured his thousands, and spread great joy among the poor sons and daughters of affliction by his wonderful Medicines, and, although he does not pretend to "raise the dead," yet he has given strength to the halt and soundness to the lame, and if he has not "opened the eyes of the blind," he has soothed the pain-worn, and comforted those on the brink of the grave; and in the four quarters of the globe his preparations have found their way—not by the force of the sword, but with the aid of legions, but have silently borne on the bosom of old ocean in our huge merchant ships to every corner of the civilized world where suffering man is to be found.

But to do all this gigantic work, to accomplish so wondrous a deed, required much thought and much energy, for without these combined, this mighty work could not have been accomplished. And thus he did it. There is a wise saying, "Don't spare printers ink!" and Holloway spared neither "printer's ink," nor vast piles of the precious metal, gold. He advertised in all the languages spoken among civilized nations—and whether you go into France, Belgium, Holland, Prussia, Denmark, Russia, Greece, Spain, Portugal, Switzerland—nay, we might say all the kingdoms of the world—and in a thousand tongues, they talk of "Holloway's Pills!" in a thousand languages they utter "Holloway's Ointment!" We are filled with boundless wonder and astonishment that one man, one mind, one head, could plan and devise all this; and we say that, if one man has really done so, there must be some wonderful curative properties about his Pills and Ointment.—Pub. Close's Historical Notices.

A $750 COTTAGE.

or its equivalent in cash will be given to the person detecting the greatest number of errors, (words wrongly spelled or misplaced) in the December issue of "Our Home." In addition will be given two cash prizes of $200 each, four of one $100, eight of $50, ten of $25, twenty five of $10, fifty of $5, and one hundred and fifty of $1, distributed in the order mentioned in rules and regulations, which will be sent with a copy of December issue on receipt of 12 cents in stamps. Special cash prizes given away almost every day during competition which closes February 1st, 1891.

The most distinguishing point in Mr. Stanley's appearance is his hair, which is plentiful and very nearly white. There is a carelessness about him which is quite natural after his many years with the savage tribes of Africa. He likes to lounge and stick his hands in his pockets. The other day, when he took a walk with his charming wife, Mr. Stanley sauntered along very much as if his feet were manœuvered in patterns. He wore no gloves, and one of his hands was partly concealed in a trousers pocket. But when Mr. Stanley is talking about Africa with a group of interested listeners his earnestness and intense feeling become very apparent. During a recent conversation which lasted an hour Mr. Stanley became so absorbed in his subject that his cigar went out five times.

The Bermuda Cable.

THE Bermuda cable now complete, could carry no truer tidings than that Burdock's Blood Bitters excels all other remedies in curing diseases of the stomach, liver, bowels and blood purifier, curing even the worst cases when all else fails.

Curse—A French woman permits relatives to kiss her cheek, friends to kiss her hand and her lover to kiss her lips. Bunks—Then all gallant young Frenchmen must live a hand to mouth existence.

Dealer—I am sure, madam, you could look the city through, and not find a handsomer carriage than this. Mrs. D Arnoo—Oh, its handsome enough, but it looks too comfortable to be stylish.

"Why do you ask one thousand dollars for that house?" "Because I want six hundred dollars."

Mamma—Did you have a nice time at the children's party. Little Ethel—N-o, mamma; it was awful dull. Mamma—Why, what was the matter, dear? Little Ethel!—Bobby Bunce didn't come.

Nasal Balm is an especial boon to the ladies, who feel the disagreeable effects of Catarrh more keenly than the stronger sex. It never fails to effect prompt a cure.

A PRESENT TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.—It is with pleasure that we announce to our many patrons that we have made arrangements with that wide awake, illustrated farm magazine, the American Farmer, published at Fort Wayne, Ind., and read by nearly 200,000 farmers by which that great publication will be mailed direct, FREE, to the address of any of our subscribers who will come in and pay up all arrearages on subscription and one year in advance, and to any new subscribers who will pay one year in advance. This has grand opportunity to obtain a first-class farm journal free. The American Farmer is a large 16 page journal, of national circulation, which ranks among the leading agricultural papers. It treats the question of economy in agriculture and the rights and privileges of that vast body of citizens—farmers—whose industry is the basis of all material and national prosperity. Its highest purpose is the elevation and ennobling of Agriculture through the higher and broader education of men and women engaged in its pursuits. The regular subscription price of the American Farmer is $1.00 per year. IT COSTS YOU NOTHING. From any one number ideas can be obtained that will be worth thrice the subscription price to you or members of your household, YET YOU GET IT FREE. Call and see sample copy.

DR. T. A. SLOCUM'S

Oxygenized Emulsion OF PURE COD LIVER OIL.

OXYGENIZED EMULSION OF PURE Cod Liver Oil FOR CONSUMPTION, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, SCROFULA, AND ALL PULMONARY DISEASES.

DIRECTIONS. SHAKE WELL. Take one tablespoonful half an hour after each meal. If the patient's digestion will not allow tablespoonful use dessert spoonful.

PRICE $1.00.

PREPARED ONLY BY T. A. SLOCUM, 186 Adelaide St. West, TORONTO, - ONTARIO.

Among the merits which distinguish Slocum's Oxygenized Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil above all other preparations are:

1st. The excellence of its method of preparation.
2nd. Its freedom from disagreeable taste and odor!
3rd. Its fitness for immediate absorption!
4th. The thoroughness in which it retains permanently its good qualities.
5th. And the fact that Slocum's Oxygenized Emulsion is the only Cod Liver Oil amalgamation in the market in which the oil is not mixed with the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, or some other equally injurious foreign substance, and consequently rendered worse than worthless!

THE SUN FOR 1891.

Some people agree with THE SUN's opinions about men and things, and some people don't; but everybody likes to get hold of the newspaper which is never dull and never afraid to speak its mind.

Democrats know that for twenty years THE SUN has fought in the front line for Democratic principles, never wavering or weakening in its loyalty to the true interests of the party it serves with fearless intelligence and disinterested vigor. At times opinions have differed as to the best means accomplishing the common purpose; it is not THE SUN's fault if it has seen farther into the millstone.

Eighteen hundred and ninety one will be a great year in American politics, and everybody should read THE SUN.

Poetry.

IN THE EVENING.

The night has come with all her silver train,
The moonlight stamps the sun.
The hour is come that I can rest again
And dream of thee.

The air is still, the western sky is gold,
And far on leaves and lea
The shadows bring the happy thoughts of old
And dreams of thee.

The weariest hour of summer day is ending;
The song of bird and bee
To the still fane their influence is lending,
And sing of thee.

The last sweet sounds on earth and heaven bringeth
No rest to me;
For sung to me the lonely night-bird sadeth,
Weary for thee.

The shadow haunts the balmy summer even,
By land and sea;
Between me and the happy moonlit heaven
Rise thoughts of thee.

I stand beneath the stars, whose quiet shining
But brings to me
The thoughts of olden times, the weary pining
For One, like thee.

The lime tree's breath comes wafted from the river—
The same old tree
Where, in the happy years gone by forever,
I stood with thee.

O God! to see the calm, familiar faces
Of sky and sea;
To see all things unchanged in the old places,
But only thee.

To feel the longing still, the yearning weary
Thy face to see;
To feel earth's brightest scenes grow pale and dreary,
For want of thee.

And know that while the stars shine on in heaven
No sun shall bring to me
Thy presence. Only as it turns the even,
In dreams of thee.

CHAPTER LXVIII.

"I MUST SPARE HER AT ANY SACRIFICE."

Words would but weakly describe the horror that overtook the unhappy Silvia. Waking from that long sleep was more bitter than death; the sudden rush of thought, the whirl of emotion, the shock the fear, the surprise, where all too much for her. That she should find him again, and find him thus! That the man she knew now to be her own husband, was also known as the husband of the woman she revered and honored more than all the world beside.

She could not recover from the shock; it was too terrible for her. She raised her eyes, as one bewildered, from earth to Heaven. What was she to do now? Of all the unlooked for, unexpected, complications fate could have arranged for her, this was surely the last she had expected, the last thing she had looked for. She had resolved, for her boy's sake, to claim justice at his hands. How could she do that now—when justice to herself would mean sorrow, humiliation and disgrace unutterable for the lady she loved and revered? She knew how Lady Clotilde loved him, unworthy as he might be of such love. Was she to claim him, and break the heart that had never beaten with anything but the kindest affection for her? Was she to take the husband of Lady Clotilde away from her?

"I can never do it," she cried, wringing her hands in the greatest distress. "I can never do it."

Then again, word by word, all that Lady Clotilde had ever said on the subject rose before her; she remembered it so vividly—her indignant denunciation of the wrong done, her lofty principle, her clearly-defined, clearly expressed ideas, and Silvia knew, as she thought it over, that if Lady Clotilde had even the faintest gleam of suspicion, she would lay down name, position, love—nay, even life itself, should it be needful—but she would have right done.

"How can I—how can I?" she cried wringing her hands. "It is not long since she told me how dearly she loved him. It would be easier to plunge a dagger into her heart. The punishment of his sin and my folly would all fall upon her and she is purity itself."

The bare thought of bringing even the shadow of pain to that gentle heart was more than she could bear. She, who knew Lady Clotilde so well, could picture to herself the depths of her anguish, the long, dreary, hopeless future deprived of all she held most dear, and Silvia's generous heart recoiled with horror from the thought of such suffering.

"I must spare her, I must shield her," she cried, "at any sacrifice!"

Yet against that she had two motives, Lady Clotilde, if she knew the truth, would not thank her for so sparing her. She would prefer, as she had often told her, knowing the truth to being deceived. There was yet another reason. For herself she might be generous and self-sacrificing as she would, but there was Cyril—Cyril, no longer a nameless child but heir to all the glory of the Dyncourts. To forego justice for herself would also be to forego justice for him; to deprive herself of what was so justly her due, would also be to deprive him of his birthright.

"I cannot do that," she said to herself—"I must do it; for Cyril's sake I must claim Cyril's own, cost what it may."

So, a hundred times each hour, she argued to herself; one reason overtopping another, one argument growing stronger than another, until the tired brain grew weary, and the aching heart ready to break.

What was she to do? She appealed from earth to Heaven; she raised her weeping eyes to the clear, blue skies; she tried to quiet the whirl of her thoughts, and find out what her duty was. She tried to find the highest and the noblest, but the storm of emotion was too great for her—thoughts, feelings, inclination, duty, all warred together; the overtaxed brain gave way, and a violent fever was the result. She was not the first whom duty, inclination, principle, and pity, all warring together, had brought to the verge of the grave. When she discovered what was the matter with herself, and tried in vain to arrange her wandering thoughts, she grew still more frightened. What would happen if delirium should seize her, and she should talk of those things that she would so fain have kept secret? She knew Lady Clotilde's kindly feeling toward her. What if she should come to visit her, and hear only one word of this terrible secret?

Silvia trembled; and in her nervous fear she did exactly what she should have avoided—asked Mrs. Greville not to let Lady Dyncourt see her, so betraying to both a hidden, secret fear they could not understand.

She was some time in recovering; but Mrs. Greville kept faith most honorably with her. She allowed no visitors, however friendly, to enter the room; she engaged a strange nurse, accustomed to delirious patients, who paid no more heed to her raving than if it had been so much Greek; and then, when slowly, but surely, Silvia recovered, she forbore asking her any questions, or teasing her by any remarks, which, was perhaps, the greatest kindness of all.

Days passed by, and Silvia, looking like the shadow of her former self, began to resume her duties and take up the burden of life. She had come to no decision as to what she should do; she was no nearer any definite resolution than she had ever been; it was all chaos to her. She could see no gleam of light in the darkness, no sunshine, no break in the thick cloud. Turn which way she would, all was misery, confusion, unhappiness, and despair.

"If I could but find some stronger, clearer mind than my own to lean upon," she said to herself; "if I could but take my trouble to some wise, learned, good man, who could tell me in Heaven's name, and for Heaven's sake, what was best, how thankful I should be. I must wait—I must do nothing hurriedly."

But the sound of the name Dyncourt had grown almost terrible to her—it was full of torture. One hour she said to herself that she must take patience—she must wait—do nothing on her own responsibility; the next such patience, such waiting, seemed to her little less than deadly sin. There was duty to be done, and she must do it; there was justice to be claimed, she must claim it.

No wonder that the sweet face grew thinner and whiter every day. Mrs. Greville became alarmed at last.

"Silvia," she said, one day, "I must speak plainly to you. Do you not know that unless you change, and that quickly, you must die?"

Silvia raised her beautiful, startled eyes to the handsome face.

"I do not know anything of the kind," she said, gravely.

"Then it is high time that you should be told that you are just recovering from a dangerous illness. You neither eat nor sleep, smile or rest. How do you expect to get strong?"

"I had no thought about it," said Silvia.

"No; that is very evident. Do you want to leave your boy quite alone in the world?"

The lovely, gentle face grew white and wistful.

"My boy! Oh, no—a thousand times no! What could he do without me?"

"Then change your ways, my dear," said Mrs. Greville, brusquely. "I can not help seeing that some terrible sorrow is preying upon you and eating your very life away. I do not ask what it is; I do not seek your confidence; but I advise you, if, for your son's sake, you would wish to live, do something—anything rather than what you are doing now."

Very plain words, but Mrs. Greville was accustomed to very plain speaking, and in this case it was most beneficial.

"For my boy's sake I must live," thought Silvia; "yet for me life can never be anything but a burden."

The day following, as she sat in the library, writing some letters for Mrs. Greville, that frank, imperious lady entered.

"Now, Silvia, you remember that little lecture I gave you yesterday; show that you have profited by it. Lady Clotilde is here, and wishes you to go out for a drive with her."

The girl shrank, white and shuddering, faint with dread, even at the very sound of the name.

"I—I cannot go," she cried faintly.

"Nonsense," was the calm reply. "You must—it will do you good. Surely you cannot refuse Lady Clotilde any favor she asks from you?"

Silvia trembled violently.

"Whatever it is that is wrong," said Mrs. Greville to herself, "it concerns Lady Clotilde, although she may not know it."

How the argument would have ended is quite uncertain, but that Lady Dyncourt appeared that moment to the scene.

"Silvia," she cried, "how glad I am to see you! I had sent the patterns to wait for your answer, so I followed Mrs. Greville. Do you know that it is three weeks since I saw you."

And Lady Clotilde, bending down, raised the white face, while a low moan came from Silvia's lips.

"If I could but die!" she murmured to herself. "How can I bear it?"

How was she to stab that loving heart, to blight that life, to bow that graceful head with such deep, unmerited shame?

"I will not hear one word of excuse," said Lady Clotilde. "The morning is fine, the air fresh. Come, Silvia, you cannot say nay to me."

CHAPTER LXIX.

FACE TO FACE AT LAST.

"Silvia," said Lady Dyncourt, when they were out of sight, "I cannot understand you; you make me very unhappy. Have I done anything that has displeased you?"

The white, silent face raised for one half minute, and then turned silently away.

"How could you displease me, Lady Clotilde? You have always been kindness itself to me."

"Then tell me frankly, why have you changed so utterly to me? You do not know all you were to me, Silvia; you were sweet and refreshing as a wild woodland flower among wild exotics. I used to enjoy your society as I did the fresh breeze blowing over the heather, and now you shun me, you avoid me, even turn your face from me lest I should see it! Why is it, Silvia? What have I done?"

The pale lips quivered, the lines of anguish round them deepened.

"You have done nothing Lady Clotilde," repeated the faint voice. "What could you do?"

"There is no effect without a cause," said Lady Dyncourt; "if I have done nothing, why have you changed so completely to me?"

"I am very unhappy," said Silvia, making a great effort to control herself and speak calmly. "I am the most unhappy creature, I believe, living at this moment in the world; and my unhappiness has changed me, Lady Clotilde. I am changed toward my own self. Pray pray forgive if I have seemed changed to you; I have not meant it. I owe you nothing but affection and reverence—nothing can change that."

"But, Silvia, unhappiness need not make you shun me. I know all your story; you have no secrets from me. Why not trust me, and if anything has happened, tell me?"

She did not understand the almost convulsive shudder that made the delicate figure at her side tremble.

"I am hurt, Silvia," she continued, after a time. "It is so seldom that I love anyone as I love you. I am cruelly disappointed."

And the kind face grew sad, the kind eyes filled with tears, it was hard to bear. Yet, if she suffered now, what would her suffering be should she obtain one glimpse of the truth? Better by far that Lady Clotilde should think her cold, capricious, mean, changeable, unkind—anything rather than that she should know the truth; for Silvia was still undecided as to what course it would be right for her to adopt.

"I have promised you," continued Lady Dyncourt, "my friendship while I live; I have given that to few. I promised you that my husband's interest should be used for your son to advance his career."

She paused abruptly, for Silvia had laid her hand on her arm.

"For heaven's sake, hush!" she said, in a low voice, so full of anguished entreaty that Lady Clotilde was startled. "Hush!" she repeated; "I can not endure another word."

"There is nothing wrong over Cyril, is there?" asked Lady Clotilde quickly.

"No; but I cannot bear another word. I am very unhappy, Lady Dyncourt; be kind to me, and take me home."

One look at the white face, with its expression of deep anguish, influenced Lady Clotilde to promptly grant Silvia's earnest prayer.

"Back to Mrs. Greville's," she said, briefly, to the coachman, more hurt, more puzzled, than she had ever been.

Lady Dyncourt said no more, and they drove home in silence. She had intended to tell Silvia that Lord Dyncourt would be at Mrs. Greville's, but she was too unhappy even to remember that. Only, as they drew near the house, she took Silvia's cold hand for a minute in hers.

"Silvia," she said, gently, "if ever the time comes when you are repenting having thrown away and wounded a good friend, you will only have to seek me. I promise you that you shall find me again, and all this shall be forgotten."

Tears rained down Silvia's white face but she made no reply. What could she say? What pretext had she to offer? She must either tell the whole truth, or let Lady Clotilde think of her as she would.

They re-entered the house in total silence, Lady Dyncourt more hurt than she cared to acknowledge even to herself. She went to the drawing room, expecting to find Mrs. Greville and Lord Dyncourt. Silvia went upstairs, where, throwing off her bonnet and shawl, she wept for some minutes with a violence of emotion that frightened even herself. Nothing had ever been so hard for her as this trying to harden her heart against the gentle, kindly lady, who had never done anything but lavish benefits upon her.

"It was hard," she said to herself, "bitterly hard. Oh! if she knew the truth!"

She waited some moments in her own room, then, thinking the visitors would be gone, she went down stairs to finish Mrs. Greville's letters.

As she went down the grand staircase, she said to herself:

"I must go away from here until I know what is best for me to do. I could not bear another scene like this morning's."

She paused one half minute at the drawing-room door. She heard several voices talking and laughing, and so concluded Mrs. Greville was still engaged.

"I will finish the letters first," she thought. "I can speak to her afterward."

It so happened that while Lord Dyncourt was what he called "paying court" to the brilliant widow, he had suddenly remembered an important letter that he had promised to send, and had completely forgotten. It had reference to a speech that was to be made that evening in the House of Lords, and was of the highest importance. The sudden change in his face and voice told Mrs. Greville that he was not quite at ease. He explained to her what it was.

"Go to the library," she said; "you will find all you require there."

He bade her adieu, knowing that he should not have time to return to the drawing-room again.

"How long shall you be writing that letter, Basil?" asked Lady Clotilde.

"Not more than ten minutes," he replied.

"Then I will come to the library to you," said Lady Dyncourt, "and we will drive home together."

"That will suit my arrangements exactly," he replied; and, all unconscious of the web closing around him, he left the drawing room with a smile on his face, and gay, complimentary words on his lips.

He sat down to the library table, and was soon busily engaged with his letter.

He did not hear the light footsteps that descended the stairs, or the gentle touch at the handle of the door; no shadow fell between him and the sunshine.

He heard and saw nothing, until a low gasping sound, that was neither sigh nor moan, yet was like both, startled him, and he looked up.

Looked up to see standing there, with a white face and eyes full of unutterable anguish, with quivering lips and clasped, rigid hands—the girl he had left long years ago, the girl whose beautiful face he had kissed, with falsehood in his heart, and falsehood on his lips; the girl he had wooed, won, and deserted!

He had seen her last in that pretty cottage home, and had left her, knowing that he was about to break her heart! and—once more the betrayer and the betrayed, the victim and the victimizer, met again!

They will therefore be found eminently serviceable to those who work in damp laundries, copper mines and collieries. When used in accordance with the simple printed directions which accompany them, they act surely but mildly, and do not interfere with the daily work. ## MUNICIPAL MATTERS.

An nomination day draws near in interest in the coming municipal elections is being manifested, but up to the present time everything is tranquil in Orangeville. It is unanimously admitted that Mr. W. L. Walsh will be reelected mayor by acclamation. Mr. Lindsey has publicly announced his intention of contesting the reeveship. It is not improbable that Deputy reeve Endacott or Ald. Bailey will be in the field for the same office. Most of the councillors, we believe, intend to seek reelection. At this period it would be a mere waste of time and space to fill columns with the idle rumors that are going around, but by the next issue of THE SUN aspirants will be getting down to work and then our readers will have plenty of municipal chat.

A POSTPONED INVESTIGATION.

Assessor Medley was ill and the Special Committee Adjourned Until To-morrow night.

The special committee consisting of Mayor Walsh, Reeve Lindsey, Deputy-reeve Endacott, Ald. Green and Youmans appointed at the last meeting of the council to investigate the tax roll bungle met in the council chamber on Monday evening. Assessor Medley sent a letter saying he was sick and could not possibly be present. If the investigation had proceeded the several disinterested spectators would have had more fun than enough. That the rolls are in a very muddled state is putting it mildly. Well, in the first place the council made a mistake; in the second the assessor got off the track; and in the third the clerk blundered, but whether the latter's was intentional or not we do not care to express an opinion. However, the committee meets again to-morrow night, but we are not prepared for earthquakes and we don't expect to witness any.

DID BIRCHALL CONFESS?

His Friend, Mr. Leetham Speaks.

Mr. Arthur Leetham, the old college chum of Birchall, who stuck to him to the last, even accompanying the condemned man to the scaffold, returned to the city—says the Montreal Star—from Woodstock. Mr Leetham is Birchall's trustee, and it was to him that Birchall presented his photograph, with an inscription on the back, asking him to "remember the old, old firm." Mr. Leetham was spoken to by a Star representative and asked his opinion upon the statement made by Rev. Mr. Wade, Birchall's spiritual adviser, that under certain circumstances he would make public statements divulged to him by Birchall. This was taken by many to mean that Birchall had confessed the murder to the reverend gentleman. Mr Leetham said:—"I do not think that Birchall ever made any confession to Mr. Wade. He may, indeed have recounted what he knew of the crime to Mr. Wade a little more accurately or extensively than he did in his autobiography, but that he made a confession that he was the actual perpetrator of the deed I do not for a moment believe. Nor do the prison officials, nor the wife and sister in law of Birchall believe that he made a confession. For my part, I thoroughly believe that Birchall did not do the actual killing himself, and this, I may say, is the view of the good officials and many of the people of Wood stock. If Birchall had made any confession to the Rev Mr Wade, the prison authorities would know of it, as they were always within hearing of what was said between Birchall and Rev. Mr. Wade. On the Friday before the execution I heard the conversation between Rev. Mr Wade and Birchall, and Birchall made no confession at that time. The remarks made by Mr Wade to a reporter, that he might be called upon to make Birchall's statements public, I do not take to mean that he has any confession from Birchall. I think that Mr. Wade meant that in case anyone else was accused of being implicated in the crime his evidence would be of value

"How about the report that the Rev Mr. Wade had refused Birchall's body the last rites of the church?"

"There is nothing at all in that. The burial service was read before the execution and it was thought quite unnecessary to read it again. Indeed, if Mr. Wade had read the services again he would have done so upon his own responsibility, and might possibly have got into difficulty with his bishop for so doing. Even offering a prayer over the dead body would have been a most unusual proceeding. I think the incident arose from a conversation I had with Mr. Wade just after the execution. The reporters thought I was joking because he could not read the services, whereas I was simply making some remarks regarding the future removal of the body."

KILLED AT SARNIA.

SARNIA, Dec 9.—Albert Baldwin, 25 years of age, was killed this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock while working at the tunnel approach on the Canadaside. Baldwin's death was caused by a large lump of dirt falling from the bank, striking on the head and crushing him against a car. His death was almost instantaneous. Deceased had only been working at the tunnel three weeks, and belongs to Iroquois, Ont., where his friends were notified immediately after the accident.

A BARBER'S CLAIM.

In Old Larceny Case Dismissed, the Rest of Here Judgment.

The quarter sessions opened in the court house Tuesday, his Honor Judge McDougall presiding. There were only two cases on the list, one civil and one criminal.

BRIDGE V. WALLEY.

This was an assault under—The plaintiff, who is a barber from the village of Arthur, alleged that the defendant, who also hails from Arthur, did, on the glorious 12th day of July last, kick and otherwise violently injured and ill treat of the plaintiff in consequence of which the plaintiff was damaged to the extent of $200. After a hearing of several hours during which many witnesses were examined the jury retired and soon returned having come to the conclusion that the plaintiff was entitled to $125 damages and costs. Q. L. Walsh for M. Wilkins for plff; E. Myers, Q. C. for J. J. Landy for defd.

QUEEN V. EDWARDS AND LOKERWAY.

The particulars of this case are familiar to the readers of THE SUN. The charge being the larceny of a watch from a resident of Mono Mills named Wm. Henry. Much evidence of a very uninteresting character was adduced, the result of which was that the charge preferred was not proven very clearly and the prisoners were given the benefit of the doubt and discharged. J. P. McMillan crown prosecutor; E. Myers, Q. C., for defts.

BOWLING GREEN.

A very pleasing event was consummated here on Wednesday at the residence of Mr. John L. Morrison, when his daughter Nellie was married to Mr. Jas. Johnston. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. J. Leik, M. A., pastor of the English church. The happy young couple left for Orangeville, where they dined at the Paisley house. Everybody wishes them a long life of happiness.

As usual, the elections are making a little stir, and the aspirants for municipal honors are shaping themselves. Mr. Wansbrough will contest the reeveship against any one who seeks his chair. Ex Reeves Gillespie, Jelly and Braiden are looking on with longing eyes, but are not saying anything. Deputy reeve Johnston deserves promotion, but will not bother himself with a run. Mr George Bennett would fill the position admirably. There is not much use in disturbing the council men as they all have done civil duty this year. Great times are expected at the nominations, but the wind bags will not have much force.

MARSVILLE.

Sleighing has caused things to boom in this vicinity.

What's the matter with Enoch Price? Would not he make a good deputy reeve?

A fashionable matrimonial event will be celebrated near Marsville around Christmas time. Guess who. Full particulars later on, Mr. Sun.

Richard Anthony, proprietor of the gin shop at this place, visited your town last week at the request of Inspector Anderson. Anthony is charged with dealing out "red eye" during prohibited hours. Adam Holliday, a witness, could not be found when Constable Hubbard arrived here with a warrant to arrest him. We believe Anthony will have to repeat the trip this week.

Candidates for municipal honors are beginning to loom up out of the darkness. For the reeveship there are announced Deputy-reeve Simpson, Reeve Hamilton and ex Reeve Hunter. Mr. John Wilson, ex councillor, is announced as a candidate for the deputy reeveship and should be elected without opposition. There is a feeling that the old council should be re elected by acclimation. Mr. Simpson makes a fearless deputy reeve, and deserves promotion. In the mean time it is well for the electors to keep their weather eye open and watch the antics of the aspiring candidates.

We learn that Dr. Boggin has purchased back the beautiful residence called "The Maples" which he exchanged some time since for Toronto suburban property. We think he has done wisely.

Word has been received of the death of Mr John Murdy at Buffalo, N. Y. We heard it stated at the time that the remains were to be brought to Horning's Mills (his former place of residence) for interment to-day, and that the members of Lakelet Lodge, A. O. U. W., were to attend the funeral in a body.

Mrs. Wm. Cunningham of the Prince of Wales Road, Midland, arrived in excellent health and spirits on Wednesday night last, her husband following her some time later. About two o'clock the following morning Mr. Cunningham was suddenly awakened by sharp blows on his breast, and was shocked to find his wife in a violent convulsion, totally unconscious, and her arms flinging around in wild convulsive movements. Dr. Robbins being hastily summoned was soon at her bedside. He at once realized the very grave nature of the case. Hope seemed out of the question, as the convulsions continued and the patient remained totally unconscious and unable to swallow from the very first. The doctor suggested consultation, and Dr. Reid, of Horning's Mills, was called, but their united efforts were powerless to afford relief, and she passed away Thursday evening about six o'clock, never regaining consciousness, and hence never realizing what had happened to her. The doctors gave it as their opinion that the symptoms were due to a blood vessel suddenly bursting on her brain.

The first sod on the Waterloo Junction Railway was turned at St. Jacobs Tuesday.

Frank Sindall always laughed at the idea that advertising was an expense. He said that the newspaper man put his advertisement in, brought him orders to the extent of one thousand dollars, and then took a modest commission for having arranged the transaction.

Mr. Andrew Lennox, the well known and kind-hearted ex proprietor of the Lennox house, is seriously ill at his residence in Caledon. Mr. Lennox did not completely recover from the effects of la grippe which he contracted last winter, and his present sickness is much more serious in consequence.

MONEY TO LOAN.—A large amount of private funds to loan on farm property. Apply to Orange Hall, Orangeville.

VITAL STATISTICS.—There were registered at the town clerk's office for the month of November eight marriages and one death.

VERY PERTINENT.—Why is Orangeville taxation like a gentleman decidedly royal? Because it is very high! And why again is the said taxation "put on" like the same individual who "gets on?" Because it is done with and equal disregard of consequences.

MASONIC.—Mr. J. Ross Robertson, G. M. of the Grand Lodge of Canada, will arrive in Orangeville on Monday evening, the 29th inst. A large number of the craft will greet him and his stay in town will be a marked day in the history of Harris lodge.

TEMPERANCE MEETINGS.—The first of a series of entertainments to be given during the winter by the Church of England Temperance Society here, will be held in the basement of St. Mark's church on Tuesday evening next, 16th inst., at 7.30. Admission free.

NOT EXPRESSED.—A local sheet prints the following: "Mr. Anthony, of Marsville, runs one of the most respectable hotels in Dufferin. This will be endorsed by every traveler who patronizes the inspector."

The fall inspector left Mr. Anthony off his beat, and consequently he could not endorse the hotel referred to. Perhaps a description for a branch of the Queen's ad.

DUFFERIN FARMERS' INSTITUTE.—The annual meeting of the Dufferin farmers' institute will be held in the town hall, Shelburne, on Tuesday, the 16th inst., a large number of literators, especially interesting to the farmers, will be distributed gratuitously. A full attendance is requested.

EXTENSIVE CREDIT SALE.—Mr. Jas. A. Patterson, auctioneer, has received instructions from Mr. Wm. Allen, to sell by public auction, on Wednesday, December, 17th, on lot 11, 5th, E. Amaranth, his farm stock implements, etc. As Mr. Allen is retiring from farming everything will be sold without reserve. See posters for list of articles.

CORRECTION.—It is not true that Councillor Pinkney has accepted the offer to travel with, and do the talking outside the door of, "The Amaranth Mammoth Mastodon," his services being considered by the management indispensably necessary in attracting the town tax bungle. This he is expected, will give general satisfaction.

ANTHONY FINED.—Yesterday afternoon Richard Anthony, ex Marsville hotelkeeper, made his bow before P. M. Pattullo and pleaded guilty to the charge of dispensing fluid during prohibited hours. Several witnesses were on hand to testify against Anthony, but, as he admitted the charge, it was unnecessary to call them. He was fined $20 and costs.

OLD FRIENDS.—During the past few weeks many of our old patrons have called in and renewed their subscriptions to THE SUN. Among those were Messrs Thos White, Caledon; James Howard, Robt. Montgomery, Camilla; Samuel Barber, Alton; and Mr Harris, Charleston, all of whom have paid their subscriptions for the thirty first time. Numerous other early subscribers have followed the good example.

CRUSHED TO DEATH.—At the works of the Credit Forks Quarry Company a few miles below Credit Forks, on Saturday a bank of gravel, at which several men were working, gave way, and buried Jos. Acres and Henry Duff. Duff was easily rescued, and sustained slight injuries. Acres must have been instantly killed, as twenty tons of stone and gravel covered him. It took an hour and a half to reach the body.

A SUCCESSFUL CO.—The Belle Stevenson company gave six pleasing performances in the town hall last week, all of which were fairly well attended. Miss Stevenson is a first class actress and the other members of the company are fully up to the mark. So well pleased were the show-going people with them that the Dufferin Harmonic Club, under whose auspices they played, have engaged them to appear in about six weeks.

SHOULDN'T HANG ON SLEIGHS.—During the past few days several accidents have occurred to small boys and girls from the dangerous practice of hanging on sleighs. Yesterday Nellie Olive Thompson had a narrow escape from being seriously hurt. The little girl and a number of other children were riding up to school on a farmer's sleigh, and when nearing the building they went to get off. In some manner little Olive was thrown against the side of the sleigh and had her head badly cut. She was conveyed to her home on Wellington street and her wounds were dressed. Parents should caution their children against this dangerous practice.

SHOULD BE DEBATED.—According to the report of the high constable to the county council at its last session thievery decreased in proportion as drunkenness increased. In other words while drunks decreased in the last year by 42, larcenies and burglaries increased by 26. We confess our inability to grapple with this thing, and some of our temperance societies should endeavor to explain it. If sobriety superintends burglary then it will be a question if we should not encourage intoxication, or if the people of Simcoe are so built that they must either drink whiskey or steal, it will be our duty to see which of the two is the lesser evil and then reward that vice by chrômos and diplomas. Now, Dan, you have the floor.—Cardwell Sentinel.

If you want to borrow money on mortgage, or to sell a mortgage, the right person to call on is F. Irwin. Office over Endacott Bros. store.

For some time past, a gentleman of the town has been regularly turning over his weekly earnings to his wife to meet household expenses, etc. A few days ago she disappeared, and the last heard of her she was in Port Arthur. The household expense money had been quietly pocketed, and the grocery and other bills have been found unpaid, much to the chagrin of the family wage-earner, who had put so much faith in his dutiful (?) wife. It is said that it is not so much the loss of his wife that he cares about, but the fact of her having left three small children without a mother's care, and the unpaid bills. It is supposed that by this time the lady has met with some one to whom she is more strongly attached than her husband.—Owen Sound Times.

FOR THE GREEN ISLE

PARNELL TAKES TWO DEPARTURES AMIDST MUCH ENTHUSIASM.

His Brilliant Speech Addressed to Irish Members—Resolutions in Favor Proposed in the Parliament that Would Have Disqualified Parnell—The Highland Proclamation of the Land Leaguers.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—Mr. Parnell received the Irish members. A large crowd of Irishmen, residents of this city, assembled at the railway station and cheered him wildly. Mr. Parnell entered a cab and from a window addressed his admirers. He said:

"I am overjoyed to see that you have hastened to such large numbers. The disappointment will both make the Unionists which they anticipated. Over 16 years ago the Irishmen of Ireland gave me the first position in Ireland. Every moment that I have enjoyed from that day to this, I have, I am sure, repaid your kindness, never forgetting that to you action of Irish was due the credit of the first prospect in the new struggle. You will have to stand to your guns, you must by and in these days; you will be with me to the end, and together we will win the supremacy what God determined that should be."

A member of the McCarthy wing of the Irish parliamentary party came on the same train expressing satisfaction in the very cause.

Mr. Parnell has been invited to visit Wolverhampton during his tour in Ireland. He has been informed that MAP parties will be there to welcome him.

The Parnellites will oppose the candidacy of Hennessy. Prior to his nomination by the anti-Parnellites Sir John sent a telegram to Parnell saying: As an Irish Catholic I cannot oppose the wishes of the Irish Catholic bishops.

Review of the Question.

Mr. Gladstone has written a letter regarding the crisis in the Irish Nation ist party in which he says that there appears no question affecting himself, but only an unexplained contradiction between the Parnell of 1886 and the Parnell of all previous dates since the Hawarden interview.

Justin McCarthy, the anti-Parnellite leader, has expressed the hope that the third of November the two sections of the Nationalist party will be cordially bridged.

The Freeman News, which has hitherto supported Parnell, now urges his retirement.

Parnell is said to be already soliciting nominations for those who have deserted him.

Healy, Barry, Wall, Sexton and Dickson have subscribed £100 each, Mr. Quinnan £50, and Messrs. Maguire and Healy £20 for the new fund to be devoted to the interests of the McCarthy party.

The Daily News says: Should McCarthy in the resolution he intends to present to the House of Commons concerning the Government for its prosecution of Dillon and O'Brien, every Liberal would cordially support him. It is important, says The News, to impress upon Parnell the fact that any vote given for Parnell or his adherents is a vote given for Balfour and coercion.

The Dowgatrick Branch of the National League has adopted a resolution repudiating Parnell.

Bishop Woodlock has strongly pronounced against Parnell.

Mr. Parnell has nominated Barry O'Brien, the author, to oppose Sir John Pope Hennessy.

Tickets for Parnell's private meeting are selling freely in Dublin.

The manifesto of the anti-Parnell section of the Nationalist party will appear to-morrow morning. It is reported Justin Healy, M. P., will resign his seat in Parliament, and later himself for reelection.

Archbishop Croke has written a long letter in support of the candidacy of Mr John Pope Hennessy for member of parliament for North Kilkenny.

The Hibernian Bank has decided to abstain from delivering speeches at anti-Parnell meetings during the coming session of parliament.

The Republique Française says that Gladstone ought to have accepted the proposals made by Parnell's supporters, by this means saving the dignity of Parnell and preventing the disruption of the Irish party.

THE CORRESPONDENCE.

Which Passed Between the Envoys in America and Parnell.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Misleading versions of the telegrams which have just passed between Mr. Parnell and Mr. O'Brien regarding negotiations for the reunion of the Irish party having been published Mr. O'Brien handed to the press the whole correspondence, as follows:

O'BRIEN TO PARNELL.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Mr. Parnell, M. P., House of Commons, London. [Confidential.] I shrink from horror-striking above against you in a struggle which opens such an appalling prospect of ruin and disgrace to our cause. Throughout the unhappy business I have absolutely from my lips one word personally offensive to you, and have vied with desperate pain and disgust some of the personal attacks made on you; and now before Ireland is irretrievably committed to a serious conflict I appeal to you as a leader I have for 10 years been proud to follow, and as a friend for whom I still feel a warm affection—can you not save some of my work while safeguarding your own reputation, the country may be saved from the destruction which threatens it? Signed. WILLIAM O'BRIEN.

PARNELL TO O'BRIEN.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—To O'Brien, New York: Had you wired prior to Saturday some suggestion from me might have succeeded. It is now too late for me to rescue the session from false position. Shall, however, be very glad to see and consult you on arrival in Europe. (Signed) PARNELL.

Mr. O'Brien forwarded the following to-day:

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—To Parnell, House Commons, London: Regret to find misleading version of my confidential cablegram published in press. Your reply shows total misunderstanding of my message, which was prompted by regard for your past services and by still existing personal affection, and sent with the knowledge of my colleagues here in the earnest hope that you might yet be induced to acquiesce with the will of the majority of the party, whose election of chairman we have endorsed, find a way by which the country might be saved from a ruinous conflict. The tone of your reply leaves little ground for hope, but having regard to the horrible consequences to the country of a prolonged internecine struggle I am still anxious to have an interview, and shall start Saturday for France on my way to Ireland. Am communicating this to the press. (Signed) WILLIAM O'BRIEN.

Late this afternoon Mr. Dillon sent the following cablegram to Justin McCarthy:

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—To Justin McCarthy, House of Commons, London: O'Brien sails Have Saturday to convey our views and consult you and colleagues. We publish to-day full cablegrams with Parnell. (Signed) DILLON.

The party have decided to send Mr. Gill as a companion to Mr. O'Brien. The remainder of the party will remain here at present, but will be in constant communication with their colleagues.

Parnell to Be Voted.

CORK, Dec. 9.—At a meeting of the Nationalists here to-day preliminary arrangements were made for giving Parnell a hearty reception on his visit to this city. One feature of his welcome will be a grand torchlight procession. The mayor of Cork presided at to-day's meeting.

The committee that has been formed to promote the interests of the anti-Parnell section also held a meeting, at which the high sheriff presided. A host of new adhesions were announced.

A Plucky Octogenarian.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—The O'Gorman Mahon, Member of Parliament for Carlow county, who introduced Mr. Parnell to Mrs. O'Shea, recently expressed a desire to challenge Mr. Parnell to fight a duel, and he would have undoubtedly sought to have brought about a meeting with him had not his doctor prevented him. His physician based his argument against a duel on The O'Gorman Mahon's age, he being 67 years old, and the condition of his health.

HOCKLEY.

Election talk is the order of the day around here.

David Reid of Glen Cross is up for office against all comers. Good luck to hocky in this locality.

A young stranger arrived at Mr. W. H. M. Reid's on Monday. This young man will put he in the municipal race for a seat in the council this year.

It is rumored that there will be no election at all in the hamlet township this year; but we haven't heard from Jimmy Scott yet. We believe Jimmy could knock Dick out in the first round, and maybe he will if he follows the advice of his friends. Tom Deputy reeve Mr. Leonard, is safe if he wants to remain where he is, but some thinks he should be elevated to the reeveship. Poet Reid and the other councillors will be returned—either to the council or to their bosom.

There has been a great contest going on throughout Ontario for who could claim the championship for the meanest man, but we think he lives right here in Mono. A week or two ago the mean man champion turned a poor blind and partly disabled horse out on the wild to die or to bother his neighbors. The poor dumb animal is only four years old, but is starved and otherwise deformed. How a man in this christian country could turn his faithful friend out on the roadside to perish when unable to work is a mystery to most people around here. The law cannot be too severe with such vandals as this.

GRAND VALLEY.

Hotelkeeper Bird's appeal from Magistrate Osbourne's conviction of giving liquor to a drunken man was heard at Osgoode hall, Toronto, last week. The conviction was quashed.

The vote on the local option amendment to the Crooks act takes place in East Luther to-morrow (Friday). Both parties are pretty well organized, but the temperance people are bound to throttle humanity's greatest curse—whiskey.

Rev. E. S. Radcliffe, B. C. S., of Mount Forest, and Canon Sutherland, B. D., M. A., of Hamilton, were in town on Thursday last conducting a mission service at S Alban's church. The Rev. Canon was in Grand Valley at the dedication of the above church and expressed his surprise at the growth of our town and the energy of our citizens. They, with Rev. Mr Leake, M. A., were the guests of Bachelor Dr. Hopkins during the evening after service.

The supporters of the temperance cause are making a gallant fight, while the opponents of the measure are doing their utmost to retain the Crooks act, which, they say, is giving excellent satisfaction. Should the by law carry, and your correspondent has every reason to believe it will, the opponents of the liquor traffic say they will enforce the act and show the county that the people can get along without the presence of vile King Alcohol. The result will be watched with interest all over the province.

Shots on Route From the Church After the Wedding Ceremony.

EXETER, Dec. 8.—To-day at Clarence Forward a wedding procession was on its way from the church where the ceremony had been performed when suddenly two shots were heard and bride and bridegroom fell. Blows. The assassins escaped undetected, but it is supposed he was a spurned suitor of the bride.

THEY CONSULTED THE DEITY,

And at Once Proceeded to Massacre All the Christians.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 9.—Advices from Chung King, China, state the troubles at Ta Chu Hsien are from the massacre of Chinese Christians at Lung Tay Tsin by members of the Lao Hay sect secretly during a celebration in honor of the society's patron deity. After the celebration had ended the deity had intimated to the assembled their gods as to whether it would be safe to massacre the Christians. The reply being in the affirmative the band marched out and on a neighbor of well-to-do Christian families and carried off a lot of booty. A few days later they made a similar attack and massacred over 30 persons, all bodies being found in the streets and several more are known to have been put to prisons and offices in the district. The mission buildings and Holy Cross were burned, and the refugees thrown into darkness. On the following day the brethren were conducted to another district town and massacred all the Christians there. The latter died, but one of them was killed.

PARIS, Dec. 9.—In a lecture on the Koch treatment to-day Dr. Bouchard stated that several patients with had been inoculated with the lymph had grown worse after the first injections and that in the cases of others no appreciable improvement was shown. He had therefore decided to abandon the use employed in his practice but Bouchard also said he considered Prof. Koch had not made sufficient experiments upon animals before applying the lymph to the cure of human ailments, and demanded his intention of delaying further pursuing the experiments.

Which They Have It.

PARIS, Dec. 8.—An analysis of Koch's lymph has been made here. It shows that the remedy is composed of the plasmatic of tuberculin bacilli, which is a potent as violent as the venom of a cobra and consists of gold and glycerine. The glycerine preserves the promotion and the gold gives the liquid its brownish color.

Fierce Fighting in the Carolines.

MADRID, Dec. 8.—News has been received that the Spanish expedition against the rebels in the Carolines Islands took the fortified position of Ketani on the island of Ponapee. During the attack one Spanish officer and 25 soldiers were killed and four officers and 47 men wounded. The native had two guns. The Spanish burned all the villages in the Ketani district.

More Gold for America.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The Times says in its financial article to-day another million pounds in gold will soon be sent to New York. It repeats that Paris, Berlin and to a lesser degree Amsterdam ought to recognize their responsibility in this matter. It says the Bank hesitates to send contributions of gold to Australia and points out that such action is called for as much in the interest of Germany where days are to prevent the difficulties in New York becoming overwhelming.

Six Children Drowned.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—At Tipton to-day six children were crossing the ice when it suddenly gave way and all six were drowned.

Duty on Grain.

PARIS, Dec. 8.—The customs committee has adopted the Government proposal to impose a duty of 0 francs 50 centimes (2 c.) per quintal.

Cable Flashes.

The bill for the defence of the Island of Heligoland passed the third reading in the German Reichstag yesterday.

Bullion to the amount of £51,000 was withdrawn from the Bank of England to-day for shipment to Buenos Ayres and £447,000 for shipment to New York.

The priests on Achill Island have appealed to Mr. Balfour to aid 400 families who have been reduced to distress by the failure of the potato crop there. Owing to the lack of proper food they are compelled to eat diseased potatoes to keep from starvation.

The Dead.

Dr. Richard William Church, M.A., D.C.L. dean of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, is dead.

James Cleaver, the well-known Oshawa carriage manufacturer, died suddenly in Montreal yesterday. He had been on a visit to his son in Boston and was on his way home when attacked by heart failure of the lungs, which proved fatal.

William Dar Ing, license inspector for East Peterboro', is dead. The deceased gentleman was a native of Dummer township, having been born in the old homestead, lot 23, concession 1, 57 years ago. He spent from 1849 till 1852 in the United States. Returning to Canada he taught school in his native township up to the year 1879. He has held the position of township clerk for the past 16 years, and has for several years held the position of license inspector.

Washington McLean, formerly of Cincinnati, but subsequently of Washington, died last night shortly before 10 o'clock at his residence in Jackson place, Washington, aged 74. He was connected with The Cincinnati Enquirer as proprietor and manager during its early history prior to the war, and had associated with him in the management of that paper his brother, S. R. W. McLean. Mr. McLean's connection with The Enquirer ceased more than 15 years ago, at which time his son, John R. McLean, assumed active charge.

Telegraphic Taps.

Nightingale Bros. & Knight, silk manufacturers at Paterson, N.J., have failed. Liabilities not out.

Richard Dugan, an ironworker employed on the dome of the State House at Topeka, Kansas, fell to the floor of the building, a distance of 100 feet, and was instantly killed. Nine men have thus met death on the building.

At Armagosa, New Mexico, during a fight in a saloon, Thomas Franklin killed an Indian with a billiard cue. Fifty Apaches surrounded the jail and Franklin only escaped lynching by being hidden in a newspaper pile.

Masked men gagged and bound Night watchman Johnson of the Wigwam Theatre, San Francisco, and stole $1000 in cash, several watches and $1000 worth of other jewelry from the safe.

Death to Mang.

OTTAWA, Dec. 8.—The Supreme Court rendered judgment to-day in the case of Morin, who is under sentence of death for the murder in Montmagny of his partner, Roy. Chief Justice Ritchie, Judge Strong and Judge Fournier held that the trial was illegal, but Judges other were of the court decided otherwise, and as a majority of the court was necessary to secure a new trial the writ of error was quashed. Morin will accordingly be hanged on the 19th inst.

Have Childhood's Days.

BINA,—I can highly recommend Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. It cured my daughter of a cough she had been troubled with since childhood. She is now twelve years old. Mrs. M. FAUBERT, Scotland, Ont.

DEATH IN THE BLAST.

Seven People Killed by a Dynamite Works Laid Waste a Large Section.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 8.—Today, near Marietta, Walker county, a small but powerful dynamite explosion occurred. A space several hundred feet in length and about one hundred yards wide, including the dwellings of Jack Henderson, a well-known farmer, and his wife were buried beneath the ruins of their home. Henderson was instantly killed, but his wife was not badly hurt. Their baby was carried 300 yards, and was injured so badly that she died in two hours. A family of negroes named Jackson were buried in their cabin, and they were killed in one house. Seven laborers were sitting about a fireplace in another house, the house was blown down, but all escaped unhurt.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, Dec. 10.—The petition against the return of James Cleland, the Liberal member elect for North Grey in the Ontario Legislature, has been dropped. The petitioner failed to comply with the order for particulars of the charges made in the petition. Mr. Cleland was opposed by David Creighton.

William John Dawson, 21 years of age, committed suicide last night at his father's residence, No. 4 Clinton-place, by swallowing the contents of a two-ounce bottle of carbolic acid. The act was committed in his bedroom about 7 o'clock. His groans attracted the attention of the family, who found him writhing on the floor in terrible agony. He only lived a short time. Dawson had been out of work for some time, but been drinking and was despondent.

Rev. Arthur Tilman, at St. George's Church on Sunday evening said: "Let us have Sunday street cars, so that we can get out to church and move about making this day pleasant instead of gloomy." Continuing, he spoke strongly in favor of amusements, and hoped that the time would come when they could visit picture galleries Sunday afternoon, thereby brightening the day and glorifying God with the gladness of their hearts.

He did not believe dancing was wrong. The enjoyment of those participating in some dances he had seen showed that it was not wrong. Moreover, the Saviour took it as one of his parables. Novel reading helped to educate the people and should not be condemned. Theatres the preacher treated from the same point of view. Many plays he regarded as more powerful sermons than any from the pulpit. The theatre was a place where a man who worked hard all day could get a little recreation in the evening, and it kept him away from saloons and worse places. The first plays were sacred ones, and if the stage had degenerated it was the fault of the public in demanding inferior plays.

A PORT ARTHUR TRAGEDY.

Sudden Death of a Young Girl—The Stomach Sent to Toronto.

PORT ARTHUR, Dec. 9.—Maggie Gehl, a domestic employed at the residence of Fred Jones, and who was to be married in a few days to Fred Gehl, prospector, her cousin entered the house of Mrs. McKinnon, an acquaintance, and proceeded to loosen her shoes. While she was thus engaged Mrs. McKinnon's attention was attracted to froth issuing from the girl's mouth, and immediately sent for a doctor. After a brief struggle the girl threw up her hands and fell to the floor. A couple of doctors were almost immediately afterwards present, but could do nothing, as life was extinct. The coroner was notified and a jury was empanelled. The jury requested that the stomach be sent to Toronto for analysis which has been done.

THE NAPIERVILLE ELECTION.

The Conservative Candidate for the Commons Elected.

NAPIERVILLE, Que., Dec. 9.—The election for a representative of the House of Commons to-day resulted in the return of Mr. Paradis, the Conservative candidate, by a majority of 81 over the Liberal candidate Monette. At the last election for the Commons, in February, 1887, Capt. Ste. Marie, Liberal, defeated Mr. Paradis, the present Conservative candidate, by 221.

Down in a Coal Mine.

LETHBRIDGE, Dec. 8.—Philip McLennan, a Nova Scotian, working on the night shift in the mines here, was loading coal into his tract, when a piece of the ceiling of the room in which he had just fired a blast caved in, imprisoning him. His comrades came at once to his assistance, but found that a mass of coal 14 feet thick separated them from him. By morning a small hole had been drilled through to the place of his imprisonment, when it was ascertained that he was alive, but that his lamp was burning but feebly. The rescue party is still putting forth every effort to effect a rescue, but as it is in a new part of the mine and the ventilation poor, the men are obliged to work but a few minutes at a time.

Relatives or Personal Friends Exempt.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 9.—John McLean operates a mill in Saginaw. William G. Wilson asked him for work for Richard Tigeland of Toronto. McLean promised him $2 per day, and Tigeland took the job. Action was begun against McLean for violation of the alien labor law [illegible] Brown of the United States court [illegible] found no cause of action against him. Wilson, he said, did the importing and persons who secure employment for relatives or personal friends are exempt from the law.

To Deal With Australia.

BERLIN, Dec. 9.—A German export society for the promotion of commerce with Australia was formed here yesterday. It will open the Australian markets to German products as an offset to the injury caused to German industry by the passage of the McKinley bill in the United States. The project comprises the foundation of a German Australia bank, with its headquarters in Sydney, New South Wales and Berlin. All the German bourses and chambers of commerce have agreed to the bank portion of the scheme, in spite of the depression in the money market.

Found Dead in Her Bedroom.

ST. CATHARINES, Dec. 9.—On returning to breakfast at 7½ this morning, James Doyle found his mother, Mrs. Peter Doyle, lying dead in her bedroom. She was lying on the floor face downwards. She had evidently been seized with an apoplectic fit and fallen out of bed.

Killed at the Tunnel.

BARRIE, Dec. 8.—Albert Baldwin, aged 25, was killed this afternoon by a large lump of dirt falling from the bank of the tunnel approach work, and crushing him against a car. He hails from Iroquois.

Killed by a Tree Limb.

BANCROFT, Dec. 8.—Peter Vallean, a farmer near this village, died yesterday from injuries received by being struck by a limb of a tree.

Dr. Wadi el-Ward, the lecturer from Jerusalem, was advertised to lecture in Arthur a couple of weeks ago, but he hasn't shown up yet, and his advance agent the printer and several others are anxiously awaiting—cash.

Poetry.

MY LOCKS ARE TURNING GRAY.

Yes, I know that time is flying,
Youth long since has passed away;
Soon will come the hour of dying,
For my locks are turning gray.

Time seems short when I remember
Scenes that seem of yesterday;
Then 'twas June—'tis now November,
For my locks are turning gray.

Once the future seemed unending,
Sea-shell tinted, gilded, gay;
Now beneath its years I'm bending,
For my locks are turning gray.

Fair was hope and youthful visions;
Love held undisputed sway;
All have filled their empty missions,
And my locks are turning gray.

Idle dreams no more enthrall me;
They have passed with childhood's play;
Nobler dreams of duty call me,
For my locks are turning gray.

Each year paints, with glossy finger,
Deeper locks of life's decay;
Short the time I still must linger,
For my locks are turning gray.

VOICES OF THE FAIR.

"Come on, now, good people! This way to the Fair!"

"They're fresh and they're juicy, they're ripe and they're rare!"

"Oh, what are those things with the big whirring wheels?"

"Now don't go in there, girls; let's go see the seals."

"Oh, isn't that sweet!" "Here's your pink lemonade!"

"Take back that banner; the darn thing's decayed!"

"Oh, just see her face and the light on his hair;
It's wonderfully painted." "Jane, git me a chair;
Land Sakes, I'm almost dead!" "Here you are now, this way;
A half dime! a nickle! just five cents to-day!"

"She's the only lady with two distinct heads!
Don't miss it!" "Oh, ma, what's that under them sheds?"

"Here's all you can eat now for thirty-five cents!"

"I see the balloon over there by the fence!"

"I tell you there's no pork in these; not a bit!"

"Don't eat them, good people; you'll kill, have a fit!"

"Why yours are all sinders; they're half raw, while mine——"

"Come here for your pictures; I'll make you look fine!"

"Oh, my, ain't it crowded; I wish I was home!"

"Please give me a big cup of clear tea with foam."

"Oh, look! Oh, my gracious, I suppose he should fall!"

"Just see him go up! Oh, my, isn't he small!"

"Just look, now; he's jumped!" "Here's hot coffee and tea!"

"I really suppose he's as scared as can be!"

"That car's just chuck full; I must stand up; oh, dear,
I vow I won't kill myself comin' next year."

"I see the dethroned Emperor of Brazil has become a great student." "Yes; now that he cannot reign he pores."

MacAdam's Boots and Shoes are giving great satisfaction. You want some before Christmas, don't you? Drop in and see what they are doing. For good Boots he has the value.

It's somewhat remarkable how so many crooked men get in so straighten ed circumstances.

If you want to borrow any money you had better go to D. B. Brown, as he is always to the front with the cheap money.

Little Johnnie—"Was it right to ask Sambo if he had a turkey for Thanksgiving?" Brown—"Yes; provided you didn't go further and ask him where he got it."

MacAdam is doing the largest Boot and Shoe business in town. It don't take the ladies long to find out where the best value is found.

First Farmer—"I raised a fine crop of wheat this year and lots of potatoes and cabbages." Second farmer—"Well I did better than that. I raised a $4,000 mortgage."

J. R. Dodds Drug Store is head quarters for all kinds of Spices, Dye Stuffs, &c.

American—"Notice the beautiful velvet sward in which our hills are clothed." Englishman—"Hulo! That's nothing. Many of our hills in the Old Country wear furze."

FOR SALE.—Horse, harness and wagon, nearly new, for sale; eighty dollars can buy them. For information apply at this office.

An Early Riser. Bingo—"Dear me I'm tired. My wife got me up at 6 o'clock this morning." Kingley. "What did she get you up so early for?" Bingo—"She wanted me to catch the 'bus train."

If The Far West.

AWAY West in British Columbia, Hagyard's Yellow Oil is known and valued highly, as at home in Toronto. Miss Eleanor Pope, of Fort Haney, B. C., says: "For sore throat, coughs, croup, bruises, etc., Hagyard's Yellow Oil is the best thing I have ever used."

CURED BY WOMAN'S WILE.

A Business Man Made the Victim of a Conspiracy Game and Robbed of $12,000.

BOSCOBEL PLACE, Pa., Dec. 1.—John Harrington, a prominent citizen and wealthy tax collector, was frightfully beaten last night. Twelve masked men broke into his house, bound his wife and three children who were in the house, and when Harrington had returned at his usual hour from the week's marketing they knocked him down and bound him. When he came to he was in the room early this morning. Dr. J. H. Fry was summoned, but there is little hope of his recovery.

The details of the brutal assault read like almost incredible story of woman's duplicity and man's blindness. Two months ago Harrington's wife died, leaving her husband and two marriageable daughters. Last September the daughters left home. Recently Harrington broke up the home and went away. After a week's absence he returned with a gorgeous brunette of 35, whom he introduced as Mrs. John Harrington. The daughters were hurried at their father's conduct, and were seldom seen thereafter. The bride was fashioned and accomplished, and moved in the best society. Harrington, who was over 60 years of age, was devotedly attached to his youthful wife. Whether or not she was the marriage was celebrated was a profound secret.

TWO "BROTHERS" APPEAR.

Four weeks ago Harrington announced his intention of leaving here to make his home with his wife's people in the West, where they were reputed to be fifty to seventy-five per cent. interested. He resigned several minor offices and opened negotiations to convert all his real estate into cash.

On the night that two strangers calling themselves Mrs. Harrington's brothers arrived. They claimed to be capitalists with large accounts of money in Kansas City, Louisville and San Francisco. They were fashionably attired and well supplied with money. They entertained royally and carried the girls by storm.

Meanwhile Harrington disposed of his property, and it was decided to start yesterday. Shortly after midnight, after preparations had been completed, the party retired. Mr. and Mrs. Harrington occupied the front bedroom, Harry and George Broadfield, the "brothers," occupying the one adjoining.

COVERED BY A REVOLVER.

Mrs. Harrington suggested to her husband the advisability of making her custodian of the money on leaving her "brothers" take charge of it. This Harrington would not do until morning. While they were discussing the matter the folding doors separating the rooms opened and the "brothers" entered, covering him with a revolver, and demanded the money. Then Harrington realized that he was the victim of a well-laid scheme to rob him and, if necessary, take his life. He had told them earlier in the evening he had all the cash on hand, which fortunately was not true. There was a large amount to be paid over in the morning. He had but $2,000 in the room. This he turned over to his accomplished wife, and her "brothers." His story that the balance was in the hands of a friend was not accepted as true and the entire party set upon him and beat him in a terrible manner. They then disappeared. There was no time to be intended to take with them, but he was in the hands of Henry Turnbull, who was to pay it over in the morning.

Miss Harrington said she had long been suspicious of the "brothers" and thought all was not right. There was evidence of a desperate struggle having taken place in the room. A sandbag was found in the room. It is said that when Harrington left home he went to Chicago and either advertised for a wife or met her through an advertisement.

A STARTLING CONTRADICTION.

To the Editor of The Sun:

DEAR SIR,—There is an old adage that says "a prophet is not without honor save in his own country," and the saying is generally accepted as containing much truth. Indeed it is established that the generally accepted belief that from a prophet, whether it be that of an individual or that of some missionary proposition in which he may be wholly interested, the greatest opposition is encountered from those nearest and most familiar with him. Nasal Balm, acknowledged on behalf the greatest remedy for cold in the head and catarrh, ever offered the people of Canada, affords a striking instance of the fact that people in opinion, for one, at least, is exempt from the current its popularity in the home of its manufacturers has been unbounded and constantly increasing. In evidence of this we offer testimonials from two Brockville gentlemen, who are known throughout the Dominion.

D. Derbyshire, Esq., Mayor of Brockville and for the past three Presidents of the Ontario Creamery Association, says—"Your Nasal Balm is truly a wonderful remedy. I may say that I was afflicted with a distressing case of catarrh, accompanied by a number of its disagreeable symptoms. I had tried other remedies, but without avail, and well-nigh despaired of a cure, when I was induced to give Nasal Balm a trial. Its effects were wonderful, and the results arising from its use surprising. Briefly stated, it stops the dropping into the throat, cleanses the breath, relieves the headaches that follow catarrh, and in fact makes one feel altogether like a new man. No one who is suffering from catarrh in any of its stages should lose a moment in giving this remedy a trial."

James Smart, Esq., Brockville, Sheriff of the United Counties of Leeds and Grenville, says:—"It would be impossible to speak too extravagantly of the wonderful curative properties of Nasal Balm. I suffered for upwards of a month from a severe cold in the head, which, despite the use of other remedies, was becoming worse and developing into catarrh. I procured a bottle of Nasal Balm and was relieved from the first application, and shortly cured, within twenty-four hours. Cheerfully add my testimony to the value of Nasal Balm."

These are but two illustrations out of the hundreds of testimonials the proprietors of Nasal Balm have had from all parts of the Dominion, but they ought to convince the most skeptical. If your dealer does not keep Nasal Balm it will be sent on receipt of price—50 cents, small size and $1 large size bottle—by addressing FULFORD & Co., Brockville, Ont.

"It should be borne in mind that red worn below the face deadens the complexion; worn above the face, heightens the complexion. If, therefore, a woman wishes to subdue the color in her cheeks she should wear a red gown or plenty of red ribbons around her throat. On the other hand, if she wishes to give her face a certain touch of color, let her wear a red hat or flowers in her hair," says Mme. Modjeska.

A PRESENT TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.—It is with pleasure that we announce to our many patrons that we have made arrangements with that wide awake, illustrated farm magazine, the American Farmer, published at Fort Wayne, Ind., and reach by nearly 200,000 farmers by which that great publication will be mailed direct, FREE, to the address of any of our subscribers who will come in and pay up all arrearages on subscription and one year in advance, and to any new subscribers who will pay one year in advance. This is a grand opportunity to obtain a first-class farm journal free. The American Farmer is a large 16 page journal, of national circulation, which ranks among the leading agricultural papers. It treats the question of economy in agriculture and the rights and privileges of that vast body of citizens—farmers—whose industry is the basis of all material and national prosperity. Its highest purpose is the elevation and ennobling of Agriculture through the higher and broader education of men and women engaged in its pursuits. The regular subscription price of the American Farmer is $1.00 per year. IT COSTS YOU NOTHING. From any one number ideas can be obtained that will be worth thrice the subscription price to you or members of your household, YET YOU GET IT FREE. Call and see sample copy.

There are more men in the world who have madness in their methods than there are who have "methods in their madness."

Little Tommy was told by his mamma if he wanted a little baby brother, to pray for it. He did so, and his prayer was answered with the usual promptness and fullness. There were twins. He is such a firm believer in prayers now that he thinks of asking for a bicycle.

All Men

Oxygenized Emulsion

—OF—

PURE COD LIVER OIL.

Among the merits which distinguish Slocum's Oxygenized Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil above all other preparations are:

1st. The excellence of its method of preparation.
2nd. Its freedom from disagreeable taste and odor!
3rd. Its fitness for immediate absorption!
4th. The thoroughness in which it retains permanently its good qualities.
5th. And the fact that Slocum's Oxygenized Emulsion is the only Cod Liver Oil Emulsion in the market in which the oil is not mixed with the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, or some other equally injurious foreign substance, and consequently rendered worse than worthless!

AFORE HE KNOWED WHO SANTY-CLAUS WUZ.

Jes' a little bit o' fellow—I remember still—Usit to almost cry for Christmas, like a young ster will.
Fourth o' July's nothin' to it!—New Year's ain't a smell!
Easter Sunday—Circus day—jes' all dead in the shell!
Lordy, though! at night, you know, to set around and hear
The old folks work the story off about the sledge and deer,
And "Santy" shootin' round the roof, all wrapped in fur and furs—
Long afore
I knowed who
"Santy-Claus" wuz!

Usit to wait, and set up late, a week or two ahead:
Couldn't hardly keep awake, nor wouldn't go to bed:
Kittie stewin' on the fire, and mother sittin'
here
Darnin' socks, and rockin' in the shreeky
rockin' chair;
Pap gap', and wunder where it was the money went,
And quarl with his frosted heels, and spill his liniment:
And me a-dreamin' sleigh-bells when the clock 'ud whir and buzz,
Long afore
I knowed who
"Santy-Claus" wuz!

Rise the fire-place up, and figger how "Old Santy" could Manage to come down the chimbly, like they said he would:
Wisht that I could hide and see him—wun-dered what he'd say
If he ketched a feller lyin' for him that away!
But I bet on him, and liked him, same as if he had Turned to pat me on the back and say,
"Look here, my lad,
Here's my pack—jes' he'p yourself, like all good boys does!"
Long afore
I knowed who
"Santy-Claus" wuz!

Wisht that yarn was true about him, as it
'peared to be—
Truth made out o' lies like that un's good enough for me!—
Wisht I still was so confidin' I could jes' go wild
Over hangin' up my stockin's, like the little child!
Climbin' in my lap in night, and beggin' me to tell
'Bout them reindeers, and "Old Santy" that she loves so well,
I'm half sorry for this little-girl-sweetheart of his—
Long afore
She knows who
"Santy-Claus" is!

CHAPTER LXXII.

"SHE IS THE MOTHER OF YOUR CHILD."

THAT drive through the crowded streets, thronged by bright, busy, happy active faces, was like the phantasm of a dream to Lady Clotilde and the silent, unhappy man at her side. Houses, trees, the smiling heavens, the shining sun, the whispering wind, all confused her. It was a hideous nightmare, from which she was never more to awaken.

It was more like a dream than a reality; not even to herself had she realized quite all that had happened. A dull horror seemed to pervade her. She tried to say to herself that the man by her side was not her husband—that her marriage, whatever it might be in the eyes of man, was, before Heaven, a mockery and a sheet—that neither birth connections, high rank nor anything else, had been powerful enough to save her from the most cruel fate that could be fall a woman.

He spoke to her once, and once only; but something in her face frightened him.

"Clotilde," he cried, "I wish that I were dead!"

The sad, stern eyes, raised for one half-moment to his, said, "Life held agony far more terrible than death." Then Dynewold House was reached, and the carriage stopped. She waved from her, with an air of superb indifference, the outstretched hand that would have aided her, and entered the house alone. It was rather a relief than otherwise to the earl to be a few minutes alone. He did not blame himself—he did not feel sorry that his own sin and folly had brought him to that pass; he merely cursed his fate in no very measured terms.

"Was there ever a man in such a fix?" he thought; "was there ever such a fate? Was there ever such a mischance known as the meeting of these two women? To think that, though the world is so large—that they two, above all others, should meet—should know and like each other? It is enough to make any man wish that there were no women; nothing but sorrow comes of knowing them."

He trembled as he followed her into the house. It was one thing to betray, to work the ruin of a poor, unknown country girl—it was quite another to have made a terrible mistake, and to let the consequences of it fall upon a high-born lady, whose cause the world would be sure to espouse with open arms.

"The worst of it is," he said to himself, "that Clotilde has such a sentimental, high flown, what she calls religious way of looking at things, that, if she really gets this fixed in her mind, nothing will prevent her making a grand exposure, and I shall be the laughing-stock of all London; there could not be a more ridiculous situation for any man."

"My lady wishes to see you in the library, my lord; she is waiting there," said a servant, who had noted with surprise the changed face of his mistress.

"And if there is nothing wrong there," added John to himself, "I will never pretend to understand domestic affairs again."

When Lord Dynecourt entered the library with a shrinking heart, Lady Clotilde stood at the window. He was almost startled by the awful change in her face as she turned to him.

It was blanched with pain, drawn with anguish; deep lines showed where no lines had appeared before; the eyes had in them a shadow that was never to be removed.

He went up to her impulsively. He had loved Silvia with a love that was born entirely of her beauty, her tenderness, her impassioned devotion and affection for himself, he loved Lady Clotilde in a less degree, but it was with a love born of respect and esteem for her virtues—of admiration for her high and noble qualities, and it was mixed with a certain kind of fear and awe of her opinion.

He forgot this awe when he saw her blanched face; he held out his arms to her, only remembering that she was his wife—the woman who bore his name.

"Clotilde," he cried; but she shrunk as though he had stabbed her.

"You forget," she said; "we are strangers."

"Do not say such things, Clotilde. You must not run off with this most foolish notion; you must listen to reason. You cannot in justice condemn me unheard."

"It is because I love justice that I condemn you," she replied.

"I have avowed to you frankly my indiscretion—it was hardly a crime. Silvia was very lovely, and I was very young."

"Hush!" she said. "Can you not imagine what it costs me to hear such words? Spare me all further pain."

"But you must listen; how else am I to make you understand? How many hundreds, I may say thousands, of young men besides myself have done the same thing? and afterward when they reform and marry, their wives would not dream of resenting what happened before marriage."

"Do not tell me of other women," she said; "I have no desire to know. My own conscience tells me enough. I shall listen to its dictates. All false reasoning, all sophistry, all weak excuses, fall into insignificance before eternal truth. You married Silvia, and Silvia alone is your wife."

"I can only think by your persisting in this that you have never loved me, Clotilde."

"You know that is false. I have loved you very dearly with all my heart, and in all my life I have known no other love."

"Then why be so cruel?"

"Justice is not cruelty; right is not cruelty. The consequences of sin must fall somewhere; if they fall on me, I will bear them. Say what you will, Basil, but never say again that I have not loved you. If I had not loved you, why should my heart be broken now?"

"Is your heart broken, Clotilde?"

"Yes, surely as my lips are speaking. The life of my body may linger on as long as Heaven shall please, but the life of my heart is ended forever."

"If you would but listen to me—if you could but forgive me—if you would but believe in the depths of my sorrow! Oh, Clotilde, we might begin life over again and be so happy!"

She sighed deeply.

"You do not understand me," she said. "I despair of making you understand. Can you not perceive, do you not see how impossible it is for us ever to be happy again? Listen to me, Basil. I have never sought to intrude what you call my religious ideas upon you—never; perhaps you may not understand how deeply they are engraven on my very soul, Basil, I could not do what I thought would offend God; I could not if all the happiness in the world were offered to me as the price of my sin."

"You need not," he replied, earnestly.

"Again, you understand me. I tell you—and nothing can alter my belief—I tell you that, before Heaven, Silvia is your wife. You married her, and, for any intention you might have deceived her, she was quite innocent. She has the first and most valid claim upon you. She is the mother of your child; and no prayer that you can pray, no pleading that you can plead, no arguments, nothing can move me. To remain here as your wife, knowing that I am not, and never have been your wife, would be to offend Heaven, to sin horribly—and I shall not do it!"

Looking at her, with her pale, noble face bright with the light that shone on the brow of the martyrs of old, Lord Dynecourt felt more small, more mean, more insignificant than he had ever done before.

CHAPTER LXXIII.

A LAWYER'S OPINION.

Lord Dynecourt knew at once that if Lady Clotilde intrenched herself behind such arguments as these, her resolution was unalterable; and now that for the first time the fear of losing her really took possession of him, he felt all that the loss must entail.

"I see it is useless to plead," he said. "Clotilde, do me one grace—let me send for the lawyer, who knows all my affairs, who knew of this unfortunate escapade, who undertook to settle it for me, and we will abide by what he says."

He felt sure that in Mr. Tresham he should find a friend; that Mr. Tresham would laugh all Lady Clotilde's sentiment and religion to scorn; that his matter-of-facts, dry, legal way of looking at the business would insensibly influence her, that his worldly knowledge would impress her; but Lord Dynecourt was mistaken.

"I see no use in your sending for Mr. Tresham," she said, wearily; "his ideas of right and wrong will not change mine.

Still, if it be your wish, I accede to it. You will, I am sure, excuse me until he comes."

And without another word she quitted the room, leaving him more miserable than he had ever thought it possible for a peer of the realm, possessed of almost unlimited wealth, to be.

He had thought to move her by prayers and supplications; he had pictured to himself a scene where he should be kneeling at her feet, weeping, perhaps, if he found it needful to go to such lengths; then a reconciliation; Silvia amply provided for; the boy, perhaps, adopted; and everything most satisfactory and pleasant. Of course he should have to be very contrite and attentive for some long time afterward. Then all would be well, and he should be well out of a terrible position.

But this dream was not to be realized. Lady Clotilde had taken a higher view of the whole matter than he had expected. She had chosen to make a religious question of it, and, if it came to that, Lord Dynecourt knew so very little of religion that he said to himself, with a shrug of the shoulders, "it was quite impossible to tell how he did stand."

He sent at once to Mr. Tresham, and that gentleman, full of amaze at the imperious summons, hastened to obey. He found Lord Dynecourt in a state of great agitation and excitement, walking with rapid footsteps up and down the library.

"Tresham," cried Lord Dynecourt, "I am in one of the most terrible positions that ever yet fell to the lot of any man."

The lawyer, who knew that, as far as money was concerned, his client was one of the most prosperous of human beings, looked up in amaze.

"What is the matter, my lord?" he asked, quickly.

"That is just what I want you to hear," he replied; "but stay, I promised my lady not to utter one word except in her presence. I must call her. I dare not do otherwise."

"Why—what is the matter?" repeated Mr. Tresham.

"Oh! that horrible Scotch affair has has all come to light, and my lady has taken very high grounds over it; in fact, I cannot bring her to reason, and you must."

Mr. Tresham looked at his hat in alarm.

"I would really so much rather not interfere," he said. "I can do no good; it is quite out of my province. You ought to manage it, my lord. No one else can interfere."

And the lawyer looked so genuinely frightened that Lord Dynecourt, despite the gravity of his position, could not refrain from smiling. All thoughts of smiling died away when the door opened and Lady Clotilde entered. Mr. Tresham looked almost frightened at her white face.

"What has she suffered," he thought "to change her so?"

There was nothing tragical in her look or manner; but her deep anguish, her unutterable woe, seemed to clothe her as with a garment. She went up to Mr. Tresham, and it seemed to him years had passed over her head since he had seen her last.

"Lord Dynecourt has sent for you," she began slowly, "wishing you to give your advice honestly and truly. Before you do so, let me warn you that this is a question not merely concerning property, worldly interests, or anything of that kind, but nearly touching the salvation of immortal souls! think of that before you give your opinion. Now, my lord, tell your story."

It was with a strange, nervous hesitation that the unhappy nobleman told the story. Lady Clotilde listened calmly; the lawyer's face grew darker and graver as he heard.

"Give the details of that marriage as they were given to me," said Lady Clotilde.

Not without much agitation, hesitation and embarrassment did he comply. Mr. Tresham's face grew still graver.

"And this was in the presence of witnesses who are living now?" he asked.

"Yes, they are living, I suppose," was the reply.

"But, my lord, you did not give us these details when you mentioned the affair to us," said Mr. Tresham.

"I did not think of them," he replied trying to assume an indifference he was far from feeling.

"They materially change the aspect of the business, though. They make it so fast, a very awkward one, and I should prefer declining altogether to give any opinion."

"But you cannot decline," said Lady Clotilde. "You are Lord Dynecourt's legal adviser, and bound as such to give him your honest, unbiased opinion."

"Do not be afraid to speak, Tresham," said his lordship, who pitied the embarrassment of his man of business. "Indeed, there is little used for speaking; if you had anything cheerful to say to me, you would have said it before now."

Mr. Tresham's only reply was a kind of groan.

"It is a most unfortunate business altogether, my lord; but I am indeed afraid that, if it came to a trial, the decision would be in favor of your first marriage."

"That is your opinion as a lawyer," said Lady Clotilde, "now tell me what you think as a man of honor."

"My lady, permit me to decline answering you. Long years of faithful service have endeared the name of Dynecourt to me; I must decline to sit in judgment on one who has long been to me a generous employer."

"You simply give your legal opinion, then, when you say the first marriage would hold good in law?"

He bowed assent. Then Lady Clotilde turned to Lord Dynecourt.

"You will find," she said, "that all legal opinion in England will agree. This gentleman, bound to you by every tie of gratitude and interest, is obliged to take part against you. There is nothing for it but to bow to the inevitable. I say before Mr. Tresham, the first witness before whom I have spoken, that I acknowledge my marriage to be null and void."

The lawyer rose in deepest distress.

"My lady," he cried, "pray reconsider your words!—pray think of the consequences! Surely some arrangements can be made that will satisfy you and make matters pleasant. You can not think of leaving Lord Dynecourt. Think of the commotion, the excitement, the wonder of the world, the ruin, the desolation, the sorrow that you bring down upon his head and upon your own! think of the misery into which you plunge your family and friends! It must not be thought of, my lady, not for one moment, believe me."

The noble, earnest face was turned for one half minute to him.

"There is but one consideration that will be of any weight to me, Mr. Tresham—that will not be of this world, but the next. I shall try to do what is right before God—the rest may go."

"But, Lady Dynecourt," he began.

"Nay," she said, interrupting him, "that is not my name."

He sat down again, with a gesture of resignation and despair. The light deepened in her eyes as she continued:

"This is a worldly age, Mr. Tresham—an age when everything most sound is held of little account—an age, above all, when the sanctity of the marriage tie is held as naught—when men openly set at defiance the Divine command of marriage! I, for one, enter my protest against such a state of things. I will make no compromise, no arrangement; I will do simply what is right; should it blight my life, break my heart, estrange me from all I love most dearly, still I will do what is right, and nothing else."

Her voice grew firmer as she proceeded.

"I married an angel," thought Lord Dynecourt, "not a mere mortal woman; and between men and angels there can not be much in common."

While Mr. Tresham, hardy old lawyer as he was, wiped the tears from his eyes.

ORANGEVILLE, DEC. 25, 1890.

MERRY CHRISTMAS.

Christmas comes, the time of glad news! Let us hope so, to our patrons and readers, one and all. A merry Christmas, and happy New Year, we cordially wish them; that it may be to them a season of kindly and thankful enjoyment in the present, as well as a time of kindly remembrance to look back upon what is past.

Christmas has brought us here in the front "the beautiful snow," which enables us to enjoy the delights of sleighing. Some how we cannot help feeling that Christmas is pleasanter with plenty of snow, and that it assists the charming influences of the season which draw men closer together, and promote good will upon earth. We seem to hear

Then in the twilight
Swept o'er the snow,
Borne by the night-breeze,
Sounds sweet and low.
Hark, how the music swells!
Music of merry bells,
Music of Christmas bells
Sounding forth sweetly
Over the snow.

The sleighing, too, has given an impetus to business, as evinced by the busy scenes on our streets the last few days. And since the times have been brisk, and prices good, the people accept with grateful hearts the good that Providence has sent them. Business men in our midst—and here we include the farmers as well as the business and professional men, have little relaxation, and enjoy altogether too few holidays, in this toiling country of ours. With them there is little time left from the worry of worldly affairs for social intercourse. Christmas and New Year's afford the only opportunities for cultivating the social amenities; for balancing the social accounts as it were of the past twelve-month, and seeing one's friends in a lump. Let them take heart of grace and participate in the festivities of the holiday season. Driving away care for the house, enjoying the turkeys, and plum puddings, and mince pies, and doing their share in the good old traditional Christmas games, the Christmas tree and Christmas boxes, and taking part in the frolic and merry makings, they will come refreshed and invigorated in mind and body to commence the work of another and we hope profitable year. Christmas revives the year in joyous hearts, and turns even barren winter into a period of delight and happiness. Let us then—

All give him warmest greeting; none so high,
So great, but welcome Christmas to their door;
And those whom genial word and kindly thought
Warm not at such a time, indeed are poor.

Seasons of generous acts and gracious words!
It well befits that now, as each extends
The hand to each, we should send forth once more
A cordial greeting to our myriad friends.

A merry Christmas to them one and all!
Warm from our hearts the words spontaneous flow—
A merry Christmas and a bright New Year
Wherever these our printed pages go.

BOOMING THE BONUS!

DELEGATES ATTEND FROM ALL ALONG THE LINE.

Confident of Recovering Bonuses Granted to Ontario Railways — United Action Needed—Good Prospects and Happy Municipalities.

In response to Mayor Walsh's request delegates from all parts of the country swarmed into Orangeville last Friday to discuss and devise means to recover the amount of bonuses granted to the T. G. & B. railway. The meeting was called to order in the council chamber at 1 o'clock, when the following gentlemen were present: R. S. White, M. P. for Cardwell; Jas. McMullen, M. P. for North Wellington; Andrew Semple, M. P., for Centre Wellington; J. Masson, M. P. for North Grey; Mayor McLean, Deputy reeve Kilbourn, Owen Sound; Mayor Walsh, Deputy-reeve Endacott and Youmans, Orangeville; Reeve Jelly, Shelburne; Mayor Laidlaw, Durham; Reeve Robertson, Harriston; Reeve Greer, Mt. Forest; Reeve Hawbury, Dundalk; Reeve Skerritt, Arthur; Reeve Donaghy, Albion; Reeve Norton, Holland; Reeve Darroch, Minto; Councillor Larter, Saranak; Reeve Cochrane Derby; Reeve Stubbs, Caledon; Reeve Gaviller, East Luther; Reeve Allen, Mono; Reeve Bailey, Melancthon; Reeve Wansbrough, Amaranth; Reeve Sparrow, Sullivan; Reeve McMillan Beeton; Reeve Clark, Deputy reeve McKay, Culross.

MAYOR WALSH

was voted into the chair. In commencing proceedings his worship said he deemed it advisable to call a meeting of the representatives of municipalities interested in recovering bonuses, or part thereof, granted to build the Toronto, Grey and Bruce Railway, and as Orangeville was centrally located he called the meeting for here. The speaker thought if they all united the desired end could be reached. Messrs. Masson, White, McMullen and Semple followed. They also held high hopes that parliament would recoup the municipalities, as the claims were based on justice, and promised to support the matter in parliament.

Reeve Cochrane moved, seconded by Reeve Bailey, that in the opinion of this meeting the municipalities in the province of Ontario that have aided by local bonuses the construction of railways, since declared to be for the general benefit of Canada, are justly entitled to be recouped by the Dominion Government their several subsidies, such recoupment not to exceed the sum of $3,200 per mile, it having become the policy of the Government to grant such aid to roads when constructed in other provinces.

Messrs. Walsh, Allen, Kilbourn, Donaghy, Jelly, Greer and Robertson were appointed a committee to make the necessary arrangements to place the matter before the government, and to request the co-operation of all municipalities in the province similarly affected.

After several of the delegates addressed the meeting the proceedings the meeting was brought to a close.

The committee appointed Mayor Walsh chairman and Deputy reeve Kilbourn (Owen Sound) secretary.

THE DELEGATES

were entertained to a banquet at the Queen's in the evening by Mayor Walsh, after which they returned home.

THE BIG GLASGOW STRIKE

IS EXTENDING RAPIDLY TO ALL PARTS OF SCOTLAND.

The Signalmen Join the Engineers and Firemen—Traffic Almost Suspended—An Explosion of Gas in a Dundee Theatre Injures a Number of Persons.

GLASGOW, Dec. 22.—In spite of all efforts made to bring about a settlement of the matter in dispute between the railroad officials and the railroad employes the strike continues to extend in many directions. Traffic is now hopelessly behind time everywhere along the lines of all roads affected. The engine drivers report that many of the coal bins are empty, having been deserted by their regular occupants, and that in other places where the signalmen resigned at their posts the signals were so worked as to be misleading and consequently delaying the passage of trains in a most annoying and dangerous manner.

At Holytown the coal miners have ceased working, as there are no cars available.

Should the strike continue much longer local trade of Lanarkshire will be paralyzed.

Traffic in Edinburgh Stopped.

The directors of three railroad companies met here to-day and resolved to stand firm.

The North British station was totally closed to passenger traffic after the London train left at 9 o'clock to-night.

The block is increasing all the way to Carlisle.

All the suburban trains at Edinburgh have stopped.

At Dundee and Arbroath the men came out in a body at midnight, stopping all traffic to Edinburgh and Aberdeen.

At a meeting in Perth late last night the railroad men resolved to strike.

Railroad Men in Hull to Strike.

LONDON, Dec. 24.—It is announced that 1,200 railway workmen in Hull will strike to-morrow. They demand an increase in wages and a reduction of hours of labor.

The cotton masters of Lancashire have conceded an increase of 5 per cent. in the wages of their employes.

Edmund Yates' Gossip.

LONDON, Dec. 24.—It is said that the German Emperor has announced his intention of paying a visit to England next year and will probably be here during the London season. Buckingham Palace will be prepared for him.

We shall probably hear in the course of the next year that the eldest of the four daughters of the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh, Princess Maria, is going to be betrothed to Prince Ferdinand of Roumania, the nephew and presumptive heir of King Charles.

Lord Rosebery, who has been staying at Mentmore since his wife's funeral, will not take any part in political affairs for a long time to come, as he proposes to start early next year on a tour to the West Indies and South America.

I hear that Dean Vaughan has the refusal of the deanery of St. Paul's and it is most unlikely that he will accept it.

It is expected that Parnell will order all his friends following to withdraw from the National Liberal Club. The leader of the Irish race is afraid that they will be corrupted by contact with what Mr. Conway calls the dirty radicals of Ireland.

McCarthy on the Situation.

BOULOGNE, Dec. 22.—Justin McCarthy arrived here to-day. He says the result at Kilkenny surpassed his expectations, as Reilly's votes included 400 to 500 Gladstonians, making the total Parnellite strength only one-quarter of the total poll. McCarthy believed the defeat would disorganize the opposition and induce many waverers to come out against Parnell.

A British Ship Sinks With Her Crew.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—A despatch from Pernambuco says the Brazilian ship Lindoia collided with and sank the British ship Glooskdar, bound from Calcutta to London. The captain and 21 members of the crew of the Talooskdar were drowned.

Fatal Railway Wreck.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—In a collision between two trains near Wimborne Minster to-day a woman was killed and several persons were injured.

The Australian Will Never Visit America.

"McLean will never visit America," said Sid Hanlan confidently last night.

"You see," continued the world's greatest sculler, "the new champion possesses a degree of opposition, also a wife and family. Besides there is no benefit in repeating the title. So John McLean will be the only Australian to leave the Australian shore, and if the championship be brought to this country the lucky American sculler must himself be the traveler.

Hanlan spoke with pardonable pride of the great record of his protege and that Stanbury did not weaken. He was simply forced to a stand-still and subsequently beaten by Kemp to have been 1 length in 3 minutes.

Hanlan also opined that neither Kemp nor Stanbury will visit America the coming season.

Hanlan evidently made another hit with the turf when Gunpowder last season, for yesterday the owner of that company went an anxious trip from Fall River, Mass., with the result that Jed will likely begin to win the diamond sculls at Henley slightly a fortnight hence.

Championship Sculling in England.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—In the sculling race for the 3½ mile championship of England to-day Stewart won in 24 min. 34½ sec. Rose was second and Lowe third. The American amateur champion, Joe Hamilton of Newburgh, N.Y., skated the same course in faster time than Stewart.

The Winners at Gloucester.

GLOUCESTER, Eng., 23.—First race, 8 furlongs—Leander 1, Banker 2, Ralph Bloc (favorite) 3. Time 1.29¾.

Second race, 2¼ furlongs—Umpire Kelly 1, Seabird 2, Paroline (favorite) 3. Time 1.16¾.

Third race, 7 furlongs—Chieftain (favorite) 1, Sir William 2, Fanatic 3. Time 1.29¾.

Fourth race, 4½ furlongs—Topmast 1, Barbeton 2, Silverton (favorite) 3. Time 1.05¾.

Fifth race—Tartar 1, Lilo 2, Owen Golden 3. Time .59¾.

Sixth race, 1 1-16 miles—Quotation 1, Reptoe 2, Pulleader 3. Time 1.52.

GUTTENBURG, Dec. 23.—The fourth race at a mile found My Fellow a hot favorite at the post, 1 to 2 on. My Fellow got off in the lead, but was soon passed by Brussels, and the latter kept in front until 7¼ furlongs, when his lead was reduced to half a length. My Fellow still in second place with Trestle less than half a neck behind. Then came a stopping finish and Taylor lifted my fellow to the front by a clean head. Pericles started in the sixth race but made a poor showing, never even getting as good as third in the 5 furlongs. Ida Girl was entered for this event, but was scratched. Summary:

First race, ¾ mile—Josie M. (favorite) 1, Bell Bird 2, Pastoral 3. Time 1.16¾.

Second race, 5½ furlongs—Frank Coville 1, Little Willie (favorite) 2, Cuzco 3. Time 1.16¾.

Fourth race, 1 mile—My Fellow 1, Brussels 2, Trestle 3. Time 1.43¾.

Fifth race, 6½ furlongs—Tart (favorite) 1, Glamer 2, Winona 3. Time 1.22.

DON'T MISS IT.

A new and attractive publication containing many useful, interesting and instructive features has just been issued by T. The Balmoral skating-rink, under the management of J. T. Smyth, was opened on Monday evening and, judging by the crowd that attended, skating will boom here this winter.

Mrs. G. A. Campbell entertained the public school lady teachers to a supper at her residence on Friday evening, previous to their departure for their different homes, where they will spend the Christmas holidays.

On Tuesday P. O. Caretaker Wilkins had Joe Peters summoned to appear at the police court for feloniously spitting tobacco-tinctured saliva in her Majesty's postoffice. John was absent when the case was called and it stands adjourned for a week.

On Friday afternoon Mr. Ed. Corkill, first assistant-teacher at our high school, who has severed his connection with that institution, was presented by the scholars with a copy of Burn's poems. Mr. C. has accepted a position in the Windsor high school and has gone to that place.

"Why don't you get out a daily?" was the question asked us by a well-known west Broadway business man the other evening. We modestly replied there were enough dailies (?) in town at present. "Oh, well," continued the merchant, "we need plenty of wrapping-paper these times."

MONO'S TURN.—Our friends at the other end of the county would like to make it appear that it is again their turn to have the warden of the county up there. The plum falls to Mono this year, and a "Dickie" birds tells us that Reeve Allen has the call. So he has, because THE SUNBEAMS strike him.

PASSED AWAY.—The death took place on Wednesday last, at her residence on Wellington street, of Mrs. McKinnon, wife of Mr. Arch. McKinnon, J. P. The deceased lady was well liked for her kind qualities. The funeral took place to St. Andrew's church burying-ground, 4th line Caledon, on Friday last.

NOT GUILTY.—The charge against Billy Menary of stealing $1 50 from the Queen's hotel hostler was investigated by P. M. Pattullo at Tuesday's police court. Crown Attorney Myers, Q. C., looked after the crown's interests and W. J. L. McKay defended Menary. The flimsy evidence fell apart and Billy walked out of court wearing a bright smile.

DEATH.—Mrs. Mary Ann Boston, relict of the late John Boston, died here on Tuesday last, after being ailing for many months, at her residence in the town, aged Thursday last, at the age of 78 years. The deceased was for many years a resident of Caledon township. The funeral took place on Saturday to the Farm Lawn cemetery.

GETTING EVEN.—The editor of the Mt. Forest Confederation gets even with the editor of the Orangeville Sun in the following manner: A country debating society decided in the affirmative the question:—"Resolved, that a town man looks greener in the country than a country man does in the town." But the debate occurred just after the Chesley man had addressed the community at a tea meeting and before a rarebit dinner he appeared as green as a Christmas tree.

ORANGEVILLE CURLERS.—The Orangeville curling club was reorganized on Friday night, when the following officials were elected for the ensuing year: Sheriff Bowles, patron; Dr. Smith, president; G. R. Monkman, vice president; W. Wallace, secretary-treasurer; Rev. D. C. Hossack, chaplain; Sheriff Bowles W. Conron, representative members; Dr. Smith, G. R. Monkman, W. M. Green, D. B. Brown, W. Conron, managing committee. Orangeville will compete against Waterloo, Brantford, Guelph, Owen Sound, Elora, Fergus and Shelburne.

FARMERS' INSTITUTES.—A large number of meetings of the different Farmers' Institutes have been arranged for the month of January, 1891. Assistance will be given at these meetings by six practical farmers, eight representative fruit growers, two assistants on the staff of the Ontario Agricultural College, three members of the college board, and six of the college professors. The meeting for this county will be held in Shelburne on Jan. 14 and 15, 1891, commencing at ten o'clock a. m. each day. The farmers should keep the date in mind and attend the meeting.

ANNIVERSARY AT CHARLESTON.—The annual entertainment in connection with Knox church, Charleston, will be held in the church on New Year's day. Addresses will be delivered by Dr. Sproul, M. P., Markdale, and several well known ex. gentlemen. The Misses Wilson and Mr. J. H. Cameron, Toronto, Miss Rayburn and other artists will furnish the musical programme of the season. The choir, under the able conductorship of Mr. Geo. Laughlin, are preparing a number of choruses for the event. A magnificent supper will be served in the basement of the church from 6 o'clock until 8.

ROWDIES TAXED.—Child Shields had Jas. A. Gillespie, Arch. Ewing, Ed. McKibben, Robt. McKibben, Benj. Nelson and John Montgomery, Robt. Stevens, Frank Crowe, Robt. Nelson and Ed. Runnicks summoned to appear at Friday's police court for being drunk and disorderly on fairday. They all appeared and pleaded guilty, excepting A. Ewing and E. McKibben, and P. M. Pattullo taxed them $2 and costs. The charges against the latter two were not sustained and they were discharged.

SKIPPED.—Quite a surprise was created in town last week when it was announced that W. D. Hunter, insurance agent, had left town suddenly on account of making use of money that belonged to insurance companies he was agent for, and other crooked work. It is evidently a well laid scheme, as a day or so before he left he borrowed money from several parties on the sudden plea that it was his return day to the companies, and he only wanted the loans for a few days. He borrowed $150 from Mr Robert Kerr on that plea, and duped several others for smaller amounts in the same way. His brother Chas. Hunter of Derry West is in for over $1000 as a bondsman for him to insurance companies. Other friends are in for different amounts as bondsmen for him. He was doing a good paying business but lived too fast.—Brampton Times.

BLAND'S TURKEYS.—Last week THE SUN chronicled the theft of thirty-seven turkeys which were stolen from Mr. David Bland, a respectable farmer of East Garafraxa. Shortly after the paper appeared John Hunter and Mrs. Fraser, who resides in Erin, were suspected of knowing more than they chose to tell. Constable Hubbard arrested Hunter and brought him before the police magistrate who accepted bail for his appearance. The constable then went to the woman's place and found the turkeys hid in the barn. He arrested her and brought her to Orangeville. She was unable to procure bondsmen and accordingly resided as a guest at "Castle" Sutherland for two or three days. The case was brought up for trial on Tuesday, but the crown wants more time to get the son, who, they imagine, will give startling evidence. The case was accordingly adjourned until Friday.

A DIFFICULTY SETTLED.—I wish to state through the columns of your paper that the differences which have existed between myself and Mr. John A. McMaster previous to this date have been satisfactorily settled. I make this statement in order to put Mr. McMaster right before the public so that intending purchasers of the binders made by him need not withold their orders on that account. Yours respectfully, Alexander Turnbull.

THE GOOSE IS HIGH.—Our esteemed contemporary, the Canadian Gazette, has the nail on the head when it says: The retail trader cannot injure those who make use of advertising calendars. It is after putting a needle beside, so placing light in place an advertisement besides calendar page. All the attractions in the latter, as all the purpose of the page is in the nine-tenths which it occupies, neither take the money to Canada for calendars and give it to the local paper, whereas his advertisement can be neatly and symmetrically displayed, where it can not be changed, its matter refreshed, and wherein the retailer can by periodical variations educate himself into the art of advertising. For is to gifted eye to help an advertisement from becoming an eyesore, and art can be acquired only by practice, while for the development of a man's ideas of advertising there is no better means than that afforded by a local paper. The right use of the opportunities thus weekly offered will soon open a trader's eyes to the true nature of advertising and the potentialities of it.

AMARANTH COUNCIL.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. J. H. Hughes is visiting friends at Brampton.

Mr. J. H. Lamont, of Toronto University, is visiting his parents in town.

Dr. Barr, of Shelburne, Dufferin's M. P. P., was in town on Friday.

Miss Moir, high school teacher, is spending her vacation at Dundalk.

R. A. Parker, B. A., classical master at the high school, is Christmas holidaying at Sterling.

Dr. Samuel Hume, formerly of this town, but now of Brooklyn, N. Y., is visiting his mother, Dr. Jas. Henry, of this town last week.

Editor Robertson, of the Harriston Tribune, represented that corporation at the railway bonus meeting here last week.

Mr. John Laidlaw, sr., of Toronto, paid THE SUN a friendly visit on Tuesday. Mr. L. is an old friend of ours and we are glad to see him as hale and hearty as of yore.

Messrs. T. H. Henry, J. A. Leighton and J. H. Coleman, who have been attending Toronto educational institutions, are spending their Christmas vacation in town.

R. S. White, M. P. for Cardwell, A. Semple, M. P. for Centre Wellington, Jas. McMullen, M. P. for North Wellington, and J. Masson, M. P. for North Grey, attended the railway bonus meeting here on Friday.

Miss Winnifred L. Baylan, daughter of Mr. John Baylan, of Caledon, who has been attending the De La Salle Institute at Toronto, is spending the Christmas vacation with her parents at home.

Do you do your trading at MacAdam's? If not, why not? He keeps the best goods, the prices are right, everything clean and in good order, and he would be delighted to have your custom.

Mother and Babe,

GENTLEMEN,—I have used Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam for a bad cough, and was cured by one bottle. My babe only two months old also had a cold and cough and on giving him some it helped him very much.

MRS. E. J. JORDIER, Florence, Ont.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Abscesses, Erysipelas, Piles.—Unvarying success attends all who treat these diseases according to the simple printed directions wrapped round each pot and box. They are invaluable to the young and timid, whose bashfulness sometimes endangers life. Though apparently local, diseases of this nature are essentially blood diseases, but a little attention, moderate persevrance and trifling expense will enable the most diffident to conduct any case to a happy issue without exposing secret infirmities to any one. The Ointment checks the local inflammation and alleviates the throbbing pains. These directions also clearly point out when and how Holloway's Pills are to be taken, that their purifying and regulating powers may assist by adjusting and strengthening the constitution.

If you want to borrow any money you had better go to D. B. Brown, as he is always to the front with the cheap money.

MacAdam keeps the the largest stock of Ladies' Fine Shoes and the best assorted stock of Children's Shoes. If you want good quality go there.

Easily Caught.

CROUP, colds, sore throat and many painful ailments are easily caught in this changeable climate. The never failing remedy is just as easily obtained in Hagyard's Yellow Oil, which is undoubtedly the best of all the many remedies offered for the cure of colds or pains.

Lot of Christmas Presents, lovely Tea Sets, handsome Dinner Sets, just what you want for presents, at MacAdam's.

Just why so many people suffer pain when a remedy of known and certain effect like Hagyard's Yellow Oil may be had at every drug store, is not very clear. This peerless pain soothing remedy is a prompt and pleasant cure for sore throat, croup, colds, rheumatism, lame back, etc. Price 25 cents.

THE SUN is the oldest and best paper in the county. Try it until the end of next year for $1.

Raisins, Currants, Lemons, Orange and Citron Peels are going out of MacAdam's just by the sleigh load.

Money to loan, at very lowest rate of interest, on Farm or improved Town property. Apply to Francis Irwin, Office over Endacott Brothers' store.

SHELBURNE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

FARMERS' INSTITUTES.—A meeting of the Farmers' Institute was held in the town hall, Shelburne, on Tuesday afternoon. The attendance was very small. Mr. Clarke Anderson, of Amaranth, entertained the audience by reading some extracts from the Globe respecting such institutions. Mr. Island also gave an address. The officers for next year are Mr. John Brown, of Melancthon, president; Mr. George Hamilton, vice president; Mr. George Island, secretary; directors, W. J. Sproule, G. Anderson, Amaranth; S. Canning, H. Christian, Mono; M. Slack, H. Acheson, Melancthon; delegates to Central Institute, president W. J. Sproul. A vote of thanks was tendered to the officials about to retire.

While killing a pig on Monday Mr. James Forsyth, of Grange, had one finger badly bitten by the animal. An amputation may be necessary.

The villagers of Perm have been annoyed during the past year by having their turkeys, geese and chickens stolen. Lately they have discovered who the thieves are, and any repetition of the offence will go hard with the gang.

Mr. Andrew Anderson, of Shelburne, went to Milton two weeks ago on a visit. On Sunday, the 7th inst., he was walking outside, and having only slippers on and the ground being icy, he fell and broke his right arm near the wrist. Mr. Anderson returned to Shelburne on Friday.

Magistrates Dunbar and Jelly heard two liquor cases Tuesday afternoon in the council chamber. They were against John Witter, of the Mansion house—two distinct charges, viz.: one for selling liquor after seven o'clock on Saturday night and one for selling liquor on Sunday. The former was dismissed; the defendant pleaded guilty to the last named charge, and was fined $20 and costs. Inspector Anderson was the complainant.

We understand that Messrs. John Barr, M.P.P., E. Berwick and R. A. Riky, of Shelburne, and W. L. Roberts and T. Lyons, of Hornings Mills, have secured the lease of the Hornings Mills lake for a term of twelve years. It is their intention to admit a limited number of others and form a fishing club. This lake has for years enjoyed a more than local celebrity, and the new owners are to be congratulated on having secured the best trout lake in the county or a wide circle around it.

Mrs. Hartley and family moved from Shelburne to Toronto this week.

We understand a meeting will be held shortly to make arrangements about a prospective county Sabbath school convention to be held here.

Mr. John Hamilton, of Shelburne, lost his pocketbook on Saturday afternoon. It contained $130 in cash and several hundred dollars worth of notes. The party who took it will likely get into trouble unless it is returned at once. To avoid the annoyance of legal proceedings, a reward of $25 will be paid by Mr. Hamilton if it is returned with its contents intact.

To the Ratepayers of the Town of Orangeville.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

In response to the solicitations of a number of the ratepayers of the Town I offer myself as a candidate for the Reeveship of Orangeville for 1891.

For thirteen years I have been a resident among you, and in many ways have been actively identified with the public interests, you will have formed an opinion for yourselves of my public acts. As representative of the East Ward for two years on the Public School Board and as Councillor for a year and a half, you have had an opportunity of judging my fitness to serve your interests.

The maintenance of the mercantile and other interests of the Town and

OF
PURE COD LIVER OIL.

Among the merits which distinguish Slocum's Oxygenized Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil above all other preparations are:

1st. The excellence of its method of preparation.
2nd. Its freedom from disagreeable taste and odor!
3rd. Its fitness for immediate absorption!
4th. The thoroughness in which it retains permanently its good qualities.
5th. And the fact that Slocum's Oxygenized Emulsion is the only Cod Liver Oil amalgamation in the market in which the oil is not mixed with the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, or some other equally injurious foreign substance, and consequently rendered worse than worthless!

All Pulmonary Disorders find Speedy Relief.
If you have any Throat Trouble.....Use it.
If you have Tightness of the Chest.....Use it.
If you have Difficulty of Breathing.....Use it.
If you have a wasting away of Flesh.....Use it.
If you have Weak Lungs.....Use it.
If you have Bronchitis.....Use it.
If you have Asthma.....Use it.
If you have Catarrh.....Use it.
If you have a Cold.....Use it.
If you have a Cough.....Use it.
If you are Feeble and Emaciated.....Use it.
If you have Consumption.....Use it.

THEY WHO USE IT---LIVE!

The approval my OXYGENIZED EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL has met with at the hands of the public is no doubt more or less due to the members of the medical profession, who have shown a preference in recommending its use in their daily practice.

If your druggist has not got SLOCUM'S OXYGENIZED EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL, and will not order it for you, do not take any preparation that contains Lime and Soda. In such case rather obtain of him the Pure Cod Liver Oil, which, though nauseous and repulsive to the taste, does not contain any foreign and injurious substance.

SINGLE BOTTLES, $1.00; SIX BOTTLES, $5.00.

Treatise and Circulars on Consumption mailed on application. Address—

The Story Teller.

Thrown on the World.

CHAPTER LXXIV.

"SHOW WILL IT END?"

"I HAVE thought over the arrangements that seem best to me," said Lady Clotilde. "It is quite useless to think that we can keep it from the world—the world must know. If only one person be [illegible] to be more prudent, I shall not have suffered in vain. It is too late now to take any steps at all; to Lord Dyncourt I shall ask you to [illegible] my mother a home. There we may 'live and love' in this world; there your lawyer may see to mine, and you can make any arrangement you wish over property. I am perfectly indifferent."

"Will nothing induce you, Lady Clotilde, to alter your decision?" said Mr. Tresham, earnestly.

"No," she replied, with a sad, gentle smile; "nothing unless you can prove to me it is an unwise one, and there is no fear, impossible. Good bye, Mr. Tresham, until we meet again."

When she had once more quitted the room Lord Dyncourt turned to the lawyer:

"Now," he said; "was there ever an unfortunate man in such a fix as this? Was there ever anything so unlucky? Where shall I hide myself? How am I to bear the sneers and contempt of the world, when it shall know my story?"

An expression something like contempt came over the lawyer's shrewd face; it lingered there one half minute; then died away.

"My lord," he said gravely; "it seems to me that you are the least to be pitied of the three so fatally brought together. Lady Clotilde has all my share of sympathy and sorrow."

"That will be the case with every one," said Lord Dyncourt. "That is what makes me so annoyed. After all—speak fairly, Tresham—what have I done worse than any young man of my age does? I have been a thousand times better than some."

"Thank goodness," said the old lawyer, "I never was a young man of the world in that sense. Of such follies I am no judge. Far better to rule clients as we are accused of doing, than to break Learts."

"Well, it is an awkward fix. How can I face Lady Veyse? She is like Lady Clotilde in her notions. I shall look like a perfect simpleton; still, a nobleman should never hesitate in facing a difficulty. I must go through it after some fashion. It will make a wretched man of me, I know that."

"I have always heard that sin brought its own punishment," said Mr. Tresham gravely.

My lord shrugged his shoulders.

"I do not know what you call sin," he said. "I suppose, after this, every simpleton who can carry a stone will feel at liberty to fling one at me. Do not be long Tresham, before you follow us down to Lady Veyse's. I shall want some one to support me in the trying scenes that I shall have to go through."

"I will go down the day after you, my lord; and from the depths of my heart I wish you free from all this trouble."

Then, with a few more words on each side, they parted. Lord Dyncourt to lament his fate the lawyer to look up the marriage settlements that had been [illegible] Lady Clotilde's [illegible] Lady Clotilde left the—then to [illegible] to acknowledge this first marriage—there was first one [illegible] is left the one and hole.

"I shall disappoint the man who has spent his life in hoping to succeed me," he thought, with a smile. And then Lord Dyncourt's face and his words were those too heart was quite broken.

The [illegible] Lady Clotilde [illegible] into from Lady Clotilde, [illegible] thoughtfully.

"MY DEAR SILVER:—I am going to my mother, Lady Veyse, at Amphill Park, where every arrangement will be made for your future; and you may rely upon it that in a little time not long before your proper position, and that of your little one, is secured to you."

Silvia's tears fell warm over the sprightly note of Clotilde Veyse.

"It is so cruel to her," she murmured, "and yet she will have it so. I would bear it for her, but she will not let me; she, to herself, is cruelly good. How will it end? I see no way out of it, but death; yet I dare not think who should die."

Some time afterward that thought returned to her as a prophecy. Already the destroying angel had taken his aim, and the shadow of death hung over one of the three whom interest in life were so fatally interwoven.

That night Lady Clotilde stood in her room alone. She had made all arrangements for her journey on the morrow; she had beaten back, with a strong hand and iron will, all the love and sorrow, surged over her soul as angry waves beat over the shore.

"I shall have time for sorrow afterward," she said to herself, "when the dead, gray level of my life sets in, and I begin to realize that it must be passed without Hazel."

Her maid looked up in astonishment, when she received orders to pack for interment.

"To leave London before the season was ended—what could it mean?" But from the chilly, calm face of Lady Clotilde she learned nothing.

"Never mind my jewels," she said gently. "I will select what I want to take with me."

With a glittering, costly contents of the casket, which had taken her, she took from them all the gems she had brought her from home; but the magnificent heirlooms of the Dyncourts, the diamonds and rubies, those spoils of an Eastern land, she left untouched; the costly and superb presents that Lord Dyncourt had made to her were all laid aside.

"I was not his wife," she thought, with a swelling heart; "I had no right to them."

The longing to fling herself on the ground and weep out her bitter anguish and passionate tears was fierce enough to cause her even physical pain, but she restrained it.

"There will be time enough to weep," she thought, "when I have left him, and the wrench is made."

The boxes were packed and arranged, were carried away, the jewel cases relocked. The maid had gone to her room, and Lady Clotilde stood more utterly alone than any words had power to tell—alone, with the wreck and ruin of her life around her.

Then the tempest of grief that she could no longer control swept over her. Did ever Heaven look down on such bitter tears? Did ever such wild, bitter anguish rend any desolate heart?

The happy days of her happy love came back to her—the happy months of her married life, before any cloud ever dimmed the glory of her sky.

It was such a fate—such a bitter, cruel, unmerited fate. Perhaps God took pity on her as she lay there, and decreed for her happiness such as this life could bring never more.

CHAPTER LXXV.

DIVORCED BY HEAVEN.

There was some little surprise expressed in the household at Dyncourt House that my lord and my lady should go away so suddenly, leaving town when the season was most brilliant, and the engagements most numerous; but even that surprise died away when it became known that their destination was Amphill Park. My lord was taking his wife with him, but Lady Clotilde had said distinctly she was not going to take her maid.

She had been very dearly loved, this proud, frostlike, black haired lady, who never addressed an inferior word to the Lady Clotilde ever spoke.

[illegible] to [illegible] the [illegible] gray [illegible] the [illegible] the [illegible] the

PROHIBITION.

The Presbyterian churches in Canada, the general conference of the Methodist Church of Canada, and other bodies have taken action in the matter of urging the House of Commons to frame a law prohibiting the importation and sale of liquors for beverage purposes. Petitions to this end are in circulation, and all moral reformers of churches, sixteen years and upwards, will be at liberty to sign them. It is requested that public meetings be held in each congregation and community, when the question of the prohibition and information given by Rev. D. Scothorn, Thornhill, general secretary of the standing committee on temperance of the Methodist church, and Rev. D Stiles Fraser, Springvale, Upper Stewiacke, Nova Scotia, convener of the permanent committee on temperance of the Presbyterian church, have charge of the work. Over fifty thousand petitions will be sent out to the different congregations. A vigorous campaign, moreover, is contemplated for testing the sense of the Canadian people on this vastly important question, and will result in a clear expression of the public mind on the subject. It is not to be thought for a moment, however, that the liquor traffic will be allowed to go by the wayside without a struggle. Its representatives will be there in force. It is expected that a million names will be received. Interested parties not in receipt of petitions can obtain them on application to either of the above.

SHELBURNE.

(From Press and Economist.)

Mr. J. Ross Robertson, of Toronto, Most Worshipful Grand Master of the Masonic fraternity, visited Lorne Lodge A. F. & A. M. on Monday night.

Messrs. F. Berwick & Co. took in on Tuesday last 4500 pounds of fowl. The Dominion Express Co. was unable to take all the shipments away on Tuesday night.

Thirty four candidates are writing at the Entrance examination held in Shelburne this week. Mr. A. Steele, B. A. of the Orangeville high school, is the presiding examiner.

A meeting of the above Institute will be held in Shelburne on the 16th of Jan'y, 1891. Addresses will be given by Prof. Panton, D. E. Smith, Esq., and A. H. Smith, Esq. For particulars [illegible]

Mr John Small, late of Arthur, moved into Shelburne last week. Mr. Small has purchased Mr. Hess' simple mill on Main street, and intends starting a power factory in Shelburne in the spring. He will carry on the same business in Arthur.

The Masonic Hall in connection with the Methodist church in Shelburne, was held at [illegible] Friday evening last. Tea was served at 6 p. m. After tea a number of choruses, dialogues, etc., were given by the children. Mr. Downey, of Berlin, was chairman.

While working in his father's sawmill in West Garafraxa last week, Charles Robinson had the misfortune to get his leg entangled in a belt. The leg was broken in several places.

A very sad scene took place at the Grand Trunk depot, Brantford, on Wednesday morning, when a young Methodist minister named Cawston, who has been in Hartford for the last eight months, was present at the depot in charge of his father and three other men. He conducted service as usual on Wednesday night, but on Thursday became violently mad, and his paroxysms at the station were terrible to witness. He has been taken to his home in Kinsardine. Over study is supposed to have caused the derangement.

MONO COUNCIL.

Council met on the 15th December pursuant to adjournment. Members all present. The reeve in the chair. Minutes of last meeting read and adopted.

Mr. Bell moved, seconded by Mr. Island, that the sum of $1 00 be refunded to Enoch Delaney for levy on commutation roll. The chair of James Leitmate to be paid for county road by Hugh Ross, on motion of Mr. Island, seconded by Mr. Reid, that order be for the payment. The petition of John Hawkins to be exempt from paying taxes on account of his property being burned was not entertained, as no damage was done to the property within the township of Mono. Mr. Reid moved, seconded by Mr. Island, that the sum of $1.35 be paid to A. & W. Johnston for pick and handle furnished the township. Mr. Bell moved, seconded by Mr. Island, that the account of Irwin & Hewson, amounting to $4, be paid. Mr. Reid moved, seconded by Mr. Bell, that Thomas Harper be paid the sum of $3, balance of equalizing Rosemont Union S. S., and the further sum of $3 for postage and stationery on assessor for 1890. Mr. Island moved, seconded by Mr. Bell, that Hugh Brockton be paid the sum of $10 for destruction of noxious weeds on the road allowance between lots 9 and 10, 1st line west. By-law No. 188, for the purpose of appointing deputy returning officers and also for providing ballot boxes for the year 1890, was introduced and read the usual number of times, and on motion of Mr. Dynes, seconded by Mr. Bell, was ordered to pass, the corporate seal be affixed thereto and signed and sealed by the reeve. Mr. Reid moved, seconded by Mr. Island, that Mr. Bell be paid $1 amount paid for a pick furnished for the roads. Mr. Island moved, seconded by Mr. Dynes, that the sum of $63 be paid to Pearsons & Whitehead for stamps for the use of the township. Mr. Island moved, seconded by Mr. Reid, that the sum of $10 be granted to Samuel Fleming for bridge. Mr. Reid moved, seconded by Mr. Bell, that the notice served upon Andrew Anderson, requiring him to fence his lands, be withdrawn. Mr. Dynes moved, seconded by Mr. Bell, that the notice served upon E. W. B. Beatty, requiring him to remove a certain building on the road allowance between lots 9 and 10, 1st line west, be withdrawn, as the same has been removed by the Mayor of Orangeville to take into consideration the advisability of asking the government to refund part of the bonus granted by the municipalities toward the construction of the Toronto, Grey & Bruce railway.

CAUTION.
Holloway's Pills & Ointment

WHEREAS I AM INFORMED THAT one Joseph Haydock, of New York, is making and selling Pills and Ointment under the name of Holloway's Pills and Ointment, and that the same are being sold by certain persons in the British Provinces of America, to the detriment of the public, and also to my injury and loss.

Now, I declare the said Joseph Haydock has no authority whatever from me to use my name in any way. He is not my agent. He holds no power of attorney of mine, nor have I any connection with him whatever.

Persons publishing the said counterfeit Medicines of Joseph Haydock, or keeping for sale, or selling the same in any part of the British American Provinces, will be prosecuted according to law.

I have no agents in the United States, nor are my medicines sold there.

Every Pot and Box of my Genuine Medicine bears on the label the address 533 Oxford Street, London, and has affixed to each the British Government Stamp with the words Holloway's Pills and Ointment engraved thereon.

The trade mark of my said Medicine are registered in Ottawa and also at Washington.

Signed, THOMAS HOLLOWAY.

deeply.

When she saw how ill, how haggard and changed he looked she had no words for him but those of kindness. He held out one hand imploringly to her.

"My wife," he said; "my true wife. Silvia, can you ever forgive me?"

And in those few words she read a full acknowledgment of his guilt.

"Silvia," he said, when all the vehemences of her first emotion had passed, "will you forget this miserable past, and take your place as my wife? It is a late atonement that I offer you."

She shrunk with trembling hands.

"I am unworthy," she said, "to take her place. She was the noblest of women, I was but a poor, obscure girl."

He smiled faintly, with something of bitterness in his smile.

"Ah, Silvia! it is no enviable position that I can offer you. I am but the wreck of a man; my strength has failed me; my health has left me. It is almost cruel to ask you to give your sweet life to me! you are young and beautiful still. My life—while I—"

And the once proud man buried his face in his hands as he wept aloud. He could not have made any appeal to her feelings that would have touched her more deeply. She knelt down by his side, and kissed the poor, nervelessness hands.

"Do not weep, my love," she said; "you had my youth and my love; you shall have all the rest of my life. But we must never forget her—never."

He shrank as though she had touched an aching nerve.

"When I do forget her," he said, "I shall forget the very angels in Heaven, and even Heaven itself."

Then, after some minutes he bent down and whispered:

"Silvia, I should so much like to see my son."

Her face flushed hotly. The little babe who had been deserted, who had been neglected, whose little life had been considered a burden, was now of so much consequence. He would, some day or other, be the great and mighty Lord Dyneccourt—that little, half forgotten Cyril, who had never been loved or cherished by anyone save herself.

"Will you bring him to me? My the sweet type, the ideal of a happy, alloyed content." It was not a gay life, there was not even much amusement in it, but it was filled with active duties, and to some that is the happiest life of all.

Mrs. Greville did not marry again; and when Silvia returned, to take her place in the great world as Lady Dyneccourt, they became greater friends than ever.

Her elevation gave pleasure to every one, for she had made many friends and no enemies. Lord Dyneccourt was considered a very fortunate man by all who knew him.

He lived ten years after his marriage, and died leaving his wife one of the most beautiful and wealthy women in England.

CHAPTER LXXVII.

HOMES FOR THE HOMELESS.

Open the papers and read whose name comes almost first in all the lists of charities; see who is patroness of every institution that has benevolence for its object; see who has founded these magnificent homes for the young and friendless; she who espouses so warmly the cause of the lonely and sorrowful; she whose vast fortune is more than half spent on others, and those others the poor and needy—Lady Silvia Dyneccourt's.

During her husband's lifetime she concentrated her thoughts and attention on him. She studied the duties of her high position, and filled them so as to excite the esteem and admiration of all who knew her. She was one of the queens of society, yet no home duty was ever neglected. She held one of the most brilliant positions in England, yet the simplicity, the purity, the modest grace that had always distinguished her, clung to her still, and won for her the most admiring and affectionate love.

That noble and exalted lady, whose life the poet tells us is all pure and serene, had the highest opinion of Lady Silvia Dyneccourt; no one was more frequently invited to court, or more highly welcomed there.

The time came for her, as it comes for all others, when the sorrows of her life became to her more a sad memory than a bitter reality; when they faded have been duped and deceived by the selfishness of men.

Beautiful, honored, and beloved, we leave her. Her story might have been different, but Heaven was good to her; and through many perils and tribulations she was led into the m... paths of life—paths where m... fills duties more nobly, more p... than she who was "THROWN ON THE WORLD."

GRAND VALLEY.

Miss Maggie Woodland, of Orangeville, who has taught school here for the past two years, was presented with a farewell address and a photograph album previous to her return home. Miss Woodland made hosts of friends while here, and all her acquaintances are sorry that she will not remain in Grand Valley.

The annual tea meeting held in connection with the Waldemar Methodist church on Christmas night was a grand success. The church was literally packed. The "Boy's Own," of Orangeville, furnished a good programme, the instrumental music being especially worthy of mention. The proceeds amounted to $61 55.

On Saturday last a 13 year-old son of Mr. E Holborn, near Monticello, met his death under rather peculiar circumstances. He had gone out to the barn yard, and had got up on the wheel of a rig to escape the attack of a cross ram, from which he fell backward striking his head upon the hard ground, and was so badly injured that he died in a few hours.

An Enthusiast in Annex.

A Brooklyn mother had letters to call in observance of a "musical reunion" in the Annex. When she reached a certain long street [illegible] ... are required brightly, "and I was so glad to come. I just date on forever." To the astonished person this seemed almost flippant, but she nevertheless continued: "They are so interesting, you know, and one's care tales—a report which somewhat confused the first. Now, I am just in from such a stupid case, a man with liver complaint—no established precedents, nothing to watch progress by, but just before I took him I had the most beautiful run of fever, ten weeks, a young lady, two nurses of us, and we brought her through without a relapse story." This was again referring to the social one mother, and when a little later the nurse's services began, this very enthusiastic and energy, tempered as they were to the sick room by early years and trained skill, became a memento of indeed.

Opera Glass Holders.

Opera glass holders are now considered a necessity for the artists. They are of gold, silver, aluminum, pearl and shell. The folding handles are set on convexities in the straight cross, which also adorn of the photo-et engraving. Opera glass cases of fine silk drawed kid or chamois are lined with bright satin, and some are embroidered with silk over threads. In the lining is a place for the holder, handkerchief, etc. The chamois lains opera glass cases are of plush, with a silk cord handle fastened with a silver ornament or clasp. They are in [illegible] shapes, mostly closed with a spring catch. Intended for the glass, tickets, handkerchief, and sometimes smelling bottle.

Good Deeds Bear.

The good deeds done by that unequalled family liniment, Hagyard's Yellow Oil, during the thirty years it has been held in every increasing esteem by the public, would fill volumes. We cannot here enumerate all its good qualities, but that it can be relied on as a cure for croup, quinsy, sore throat and all pains, goes without saying.

An old man named John Moore, who has been married a second time but is separated from his wife, committed suicide on Wednesday evening at his boarding house, 136 Davenport road, Toronto, by swallowing three or four ounces of carbolic. For several years he had been on a spree, and on returning home on Wednesday night announced that death would be a fitting termination to his period of jolling.

...ing. Yet he was almost to be feared that he did not care for his life at the place. Suffering to be crippled, he was to be unable to walk, to move freely, with the use of one arm gone; and for a gay, handsome, accomplished man of the world such a fate was worse than death.

He had leisure, as he lay there, to repent of his sins, to form better resolutions for the future, to bewail his folly, and to learn the lesson so many learn too late—that honesty and straightforward dealing, high principle and honor, are safer guides for a man than the indulgence in pleasure, and the gratification of every idle whim.

He learned the lesson. He became a wiser, better man; but the price he paid for that learning was a terrible one.

When he recovered himself, and was able to understand something of what was going on, the news of Lady Clotilde's renewal, and of the superb entertainment created in her, he was astonished at the immense anxiety with which he asked what had been put on it; no doubt wondering why his dim eyes filled with tears, and his lips quivered as he heard the name—"Lady Clotilde Dynecourt."

It does not come within the province of these pages to tell how Lady Vere bore her daughter's death; she never quite recovered it, or was the same afterward.

Two months passed before Lord Dynecourt was able to take any part in even the least active of life, and then he was very, very weak—so weak that he was still remaining at the hotel at Amplill, for it had been considered dangerous to remove him. No wonder or curiosity was excited by the arrival of the beautiful lady, whose sweet face was so sad, and who was mourning so deeply.

When she saw how ill, how haggard and changed he looked she had no words for him but those of kindness. He held out one hand imploringly to her.

"My wife," he said; "my true wife. Silvia, can you ever forgive me?"

And in those few words she read a full acknowledgment of his guilt.

"Silvia," he said, when all the vehemence of her first emotion had passed, "will you forget this miserable past, and take your place as my wife? It is a late atonement that I offer you."

She shrunk with trembling hands.

"I am unworthy," she said, "to take her place. She was the noblest of women, I was but a poor, obscure girl."

He smiled faintly, with something of bitterness in his smile.

"Ah, Silvia! it is no enviable position that I can offer you. I am but the wreck of a man; my strength has failed me; my health has left me. It is almost cruel to ask you to give your sweet life to me! you are young and beautiful still. My life—while I—"

And the once proud man buried his face in his hands as he wept aloud. He could not have made any appeal to her feelings that would have touched her more deeply. She knelt down by his side, and kissed the poor, nerveless hands.

"Do not weep, my love," she said; "you had my youth and my love; you shall have all the rest of my life. But we must never forget her—never."

He shrunk as though she had touched an aching nerve.

"When I do forget her," he said, "I shall forget the very angels in Heaven, and even Heaven itself."

Then, after some minutes he bent down and whispered:

"Silvia, I should so much like to see my son."

Her face flushed hotly. The little babe who had been deserted, who had been neglected, whose little life had been considered a burden, was now of so much consequence. He would, some day or other, be the great and mighty Lord Dynecourt—that little, half-forgotten Cyril, who had never been loved or cherished by anyone save herself."

HOMES FOR THE HOMELESS.

Open the papers and read whose name comes almost first in all the lists of charities; see who is patroness of every institution that has benevolence for its object; see who has founded those magnificent homes for the young and friendless; she who espouses so warmly the cause of the lonely and sorrowful; she whose vast fortune is more than half spent on others, and those others the poor and needy—Lady Silvia Dyncourt's.

During her husband's lifetime she concentrated her thoughts and attention on him. She studied the duties of her high position, and filled them so as to excite the esteem and admiration of all who knew her. She was one of the queens of society, yet no home duty was ever neglected. She held one of the most brilliant positions in England, yet the simplicity, the purity, the modest grace that had always distinguished her, clung to her still, and won for her the most admiring and affectionate love.

That noble and exalted lady, whose life the poet tells us is all pure and serene, had the highest opinion of Lady Silvia Dyncourt; no one was more frequently invited to court, or more highly welcomed there.

The time came for her, as it comes for all others, when the sorrows of her life became to her more a sad memory than a bitter reality; when they indeed

GRAND VALLEY.

Miss Maggie Woodland, of Orangeville, who has taught school here for the past two years, was presented with a farewell address and a photograph album previous to her return home. Miss Woodland made hosts of friends while here, and all her acquaintances are sorry that she will not remain in Grand Valley.

The annual tea meeting held in connection with the Waldemar Methodist church on Christmas night was a grand success. The church was literally packed. The "Boy's Own," of Orangeville, furnished a good programme, the instrumental music being especially worthy of mention. The proceeds amounted to $61 55.

On Saturday last a 13 year-old son of Mr. E Holborn, near Montbello, met his death under rather peculiar circumstances. He had gone out to the barn yard, and had got up on the wheel of a rig to escape the attack of a cross ram, from which he fell backward striking his head upon the hard ground, and was so badly injured that he died in a few hours.

somewhat resembled the first. "Now, I am just in from such a stupid case; a man with liver complaint—an established prescription, nothing to watch progress by, just fresh before I took him I had the most beautiful run of fever, ten weeks, a young lady, two nurses of us, and we brought her through without a single slip!" This was again responding to the solicitous mother, and when a little later the nurse's services began, this very enthusiastic and energy, tempered as they were in the sick room by soft steps and trained skill, became a mountain of relief.

Opera Glass Holders.

Opera glass holders are now considered a necessity for the article. They are of gold, silver, aluminum, pearl and shell. The folding handles are set so convenient to the straight cross, modern also adopts of the choicest engraving. Opera glass cases of fine tinsel kid or chamois satin lined with bright satin, and some are embroidered with silver threads. In the living is a place for the holder, handkerchief, etc. The elaborate opera glass cases are of plush, with a silk cord handle finished with a silver ornament or clasp. They are in fashion, each tightly closed with a spring catch. Lorgnettes for the glass, tickets, handkerchief, can hang and smelling bottle.

Good Books Dear.

The good deeds done by that unequalled family liniment, Hagyard's Yellow Oil, during the thirty years it has been held in ever increasing esteem by the public, would fill volumes. We cannot here enumerate all its good qualities, but this it can be relied on as a cure for croup, sprains, colds, sore throat and all pains, given without saying.

An old man named John Moore, who has been married a second time but is separated from his wife, committed suicide on Wednesday evening at his boarding house, 134 Davenport road, Toronto, by swallowing three or four ounces of saltpetre. For several days he had been on a spree, and on returning home on Wednesday night concluded that death would be a fitting punishment to his period of folly.

ELECTION ECHOES.

Joe Hughes is wondering what has [illegible]

Amaranth and Mono representatives [illegible] upon the fight in other townships and laughed.

Dr. Gaviller is a dead duck in East Luther. Last year he was elected reeve, but this year John Park knocked him out in the first round.

Hugh Haley and George Dunning forgot to have their names taken off the South ward ballots, but the former got seven votes and the latter four out of the [illegible].

Hardly any bets were made on the municipal elections this year. West ward ratepayers was early asleep, [illegible] Amaranth, but Saddlebag [illegible] were around when he made the offer.

This year's council is composed of one lawyer, one tanner, one railway mechanic, one painter, one implement agent, one stationer, one saddler and four merchants. In religion five are Methodists, three Presbyterians and three Episcopalians. Politically, this "Conservative paradise," as Ollie Mowat terms our town, sends four Tories and seven Grits to the council (!—!—†).

SHELBURNE.

The Rev. R. H. Shaw, of Lucan, formerly pastor of St. Paul's church, Shelburne, was presented with an address and a gold watch worth $125 by his parishoners on Christmas eve.

Mr. W. C. Clark preached in Knox church, Shelburne, last Sunday. Mr. Clark is one of the most promising young men in the Presbyterian church. Rev. T. J. McClelland has, we regret to learn, been confined to his room through illness.

Of the twenty-one candidates who attended the County Model school at Orangeville seventeen succeeded in obtaining third class certificates for three years. Four candidates were under the legal age, and are to teach on trial as monitors. Thirteen teachers were up for renewals under Regulation 123. One succeeded in obtaining a renewal for three years, eight for two years and four for one year each.

Mr. Hugh Taylor, implement agent, attempted to catch by the head Mr. Wm Jelly's team of colts, which had become somewhat restive while passing the band on the street Christmas day, and evidently his sudden appearance in front of the animals startled them, for one kicked and struck him in the side. It was a hard blow, but Mr. Taylor is around again, and apparently little the worse.

Stephen Cole, a member of the Salvation Army and a printer in the Economist office, was brought before Justices Jelly and Graham on Tuesday on the charge of "unlawfully and maliciously inflicting wounds with a knife on the person of Henry Sanderson." It appears that a small boy named Watson was improperly conducting himself in the barracks while the army was out marching and Cole put the boy out. The boy went home and told his brother Joe what had occurred, and Joe went down to the barracks to have satisfaction out of Cole. They had a row during the meeting, which was quietted down by Miss Pearson, the captain in charge. After the meeting was over Cole started for home, and Watson caught up to him and collared him in the porch. Cole had a knife in his hand at the time, and the wounded party, Sanderson, went between the parties to stop the quarrel and received two wounds, in the neck and head. Only one party saw the wounds inflicted.

A WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.

A Canadian Druggist Makes a Discovery Startling Then of Dr. King's.

The civilized world has recently been astonished over the announcement that Dr. King, an eminent Indiana physician, has discovered a remedy for consumption. Druggists throughout the country have been inundated with inquiries for it in behalf of sufferers of the greatest severity of modern medical science. Of course, Most genuine importance, is a discovery made by a well-known Canadian druggist, which, while it does not pretend to cure consumption after the lungs have been affected, is offered with every confidence as a preventative of that dreadful disease. Clinical testimony bears out the statement that more than two-thirds of the cases of consumption occurring in this country annually, are of catarrhal origin. The trouble begins with a cold in the head, which the sufferer treats as a light matter, and too frequently neglects. This in time invariably develops into catarrh; the mucous membrane becomes thickened; inflamed and hardened, and there is a profuse discharge of watery and poisonous matter from the nostrils, or else the poisonous secretions become hardened. In either case the breath is inhaled over this poisonous matter, and produces baleful results. The inflamation gradually extends to the bronchial tubes, and thence to the lungs, which, already poisoned and weakened by the foul breath inhaled, are ripe for that dread disease—consumption, which ends in death. A remedy that will prevent these disastrous consequences must be regarded as a boon to mankind, and, as already stated, such a remedy has been discovered by a Canadian druggist. There is no case of cold in the head which it will not instantly relieve and permanently cure. Do not, for an instant, neglect a cold in the head, for, by its prompt treatment, you will prevent its developing into catarrh—the second stage on the road to the grave. If, however, catarrh has already developed, the use of this great remedy will prove equally beneficial, as it affords speedy relief, and will effect a certain cure, even in the most aggravated cases, if persistently used. It removes the secretions, frees the clogged nostrils, and sweetens the breath, stops the inflamation and thus saves the lungs and prevents the disease developing into consumption. This great discovery is known and sold throughout the country under the name of Nasal Balm. It is a positive and certain cure, and the thousands of testimonials in the hands of the proprietors prove that it is all they claim for it. It is sold by all dealers, and every sufferer from cold in the head or catarrh should use it.

Government Detective McKee, of Windsor, Detective McDonnell, of Detroit, and Inspector Hipden, of the Bank of Montreal, a few days ago recovered $5,000 of the money that Henry took when he left Chatham. It was given up by a friend with whom it was left by Henry. The defalcations of the absconder are now fixed at $46,000, and he got away with $36,000 cash. A reward of $500 is offered for his arrest.

A fatal accident occurred at the residence of Wm. Lampman, Caistor, last Tuesday evening, which caused the death of the only son of E. B. Halstead, South Grimsby. Wm. Halstead, a nephew of Mr Lampman, drove to the latter's farm for a night's pleasure. While unhitching the horses one of them kicked him on the right temple [illegible] never received consciousness, [illegible] N. Year's eve.

A man named Petrie was convicted at Ottawa by the county judge of mal-ciously misplacing a switch on the C. P. R. The trial judge, before sentence or even finding the prisoner guilty, went out and looked at the switch. The court at Toronto on Wednesday held that the county judge had no right to inspect the switch, and quashed the conviction.

CONSUMPTION CONQUERED

PURE

Cod Liver Oil

FOR

CONSUMPTION,
BRONCHITIS,
ASTHMA,
SCROFULA,
AND ALL
PULMONARY DISEASES.

DIRECTIONS.

SHAKE WELL.

Take one tablespoonful half an hour after each meal. If the patient's digestion will not allow tablespoonful use a dessertspoonful.

PRICE $1.00.

PREPARED ONLY BY

T. A. SLOCUM,
186 Adelaide St. West,
TORONTO, - ONTARIO.

Among the merits which distinguish Slocum's Oxygenized Liver Oil above all other preparations are:

1st. The excellence of its method of preparation.
2nd. Its freedom from nauseating tastes and odors.
3rd. Its fitness for immediate absorption.
4th. The thoroughness in which it retains its properties.
5th. And the fact that Slocum's Oxygenized Emulsion is the only preparation in the market in which the oil is emulsified without Lime and Soda, or some other equally injurious foreign substance, the presence of which renders every other emulsion worthless.

All Pulmonary Disorders find Speedy Relief

If you have any Throat Trouble ..... Use it.
If you have Tightness of the Chest ..... Use it.
If you have Difficulty of Breathing ..... Use it.
If you have a wasting away of Flesh ..... Use it.
If you have Weak Lungs ..... Use it.
If you have Bronchitis ..... Use it.
If you have Asthma ..... Use it.
If you have Catarrh ..... Use it.
If you have a Cold ..... Use it.
If you have a Cough ..... Use it.
If you are Feeble and Emaciated ..... Use it.
If you have Consumption ..... Use it.

THEY WHO USE IT—LIVE!

The approval by OXYGENIZED EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL has met with as the heads of the public in neglects more or less due to the members of the medical profession, who have shown a preference in recommending its sale in their daily practice.

If your druggist has not got SLOCUM'S OXYGENIZED EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL, and will not order it for you, do not take any preparation that contains Lime and Soda. In such case rather obtain of him the Pure Cod Liver Oil, which, though nauseous and repulsive to the taste, does not contain any foreign and injurious substance.

SINGLE BOTTLES, $1.00; SIX BOTTLES, $5.00.

Holloway's Pills & Ointment

WHEREAS I AM INFORMED THAT one Joseph Haydock, of New York, is making and selling Pills and Ointment under the name of HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT, and that the same are being sold by certain persons in the British Provinces of America, to the detriment of the public, and also to my injury and loss.

Now, I declare the said Joseph Haydock has no authority whatever from me to use my name in any way. He and my agents in Canada have no power of attorney of mine, nor have I any connection with him whatever.

Persons publishing the said counterfeit Medicines of Joseph Haydock, or keeping for sale, or selling the same in any part of the British American Provinces, will be prosecuted according to law.

I have no agents in the United States, nor are my medicines sold there.

Every Pot and Box of my Genuine Medicines bears on the label the address 533 Oxford Street, London, and has affixed to each the British Government Stamp with the words Holloway's Pills and Ointment engraved thereon.

The trade mark of my said Medicines are registered in Ottawa and also at Washington.

Signed, THOMAS HOLLOWAY.

with a rattan bat, and so dislodge the dust after an all-day weekly airing. A mattress is a great collector of fluff and dust of the most destructive sort. This dust it is which causes the falling out of women's hair whether they ever make a bed or not. If they sit in a room where much invisible dust circulates—that is, where the mattresses are not beaten—weekly at least—they live to repent. You know how much fluff gathers against the weekly sweeping, and it is safe to say the mattress contains as much more.

Miss Bernhardt left Paris with forty-eight trunks, which interfered with the traffic at Angers station and paralyzed nearly the whole of the railway staff there. Madam admits that she had forty-eight trunks with her, exclusive of packages great and small. Twenty of her trunks were made of wood, about four feet high, each divided into three compartments and filled with her most valuable dresses. Fourteen were made of wicker work, also in three compartments, some of the heavier being subdivided in two, three or four spaces, filled with petticoats, linen, boots, and robes of much value. These separate trunks are set apart for beds, arranged on purpose in such a way as to prevent them from being shaken or crushed. The Bernhardt's "kit" in all weighed between two and three tons.

SOME TIME.

Last night, my darling, as you slept,
I thought I heard you weep.
And to your lovely cheek I crept
And received a tender kiss.
Then, breaking down, I kissed your brow—
For, ah! I love you so—
You are too young to take it now,
But some time you shall know.

Some time, when life's darkened plain
Whose others come to weep,
Your eyes shall see a weary line
Close to earth's last sleep,
The spirit has fled, the weary heart,
The patient soul at rest—
Your sorrow is over, your work is done,
Your mission has been blest.

Look back and see, then, into the years,
And see me how to repine—
Ah, O my darling! how my tears
Are falling as I write;
And feel once more upon your brow
The kiss of long ago—
You are too young to know it now,
But sometime you shall know.

—Sarah Field.

AN IGNORANT FAMILY.

When I travelled in Alabama I passed over the Blue Ridge and Kanawhack mountains with perfect safety, but when I came into Black Jack grove, late one evening, I found that I had strayed from the public road into a neighboring path. I thought of turning back, but, looking afar off, I could see a small cabin peeping from a dense growth of bamboo briars and brushwood. I had my coachman drive to the house, thinking perhaps I could get information relative to the lost route. When I hallooed a tall, gawky, red-headed, snooty-faced woman came to the door and asked what was wanted.

"How far is it to the public road?" I inquired.

"Don't know, stranger; hain't never seed it. 'Spose ye be talkin' 'bout the big road that runs by Jim Skinner's; ef so its bout half mile t'other side o' Cousin Sallie Dillard's tater patch, or down where Aunt Frosie's speckled hen set in the corner o' the fence."

The driver was fairly roaring with laughter, and seeing we could never gain any information from the woman, I asked to see her husband. She jumped out of the door into the yard and began squalling in the highest pitch for "Bill," and presently a man came tumbling out of the cotton wool house, which stood near by. He looked keenly at us for a few minutes and then moved towards the gate rack.

"Ole, we want nothing but information relative to the lost route," exclaimed the frightened driver.

"Well, then, I thought you one mought be revenue officers, hain't they? allers prowlin' 'bout nat. Yes, I'll give any information ye can wantin' fuse." Turning to a little boy, he continued: "Jerusa Minum, fetch those stranger some o' that fresh cider, and Sophronia Ann, fetch under the little red skin and bring out them air apples."

Much pleased with the rustic's hospitality, we began asking questions pretty freely.

"How long have you been living in this out-of-the-way place?" I asked.

"Why ye'll keep yer fingers outer that butter. Miss Saranger, jes' lay yer off to chap 'mum.'"

She dropped over a half dozen against the door, and threatened to wage war against the rats. Looking around for the broom, she made a vigorous leap at Jerusa Minum and sent him roaring against the wall.

"Now, I reckon you'll have to keep off a my chore and quit fightin' the skill lot. Jim Blaine, yer and George Clem, stand quit pullin' that ear's tail. Sparky Jones, yer and Rich quit makin' at those strangers—acting like ye'd never seed nothin' afore."

"Well, you have eleven peculiar names for your children," I remarked.

"Yes," she replied, "Bill allows mount the boys and me the gals. He's powerful set on political names, but I ain't. Sal, over thar, is named arter Cousin Sallie Dillard, down Pushbridge. She war a pow'ful shouter and singer in the big camp-meetings that used to be at Swingin' Bush. She married Jim Skinner, the big horse swapper.

When supper was over I asked about sleeping, for I didn't see but one bed.

"Oh, that ain't no trouble," she replied, laughing. "We-uns all make pallets. S'pose ye hin tumble down with us. That's the way we do in big wartin' and party times."

After all were retired the old woman could be heard spanking the children and keeping up a general rumpus.

"Mum, Artemus is kickin' me," squalled Jim Blaine, with a boo-hoo-hoo.

The old man had rolled from his pallet into the fire place, among the ashes and charred chunks. He was moving with a growling roar, like Uncle Billy Pike sawed his gourds, which was with a "whick-whick" and "rip up and down.

Ere long the morning dawned, and the family arose and went down to the little branch to bathe their faces and hands. This family was the only one I ever knew to keep house without a wash basin. The women said it was too "ix travagint" to buy a bowl while branches ran so close by.

I uttered a sigh of relief when I once got into the rumbling old coach again.

"How far is it to the public road, or I would like to know the distance to the next house?"

"Don't know, stranger; didn't know it ever'd been measured yet. It's erbout twixt as far as 'tis from old Aunt Nancy Green's sweepin tar ever goat pasture."

"Well, do you have any idea how far it is to the first road?"

"Yes-ee, stranger; it's right t'other side o' Cap'n Solomon's watermillion patch. Mount Sotamus's wife and sup's's wife and Jim Skinner's wife air sorter kinfolks related o' mine. They all live on the big road, and if they can't give no d'rections jes' go out by Sam Skinner's mill house and git a good drink o' sorn liquor. Ree is charged to me, stranger."

HOW A GAMBLER DIED.

BORN THE SON OF A KING.

Died on Tuesday and Buried for Another Tramp.

BOSTON, Dec. 30.—A poor tramp died in a hovel here the other day without a friend in the world. Yet that tramp was a king's son.

He was the natural son of the late King of Wurtemburg and his mother was the only woman that the King ever truly loved, but royalty has its slavery more galling at times than the fetters of the lowest bondsman, and reasons of state compelled a royal alliance for his Majesty.

The boy, who had been given the monetary state of the Baron Starkloof, grew up surrounded by every advantage that wealth and favor could bestow him. As his tastes began to form themselves he developed which was fostered and aided by all that celebrated masters could impart.

At last the Abbe Liszt took the young musician under his charge, and added to the solid foundation already laid them delicate finishing strokes which one only he supplied by a master's hand.

Introduced under such favorable circumstances, the young musician might have enjoyed a brilliant career, but up on the establishment of the North German Federation the King of Wurtemberg found his power and income much curtailed; care and anxiety finally brought on a fatal illness, and the King, after years of poverty in Paris, passed away, leaving the young, natural son wholly unprovided for.

Karl came to America soon after and at once secured a splendid position among the piano masters of New York. His pupils were from the wealthiest and oldest families, and

HE PAID WELL PRINCELY.

But soon his fatal weakness began to develop—a love for drink and debauchery.

His descent in the social scale was rapid, until he finally became a tramp, and disappeared from the view of those who had formerly known him.

The other evening the clerks at Sherwin's place were surprised to see a filthy, tousled vagabond shuffle into the store and with a vacant, dreamy look in his eyes walk towards a grand piano that stood near the door.

"We have nothing for you," said the clerk sharply to the disreputable looking creature.

"I don't ... tramp, in a thick, husky voice, "I only want to sit down before a piece."

The superintendent was called from his office and informed of the strange request of the squalid intruder, and from pure curiosity allowed the outcast to have his way.

"God bless you," said the vagrant, and with

he seated himself before the splendid instrument and with fingers stiffened by touch of penury, but with the expression and touch of a true artist, began the opening strains of the moonlight sonata of Beethoven.

Clerks, customers and workmen, every one in the establishment, dropped their occupation and stole to listen to the tender strains of music that rolled forth from beneath the hands of the humanized

SARAH BERNHARDT'S SNAKE.

What It Is and What She Celebrated Across Table It.

Thoughts chosen by Sarah Bernhardt to serve as her companions in of the "blind worm" species, and is known in Egypt as an asp. It is a pretty creature, which may be found on the top of each mummy itself. The back is dark green with metallic hues, and are in certain lights irridescent, like snake is called by the Arabs.

Cleopatra being now a prisoner in the power of the victor, the Egyptian asps stuck to her wings which are in the mummy department of the Louvre. Italy was greatly rent upon them. They were her when she was, respectively, dire and queen regret. One case her asp saved from her early jealousy to stimulate the charm of her reign. Cleopatra, on these coins and medals, is far nearer to Sarah Bernhardt than to Mrs. Langtry. She is almost opera in figure when young, and at all times lithe. The neck remained young to the last. Had she lived to 80 she might have looked a little like Prince Napoleon, the mouth and chin having a Mother Hubbard tendency into mist. The full, luscious lips, resembling those of a Russell woman's, do not mitigate much the hardness of the physiognomy. It is a strange countenance and one easy to read. Its prominences here give it a singular irregularity, producing the effect almost of a smaller head growing up out of a larger one. Jove was represented by Greek sculptors with such a forehead, but to a more massive scale. The eye is greatly in shadow, and almost sinister, it having the expression of a snake's when a bird is to be charmed. The aquiline curve of the nose is at once strong and delicate, and the nostril is well open and finely curved.

Taken with the lips, it gives an impression of a woman prone to sensual joys, cynical, fond of a cruel joke and contemptuous. Her firmly molded and advancing chin shows volition. She was willful to the last degree, and not to be turned from any purpose. The hair is dressed in the Greek manner and twisted up in a small knot on the nape of the neck. She is bad and knowing. All the ... through ... wanted to break away from her. She wore a royal diadem, which is represented on some of the coins.

THE COMING GIRL.

The coming girl will cook her own food, will darn her own living, and will not die an old maid. The coming girl will not ignore all possibilities of knowing how to work, will not endeavor to break the hearts of every disinterested young man, will spell correctly, understand English before she allows French, will provide with equal grace at the piano or wash tub, will spin more yarn for the house than for the street, and will not despise her plainly clad mother her poor relations or the head of an

Somewhere, somehow, on some day,
Perhaps when I am gone,
Perhaps while I am yet here—
Somehow, somewhere, on some day,
You will come to me and say
You are too proud to ask it now,
So, since time was you shall have,
Some time, when, in a darkened place
Where silence reigns in every Voice save mine, for a weary face
Shrinks to silence alone,
The spectacles turn, the weary hand,
The pointed smile has ceased to move,
You may be proud to have it now,
But sometime you shall have—

Long backward, then, into the years,
And see me here lonesome—
Sad. O my darling! how my heart
Aches hoping as I write,
And feel once more upon your lips
The kiss of long ago—
You may be proud to have it now,
But sometime you shall have—

AN IGNORANT FAMILY.

When I travelled in Alabama I passed over the Blue Ridge and Kanshack mountains with perfect safety, but when I came into Black Jack grove, late one evening, I found that I had strayed from the public road into a neighboring path. I thought of turning back, but, looking star off, I could see a small white peeping from a dense growth of bamboo briars and brownwedge. I had my coachman drive to the house, thinking perhaps I could get information relative to the lost route. When I hallooed a tall, gawky, red-headed, snuffy-faced woman came to the door and asked what was wanted.

"How far is it to the public road?" I inquired.

"Don't know, stranger; hain't never seed it. 'Spose ye be talkin' 'bout the big road that runs by Jim Skinner's; of ur its 'bout half mile t'other side o' Cousin Sallie Dillard's tater patch, or down where Aunt Frank's sp'ckled hen got in the corner o' the fence."

The driver was fairly roaring with laughter, and seeing we could never gain any information from the woman, I asked to see her husband. She jumped out of the door into the yard and began squalling in the highest pitch for "Bill," and presently a man came ramshling out of the cotton wood house, which stood near by. He looked keenly at us for a few minutes and then moved towards the gate rack.

"Oh, we want nothing but information relative to the lost route," exclaimed the frightened driver.

"Well, then, I thought you mo mought be revenue officers, hein's they's allers prowlin' 'bout me. Yes, I'll give any information ye-uns wanter hear." Turning to a little boy, he continued: "Jesse Moore, fetch these strangers some o' that fresh cider, and Sophronia Ann, look under the little red chist and bring out them air apples."

Much pleased with the ruffian's hospitality, we began asking questions pretty freely.

"How long have you been living in this out-of-the way place?" I asked.

"Oh, a long time, stranger; mighty nigh ever since me and Lib war married."

"How far is it to the public road?"

The old man grunted and looked badly perplexed. "I—I'll jes' be-dogged, Mr. Stranger, of I know, but I kin sorter pint out the way. Take the little pig trail what comes inter the split o' the mountain over thar at Cousin Nancy's goober patch, jes' t'other side o' whar the old brindle cow died in the forks o' the branch. Go to Larry Dickerson's house and turn off close to the hog pen that stands, or use ter stand, whar Cap'n Carter shot Dink Rice—it didn't kill him though. Ax Jim Skinner the way to Uncle Greenberry Hick's. He kin tell you any thing 'bout the roads."

Knowing but little more—indeed no more, about the road than when he first began, I felt some fear in going out into the woods to hunt out a lost road, which was dim in daylight and could scarcely be seen at night. I at once decided to remain over till morning, though I knew my lodging would be that of the humblest.

After putting away the team and depositing our baggage under the only bed in the house, we sat down before the huge fireplace and engaged in a social chat. The woman was preparing the meagre supper, which consisted of sweet potatoes, crackling bred and a big hunk of bacon. The ten children were scrouged and scrambled into one corner, quarrelling about which should have the biggest potato at supper. One bawled out:

"Maw, can't I have the tater shaped like a gowsie's head? I found it yiddy."

The old man sat on a pile of bark and pine knots, puffing out the pure tobacco odor from his cob pipe. Now and then he would reach back to his hip pocket and pull out a big twist of home made tobacco.

"Won't you ans have a chew?" he would ask every time.

Supper was announced, much to my pleasure, for hunger had completely captured my ravishing appetite. With a few jerks and slings the mother succeeded in keeping the children away till I could get something to eat.

"Too ans he'p ye-'Te, stranger; is's all clean. Pass them taters, Sal, you and Sophronia Ann. Jerome Monroe, I wud yet hog yer finger outen that bacon. Miss Savage, jes' let's ye eat so Jesse 'leave."

She dropped over a half dozen spoons the door, and threatened to wage war against the rest. Looking around for the bacon, she made a vigorous hop at Jerome Monroe and took this swoop against the wall.

"Now, I reckon you'll leave to keep off a top chaw and quit fightin' the children. Jim Blaine, you and Greene Cleveland quit pullin' chairs and Kate Rusty Jane, you and Rich quit swirlin' on those strangers—mighty 'fraid you'd never need swirlin' afters."

"Well, you have shown peculiar concern for your children," I remarked.

"Yes," she replied, "Bill ef'ers cussed the boys and me the gals. He's jes' ful an ev political cussus, hes I ain't. Sal, over thar, is named after Cousin Sallie Dillard, down Punkinridge. She war a pow'rful shouter and singer in the big camp-meetings that used to be in Swingin' limb. She married Jim Skinner, the big horse swapper.

When supper was over I asked about sleeping, for I didn't see but one bed.

"Oh, that ain't no trouble," she replied, laughing. "We-uns all make pallets. S'pose ye kin tumble down with us. That's the way we do in big meetin' and party times."

After all were retired the old woman could be heard spanking the children and forking up a general rumpus.

"Maw, Artemus is kickin' me," squalled Jim Blaine, with a boo-hoo-hoo.

The old man had rolled from his pallet into the fire place, among the ashes and charred chunks. He was moving with a growling roar, like Uncle Billy Pike sawed his gourds, which was with a "whick-whick" and "rip up and down."

Ere long the morning dawned, and the family arose and went down to the little branch to bathe their faces and hands. This family was the only one I ever knew to keep house without a wash basin. The woman said it was too "ix-travagint" to buy a bowl while branches ran so close by.

I uttered a sigh of relief when I once got into the rumbling old coach again.

"How far is it to the public road, or I would like to know the distance to the next house?"

"Don's know, stranger; didn't know it ever'd been measured yit. It's orbout twice as far as 'tis from old Aunt Nancy Green's sweet tater patch."

"Well, do you have any idea how far it is to the first road?"

"Ye-as, stranger; it's right t'other side o' Cap'n Rainerow's watermillion patch. Mose Johnson's wife and cap'n's wife and Jim Skinner's wife all sorter kinfolks related o' mine. They all live on the big road, and if they ain't give me d'ractious jes' go out by Sam Skinner's still house and git a good drink o' corn liquor. Hoo is charged to me, stranger."

HOW A GAMBLER DIED.

A London dispatch to the World says Baron Von Imy, member of a Bavarian family, has been for several weeks a visitor at the gambling tables at Monte Carlo. A fortnight ago he became bankrupt. He not only played heavily at Monte Carlo, but bought a roulette outfit of his own and set it up in a room at his hotel, where he induced some of the guests to play. As the company was separating one night, the count said: "You see I have not played tonight because I am a ruined man. I have lost all I had and have not a louis to stake to night. To-morrow I shall leave the hotel. Adieu." The next morning the count was found dead in his bed, having taken a dose of morphine. The relatives were notified, and succeeded in getting possession of the body, by means of bribery, without police inquiry or an inquest being made. The body was taken to Bavaria.

The manager of the Casino begins the new year with a revision of all permanent cards. This order excludes hundreds of characters who make their living either by small careful play or by stealing money from the large players. There are scores of old stagers who have succeeded in winning enough to live upon. They take from 20 to 40 francs with them, and if they succeed in winning 20 to 40 francs more they leave the tables and come another day. The bank is anxious to rid itself of such customers.

LIFE AFTER FORTY.

The best half of life is in front of the man of forty, if he be anything of a man. The work he will do will be done with the hand of a master, and not of a raw apprentice. The trained intellect does not see "men as trees walking," but sees everything clearly and in just measure. The trained temper does not rush at work like a blind bull at a haystack, but advances with the calm and ordered pace of conscious power and deliberate determination. To no man in the world so new, and the future so fresh, as to him who has spent the early years of his manhood in trying to understand the deeper problems of science and life, and who has made some headway toward comprehending them. To him the commonest things are rare and wonderful, both in themselves and as parts of a beautiful and intelligent whole. Such a thinker as unknown in life and its duties he cannot understand. Knowledge is always opening out before him in wider expanses and more commanding heights. The pleasure of growing knowledge and increasing power makes every year of his life happier and more hopeful than the last.

SOME THE SON OF A KING.

Sold to Prisoners and Reared for Criminal Trade.

BOSTON, Dec. 28.—A gray young fiend in a mask came here the other day without a friend in the world. Yet he was young man's boy's son.

He was the natural son of the late King of Wurtemberg and his mother was the only woman that the King ever really loved, but royalty has no slavery more galling at times than the fetters of the lowest bondage, and rumors of mass were pulled a tender alliance for his Majesty.

The boy, who had been given the country name of the House, Eberhard, grew up surrounded by every advantage that wealth and favor could insure him. As his years began to form themselves he developed which was fostered and aided by all that educated masters could impart.

At last the Abbe Liszt took the young musician under his charge, and added to the solid foundation already laid them delicate finishing strokes which can only be supplied by a master's hand.

Introduced under such favorable circumstances, the young musician might have enjoyed a brilliant career, but upon the establishment of the North German Federation the King of Wurtemberg found his power and income much curtailed; care and anxiety finally brought on a fatal illness, and the King, after years of poverty in Paris, passed away, leaving the young, natural son wholly unprovided for.

Karl came to America soon after and at once secured a splendid position among the piano masters of New York. His pupils were from the wealthiest and oldest families, and

HIS FEES WERE PRINCELY.

But soon his fatal weakness began to develop—a love for drink and debauchery.

His descent in the social scale was rapid, until he finally became a tramp, and disappeared from the view of those who had formerly known him.

The night evening the clerks at Sherman's place were surprised to see a filthy, tattered vagabond shuffle into the store and with a vacant, dreamy look in his eyes walk towards a grand piano that stood near the door.

"We were expecting you," said the clerk sharply to the disreputable looking creature.

"I don't [illegible] tramp, in a thick, husky voice, "I only want to sit down before a piano."

The superintendent was called from his office and informed of the strange request of the special intruder, and from pure curiosity allowed the request to have his way.

"God bless you," said the vagrant, and with

he seated himself before the splendid instrument and with fingers stiffened by want of practice, but with the expression and touch of a true artist, began the opening strains of the moonlight sonata of Beethoven.

Clerks, customers and workmen, every one in the establishment, dropped their occupation and sank to listen to the tender soulful tones that rolled forth from beneath the hands of the benotted outcast.

At length the sonata was finished and the wretched creature rested his head upon his hands and bent over the piano. So long and silently he sat there that at last one of the salesmen, thinking the man had dropped asleep, stepped up to the bowed figure and shook him gently by the arm. As he did so the head fell back and displayed a face all white and rigid, from which the wide open eyes stared fixedly.

Karl, son of the late King of Wurtemburg, was dead.

A FEW LONG WORDS.

A correspondent asked for the longest word in the English language. There have been a large number of answers, some of them quite amusing. Here is a list of words, with the number of letters in each:

|---|---|
| Philoprogenitiveness | 20 |
| Incomprehensibleness | 20 |
| Disproportionableness | 21 |
| Anticonstitutionalist | 21 |
| Honorificabilitudinity | 22 |
| Velocipedestrianistical | 23 |
| Transubstantiableness | 23 |
| Praetitionsubstantionist | 25 |

Only the first three words are to be found in the last edition of Webster's dictionary, and disproportionableness undoubtedly is the longest word in that volume. The correspondent who originated honorificabilitudinity defines it as honorableness, but it certainly has not honorableness enough to entitle it to a nest in the unabridged. Velocipedestrianistical likewise lacks age and respectability, but it may find its way into Webster in time; it certainly has good locomotive power. Anticonstitutionalist is doubtful, and we do not believe even a mandamus would get it into the dictionary. Transubstantiableness might get there if Webster wasn't looking. The man who invented praetitionsubstantionist says its a good English word "derived from a short and simple Latin root, and means one who dissents from the doctrine or dogma of the so called real presence." This may all be, but he ought to be condemned to pronounce the word twice a day as long as he lives if he tries to introduce it into the speech of honest men.

But, speaking of long words, what is the matter with Llanfairpwllgwyngyllgogerychwyrndrobwllllantysiliogogogoch, the name of a village in Wales.—Old Homestead.

The Red River.

THE red river of life is the blood; if it be impure, health is impossible and life a burden; Burdock Blood Bitters, say those who have used it, is the best blood purifier in the world.

Miss Maud Carleton, Bridgetown, Ont., says: "Am using B. B. B. right along and find it a perfect blood purifier just as advertised."

THE COMING GIRL.

The coming girl will cook her own food, will earn her own living, and will not die an old maid. The coming girl will not ignore all possibilities of knowing how to work, will not endeavor to break the hearts of our philosophical young men, will spell correctly, understand English before she attempts French, will preside with equal grace at the piano or wash tub, will spin more yarn for the house than for the street, and will not despise her plainly clad mother her poor relations or the hand of an honest worker.

The coming girl will mind her health, her physical development, and her mother; will adopt a costume both sensible and conducive to health, will not confound hypocrisy with politeness; will not place trying to please above frankness.

The coming girl will not look to Paris but to reason for her fashions; will not aim to follow a foolish fashion because milliners and dressmaker decree it; will not torture her body, shrivel her soul with puerilities, or ruin it with wine or pleasure. In short, the coming girl will seek to glorify her Maker and to enjoy mentally his works. Duty will be her aim, and life a living reality.

At least once a week the teeth should be brushed with pure white castile soap and water. This destroys effectually all animalcules. If soap is used too often, however, it is said to turn the enamel yellow. If tartar is collected on the teeth in any considerable quantities it can only be removed with powdered pumicestone applied on a dampened linen cloth wrapped over a wooden tooth-pick. Use a very coarse piece of white silk dipped in pumicestone to clean between the teeth. An excellent tooth powder is made of equal parts of powdered pumicestone, powdered orris root and pulverized charcoal.

Good Words Some.

The good words done by that unequalled family liniment, Hagyard's Yellow Oil, during the thirty years it has been held in ever increasing esteem by the public, would fill volumes. We cannot here enumerate all its good qualities, but that it can be relied on as a cure for croup, coughs, colds, sore throat and all pains, goes without saying.

She—Oh, these dear little birds! How could you kill them? He—I thought their feathers would make nice trimming for your hat.—She—They will be lovely; how good of you.

Bad, Worse, Worst.

Cold, cough, consumption, to cure the first and second and prevent the third use Hagyard's Yellow Pectoral Balsam, the never failing family medicine for all diseases of the throat, lungs and chest. A marvel of healing in pulmonary complaints.

Hicks to the Lead.—"I," said Hicks, "started life without a cent in my pocket." "And I," put in Hicks, "started in life without a pocket."

Blue Corners, of Sweeping Crown, Orange [illegible] of a Sleigh and Serious Injuries Result.

On Tuesday afternoon of last week a most unfortunate accident befell Miss Mary Jane Conner, of Sweeping Crown, which almost terminated in a tragedy. The young lady and her brother John were driving home from Orangeville, and when they were between the G.P.R. crossing and Perkins's hotel, the brother, who is said to have been slightly intoxicated, made the horses run very fast. The result was that some part of the harness gave way, and the young lady became frightened and leaped out of the rig. The jump almost cost her her life, as she hit on her head on a stump of an old stump and received a very bad fracture of the skull, just over the left ear. Miss Conner was carried to Mr. Perkins's and Dr. Lewis was hastily summoned. The injured lady remained in an unconscious state for two days, and it was thought she would not recover. Everything is being done in the way of attendance that could possibly be expected, and at last accounts the young woman was on a fair way to recovery. If she had remained in the cutter she would not have been hurt.

ORANGEVILLE, JAN. 15, 1891.

THE MAYOR'S PRECEDENT.

Mr. W. L. Walsh, mayor of Orangeville, has commenced the new year in a very admirable way, that is so far as municipal matters are concerned. Ever since Orangeville has had a mayor it has been customary to grant the individual who fills the civic chair a certain amount at the end of the year. During the last few years, however, the "slight token of esteem" has gradually been reduced from one hundred dollars to seventy-five, sixty, fifty, and two years ago it dropped down to forty. At the last meeting of the old council it was proposed to extend the same complimentary consideration to Mr. Walsh, but the mayor very properly viewed the position as purely honorary and declined to accept the grant. By putting his sentiments in operation his worship has established a long-wanted precedent, which will, we hope, be followed by the next warden of Dufferin.

So long as the honorarity of a town or the wardenship of a county are considered honorary offices the incumbents should not accept any such grants. Still, people may there in a great deal of work connected with such positions; but it should be remembered there is no such thing as genuine honor without hard work. Therefore the [illegible]

LAUREL.

The entertainment last Thursday evening in aid of the Presbyterian church was a brilliant success. A substantial tea had been served in good style by the ladies. Rosie Wesbrough was called to the chair. The programme consisted of recitations, recitations, solos, etc., and all were well rendered. The stage of St. Andrew's church, Orangeville, was present and gave some good selections, which were well received. The financial result was very satisfactory, the proceeds amounting to $60. Much credit is due to Mr. J. Wallace and Mr. H. Mousey, members of the committee, for providing such an excellent programme.

CHARLESTON.

Mr. Faulkner and Miss Robbins were married here on New Year's eve. Everybody wishes them prosperity.

Mr. Albert Dwyer of this place has been engaged as teacher in a school in Adjala. Ah, distinguished himself at the Orangeville model school and will, no doubt, give excellent satisfaction as a pedagogue. We wish him success.

Following are the names of candidates passed and recommended at the entrance examination at Charlemont. The passmark 262: Ida G. Scott, 497, S.S. No. 12, Caledon; Louisa McCall, 442, S.S. No. 4, Caledon. Recommended—Jennie Willoughby, 465, S.S. No. 8, Caledon.

MARSVILLE.

Sleighing is good.

Weddings are the order of the day around here.

Holiday day passed off quietly here, very little interest being taken in the contest for councillors.

On Wednesday of last week Mr. W. Simpson was married to Miss Ellen Scott. The ceremony was performed in the Methodist manse, Orangeville, Rev. M. L. Pearson officiating. After the marriage the young people with their friends repaired to the Paisley house where a sumptuous repast was partaken of, after which the happy couple drove Local Intelligence.

A big fair last Thursday.

The days are lengthening.

Every day the market is crowded with loads of wood.

Potatoes are selling at 35cts. per bag in Orangeville.

Not a solitary fight took place on the streets last Friday.

It is probable some hotel changes will take place before long.

The skating-rink is doing a good business under the management of Mr. Smyth.

Invitations are out for a ball to be held in the town hall on Tuesday, the 27th inst.

The council elect will meet in the council chamber at 10 a.m. on Monday for organization.

Several Orangeville people attended the Toronto Sunnyside yacht club's annual ball last Thursday.

The Dufferin Agricultural Society will meet in Orangeville on Wednesday next for the election of officers.

A very acute to know how many "gentlemen" there are in Orangeville. Answers to the query will be received at——.

Mr. Alfred Hubbard, who attended the Orangeville model school last term, has been engaged to teach at Tarbert, East Luther.

The regular monthly meeting of the Orangeville board of trade will be held in the council chamber at 8 o'clock next Tuesday evening.

Easter Sunday falls very early this year, being on the 29th of March. There are only two Sundays after Epiphany, Ash Wednesday falls on February 11th, Good Friday on March 27th.

Orangeville. We give the story in the Record's own words: Four Orangeville young bucks had a "lark" last week over different champion Sunday evening. After traveling to the various churches they resolved to spend their month after church, and jammed a couple of young ladies to go along and help; but when they were getting out their rigs the girls disappeared and when the boys came out ready to start they came to the conclusion that they were left in the soup.

RUNAWAY.—On Saturday Mr. A. Dick, the Alton woodsyman, was doing business up around Oustic. He left his horse standing in front of a house while on errand bonds, and while he was in the house ran away. The animal dashed down the Prince of Wales road at a terrible rate of speed and did not stop until it reached Orangeville. It left the Prince of Wales road opposite Mr. George Wilson's residence, and came up Second street at full speed. A number of men endeavored to stop the runaway at the market, but the horse ran around the building three times and made a bee-line through Lacoste's yard. The cutter was left in the rear of the yard, and the animal was captured in the Paisley's house yards. The horse ran about seven miles and was pretty badly winded when caught.

I. O. F.—At a meeting of Court Equity, No. 112, I. O. F., held on the 8th inst., the following members were elected as office-bearers for the ensuing term: Francis Irwin, C. D. R. C. R.; Jas. Hay, C. R.; M. N. Armstrong, R. S.; Thos. Stevenson, Treas.; Jas. Pickering, J. W.; Alex. Conley, J. B.; A. A. Hughson, F. C. R.; John W. Claridge, V. C. R.; Fred Marshall, F. S.; Robert J. Duke, S. W.; B. M. Sutherland, S. B.; Alex. McGillivray, [illegible] young woman, visited Jas. Cooper & Fleming's store and asked to see some corsettes. The obliging clerk of that institution instantly displayed a row of boxes, from which the designing lady chose a pair that cost $1.50. She said her name was Conner and ordered the package to be charged to Mr. G. A. Campbell. As the gentleman referred to resides a block and three stores next door to C. & F. and carries a large stock of corsettes, the clerk thought it rather strange she would patronize an opposition house, and he asked her to get an order from Mr. Campbell. The pert little miss requested the clerk to allow her to take the corsettes to Mr. Co. The salesman complied with the request, and from that instant the clerk, Grocer A Fleming or Chief of Police Sinclair cannot get even a glimpse of the heartbreaking despoil. It appears the traveled down to Grocer Armstrong's and swapped the corsettes she got at Grocer & Fleming's for a $2 poke. She also purchased a $2 pair of shoes. The last witnesser said Mr. Armstrong that she was employed as a domestic at C. H. Rowlins' and that she was just promoting up town to get her wages, so she was leaving on the next train for Mount Forest. She took Armstrong's horse and crossbow with her, saying she would return and pay him and he could drive her to the station on the delivery rig. But the girl never returned, and the next sec ching inquiries fell to learn her. Armstrong has the corsettes the "lady" got at Grocer & Fleming's and will not give them up until his own are returned. The girls are great people and no mistake!

THE COMING GIRL.

The coming girl will seek her own food, will care her own living, and will not die an old maid. The coming girl will see upon all possibilities of leaving home to work, will not endeavor to break the hearts of unemployed young men, will spell correctly, understand English before she affects French, will preside with equal grace at the piano or wash tub, will spin more yarn for the house than for the street, and will not despise her plainly clad mother, her poor relations or the head of an honest worker.

The coming girl will strengthen her health, her physical development, and her mother; will adopt a costume both sensible and conducive to health; will not confound hypocrisy with politeness; will not place trying to please above frankness.

The coming girl will not look to Paris but to reason for her fashions; will not aim to follow a foolish fashion because milliners and dressmaker decree it; will not torture her body, shrivel her soul with puerilities, or ruin it with wine or pleasure. In short, the coming girl will seek to glorify her Maker and to enjoy mentally his works. Duty will be her aim, and life a living reality.

At least once a week the teeth should be brushed with pure white castile soap and water. This destroys effectually all animalcules. If soap is used too often, however, it is said to turn the enamel yellow. If tartar is collected on the teeth in any considerable quantities it can only be removed with powdered pumicestone applied on a dampened linen cloth wrapped over a wooden tooth-pick. Use a very coarse piece of white silk dipped in pumicestone to clean between the teeth. An excellent tooth powder is made of equal parts of powdered pumicestone, powdered orris root and pulverized charcoal.

Knowing but little more—indeed no more, about the road than when he first began, I felt some fear lo going out into the woods to hunt out a lost road, which was dim in daylight and could scarcely be seen at night. I at once decided to remain over till morning, though I knew my lodging would be that of the humble cot.

After putting away the team and depositing our baggage under the only bed in the house, we sat down before the huge fireplace and engaged in a social chat. The woman was preparing the meagre supper, which consisted of sweet potatoes, crackling bred and a big hunk of bacon. The ten children were scrouged and scrambled into one corner, quarrelling about which should have the biggest potato at supper. One bawled out:

"Maw, can't I have the tater shaped like a possle's head? I found it yistiddy."

The old man sat on a pile of bark and pine knots, pulling out the pure tobacco odor from his cob pipe. Now and then he would reach back to his hip pocket and pull out a big twist of home made tobacco.

Supper was announced, much to my pleasure, for hunger had completely captured my ravishing appetite. With a few jerks and slings the mother succeeded in keeping the children away till I could get something to eat.

LIFE AFTER FORTY.

The best half of life is in front of the man of forty, if he be anything of a man. The work he will do will be done with the hand of a master, and not of a raw apprentice. The trained intellect does not see "men as trees walking," but sees everything clearly and in just measure. The trained temper does not rush at work like a blind bull at a haystack, but advances with the calm and ordered pace of conscious power and deliberate determination. To no man is the world so new, and the future so fresh; as to him who has spent the early years of his manhood in trying to understand the deeper problems of science and life, and who has made some headway toward comprehending them. To him the commonest things are rare and wonderful, both in themselves and as parts of a beautiful and intelligent whole. Such a being as nuisance to life and its duties he cannot understand. Knowledge is always opening out before him in wider expanses and more commanding heights. The pleasure of growing knowledge and increasing power makes every year of his life happier and more hopeful than the last.

A FEW LONG WORDS.

A correspondent asked for the longest word in the English language. There have been a large number of answers, some of them quite amusing. Here is a list of words, with the number of letters in each:

|---|---|
| Philoprogenitiveness | 20 |
| Incomprehensibleness | 20 |
| Disproportionableness | 21 |
| Anticonstitutionalist | 21 |
| Honorificabilitudinity | 22 |
| Velocipedestrianistical | 23 |
| Transubstantiableness | 23 |
| Proantitransubstantionist | 25 |

Only the first three words are to be found in the last edition of Webster's dictionary, and disproportionableness undoubtedly is the longest word in that volume. The correspondent who originated honorificabilitudinity defines it as honorableness, but it certainly has not honorableness enough to entitle it to a nest in the unabridged. Velocipedestrainistical likewise lacks age and respectability, but it may find its way into Webster in time; it certainly has good locomotive power. Anticonstitutionalist is doubtful, and we do not believe even a mugwump would get it into the dictionary. Transubstantionableness might get there if Webster wasn't looking. The man who invented proantitransubstantionist says it is a good English word "derived from a short and simple Latin root, and means one who dissents from the doctrine or dogma of the so called real presence." This may all be, but he ought to be condemned to pronounce the word twice a day as long as he lives if he tries to introduce it into the speech of honest men.

But, speaking of long words, what is the matter with Llanfairpwllgwyngyllgogerychwyrndrobwllllantysiliogogogoch, the name of a village in Wales.—Old Homestead.

THE MAYOR'S PRECEDENT.

Mr. W. L. Walsh, mayor of Orangeville, has commenced the new year in a very admirable way, that is so far as municipal matters are concerned. Ever since Orangeville has had a mayor it has been customary to grant the ex-high chief who fills the civic chair a certificate of office at the end of the year. During the last few years, however, the "slight token of esteem" has gradually been reduced from one hundred dollars to twenty-five, thirty, fifty, and one year ago it dropped down to forty. At the last meeting of the old council it was proposed to extend the same monetary consideration to Mr. Walsh, but the mayor very properly viewed the position as purely honorary and declined to accept the grant. By putting his sentiments in operation his worship has established a long-wanted precedent, which will, we hope, be followed by the next warden of Dufferin.

So long as the mayoralty of a town or the wardenship of a county are considered honorary offices the incumbents should not accept any such grants. Still, people may there in a great deal of work connected with such positions; but it should be remembered there is no such thing as genuine honor without hard work. Therefore, the aspirants for such positions know just exactly how much work is to be done, and if the labor outweighs the honor the best way to remedy affairs is to stanch a liberal salary to the office. Mayor Walsh has sounded the death knell of such positions in the town council, and we trust Mr. Allen, reeve of Mono, who will undoubtedly be the next warden of Dufferin, will inaugurate the reform in the county council. By all means abolish this "slight token of esteem" business.

THE phenomenal growth of the telephone system of Canada proves two things. One is that our people possess the intelligence which enables them to adapt modern scientific improvements to their use, and the [illegible] are enterprising enough [illegible] money into whatever [illegible] to any business of the most [illegible] phone systems in the [illegible] our population is scattered we are probably at the head of the list to the extent to which we have availed ourselves of the most modern method of communication. The extensions which have been made this year show that the system is being constantly developed. In Toronto the laying of underground cables and the use of metallic circuits for each subscriber will greatly enhance the value of the telephone system. Under the energetic supervision of Mr. C. F. Sise, of Montreal, president of the Bell Telephone Company, their operations have been extended over a vast portion of the Dominion. The perfection of the system in Ontario has been largely the work of the Ontario manager, Mr. Hugh C. Baker, while to Mr. Hugh Neilson, the Toronto manager, has been to a great extent due the improvements in the city.

NORMAL, MODEL AND COMMON SCHOOLS.

Normal and model suggest rule and pattern, and many books have been printed on method. After having been concerned with schools in Canada for 46 years I offer my opinion. I never knew an educated man at a short for ways and words to tell and show what he knew; a learned man destitute of method is one of the unknown quantities. All that are really needed are knowledge and principle, and both are outside of normality. Normal schools long ago lost their novelty, and, as for their useful[illegible] it still lingers in debate. [illegible] ever, under government [illegible] teachers have no alternative [illegible] attendance. I never knew one that [illegible] entered them; never knew one that adhered to their methods when [illegible] out. I am convinced that the institutions in every country are a financial loss and educational blunders. During my thirty years actual teaching in Ontario I visited many schools visited by normal finished men, yet I never saw anything worthy of imitation. The institutions are not suitable to profound study; hence, I never considered with one from them that could make a logarithm nor one that could start a table of sines and tangents. Never met with one that could resolve any cube into 3 cubes, into 5 or 7 cubes, nor one that could resolve any two given squares, as 49 and 121, into two other squares; yet these nice things are but elementary in these branches of science to which they belong. Would it not be better to teach students the difficulties of science than to show them how to teach what they do not know? There seems to me a glaring absurdity in asking an educated man where he got his knowledge; and one just as ridiculous to ask him if he could teach what he knows! When I started to write I meant to speak about common schools and female teachers, but these I will leave for another letter.

CHARLESTON.

Mr. Feather and Miss Robins were married here on New Year's eve. Everybody wishes them prosperity.

Mr. Albert Dwyer of this place has been engaged as teacher in a school in Adjala. Ab. distinguished himself at the Orangeville model school and will, no doubt, give excellent satisfaction as a pedagogue. We wish him success.

Following are the names of candidates passed and recommended at the entrance examination at Charleston. The pass mark 262: Ida O Sears, 497, S.S. No. 12, Caledon; Louisa McNeil, 442, S.S. No. 4 Caledon. Recommended—Jessie Willoughby, 560, S.S. No. 8, Caledon.

MARSVILLE.

Sleighing is good.

Weddings are the order of the day around here.

Station day passed off quietly here, very little interest being taked in the contest for councillors.

On Wednesday of last week Mr. W Simpson was married to Miss Ellen Scott. The ceremony was performed in the Methodist manse, Orangeville, Rev. M. L. Pearson officiating. After the marriage the young people with their friends repaired to the Paisley house where a sumptuous repast was partaken of, after which the happy couple drove home. Both bride and groom are well known in this vicinity and will have the best wishes of a host of friends for a long life of wedded bliss.

SHELBURNE.

(Too Late to Be Recognized.)

There died yesterday in Melancthon a very old lady in the person of Mrs. Sarah Sanford, relict of the late Michael Sanford, aged 101 years and 8 months.

We understand that some parties in the neighborhood of Shelburne are putting out poison for the purpose of destroying certain animals. This is a criminal offence, and the penalties are not trifling.

Harry Sanderson, the victim in the stabbing affray referred to last week has so far recovered as to be able to sit up. For a few days last week his life appeared of. Cole will get his trial today, it is expected.

[illegible] Evening a number of the [illegible] friends of the United [illegible] at Shelburne assembled at their pastor, Rev. J. F Durkee, Shelburne, and presented him with a purse of money, a quantity of oats, potatoes, &c. Both donors and recipient were made happy by this act of kindness.

CARDWELL.

Wood-bees are few and far between this winter. Dances ditto.

Hugh Bracken and Jack McMaster were running wood into the Orangeville market last week.

Another social "at home" was held at the residence of Mr. James Armstrong last week.

Mr. and Miss Little, of Chingacousy, formerly of the Queen's hotel, Orangeville, are visiting friends around here.

So far this season Mr. Hugh Bracken has not imported any Kentucky trotters. He seems to be going out of the business.

Missionary services were held at the Herald Angel church last Monday night Revs. A. Henderson and W. Greer officiated.

On Friday evening Mr. Ed. Jenkin's residence was the scene of a very delightful party. The evening was wiled away by dancing, etc.

One night last week a large number of friends of Mr. John Laird gathered at his residence and danced the night away. A very enjoyable time was spent.

A number of enthusiastic turfmen are agitating for the formation of a race-course at or near Cardwell. The site is expected to be on the farm of Mr. James Armstrong.

GLEN CROSS.

Mr. J. S. Armstrong's sawmill has been doing a rattling business lately.

Sleighing on the "Horseshoe Course" is better this winter than it has been for several years. What's the matter, Pen?

Councillor David Still is doing a rushing business in the wood line this winter. He has about two hundred cords.

Mr. Clark is repairing and refitting the old sawmills here, and the buzz of the circular saw will soon be heard again.

Mr. Jim Coulter, of foundry fame, has imported a shingle-mill from Mr Grey, of Laurel, and is about to begin the manufacture of shingles in connection with the grain crushing business. Success, Mr. Coulter.

A fire occurred at the residence of Mr. Wm. Nelson, near Salem, at 3 o'clock on Sunday morning. The fire, it is supposed, was caused by a defective chimney, and it burned a hole around the stove and allowed it to drop into the cellar. Bill will will have to get a new stove, while the blaze caused damage to the extent of $12.

Several of the boys of this locality attended church on Sunday evening of last week. The local preacher from Orangeville was just closing the services with prayer when two or three seats were knocked over. The fair sex around here are afraid to go to church in the evenings because the roughs misbehave themselves. If the ignoramuses spent a night in the cooler it might remedy this state of affairs. Such youths are no credit to their parents or to the community in which they live.

Ladies suffering from ailments peculiar to their sex should use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They never fail. Sold by dealers everywhere. Try them.

[illegible] Overseer of Roads [illegible] in Orangeville.

Hay is selling right along on the streets now daily.

It is probable some hotel changes will take place before long.

The "barbecue" is doing a good business under the management of Mr. Smyth.

Invitations are out for a ball to be held in the town hall on Tuesday, the 27th inst.

The council elect will meet in the council chamber at 10 a. m. on Monday for organization.

Several Orangeville people attended the Toronto Snowshoe club's carnival held last Thursday.

The Dufferin Agricultural Society will meet in Orangeville on Wednesday next for the election of officers.

A very waste to have been many "gentlemen" there are in Orangeville. Answers to the query will be received at———.

Mr. Alfred Hubbard, who attended the Orangeville model school last term, has been engaged to teach at Tarbert, East Luther.

The regular monthly meeting of the Orangeville board of trade will be held in the council chamber at 8 o'clock next Tuesday evening.

Easter Sunday falls very early this year, being on the 29th of March. There are only two Sundays after Epiphany. Ash Wednesday falls on February 11th, Good Friday on March 27th.

On Sunday afternoon one of Mr. Robert Beatty's horses got loose in the stable and kicked another horse in several places, making some gaping wounds. A V. S. was called and stitched the cuts.

Mr. John Stewart, brother of Mr. F. C. Stewart, ex-M.P.P., of this town, has been elected the first mayor of Alliston, and By. Longaway, brother of Mr. John Longaway, has been elected councillor.

On Saturday last Mr. T. L. Mercer picked up a package of letters on Broadway all ready for posting. Mr. M. dropped them into the pastoffice, so the person who lost them needn't be the least alarmed.

The second grand masquerade carnival will take place at the Balmoral skating-rink on Monday evening, the 19th inst. A large number of prizes will be awarded, and [illegible] hired for the occasion.

COSTUMES FOR HIRE.—Mr. Frank McKenna, theatrical costumier, of Toronto, will be at the Paisley house on Monday, the 19th, the day of the carnival at Balmoral rink, to supply costumes for the masquers.

MARRIED.—Mr. D. M. Reid, photographer, of Milton, formerly of this town, was married to Miss Minnie Durkee, daughter of Rev. J. F. Durkee, of Shelburne, on Wednesday last. They will have the best wishes of their friends in this town for their future happiness.

THE VARSITY'S TRIP.—The members of the Toronto University lacrosse club are contemplating taking a trip to England and Ireland in September to play some of the crack teams of the Old World. Mr. T. H. Henry, the well known home player of the Dufferins, is secretary of the 'Varsity club and is now corresponding with the secretaries of the clubs across the water to make the necessary arrangements for the tour.

SALE OF PERIODICALS.—The directors of the Mechanics' Institute will offer for sale by public auction on Friday evening, Jan. 30th, at 8 o'clock, in the reading-room, the magazines and periodicals in use in the reading room that have accumulated, and also those of the present year. Purchasers will receive their periodicals when removed from the file in the reading room. The list of periodicals includes Harper's Monthly, Overland Monthly, Leisure Hour, Puck, Grip, Illustrated News of the World, Dominion Illustrated, etc. ?

A NEW PASTOR.—Rev. H. J. McPhillips, of St. Helen's church, Toronto, succeeds Rev. Father Morris as pastor of St. Peter's R. C. church, Orangeville. Father Morris has been in Orangeville only a year, but during his brief residence here he has made many warm friends, whose best wishes go with him to Newmarket. He expects to leave for his new station tomorrow. His successor, Father McPhillips, as his name indicates, is a genial Irishman and will undoubtedly become very popular with the people of the town.

"RAISE THE FLAG."—We are glad to notice that the words and music of the patriotic song and chorus "Raise the Flag" have been published in sheet form by the Empire. There is a tone and a swing about the composition which should recommend it at once, both from the musical and the patriotic standpoint. It ought to be given into the hands of our children and take a place in the schools with "The Maple Leaf." The words and music were written by Mr. E. G. Nelson, of St John, N. B., in connection with the movement for hoisting the Canadian flag on the schoolhouses of the Dominion. In order to put it within the reach of all, the Empire places the price at 10 cts., and has put the song on sale by all newsdealers.

THE DEBBS' VISIT.—The Boiler, a spicy little paper published at Hillsburg, must have a pretty poor opinion of several well known "members" from [illegible] fairly good looking, light complexioned [illegible]

SPRAINED.—On Tuesday Mr. A. Blair, the Alton Snowbird, was driving business up around Chatsy. He left his horse standing in front of a house while he went inside, and while he was in the house the horse ran away. The animal dashed down the Prince of Wales road at a terrific rate of speed and did not stop until it reached Orangeville. In left the Prince of Wales road opposite Mr. George Wilson's residence, and came up Second street at full speed. A number of men endeavored to stop the runaway at the market, but the horse ran around the building three times and made a bee-line through Lemon's yard. The cutter was left in the rear of the yard, and the animal was captured in the Paisley's house yards. The horse was about seven miles and was pretty badly winded when caught.

I. O. F.—At a meeting of Court Equity, No. 112, I. O. F., held on the 9th inst., the following members were elected as office-bearers for the ensuing term: Francis Irwin, C. D. H. C. R.; Jas. Hay, C. R.; M. N. Armstrong, R. S.; Thos. Stevenson, Treas.; Jas. Pickering, J. W.; Alex. Conley, J. B.; A. A. Hughens, P. C. R.; John W. Clarridge, V. C. R.; Fred Marshall, F. S.; Robert J. Duke, S. W.; R. M. Sutherland, S. B.; Alex. McGillivray, chap.; R. Beatty and T. Parsons, auditors. This order is amongst the best of the fraternal and benefit societies in the land. During ten years 800 courts have been instituted with a membership of 25,000. The reserve fund has already reached $280,000. Court Equity meets on the second and last Fridays of each month.

CANADA FOREVER.—We are pleased when we can record Canadian enterprise, backed by sterling worth and character, and this we do in calling the attention of our customers to the handsome illustrated seed catalogue, of the Steele Bros Co., Toronto, which even excels the splendid one of last year, their premises are immense and their business national. They offer the latest novelties in Flowers, Bulbs, Vegetable and Field Seeds, amongst these we notice Steele's White Cane Oats, an astonishing cropper; Campbell's New White Chief Fife Wheat, which is so highly recommended by the Experimental Farm, Ottawa; Thoroughbred White Flint Corn, highly spoken of by "The Rural New Yorker," and which yielded 80 tons of Ensilage per acre; Burpee's Extra Early Potato the earliest out. They will for only 25c send post paid 1 lb. of above oats, or wheat, or corn, or ½ lb. potatoes and a copy of the catalogue. Send now, it will pay you, or send 20c. for catalogue, which may be deducted from first order.

MR. CAMPBELL'S DEATH.—Robert Peel Campbell, late customs collector for Brampton, died very unexpectedly at Campbell's Cross on Sunday morning last at the residence of his son-in, Mr James Campbell. No man had more friends than poor "Bobby," as he was affectionately termed by his intimates, and the downward course of his life during the past few years was the source of much pain to the hundreds who had hoped he would ultimately overcome the demon which finally proved his ruin. The deceased was for many years a member of Brampton council and more than once headed the poll in his ward. He was an ardent Conservative and Orangeman, and was a county master for more than one term. The deceased in his youth met with an accident which deformed him and left him a victim to periodical illness, when he suffered much pain, a condition which probably had much to do in giving birth to a habit which at first gave relief, but afterwards proved his ruin. If ever the mantle of charity should be thrown over the faults of an erring brother, it should over those of the deceased, for a more tender hearted, kingly gentleman never breathed. His universal courtesy and good nature were proverbial. The funeral took place on Tuesday, when the brethren of Brampton Orange Lodge No. 10 and many from outside points attended and paid their last respects.—Brampton Banner.

HORTICULTURAL.—The annual meeting of the Orangeville Horticultural Society was held on Thursday evening, 8th inst. After the directors' report of the transactions of the society for the past year, the officers for the ensuing year were elected, as follows: Judge McCarthy, honorary president, Dr. Smith, president; Robert Mann, vice-president; Wm. Judge, sec.-treas.; John Crozier, John McLaren, Geo. Nicholson, John Mitchell, J. W. Young, H. Gillespie, Chas. Scott, Geo. Endacott, Wm. Judge, directors; W. T. Bailey, Thos. Macadam, auditors. This society has been for some years in affiliation with the county agricultural society, holding with it a joint exhibition in the fall. At this meeting it was decided to separate from the county society during the current year, and to hold a midsummer show under the auspices of the Horticultural Society, at a date to be hereafter fixed. At a meeting of the directors the president, vice president, secretary and Mr. Crozier were appointed a committee to solicit subscriptions and to report at a meeting to be held at the Mechanics' Institute reading room on Thursday evening, 5th March. We wish the society every success in its new departure.

A NAUGHTY GIRL.—Orangeville can (or could) lay claim to the naughty girl just as well as Brampton, Shelburne or Mount Forest. A week ago last Saturday night the naughty miss, who was a fairly good looking, light complexioned [illegible] cold in the head or catarrh should not let it.

[illegible] Fitly years ago there [illegible] shown on Guelph market [illegible] would weigh from twenty five to twenty eight hundred weight. Now such have been rare for many years. At this show just past, the feature of the cattle exhibit was the long row of yearlings, steers and heifers, all under two years old, and weighing many of them from ten to twelve hundred, at an average age of about twenty months. In the good old days the prize animal was sold for about 15 cents per pound live weight. A York shilling (12½ cents) per pound was a usual price for those over the top, and when it came that a lower price than this had to be accepted for the prize animal, it was considered that the bottom was out of the market. This year the ever-praised animal was sold for nine cents. The trade has changed. The heavy, very fat animals are not wanted, unless it be a single one for a Christmas show, to deck the stall and help sell the leaner and more palatable beef of the younger and lighter animals. The exhibitors had recognized this fact, and the lot of yearlings was a practical illustration. At the banquet, one of the judges, Alderman Frankland, of Toronto, spoke of the same fact, and told the breeders and feeders present, that the animal wanted for the English market was a young, well fed animal, weighing about twelve hundred pounds live weight. Not over that, and that for such there was an unlimited demand at higher prices than would be paid for heavier animals. He advised keeping the calf well fed and growing, and getting the animal in good shipping shape while young.—R. A. in The Canadian Live Stock and Farm Journal.

MEDICAL SCIENCE.

Wonderful Discovery That Will Benefit Thousands of Sufferers.

The civilized world has recently been deeply agitated over the announcement that Dr. Koch, an eminent German physician, had discovered a lymph for the cure of consumption. This discovery has been heralded throughout the world, and is looked upon as one of the greatest achievements of modern medical science. Of equal, if not greater importance, is a discovery made by a well-known Canadian druggist, which, while it does not pretend to cure consumption after the lungs have been affected, is offered with every confidence as a preventative of that disease. Medical testimony bears out the statement that more than two-thirds of the cases of consumption occurring in this country annually, are of catarrhal origin. The trouble begins with a cold in the head, which the sufferer treats as a light matter, and too frequently neglects. This in time invariably develops into catarrh; the mucous membrane becomes thickened; inflamed and hardened, and there is a profuse discharge of watery and poisonous matter from the nostrils, or else the poisonous secretions become hardened. In either case the breath is inhaled over this poisonous matter, and produces baleful results. The inflamation gradually extends to the bronchial tubes, and thence to the lungs, which, already poisoned and weakened by the foul breath inhaled, are ripe for that dread disease—consumption, which ends in death. A remedy that will prevent these disastrous consequences must be regarded as a boon to mankind, and, as already stated, such a remedy has been discovered by a Canadian druggist. There is no case of cold in the head which it will not instantly relieve and permanently cure. Do not, for an instant, neglect a cold in the head, for, by its prompt application, you will prevent its developing into catarrh—the second stage on the road to the grave. If, however, catarrh has already developed, the use of this great remedy will prove equally beneficial, as it affords speedy relief, and will effect a certain cure, even in the most aggravated cases, if persistently used. It removes the secretions, frees the clogged nostrils, and sweetens the breath. Stops the inflamation and thus saves the lungs and prevents the disease developing into consumption. This great discovery is known and sold throughout the country under the name of Nasal Balm. It is a positive and certain cure, and the thousands of testimonials in the hands of the proprietors prove that it is all they claim for it. It is 50 cts. "Catarrh, and every sufferer from cold in the head or catarrh should use it.

[illegible] the new Fruit Pills for Pale People, recently introduced, appear to be meeting with marked success. The demand for them is very large, and they are spoken of in the highest terms by those who have used them. The young lady staff of THE SUN, who have been taking them, say they have benefited them very much and Professor Loud, the popular teacher of music, who is not in the habit of using patent medicines, who had to take them for a cold, says they are the best he ever used. The result was that some part of the business given away, and the young lady became frightened and lodged out of the rig. The pony almost cost her life, as she fell on her head on a chunk of ice and sustained a very bad fracture of the skull, just over the left ear. Miss Cooper was married to Mr Parker's son Dr. Lewis was hastily summoned. The injured lady remained in an unconscious state for two days, and it was thought she would not recover. Everything is being done in the way of amusement that could possibly be expected, and at last accounts the young woman was on a fair way to recovery. If she had remained in the cutter she would not have been hurt.

Mr. Thomas Murray, ex M.P.P., has been appointed sheriff of Renfrew.

The corporation of the county of Leeds and Addington has instructed Messrs. Deroche & Madden, solicitors, to issue a writ against Mr. J. M Parrot, county treasurer, for $15,000 penalty under a bond and for an account and for an injunction.

Geo. M. Bartholomew, formerly president of the Charter Oak Life Insurance Company of Hartford, Conn., who fled to Canada some years ago, returned to Hartford Tuesday, pleaded guilty to embezzlement of $10,000, and was sent to State Prison for a year. He is 70 years old and in feeble health.

It has been determined that under no conditions can the deaf learn to speak by association and without effort, as normal children do, but that in every case speech is an acquisition only possible with great and sustained effort on the part of the pupil, assisted by the skill, patience and perseverance of competent teachers.

The investigation into the alleged frauds on the United States customs department in connection with the Canadian export and transit trade is to be extended to take in the sealed railroad cars, which are not inspected at the frontier. The secretary of the treasury is of opinion that the system as now regulated is susceptible of improvement.

Sitting Bull's war club is now in the possession of an Ohio editor. It is a vicious looking weapon, about two and a half feet long, and bears the signs of hard service. In the heavy or "business" end of the club a short buffalo horn is firmly embedded. The old chief gave the relic originally to Elroy Post, the artist, who had made two large paintings of the Indian's favorite ponies.

An exchange tells of a new dodge to take in unsuspecting farmers. It is worked by a couple of alleged hucksters. They call at a farm house and claim that one of their chickens has escaped into the farmer's flock. On receiving permission to retake it, they catch one of the farmer's chickens and get off with it. By this means they can collect quite a load of chickens in a day.

The official announcement of Sir Jos. Hicks-n's resignation of the general managership of the G.T.R., and the appointment of Mr. A. J. Sir Joseph has issued a circular to the staff expressing his high appreciation of their services.

At the county judge's criminal court last week, Thomas Kenny was brought before Judge Drew. Kenny was found guilty of stealing $5 from his father. He is a notoriously hard case. The records of seven previous convictions were put in, one of manslaughter, five of assault and one of vagrancy, for which Kenny has already spent over ten years in jail and penitentiary. For the present charge, of which he has been found guilty, robbery of his father with violence, the judge sentenced him to ten years in the penitentiary. In doing so he adverted to his past record, the promises he had made and broken, and the danger to his parents and others of having him at large.—Fergus News-Record.

Powder Mill Explosion.

A powder mill explosion affects the country for miles round, but dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation, headache, loss of appetite and debility, affect humanity the world over. The Editor of the Mitchell Recorder stated that he was cured of biliousness, liver complaint and sick headache, by Burdock Blood Bitters. Is it not worth trying on such evidence?

[illegible] Welsh, has the usual very property thrown the position to purely literary and technical or essay the great. By passing his examination in opposition his worship has established a long-wanted precedent, which will, we hope, be followed by the next warden of Dufferin.

So long as the necessity of a town or the pandemonium at a county are considered honorary offices the incumbents should not accept any such grants. Still, people my there is a great deal of work connected with such positions; but it should be remembered there is no such thing as genuine honor without hard work. Therefore, the aspirants for such positions have just exactly how much work is to be done, and if the labor outweighs the honor the best way to remedy affairs is to attach a liberal salary to the office. Mayor Walsh has sounded the death knell of such practices in the town council, and we trust Mr. Allen, pages of Mono, who will undoubtedly be the next warden of Dufferin, will inaugurate the reform in the county council. By all means abolish this "slight token of esteem" business.

THE phenomenal growth of the telephone system of Canada proves two things. One is that our people possess the intelligence which enables them to adapt modern scientific improvements to their use, and the [illegible] are enterprising enough [illegible] money into whatever [illegible] to try has one of the most [illegible] phone systems in the world [illegible] our population is scattered we are probably at the head of the list in the extent to which we have availed ourselves of the most modern method of communication. The extensions which have been made this year show that the system is being constantly developed. In Toronto the laying of underground cables and the use of metallic circuits for each subscriber will greatly enhance the value of the telephone system. Under the energetic supervision of Mr. C. F. Sise, of Montreal, president of the Bell Telephone Company, their operations have been extended over a vast portion of the Dominion. The perfection of the system in Ontario has been largely the work of the Ontario manager, Mr. Hugh C. Baker, while to Mr. Hugh Neilson, the Toronto manager, has been to a great extent due the improvements in the city.

NORMAL, MODEL AND COMMON SCHOOLS.

Normal and model suggest rule and pattern, and many books have been printed on method. After having been concerned with schools in Canada for 46 years I offer my opinion. I never knew an educated man at a short for ways and words to tell and show what he knew; a learned man destitute of method is one of the unknown quantities. All that are really needed are knowledge and principle, and both are outside of normality. Normal schools long ago lost their novelty, and, as for their useful[illegible] it still lingers in debate. [illegible] rer, under government [illegible] teachers have no alternative but attendance. I never knew one that [illegible] entered them; never knew one but adhered to their methods when he came out. I am convinced that the institutions in every country are a financial loss and educational blunders. During my thirty years actual teaching in Ontario I visited many schools visited by normal finished men, yet I never saw anything worthy of imitation. The institutions are not suitable for profound study; hence, I never conversed with one from them that could make a logarithm nor one that could start a table of sines and tangents. Never met with one that could resolve any cube into 3 cubes, into 5 or 7 cubes, nor one that could resolve any two given squares, as 49 and 121, into two other squares; yet these nice things are but elementary in these branches of science to which they belong. Would it not be better to teach students the difficulties of science than to show them how to teach what they do not know? There seems to me a glaring absurdity in asking an educated man where he got his knowledge; and one just as ridiculous to ask him if he could teach what he knows! When I started to write I meant to speak about common schools and female teachers, but these I will leave for another letter.

MARSVILLE.

Sleighing is good.

Weddings are the order of the day around here.

Boating day passed off quietly here, very little interest being taken in the contest for connellors.

On Wednesday of last week Mr. W. Simpson was married to Miss Ellen Scott. The ceremony was performed in the Methodist church, Orangeville, Rev. M. L. Pearson officiating. After the marriage the young people with their friends repaired to the Paisley house where a sumptuous repast was partaken of, after which the happy couple drove home. Both bride and groom are well known in this vicinity and will have the best wishes of a host of friends for a long life of wedded bliss.

SHELBURNE.

CARDWELL.

Wood-hoes are few and far between this winter. Deacon Bliss.

Hugh Bracken and Jack McMaster were cutting wood into the Orangeville market last week.

Another social "at home" was held at the residence of Mr. James Armstrong last week.

Mr. and Miss Little, of Chingacousy, formerly of the Queen's hotel, Orangeville, are visiting friends around here.

So far this season Mr. Hugh Bracken has not imported any Kentucky trotters. He seems to be going out of the business.

Missionary services were held at the Herald Angel church last Monday night Revs. A. Henderson and W. Greer officiated.

On Friday evening Mr. Ed. Jenkin's residence was the scene of a very delightful party. The evening was wiled away by dancing, etc.

One night last week a large number of friends of Mr. John Laird gathered at his residence and danced the night away. A very enjoyable time was spent.

A number of enthusiastic turfmen are agitating for the formation of a race-course at or near Cardwell. The site is expected to be on the farm of Mr. James Armstrong.

GLEN CROSS.

Mr. J. S. Armstrong's sawmill has been doing a rattling business lately.

Sleighing on the "Horseshoe Course" is better this winter than it has been for several years. What's the matter, Pan?

Councillor David Still is doing a rushing business in the wood line this winter. He has about two hundred cords.

Mr. Clark is repairing and refitting the old sawmills here, and the buzz of the circular saw will soon be heard again.

Mr. Jim Coulter, of foundry fame, has imported a shingle-mill from Mr Grey, of Laurel, and is about to begin the manufacture of shingles in connection with the grain crushing business. Success, Mr. Coulter

A fire occurred at the residence of Mr. Wm. Nelson, near Salem, at 3 o'clock on Sunday morning. The fire, it is supposed, was caused by a defective chimney, and it burned a hole around the stove and allowed it to drop into the cellar. Bill will will have to get a new stove, while the blaze caused damage to the extent of $12.

Several of the boys of this locality attended church on Sunday evening of last week. The local preacher from Orangeville was just closing the services with prayer when two or three seats were knocked over. The fair sex around here are afraid to go to church in the evenings because the roughs misbehave themselves. If the ignoramuses spent a night in the cooler it might remedy this state of affairs. Such youths are no credit to their parents or to the community in which they live.

Ladies suffering from ailments peculiar to their sex should use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They never fail. Sold by dealers everywhere. Try them.

[illegible] Wednesday next for Amaranth officers.

A very puzzle to know how many "gentlemen" there are in Orangeville. Answers to the query will be received up.

Mr. Alfred Hubbard, who attended the Orangeville market school last term, has been engaged to teach at Corbett, East Luther.

The regular monthly meeting of the Orangeville board of trade will be held in the council chamber at 8 o'clock next Tuesday evening.

Easter Sunday falls very early this year, being on the 29th of March. There are only two Sundays after Epiphany. Ash Wednesday falls on February 11th, Good Friday on March 27th.

On Sunday afternoon one of Mr. Robert Beatty's horses got loose in the stable and kicked another horse in several places, making some gaping wounds. A V. S. was called and stitched the cuts.

Mr. John Stewart, brother of Mr. P. C. Stewart, ex-M.P.P., of this town, has been elected the first mayor of Alliston, and Hy. Longaway, brother of Mr. John Longaway, has been elected councillor.

On Saturday last Mr. T. L. Mercer picked up a package of letters on Broadway all ready for posting. Mr. M. dropped them into the pattoffice, so the person who lost them needn't be the least alarmed.

The second grand masquerade carnival will take place at the Balmoral skating-rink on Monday evening, the 19th inst. A large number of prizes will be awarded, and good [illegible] hired for the occasion.

COSTUMES FOR HIRE.—Mr. Frank McKenna, theatrical costumier, of Toronto, will be at the Priddy house on Monday, the 19th, the day of the carnival at Balmoral rink, to supply costumes for the masquers.

MARRIED.—Mr. D. M. Reid, photographer, of Milton, formerly of this town, was married to Miss Minnie Durkee, daughter of Rev. J. F. Durkee, of Shelburne, on Wednesday last. They will have the best wishes of their friends in this town for their future happiness.

THE VARSITY'S TRIP.—The members of the Toronto University lacrosse club are contemplating taking a trip to England and Ireland in September to play some of the crack teams of the Old World. Mr. T. H. Henry, the well known home player of the Dufferins, is secretary of the 'Varsity club and is now corresponding with the secretaries of the clubs across the water to make the necessary arrangements for the tour.

SALE OF PERIODICALS.—The directors of the Mechanics' Institute will offer for sale by public auction on Friday evening, Jan. 30th, at 8 o'clock, in the reading-room, the magazines and periodicals in use in the reading room that have accumulated, and also those of the present year. Purchasers will receive their periodicals when removed from the file in the reading room. The list of periodicals includes Harper's Monthly, Overland Monthly, Leisure Hour, Puck, Grip, Illustrated News of the World, Dominion Illustrated, etc. ?

A NEW PASTOR.—Rev. H. J. McPhillips, of St. Helen's church, Toronto, succeeds Rev. Father Morris as pastor of St. Peter's R. C. church, Orangeville. Father Morris has been in Orangeville only a year, but during his brief residence here he has made many warm friends, whose best wishes go with him to Newmarket. He expects to leave for his new station tomorrow. His successor, Father McPhillips, as his name indicates, is a genial Irishman and will undoubtedly become very popular with the people of the town.

"RAISE THE FLAG."—We are glad to notice that the words and music of the patriotic song and chorus "Raise the Flag" have been published in sheet form by the Empire. There is a tone and a swing about the composition which should recommend it at once, both from the musical and the patriotic standpoint. It ought to be given into the hands of our children and take a place in the schools with "The Maple Leaf." The words and music were written by Mr. E. G. Nelson, of St John, N. B., in connection with the movement for hoisting the Canadian flag on the schoolhouses of the Dominion. In order to put it within the reach of all, the Empire places the price at 10 cts., and has put the song on sale by all newsdealers.

THE DUBBS' VISIT.—The Bearer, a spicy little paper published at Hillsburg, must have a pretty poor opinion of several well known "members" from [illegible] fairly good looking, light [illegible] spent a night [illegible] around the building [illegible] the owner was left in the rear of the yard, and the animal was captured in the Paisley's house yards. The horse was there some miles and was pretty badly winded when caught.

I. O. F.—At a meeting of Court Equity, No. 112, I. O. F., held on the 9th inst., the following members were elected as office-bearers for the ensuing term: Francis Irwin, C. D. H. C. R.; Jas. Mup, C. R.; M. B. Armstrong, R. S.; Thos. Stevenson, Treas.; Jas. Pickering, J. W.; Alex. Conley, J. S.; A. A. Hughson, P. C. R.; John W. Clerridge, V. C. R.; Fred Marshall, F. S.; Robert J. Duke, S. W.; R. M. Sutherland, S. B.; Alex. McGillivery, chap.; E. Beatty and T. Parsons, auditors. This order is amongst the best of the fraternal and benefit societies in the land. During ten years 800 courts have been instituted with a membership of 25,000. The reserve fund has already reached $230,000. Court Equity meets on the second and last Fridays of each month.

CANADA FOREVER.—We are pleased when we can record Canadian enterprise, backed by sterling worth and character, and this we do in calling the attention of our customers to the handsome illustrated seed catalogue, of the Steele Bros Co., Toronto, which even excels the splendid one of last year, their premises are immense and their business national. They [illegible] the latest novelties in Flowers, Bulbs, Vegetable and Field Seeds; amongst these we notice Steele's White Cane Oats, an astonishing cropper; Campbell's New White Chaff Tuscan Wheat, which is so highly recommended by the Experimental Farm, Ottawa; Thoroughbred White First Corn, highly spoken of by "The Rural New Yorker," and which yielded 80 tons of Ensilage per acre; Burpee's Extra Early Potato, the earliest out. They will for only 25c. send post paid 1 lb. of above oats, or wheat, or corn, or ½ lb. potatoes and a copy of the catalogue. Send now, it will pay you, or send 20c. for catalogue, which may be deducted from first order.

MR. CAMPBELL'S DEATH.—Robert Peel Campbell, late customs collector for Brampton, died very unexpectedly at Campbell's Cross on Sunday morning last at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr James Campbell. He was had more friends than poor "Bobby," as he was affectionately termed by his intimates and the downward course of his life during the past few years was the source of much pain to the hundreds who had hoped he would ultimately overcome the demon which finally proved his ruin. The deceased was for many years a member of Brampton council and more than once headed the poll in his ward. He was an ardent Conservative and Orangeman, and was a county master for more than one term. The deceased in his youth met with an accident which deformed him and left him a victim to periodical illness, when he suffered much pain, a condition which probably had much to do in giving birth to a habit which at first gave relief, but afterwards proved his ruin. If ever the mantle of charity should be thrown over the faults of an erring brother, it should over those of the deceased, for a more tender hearted, kindly gentleman never breathed. His universal courtesy and good nature were proverbial. The funeral took place on Tuesday, when the brethren of Brampton Orange Lodge No. 10 and many from outside points attended and paid their last respects.—Brampton Banner.

HORTICULTURAL.—The annual meeting of the Orangeville Horticultural Society was held on Thursday evening, 8th inst. After the directors' report of the transactions of the society for the past year, the officers for the ensuing year were elected, as follows: Judge McCarthy, honorary president, Dr. Smith, president; Robert Mann, vice-president; Wm. Judge, sec.-treas.; John Crozier, John McLaren, Geo. Nicholson, John Mitchell, J. W. Young, H. Gillespie, Chas. Scott, Geo. Endscott, Wm. Judge, directors; W. T. Bailey, Thos. Macadam, auditors. This society has been for some years in affiliation with the county agricultural society, holding with it a joint exhibition in the fall. At this meeting it was decided to separate from the county society during the current year, and to hold a midsummer show under the auspices of the Horticultural Society, at a date to be hereafter fixed. At a meeting of the directors the president, vice president, secretary and Mr. Crozier were appointed a committee to solicit subscriptions and to report at a meeting to be held at the Mechanics' Institute reading room on Thursday evening, 5th March. We wish the society every success in its new departure.

A NAUGHTY GIRL.—Orangeville can (or could) lay claim to the naughty girl just as well as Brampton, Shelburne or Mount Forest. A week ago last Saturday night the naughty miss, who was a fairly good looking, light [illegible] girl, [illegible] [illegible] month in G. N. Bentley's and then she was just preparing to go home, when she was spirited away by two men, who had been waiting on the town beats for Mount Forest. She took Armstrong's horse and overshoes with her, saying she could return and pay him and he could drive her to the station on the delivery rig. But the girl never returned, and the next we hear of her she was in Mount Forest. Armstrong has the overshoes, the "lady" got at Crozier & Fleming's and will not give them up until his horse are returned. The girls are great people and we mistake!

PERSONAL.

Miss M. Meek, of Hamilton, is visiting friends in town.

Mrs. F. H. Thompson, of Mitchell, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Stewart.

Mr. T. B. Henry has returned to the Toronto University to continue his studies in medicine. When Tom returns to town in April he will have a handle to his name.

MARKETABLE BEEF AND MUTTON.

The last fat stock show held at Guelph apart from the excellence of the animals and of their feeding, has some lessons for all interested in live stock. The absence of any number of heavy cattle was a marked feature. Too or twenty years ago there were a whole row of massive steers, three and four years old, that would weigh even now [illegible] shown at Guelph market. Fifty years ago there would which from twenty five to twenty eight hundred weight. Beeves such have been rare for many years. At this show just past, the feature of the cattle exhibit was the long row of yearlings, steers and heifers, all under two years old, and weighing many of them from ten to twelve hundred, at an average age of about twenty months. In the good old days the prize animal was sold for about 15 cents per pound live weight. A York shilling (12½ cents) per pound was a usual price for those near the top, and when it came that a lower price than this had to be accepted for the prize animal, it was considered that the bottom was out of the market. This year the two-pounds animal was sold for nine cents. The trade has changed. The heavy, very fat animals are not wanted, unless it be a single one for a Christmas show, to deck the stall and help sell the leaner and more palatable beef of the younger and lighter animals. The exhibitors had recognized this fact, and the lot of yearlings was a practical illustration. At the banquet, one of the judges, Alderman Frankland, of Toronto, spoke of the same fact, and told the breeders and feeders present, that the animal wanted for the English market was a young, well fed animal, weighing about twelve hundred pounds live weight. Not over that, and that for such there was an unlimited demand at higher prices than would be paid for heavier animals. He advised keeping the calf well fed and growing, and getting the animal in good shipping shape while young.—R. A. in The Canadian Live Stock and Farm Journal.

MEDICAL SCIENCE.

A Wonderful Discovery That Will Benefit Thousands of Sufferers.

The civilized world has recently been deeply agitated over the announcement that Dr. Koch, an eminent German physician, had discovered a lymph for the cure of consumption. This discovery has been heralded throughout the world, and is looked upon as one of the greatest achievements of modern medical science. Of equal, if not greater importance, is a discovery made by a well-known Canadian druggist, which, while it does not pretend to cure consumption after the lungs have been affected, is offered with every confidence as a preventative of that disease. Medical testimony bears out the statement that more than two-thirds of the cases of consumption occurring in this country annually, are of catarrhal origin. The trouble begins with a cold in the head, which the sufferer treats as a light matter, and too frequently neglects. This in time invariably develops into catarrh; the mucous membrane becomes thickened; inflamed and hardened, and there is a profuse discharge of watery and poisonous matter from the nostrils, or else the poisonous secretions become hardened. In either case the breath is inhaled over this poisonous matter, and produces baleful results. The inflamation gradually extends to the bronchial tubes, and thence to the lungs, which, already poisoned and weakened by the foul breath inhaled, are ripe for that dread disease—consumption, which ends in death. A remedy that will prevent these disastrous consequences must be regarded as a boon to mankind, and, as already stated, such a remedy has been discovered by a Canadian druggist. There is no case of cold in the head which it will not instantly relieve and permanently cure. Do not, for an instant, neglect a cold in the head, for, by its prompt treatment, you will prevent its development into catarrh—the second stage on the road to the grave. If, however, catarrh has already developed, the use of this great remedy will prove equally beneficial, as it affords speedy relief, and will effect a certain cure, even in the most aggravated cases, if persistently used. It removes the secretions, frees the clogged nostrils, and sweetens the breath; stops the inflamation and thus saves the lungs and prevents the disease developing into consumption. This great discovery is known and sold throughout the country under the name of Nasal Balm. It is a positive and certain cure, and the thousands of testimonials in the hands of the proprietors prove that it is all they claim for it. It is a delightful comfort, and every sufferer from cold in the head or catarrh should use it.

MELANCTHON DISTRICT LODGE.

BELLEMERE, Ont. Jan. 19.—At the annual meeting of L. O. L. district lodge of Melancthon, held here Tuesday, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Lecturer—Bro. W. R. Chisholm, L. O. L. 1,331.

REMOVED TO CLEVELAND, O.—The office of the American Farmer, the valuable journal which is still being offered free to the readers of THE SUN, has been removed to Cleveland, O., where in its new field the American Farmer will be better able to meet the requirements of its rapidly increasing National circulation. Many valuable improvements and new features are contemplated by the management of the American Farmer during the coming year, making the paper even more valuable to its readers. The regular subscription price of the American Farmer will remain at the rate of $1.00 per year.

EXCHANGE ECHOES.

Mr. Thomas Murray, ex M.P.P., has been appointed sheriff of Renfrew.

The corporation of the county of Lennox and Addington has instructed Messrs. Deroche & Hudden, solicitors, to issue a writ against Mr. J. M. Parrot, county treasurer, for $15,000 penalty under a bond and for an account and for an injunction.

Geo. M. Bartholomew, formerly president of the Chester Oakdale Insurance Company of Hartford, Conn., who fled to Canada some years ago, returned to Hartford Tuesday, pleaded guilty to embezzlement of $10,000, and was sent to State Prison for a year. He is 70 years old and in feeble health.

It has been determined that under no conditions can the deaf learn to speak by association and without effort, as normal children do, but that in every case speech is an acquisition only possible with great and sustained effort on the part of the pupil, assisted by the skill, patience and perseverance of competent teachers.

The investigation into the alleged frauds on the United States customs department in connection with the Canadian export and transit trade is to be extended to take in the sealed railroad cars, which are not inspected at the frontier. The secretary of the treasury is of opinion that the system as now regulated is susceptible of improvement.

Sitting Bull's war club is now in the possession of an Ohio editor. It is a vicious looking weapon, about two and a half feet long, and bears the signs of hard service. In the heavy or "business" end of the club a short buffalo horn is firmly embedded. The old chief gave the relic originally to Elroy Post, the artist, who had made two large paintings of the Indian's favorite ponies.

An exchange tells of a new dodge to take in unsuspecting farmers. It is worked by a couple of alleged hucksters. They call at a farm house and claim that one of their chickens has escaped into the farmer's flock. On receiving permission to retake it, they catch one of the farmer's chickens and get off with it. By this means they can collect quite a load of chickens in a day.

The official announcement of Sir Jas. Hickson's resignation of the general managership of the G.T.R., and the appointment of Mr. A. J. Seargeant as his successor, is contained in a circular issued by Sir Henry Tyler, president of the company, and dated London, December 2. Regret is expressed at the loss of Sir Joseph's services. Sir Joseph has issued a circular to the staff expressing his high appreciation of their services.

At the county judge's criminal court last week, Thomas Kenny was brought before Judge Drew. Kenny was found guilty of stealing $5 from his father. He is a notoriously hard case. The records of seven previous convictions were put in, one of manslaughter, five of assault and one of vagrancy, for which Kenny has already spent over ten years in jail and penitentiary. For the present charge, of which he has been found guilty, robbery of his father with violence, the judge sentenced him to ten years in the penitentiary. In doing so he adverted to his past record, the promises he had made and broken, and the danger to his parents and others of having him at large.—Fergus News-Record.

NORMAL, MODEL AND COMMON SCHOOLS.

Normal and model suggest rule and pattern, and many books have been printed on method. After having been concerned with schools in Canada for 46 years I offer my opinion. I never knew an educated man at a short for ways and words to tell and show what he knew; a learned man destitute of method is one of the unknown quantities. All that are really needed are knowledge and principle, and both are outside of normality. Normal schools long ago lost their novelty, and, as for their [illegible] it still lingers in debate. [illegible] ever, under government [illegible] teachers have no alternative but adherence. I never knew one that [illegible] entered them; never knew one but adhered to their methods when [illegible] out. I am convinced that the institutions in every country are a financial loss and educational blunders. During my thirty years actual teaching in Ontario I visited many schools visited by normal finished men, yet I never saw anything worthy of imitation. The institutions are not suitable for profound study; hence, I never conversed with one from them that could make a logarithm nor one that could start a table of sines and tangents. Never met with one that could resolve any cube into 3 cubes, into 5 or 7 cubes, nor one that could resolve any two given squares, as 49 and 121, into two other squares; yet these nice things are but elementary in these branches of science to which they belong. Would it not be better to teach students the difficulties of science than to show them how to teach what they do not know? There seems to me a glaring absurdity in asking an educated man where he got his knowledge; and one just as ridiculous to ask him if he could teach what he knows! When I started to write I meant to speak about common schools and female teachers, but these I will leave for another letter. JOHN IRELAND,

Deacon, Jan 12, 1891.

SHELBURNE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

There died yesterday in Melancthon a very old lady in the person of Mrs. Sarah Sanford, relict of the late Michael Sanford, aged 101 years and 8 months.

We understand that some parties in the neighborhood of Shelburne are putting out poison for the purpose of destroying certain animals. This is a criminal offence, and the penalties are not trifling.

Harry Sanderson, the victim in the stabbing affray referred to last week has so far recovered as to be able to sit up for a few days last week his life is despaired of. Cole will get his trial today, it is expected.

Last Sunday evening a number of the members of the parents of the United church assembled at their pastor, Rev. J. F Durkee, Shelburne, and presented him with a purse of money, a quantity of oats, potatoes, &c. Both donors and recipient were made happy by this act of kindness.

CARDWELL.

Wood-hens are few and far between this winter. Deacon ditto.

Hugh Brenken and Jack McMaster were risking wood into the Orangeville market last week.

Another social "at home" was held at the residence of Mr. James Arm strong last week.

Mr. and Miss Little, of Chicgnacousy, formerly of the Queen's hotel, Orangeville, are visiting friends around here.

So far this season Mr. Hugh Brenken has not imported any Kentucky trotters. He seems to be going out of the business.

Missionary services were held at the Herald Angel church last Monday night Revs. A. Henderson and W. Greer officiated.

On Friday evening Mr. Ed. Jenkin's residence was the scene of a very delightful party. The evening was wiled away by dancing, etc.

One night last week a large number of friends of Mr. John Laird gathered at his residence and danced the night away. A very enjoyable time was spent.

A number of enthusiastic turfmen are agitating for the formation of a racecourse at or near Cardwell. The site is expected to be on the farm of Mr. James Armstrong.

GLEN CROSS.

Mr. J. S. Armstrong's sawmill has been doing a rattling business lately.

Sleighing on the "Horseshoe Course" is better this winter than it has been for several years. What's the matter, Pan?

Councillor David Still is doing a rushing business in the wood line this winter. He has about two hundred cords.

Mr. Clark is repairing and refitting the old sawmills here, and the buzz of the circular saw will soon be heard again.

Mr. Jim Coulter, of foundry fame, has imported a shingle-mill from Mr Grey, of Laurel, and is about to begin the manufacture of shingles in connection with the grain crushing business. Success, Mr. Coulter

A fire occurred at the residence of Mr. Wm. Nelson, near Salem, at 3 o'clock on Sunday morning. The fire, it is supposed, was caused by a defective chimney, and it burned a hole around the stove and allowed it to drop into the cellar. Bill will will have to get a new stove, while the blaze caused damage to the extent of $12.

Several of the boys of this locality attended church on Sunday evening of last week. The local preacher from Orangeville was just closing the services with prayer when two or three seats were knocked over. The fair sex around here are afraid to go to church in the evenings because the roughs misbehave themselves. If the ignoramuses spent a night in the cooler it might remedy this state of affairs. Such youths are no credit to their parents or to the community in which they live.

Ladies suffering from ailments peculiar to their sex should use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They never fail. Sold by dealers everywhere. Try them.

[illegible] on the order of the day around here.

Sleighing the ground of quietly being, very little hauling being done in the section for sawdust.

On Wednesday of last week Mr. W. Stevens was married to Miss Ella Stirk. The ceremony was performed in the Methodist manse, Orangeville, Rev. H. L. Pearson officiating. After the marriage the young couple with their friends repaired to the Paisley house where a sumptuous repast was partaken of, after which the happy couple drove home. Both bride and groom are well known in this vicinity and will have the best wishes of a host of friends for a long life of wedded bliss.

CANADA FOREVER.—We are pleased when we can record Canadian enterprise, backed by sterling worth and character, and this we do in calling the attention of our customers to the handsome illustrated seed catalogue, of the Steele Bros Co., Toronto, which even excels the splendid one of last year, their premiums are immense and their business national. They offer the latest novelties in Flower, Bulbs, Vegetable and Field Seeds, amongst them we notice Scotia White Cave Oats, an astonishing cropper; Campbell's New White Chaff Spring Wheat, which is so highly [illegible] Thoroughbred White First Corn, highly spoken of by "The Rural New Yorker," and which yielded 50 tons of Ensilage per acre; Burpee's Extra Early Potato the earliest out. They will for only 25c send post paid 1 lb. of above oats, or wheat, or corn, or ½ lb. potatoes and a copy of the catalogue. Send now, it will pay you, or send 25c. for catalogue, which may be deducted from first order.

MR. CAMPBELL'S DEATH.—Robert Peel Campbell, late customs collector for Brampton, died very unexpectedly at Campbell's Cross on Sunday morning last at the residence of his cousin, Mr James Campbell. No man had more friends than poor "Bobby," as he was affectionately termed by his intimates and the downward course of his life during the past few years was the source of much pain to two hundreds who had hoped he would ultimately overcome the demon which finally proved his ruin. The deceased was for many years a member of Brampton council and more than once headed the poll in his ward. He was an ardent Conservative and Orangeman, and was a county master for more than one term. The deceased in his youth met with an accident which deformed him and left him a victim to periodical illness, when he suffered much pain, a condition which probably had much to do in giving birth to a habit which at first gave relief, but afterwards proved his ruin. If ever the mantle of charity should be thrown over the faults of an erring brother, it should over those of the deceased, for a more tender hearted, kindly gentleman never breathed His universal courtesy and good nature were proverbial. The funeral took place on Tuesday, when the brethren of Brampton Orange Lodge No. 10 and many from outside points attended and paid their last respects.—Brampton Banner.

HORTICULTURAL.—The annual meeting of the Orangeville Horticultural Society was held on Thursday evening, 8th inst. After the directors' report of the transactions of the society for the past year, the officers for the ensuing year were elected, as follows: Judge McCarthy, honorary president; Dr. Smith, president; Robert Mann, vice-president; Wm. Judge, sec.-treas.; John Crozier, John McLaren, Geo. Nicholson, John Mitchell, J. W. Young, H. Gillespie, Chas. Scott, Geo. Endacott, Wm. Judge, directors; W. T. Bailey, Thos. Measdam, auditors. This society has been for some years in affiliation with the county agricultural society, holding with it a joint exhibition in the fall. At this meeting it was decided to separate from the county society during the current year, and to hold a midsummer show under the auspices of the Horticultural Society, at a date to be hereafter fixed. At a meeting of the directors the president, vice president, secretary and Mr. Crozier were appointed a committee to solicit subscriptions and to report at a meeting to be held at the Mechanics' Institute reading room on Thursday evening, 5th March. We wish the society every success in its new departure.

Director of ceremonies—Bro. W. Johnson, L. O. L. 1,125.

Lecturer—Bro. W. R. Chisholm, L. O. L. 1,331.

REMOVED TO CLEVELAND, O.—The office of the American Farmer, the valuable journal which is still being offered free to the readers of THE SUN, has been removed to Cleveland, O., where in its new field the American Farmer will be better able to meet the requirements of its rapidly increasing National circulation. Many valuable improvements and new features are contemplated by the management of the American Farmer during the coming year, making the paper more valuable to its readers. The regular subscription price of the American Farmer will remain as heretofore $1.00 per year.

EXCHANGE ECHOES.

Mr. Thomas Murray, ex M.P.P., has been appointed sheriff of Renfrew.

The corporation of the county of Lennox and Addington has instructed Messrs. Deroche & Mathieu, solicitors, to issue a writ against Mr. J. M Parrot, county treasurer, for $15,000 penalty under a bond and for an account and for an injunction.

Geo. M. Bartholomew, formerly president of the Charter Oak Life Insurance Company of Hartford, Conn., who fled to Canada some years ago, returned to Hartford Tuesday, pleaded guilty to embezzlement of $10,000, and was sent to State Prison for a year. He is 70 years old and in feeble health.

It has been determined that under no conditions can the deaf learn to speak by association and without efforts, as normal children do, but that in every case speech is an acquisition only possible with great and sustained effort on the part of the pupil, assisted by the skill, patience and perseverance of competent teachers.

The investigation into the alleged frauds on the United States customs department in connection with the Canadian export and transit trade is to be extended to take in the sealed railroad cars, which are not inspected at the frontier. The secretary of the treasury is of opinion that the system as now regulated is susceptible of improvement.

Sitting Bull's war club is now in the possession of an Ohio editor. It is a vicious looking weapon, about two and a half feet long, and bears the signs of hard service. In the heavy or "business" end of the club a short buffalo horn is firmly embedded. The old chief gave the relic originally to Elroy Post, the artist, who had made two large paintings of the Indian's favorite pouise.

An exchange tells of a new dodge to take in unsuspecting farmers. It is worked by a couple of alleged hucksters. They call at a farm house and claim that one of their chickens has escaped into the farmer's flock. On receiving permission to retake it, they catch one of the farmer's chickens and get off with it. By this means they can collect quite a load of chickens in a day.

The official announcement of Sir Jas. Hickson's resignation of the general managership of the G.T.R., and the appointment of Mr. A. J. Seargeant as his successor, is contained in a circular issued by Sir Henry Tyler, president of the company, and dated London, December 2. Regret is expressed at the loss of Sir Joseph's services. Sir Joseph has issued a circular to the staff expressing his high appreciation of their services.

At the county judge's criminal court last week, Thomas Kenny was brought before Judge Drew. Kenny was found guilty of stealing $5 from his father. He is a notoriously hard case. The records of seven previous convictions were put in, one of manslaughter, five of assault and one of vagrancy, for which Kenny has already spent over ten years in jail and penitentiary. For the present charge, of which he has been found guilty, robbery of his father with violence, the judge sentenced him to ten years in the penitentiary. In doing so he adverted to his past record, the promises he had made had broken, and the danger to his parents and others of having him at large.—Forest News-Record.

MARKETABLE BEEF AND MUTTON.

The last fat stock show held at Guelph apart from the excellence of the animals and of their feeding, has come too soon for all interested in live stock. The absence of any number of heavy cattle was a marked feature. Too or twenty years ago there were a whole row of massive steers, three and four years old, that would reach each one [illegible] pounds live weight. Fifty years ago such animals shown on Guelph market would weigh from twenty five to twenty fifty hundred weight. Most such have been rare for many years. At this show just past, the feature of the cattle exhibits was the long row of yearlings, steers and heifers, all under two years old, and weighing many of them from ten to twelve hundred, at an average of about twenty months. In the good old days the prize animal was sold for about 15 cents per pound live weight. A York shilling (12½ cents) per pound was a usual price for those near the top, and when it came that a lower price than this had to be accepted for the prize animal, it was considered that the bottom was out of the market. This year the two-penny animal was sold for nine cents. The trade has changed. The heavy, very fat animals are not wanted, unless it be a single one for a Christmas show, to deck the stall and help sell the leaner and more palatable beef of the younger and lighter animals. The exhibitors had recognized this fact, and the lot of yearlings was a practical illustration. At the banquet, one of the judges, Alderman Frankland, of Toronto, spoke of the same fact, and told the breeders and feeders present, that the animal wanted for the English market was a young, well-fed animal, weighing about twelve hundred pounds live weight. Not over that, and that for such there was an unlimited demand at higher prices than would be paid for heavier animals. He advised keeping the calf well fed and growing, and getting the animal in good shipping shape while young.—R. A. in The Canadian Live Stock and Farm Journal.

MEDICAL SCIENCE.

A Wonderful Discovery That Will Benefit Thousands of Sufferers.

The civilized world has recently been deeply agitated over the announcement that Dr. Koch, an eminent German physician, had discovered a lymph for the cure of consumption. This discovery has been heralded throughout the world, and is looked upon as one of the greatest achievements of modern medical science. Of equal, if not greater importance, is a discovery made by a well-known Canadian druggist, which, while it does not pretend to cure consumption after the lungs have been affected, is offered with every confidence as a preventative of that disease. Medical testimony bears out the statement that more than two-thirds of the cases of consumption occurring in this country annually, are of catarrhal origin. The trouble begins with a cold in the head, which the sufferer treats as a light matter, and too frequently neglects. This in time invariably develops into catarrh; the mucous membrane becomes thickened; inflamed and hardened, and there is a profuse discharge of watery and poisonous matter from the nostrils, or else the poisonous secretions become hardened. In either case the breath is inhaled over this poisonous matter, and produces baleful results. The inflamation gradually extends to the bronchial tubes, and thence to the lungs, which, already poisoned and weakened by the foul breath inhaled, are ripe for that dread disease—consumption, which ends in death. A remedy that will prevent these disastrous consequences must be regarded as a boon to mankind, and, as already stated, such a remedy has been discovered by a Canadian druggist. There is no case of cold in the head which it will not instantly relieve and permanently cure. Do not, for an instant, neglect a cold in the head, for, by its prompt treatment, you will prevent its developing into catarrh—the second stage on the road to the grave. If, however, catarrh has already developed, the use of this great remedy will prove equally beneficial, as it affords speedy relief, and will affect a certain cure, even in the most aggravated cases. If persistently used. It removes the secretions, frees the clogged nostrils, and sweetens the breath, stops the inflamation and thus saves the lungs and prevents the disease developing into consumption. This great discovery is known and sold throughout the country under the name of Nasal Balm. It is a positive and certain cure, and the thousands of testimonials in the hands of the proprietors prove that it is all they claim for it. It is [illegible] dollars, and every sufferer from cold in the head or catarrh should use it.

A fire occurred at the residence of Mr. Wm. Nelson, near Salem, at 3 o'clock on Sunday morning. The fire, it is supposed, was caused by a defective chimney, and it burned a hole around the stove and allowed it to drop into the cellar. Bill will will have to get a new stove, while the blaze caused damage to the extent of $12.

Several of the boys of this locality attended church on Sunday evening of last week. The local preacher from Orangeville was just closing the services with prayer when two or three seats were knocked over. The fair sex around here are afraid to go to church in the evenings because the roughs misbehave themselves. If the ignoramuses spent a night in the cooler it might remedy this state of affairs. Such youths are no credit to their parents or to the community in which they live.

Purchasers will receive their periodicals when removed from the file in the reading room. The list of periodicals includes Harper's Monthly, Overland Monthly, Leisure Hour, Puck, Grip, Illustrated News of the World, Dominion Illustrated, etc. ?

A NEW PASTOR.—Rev. H. J. McPhillips, of St. Helen's church, Toronto, succeeds Rev. Father Morris as pastor of St. Peter's R. C. church, Orangeville. Father Morris has been in Orangeville only a year, but during his brief residence here he has made many warm friends, whose best wishes go with him to Newmarket. He expects to leave for his new station to-morrow. His successor, Father McPhillips, as his name indicates, is a genial Irishman and will undoubtedly become very popular with the people of the town.

"RAISE THE FLAG."—We are glad to notice that the words and music of the patriotic song and chorus "Raise the Flag" have been published in sheet form by the Empire. There is a tone and a swing about the composition which should recommend it at once, both from the musical and the patriotic standpoint. It ought to be given into the hands of our children and take a place in the schools with "The Maple Leaf." The words and music were written by Mr. E. G. Nelson, of St John, N. B., in connection with the movement for hoisting the Canadian flag on the schoolhouses of the Dominion. In order to put it within the reach of all, the Empire places the price at 10 cts., and has put the song on sale by all newsdealers.

The funeral took place on Tuesday, when the brethren of Brampton Orange Lodge No. 10 and many from outside points attended and paid their last respects.—Bramptou Banner.

HORTICULTURAL.—The annual meeting of the Orangeville Horticultural Society was held on Thursday evening, 8th inst. After the directors' report of the transactions of the society for the past year, the officers for the ensuing year were elected, as follows: Judge McCarthy, honorary president, Dr. Smith, president; Robert Mann, vice-president; Wm. Judge, sec.-treas.; John Crozier, John McLaren, Geo. Nicholson, John Mitchell, J. W. Young, H. Gillespie, Chas. Scott, Geo. Endacott, Wm. Judge, directors; W. T. Bailey, Thos. Measdam, auditors. This society has been for some years in affiliation with the county agricultural society, holding with it a joint exhibition in the fall. At this meeting it was decided to separate from the county society during the current year, and to hold a midsummer show under the auspices of the Horticultural Society, at a date to be hereafter fixed. At a meeting of the directors the president, vice president, secretary and Mr. Crozier were appointed a committee to solicit subscriptions and to report at a meeting to be held at the Mechanics' Institute reading room on Thursday evening, 5th March. We wish the society every success in its new departure.

MEDICAL SCIENCE.

A Wonderful Discovery That Will Benefit Thousands of Sufferers.

The civilized world has recently been deeply agitated over the announcement that Dr. Koch, an eminent German physician, had discovered a lymph for the cure of consumption. This discovery has been heralded throughout the world, and is looked upon as one of the greatest achievements of modern medical science. Of equal, if not greater importance, is a discovery made by a well-known Canadian druggist, which, while it does not pretend to cure consumption after the lungs have been affected, is offered with every confidence as a preventative of that disease. Medical testimony bears out the statement that more than two-thirds of the cases of consumption occurring in this country annually, are of catarrhal origin. The trouble begins with a cold in the head, which the sufferer treats as a light matter, and too frequently neglects. This in time invariably develops into catarrh; the mucous membrane becomes thickened; inflamed and hardened, and there is a profuse discharge of watery and poisonous matter from the nostrils, or else the poisonous secretions become hardened. In either case the breath is inhaled over this poisonous matter, and produces baleful results. The inflamation gradually extends to the bronchial tubes, and thence to the lungs, which, already poisoned and weakened by the foul breath inhaled, are ripe for that dread disease—consumption, which ends in death. A remedy that will prevent these disastrous consequences must be regarded as a boon to mankind, and, as already stated, such a remedy has been discovered by a Canadian druggist. There is no case of cold in the head which it will not instantly relieve and permanently cure. Do not, for an instant, neglect a cold in the head, for, by its prompt application, you will prevent its developing into catarrh—the second stage on the road to the grave. If, however, catarrh has already developed, the use of this great remedy will prove equally beneficial, as it affords speedy relief, and will effect a certain cure, even in the most aggravated cases, if persistently used. It removes the secretions, frees the clogged nostrils, and sweetens the breath; stops the inflamation and thus saves the lungs and prevents the disease developing into consumption. This great discovery is known and sold throughout the country under the name of Nasal Balm. It is a positive and certain cure, and the thousands of testimonials in the hands of the proprietors prove that it is all they claim for it. It is sold by druggists dealers, and every sufferer from cold in the head or catarrh should use it.

regulated is susceptible of improvement.

Sitting Bull's war club is now in the possession of an Ohio editor. It is a vicious looking weapon, about two and a half feet long, and bears the signs of hard service. In the heavy or "business" end of the club a short buffalo horn is firmly embedded. The old chief gave the relic originally to Elroy Pratt, the artist, who had made two large paintings of the Indian's favorite ponies.

An exchange tells of a new dodge to take in unsuspecting farmers. It is worked by a couple of alleged hucksters. They call at a farm house and claim that one of their chickens has escaped into the farmer's flock. On receiving permission to retake it, they catch one of the farmer's chickens and get off with it. By this means they can collect quite a load of chickens in a day.

The official announcement of Sir Joe. Hickson's resignation of the general managership of the G.T.R., and the appointment of Mr. A. J. Seargeant as his successor, is contained in a circular issued by Sir Henry Tyler, president of the company, and dated London, December 2. Regret is expressed at the loss of Sir Joseph's services. Sir Joseph has issued a circular to the staff expressing his high appreciation of their services.

At the county judge's criminal court last week, Thomas Kenny was brought before Judge Drew. Kenny was found guilty of stealing $5 from his father. He is a notoriously hard case. The records of seven previous convictions were put in, one of manslaughter, five of assault and one of vagrancy, for which Kenny has already spent over ten years in jail and penitentiary. For the present charge, of which he has been found guilty, robbery of his father with violence, the judge sentenced him to ten years in the penitentiary. In doing so he adverted to his past record, the promises he had made and broken, and the danger to his parents and others of having him at large.—Fergus News-Record.

broken and was otherwise injured by the elevator catching him on crossing the basement floor. His escape from instant death was miraculous. He will likely recover.

Jno. A. Graham, foreman bridge builder for the C.P.R. began operations on Tuesday on the new wooden bridge to be placed over the Credit at the Forks. Engineer Hertzberg is superintending the work and about fourteen men are engaged on it.

Last week's storm played havoc with the telephone and telegraph wires, the former suffering most. The line between Arthur and Grand Valley was almost a total wreck. In some instances the weight of ice on the wires caused the posts to snap off like pipestems.

BRUCE, Ont. Jan 10.—While skating on Lake Ontario about two miles from Bruce the afternoon, two boys named Joyce and Helmore Smith, aged 12 and 16 years, respectively, were drowned by breaking through the ice. Both lads resided with their parents in this village.

OTTAWA, Jan. 12—Telegrams by the hundred from all parts of Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific, cablegrams flashed across the Atlantic, messages bearing the kindliest greetings to Canada's premier, and wishing him many happy returns of the day, fairly poured in upon Sir John Macdonald to day. As his countrymen are well aware, the veteran Premier entered on his 77th year to-day, and the hearts of thousands of Canadians must have re-echoed the good wishes borne by the wires, that the great chieftain may long be spared in health and vigour to continue to direct the destinies of Canada.

POWDER MILL Explosion.

A powder mill explosion effects the country for miles round, but dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation, headache, loss of appetite and debility, affect humanity the world over. The Editor of the Mitchell Recorder states that he was cured of biliousness, liver complaint and sick headache, by Burdock Blood Bitters. Is it not worth trying on such evidence?

NASAL BALM

It is a certain and speedy cure for Cold in the Head and Catarrh in all its stages.

SOOTHING, CLEANSING, HEALING.

Instant Relief, Permanent Cure, Failure Impossible.

Many so-called diseases are classed as symptoms of Catarrh, such as loss of smell, partial deafness, loss of memory, mental depression, hawking and spitting, nasal obstruction, dryness, crusts, discharges, ulceration, headache, pain in the face, watering and inflammation of the eyes, and many other symptoms. If you are troubled with any of these or kindred symptoms your loss is Catarrh, and should you not have Catarrh, and should you not take Nasal Balm in preparing a bottle of Nasal Balm. It cures in from one to three months. Sold by druggists or sent by mail, postpaid, on receipt of price, one dollar. Full treatment, including Improved Nasal Douche, $1. Dry powder for Catarrh, Hay Fever and Cold in Head, 50 cents. Nasal Balm is sold by all druggists, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price. Full information and testimonials on request. DR. SLOCUM'S

PURE

Cod Liver Oil

FOR CONSUMPTION, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, SCROFULA, AND ALL PULMONARY DISEASES.

DIRECTIONS.

SHAKE WELL.

Take one tablespoonful half an hour after each meal. If the patient's digestion will not allow tablespoonful use dessertspoonful.

PRICE $1.00.

PREPARED ONLY BY

T. A. SLOCUM,

188 Adelaide St. West,

TORONTO, - ONTARIO.

Among the merits which distinguish Slocum's Oxygenized Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil above all other preparations are:

1st. The excellence of its method of preparation.
2nd. Its freedom from disagreeable taste and odor!
3rd. Its fitness for hypodermic Description!
4th. The thoroughness in which it retains permanently its good qualities.
5th. And the fact that Slocum's Oxygenized Emulsion is the only Cod Liver Oil preparation in the market in which the oil is not mixed with the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, or some other equally injurious foreign substance, and consequently rendered worse than worthless!

All Pulmonary Disorders find Speedy Relief.
If you have any Throat Trouble ..... Use it.
If you have Tightness of the Chest ..... Use it.
If you have Difficulty of Breathing ..... Use it.
If you have a wasting away of Flesh ..... Use it.

If you have Consumption ..... Use it.

THEY WHO USE IT—LIVE !

The approval my OXYGENIZED EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL has met with on the hands of the public is no doubt due in a great degree to the members of the medical profession, who have shown a preference to recommending its use in their daily practice.

If your druggist has not got SLOCUM'S OXYGENIZED EMULSION OF PURE COD LIVER OIL, and will not order it for you, do not take any preparation that contains Lime and Soda. In such case rather obtain of him the Pure Cod Liver Oil, which, though nauseous and repulsive to the taste, does not contain any foreign and injurious substance.

"Twill Be a Great Gathering of Ball Men.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—There will be a great gathering of baseball men from all over the country in this city next week.

The meetings of the National League and the American Association are officially called for Jan. 24, but special meetings and conferences will be held several days before that date and will continue probably a day or two later. The club owners have much hard work before them. There will also be a meeting of the League and Association Conference Committees to settle up the remaining Players' League tangles.

In the Hands of a Receiver.

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 6.—The Atlantic and Danville Railroad Company has been placed in the hands of a receiver on the application of B. Newgass & Co., bankers of London, who hold a judgment against the road for £362,924. It is alleged the road is insolvent. Bateman & Co., who failed recently in New York, were interested in this road.

Killed on a Handcar.

CONNOCTON, Ohio, Jan. 6.—A Pan Handle passenger train tonight, a mile from here, ran into two handcars containing 22 workmen. John Curran and Robert Davis of Steubenville were instantly killed; Silas Burgess of Allegheny was fatally injured. The other men saved themselves by jumping.

Muskoka Petition Dismissed.

BRACEBRIDGE, Jan. 6.—The hearing of the Muskoka election trial and cross-petition came on before Justices Falconbridge and McLennan today. Mr. Ross for the petitioner stated that the evidence not being considered sufficient they had decided to withdraw the case, which was accordingly dismissed with costs to the petitioner. The cross-petition was also withdrawn.

MCCARTHY'S SUIT FOR $30,000.

NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—Willes Hall McCarthy is suing H. W. and G. W. Parker, trustees of the Allotmeat Stock Farm, for $30,000 damages. The suit is now being pressed in the Superior Court. McCarthy claims that he was induced by the Parkers to pay his subscription that he was to receive one-half of the capital stock, 50 shares, and $20,000 in cash. He received one-half of the capital but only $5000 in cash.

The matter was patched up, and it was agreed to sell the stock and pay McCarthy the cash as arranged originally. The sale took place at Madison Square Garden and McCarthy's echoes the horses were bid in by the Parkers at prices far below their value. He never received the cash, and brought this suit for an accounting and to have his rights protected. Counsel for the defense contended that McCarthy overestimated the value of the stock. McCarthy's charges were denied and a claim set up that the court had no jurisdiction in the matter, as the business was carried on in Westchester county. The court reserved decision.

The Canadian Chess Contests.

MONTREAL, Jan. 6.—The Canadian Chess Association tournament opened today. The competitors are, Mr. W. Rollins, Toronto; W. H. Taylor, Ottawa; Mr. A. Short, Montreal, and Mr. J. R. Narroway, Ottawa. Mr. Rollins defeated Mr. Taylor, and the second game was drawn between Messrs. Short and Narroway. The first prize is a cup valued at $100.

Newspaper Decisions.

1. Any person or persons who take a paper regularly from the post office, whether directed in his name or another's, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for payment.
2. If a person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and then collect the whole amount whether the paper is taken or not.
3. The courts have decided that refusing to take a newspaper or periodical from the post office or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intended fraud.

WAITING.

I have not yet been in sight
Of the sunny city of peace;
I have trodden the narrow long street
Of the heavenly Jerusalem;
I have heard with thrilling amazing
The music of my own home;
They are beautiful to the children
Of him who wandered in exile.

I have swept the lawns from the plain
Guard,
And the paper crown that is coming
I have burned each festival night
Of the ransomed order and vine.
I have entered the waiters waste and
Their spacious spots my eye,
But to wait, like my home, for the startings,
And a gush when thought is too high.

Myself I would dress for the pageant;
But there I must stand and weep,
Where the years that touch Love's robes
His watching measures creep.
But words that are spoke or sought,
And wonderful books and ways,
Shall brighten the wasted footsteps
That faint when none did praise.

Then glorious and lordly creature,
Do the trees, when they passed by,
Let down their fair arms to embrace thee,
And the flowers reach up to thine eye?
Do they wait, all silently, when thou passest,
For a touch of thy life divine?
Do they fold their sweet hands when thou fadest,
Or breathe for a breath of thine?

My heart has kept forth to embrace thee;
It clings, like a babe, to thy knees;
And my blood is a storm-stirred ocean
That waits for the word of rest.
Time hears his paltry measures
Now that Love's course draws near,
And the lingering moments that part us
Are sudden in hope and fear.

Oh! what if, beyond thy sunshine,
Some gathering storm should breed?
Thy rapture, trembling, shall leave me
Alone with God's orphanhood.
The heart thou has blest so truly
Shall wait as lingering breath;
Come hither, then, ye who walk twinty;
Be enter here, Love and Death!

AUTUMN.

With shy brown eyes she comes again,
With hair a sunny, silken skein,
As full of light as golden rod;
Love in her voice, love in her nod.
She trends so softly no one knows
The time she comes, the time she goes.

The grass is brown, the leaves begin,
Their gold and crimson dyes to win.
Each cricket sings as loud as can
To drown the noisy locust, when I see come, O cold, to bid us cry
To summer sweet a long good-by.

And when you go the leaves are gone;
The aster's farewell scant is flown,
Poor cupid puts away his wings,
And close to cozy nests clings
The rude wind rushes, with a shout,
The Winter in, the Autumn out.

There's sadness in her dark brown eyes,
Though gay her gown with tawny dyes;
Love's in her voice—but telling most
Of one who's loved, but loved and lost.
She comes so softly no one knows,
The time she comes, the time she goes.

The Story Teller.

A NIGHT IN THE TRANSVAAL.

What Befell a Searcher for Animals.

He Found Them Quite Plentiful and General—Groped Up by a Lion and Treed by a Rhinoceros—A Thick-Skinned Foller of Trees.

On my second trip to Africa as agent of the Hamburg animal house, and one night when encamped on a stream in the Transvaal, there arose a storm of such severity that most of our live stock broke away and ran off in terror. As soon as daylight came we started out to recover the animals. Two horses which I was after led me a long chase, and as I passed over some broken ground close to a mass of rock, my horse stumbled and threw me over his head. I wasn't hurt much by the fall, but the horse acted in a manner unaccountable to me. He ran off at the top of his speed, never heeding my signal calls, and my rifle was strapped to the saddle and my revolvers in the holsters. For a minute I was lost in astonishment at his conduct, but then the mystery was explained in a way to startle me. About five rods off, standing beside a bush, was one of the largest lions I ever saw. He stood facing me, and was switching his tail right and left.

In the mass of rock ten feet to my right was an opening, and I jumped for it and squeezed in just as the lion came up. Luckily for me, at least on this occasion, I was thin in flesh, weighing less than 120 pounds. The whole was very irregular and run back about eight feet, and was tall enough for me to stand up in. It was also lucky that the lion was a big fellow, for he worked his hardest to get at me, and gave up only after fifteen minutes' trial. His head was too big for the opening, and when he reached for me with his paws he fell short by three or four feet. When I first realized that I was safe I regarded the situation as a good joke on the lion, but later on I had reason to change my views.

The lion had been asleep under the bush when I came galloping up. His near presence was what frightened my horse into running off as he did, and the beast had been somewhat confused over the row and had delayed rushing on me until I had gained shelter. When he found me beyond his reach he got very mad and growled and roared and hit at the rocks and I shouted and kicked at him to keep the fun going. After ten or fifteen minutes useless work the lion backed away and lay down in front of my prison, and then I began to realize the situation. It was a hot morning and I was already thirsty, while I had been in such a hurry to leave camp that I had eaten nothing. The rocks were still sloping with the cold of night, my prison was cool, and I could draw the edge of my throat. I then had matches and tobacco, and was not in badly off for a hiding place.

I fully expected the majority to return within an hour or two, so to lay full in the sun, and it is the nature of all the lion tribe to sleep by day and to retire to a shady and secluded spot. I judged my distance from camp to be about six miles, and if any of our people came that way the lion would be pretty sure to make a smash. Up to noon I was unconsciously expecting to hear their approach. It then occurred to me that no one would know exactly which way I went, or how far I had galloped, and they might search for a whole day and not come within miles of me. By high noon the lion was pacing with the heat but he would not move, although there was shade twenty feet away.

I could not stretch out at full length, but I got a comfortable position and fell asleep soon afternoon, and did not open my eyes again until just at sundown. I could not see that the lion had moved an inch, but he lay with his head upon his paws, as if he had also taken a long nap. My people had no doubt searched for me, but they had not come in the right direction, and I might as well prepare to spend the night in the cave. I was very hungry and thirsty by this time. I licked the damp rocks all around me to cool my tongue, but had not a morsel of anything to stay my stomach. With a loose stone I broke off pieces from the rocks and flung them out at the lion, but he only growled and showed his teeth in reply. I then made as if I would crawl out, but he had his head in the opening in an instant, and his eyes were as full of fire that they were almost like lanterns. While the situation was unpleasant, it might be worse, and as my sleep had been broken for several nights I turned in as soon as darkness came down, and was soon oblivious to all things earthly.

Some time in the night I was aroused by the lion roaring and making a great fuss, and I made out that another male was in the neighborhood and challenging him to fight. It was none of my affair however, and after listening for a while I dropped to sleep, and did not wake again until daylight. The first thing I saw as I looked out was my lion. He had not moved a rod, and had lost none of his determination to make a meal off my poor flesh. I was hopeful up to noon, but heard nothing. All the long afternoon I felt sure that help would come, but the sun went down and I was still a prisoner and the lion had not moved. He must be thirsty and hungry and his remaining where he was showed that he possessed a dogged obstinacy unknown to many others of his kind. The nearest water was four miles away. As darkness came I determined to add to the brute's sufferings, and I therefore worked my body as near the opening as I dared to and kicked at him until he was worked into a state of fury. This added to his thirst, and when he finally quieted down he walked about uneasily. Had he trotted off in the direction of the river I should not have dared leave my retreat, as the route to camp was a dangerous one by night, but he did not go.

About nine o'clock in the evening I heard another lion roar close by, and he was instantly answered by my jailer. I had made the old fellow mad all the way through, and he was now anxious to fight. The other must have been in the same frame of mind for it was not ten minutes before he advanced to the attack, and, although I could see nothing I could catch the sounds of a most tremendous struggle. I believe the fight lasted a full half hour, and two or three times the combatants rolled against the mass of rock. They finally drew away, the sounds became fainter, and I went to sleep, hoping for release in the morning. When morning came my jailer was not visible. After taking due precautions against surprise I crept out to find the coast actually clear, and I made a bee-line for camp and reached it without adventure. The men had just got news that a lion had been captured in a pit about two miles away. I went with them after breakfast to get him out, and from certain marks on the body I recognized the animal as the one who had besieged me. We had no more trouble in getting him out than if he had been a dog, but the mystery was explained as we lifted him out. He was half dead with the injuries received in the fight with the other lion. His right eye was destroyed, his jaw fractured, the end of his tongue bitten off, his left hind leg broken, and he had been bitten and clawed in fifty different places. We did not believe that he would ever get well, and therefore killed him for the value of his hide.

About four months later I had an adventure with a black rhinoceros, which the reader may deem worth printing. This beast, as all readers of natural history are aware, is one of the most pugnacious on earth. He never waits to be attacked, but is always on the lookout to attack. He's a true fighter from way back, and will leave off eating to accommodate any thing thing with a welcome. I fully realized his pugnacity, but did not credit him with any great amount of persistency until the incident occurred which I will now proceed to relate.

We were in Quaqua-land, about thirty miles south of Quilimane, on the east coast, and I was one afternoon on foot to locate a spot for a rhinoceros pit. My men, about ten had gone on other errands, and, as I observed no tracks of the animal, took particular notice of the way I went. I followed a broad path through the open forest, alongside a jungle and among a mass, and, the day being cool and fine, I stepped off briskly and had gone at least three miles from camp before I began to look about me for a location. All pits for large animals are dug in current paths, and generally where the game which feed upon trees or crosses a thick jungle. I soon came to a bit of jungle about eighty rods across, and half way down the path I broke off some branches as a sign to the men who would come to dig. I was returning when a big black rhinoceros stepped into the path just where it left the woods. He was headed for me and no doubt saw me at once, as he uttered a snort and charged.

I had forty rods to go to reach the open woods, and about forty the start of the beast. I knew his speed, and I dropped my rifle as I started. I ran as only a man can when his life is at stake, but I was not over six feet ahead of him when I reached the end of the jungle and turned sharply to the right. The rhino was udder a full head of steam, and could not bring up until he had gone a hundred feet ahead of me. I used the short time allotted me to climb a tree, and had only got seated on a branch about twelve feet above the earth when he was beneath me. He had turned quick enough to see me go up. It was lucky for me I got into the tree I did. The soil over its roots was full of rocks, and the trunk of the tree was eighteen inches thick. He first tried to push it down, and it was wonderful to observe his sagacity. Resting his head against the trunk, he swayed his heavy body forward and back, and such was the momentum given that tree that several dead branches above me were broken off and hurled to the ground. A smaller tree, or one growing in light soil, would have been uprooted in three minutes.

When the beast found his efforts as a pusher useless he made a circle of the tree and dug up the soil with his horn. At one spot he encountered a root larger than a man's arm, and this he uncovered a distance of ten feet and then broke it off. The gentle soil kept him at bay in all other places, however, and he finally backed off and remained quietly watching me. I rather enjoyed the adventure for the first hour, but when I suddenly noticed that the sun was getting low I began to get uneasy. I remembered how quietly I had left camp and the distance I was from it, and it dawned upon me that I was in a bad fix. I broke off branches and hurled them at the rhino, but he stamped at his feet and maintained his position. I made believe to drop on the ground, and in his eagerness to get at me he roared up on his end. When I remained quiet he stood stock still, and I finally made up my mind that I was doomed to a night in the forest. I had my hunting knife, but no other weapon. I cut some branches to make my seat more comfortable, peeled a stout rope of bark to tie myself fast, and darkness came before I was nearly ready.

Of all the nights I ever put in on the African continent that was the longest. Darkness brought myriads of insects to bite and sting me; lions roared in a dozen different directions; the chatter of jackals was continuous, and I distinctly felt a serpent creeping along the limbs over my head. During the long night three or four lions passed close to the tree and saluted my guard with hoarse growls, and shortly before day break an animal which I believed to be a ranger or panther would have climbed up after me from the ground had not the rhino chased him away. I was the happiest man in Africa when daylight came at last. The ugly beast stood just below me, lifting his head now and then to see that I had not vanished. I was in a desperate mood and ready to take any chance, and in about ten minutes I gave him a great surprise. Cutting the rope which held me, and taking my knife in my teeth, I dropped plump on the old fellow's broad back, rolled off astern, and before he could comprehend what was going on I grabbed him by the tail and woke him up with the point of the knife. He bolted at once, and he must have been pretty badly scared to go at the pace he did.

EMMA ABBOTT'S WILL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—The will of Emma Abott, the opera singer, was filed for probate to-day. The greater portion of the estate goes to relatives and friends. Nine churches, including Plymouth and the Brooklyn tabernacle, receive $5,000 each. The residue of the estate goes to build half a dozen charitable institutions, and to ladies who are requested to use their shares in charity. The will directs that Miss Abbott's body be tested by electricity to ascertain if life is extinct, and then to be cremated.

THE BLACK WATCH.

How the Prowess of Scotland's Soldiery Came to be Recognized.

But many of those who have of late been amazed with the prowess and valor displayed by the sons of the sister Highlands, perhaps never even suspected why regiment is so named this. The Black Watch. Yet in these words are contained a short story of the origin and course of the renowned regiment of the early days. In the last quarter of the eighteenth century, when Black Duff held the position of superintendent of the government forces in the Highlands, the name of the borderlands was such that "robber people were without in great droves under authority to steer off one by chancellor and tumultuous incursions of blackmail." In every district was some Highland hamlet, who called themselves "tenants of the thieves," and whose fellows were known by that name. With him a go-between communicated, and such as wished to deal with the wild borderers company paid the stipulated sum, while those who declined these irregular contracts had to find their own protection. The significance of the title watch was two-fold. Their duties were to see that those who paid were not molested, and to make it certain that those who did not should be plundered without fail. Thus these corps throughout the Highlands became a recognized institution, and comprised in all a considerable body of men, who were inured to every hardship, and who knew no mode of life but that of war. In time the Duke of Montrose and others pressed upon the government the necessity of taking the country out of the hands of these lawless tax gatherers, and it was consequently determined to enrol from among the Highlanders themselves certain bands of the frontier police. Accordingly in the year 1729 a number of loyal Highlanders were formed into six independent companies, and the officers were taken chiefly from the clans Campbell, Grant and Munro. To these, as a matter of course, the local name of Watch descended, and as they continued to wear the dress of the country—which consisted so much of black, blue and green tartan—they were soon known as Freiceadan Du (Black Watch), in contradistinction to Soldaras Dearag, or red soldiers. Ten years later, when England was agitated by the question whether the Spaniards had or had not cut off an ear from the head of the smuggler Capt. Jenkins, and when it was resolved that the matter was to be decided by war instead of ocular demonstration, King George II. issued a royal warrant incorporating the six companies of the Black Watch into a regiment, and gave the command to Col. John, Earl of Crawford. In the month of May following, these companies, with four others newly raised, were assembled in a field between Inverbridge and Aberfeldy, and constituted into the Highland regiment.

THE AGE OF DISCOVERY!

What a Canadian Has Done to Relieve Suffering Humanity.

The civilized world has recently been startled and amazed at the announcement that Dr. Kern, an eminent German physician, had discovered a lymph for the cure of consumption. This discovery has been heralded throughout the world, and attracted upon its one of the greatest achievements of modern medical science. Of equal, if not greater importance, is a discovery made by a well known Canadian druggist, which, while it does not pretend to cure consumption, when the lungs have been affected, is offered with every confidence as a preventative of that disease. Medical testimony bears out the statement that more than two-thirds of the cases of consumption occurring in this country annually, are of catarrhal origin. The trouble begins with a cold in the head, which the sufferer treats as a light matter, and too frequently neglects. This in time invariably develops into catarrh; the mucous membrane becomes thickened; inflamed and hardened, and there is a profuse discharge of watery and poisonous matter from the nostrils, or else the poisonous secretions become hardened. In either case the breath is inhaled over this poisonous matter, and produces baleful results. The inflamation gradually extends to the bronchial tubes, and thence to the lungs, which, already poisoned and weakened by the foul breath inhaled, are ripe for that dread disease—consumption, which ends in death. A remedy that will prevent these disastrous consequences must be regarded as a boon to mankind, and, as already stated, such a remedy has been discovered by a Canadian druggist. There is no case of cold in the head which it will not instantly relieve and permanently cure. Do not, for an instant, neglect a cold in the head, for, by its prompt treatment, you will prevent its developing into catarrh—the second stage on the road to the grave. If, however, catarrh has already developed, the use of this great remedy will prove equally beneficial, as it affords speedy relief, and will affect a certain cure, even in the most aggravated cases, if persistently used. It removes the secretions, frees the clogged nostrils, and sweetens the breath, stops the inflamation and thus saves the lungs and prevents the disease developing into consumption. This great discovery is known and sold throughout the country under the name of Nasal Balm. It is a positive and certain cure, and the thousands of testimonials in the hands of its proprietors prove that it is all they claim for it. It is sold by all dealers, and every sufferer from cold in the head or catarrh should use it.

A strange and painful incident occurred to William McGillivray, a typo employed in the Brantford Expositor office. The first "take" of news handed him to set was a telegraphic despatch stating that his brother had been burned to death at Midland.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Health's Defenses. None save the strongest can with impunity pass through the sudden transitions from wet to dry, from cold to muggy weather so prevalent during the autumnal and early winter months. Influenza, bronchitis, cough, sore throat, or quinsy will attack the most watchful of their health; but they can readily arrest any of these complaints by rubbing Holloway's Ointment twice a day upon the skin over the affected parts, and by assisting its corrective action with appropriate doses of his Pills. This well-known, safe, and easy mode of treatment efficiently protects the invalid both from present and future danger without weakening or even disturbing the system in the slightest degree.

Mrs. Bailey Lupton, an old lady aged about 72 years, who has been a resident of Kimmerdrille, adjoining Rockfort, for a number of years, was found lying on the floor of her house last Thursday. Fears of foul play are entertained, Lupton, her husband, being under the influence of liquor and unable to tell a very straight story. The old couple were comfortably well off and have no family.

A NIGHT IN THE TRANSVAAL.

What Befell a Searcher for Animals.

He Found Them Quite Plentiful and Somewhat—Caught Up by a Lion and Trued by a Rhinoceros—A Thick-Skinned Foller of Trees.

On my second trip to Africa as agent of the Hamburg animal house, and one night when encamped on a stream in the Transvaal, there arose a storm of such severity that most of our live stock broke away and ran off in terror. As soon as daylight came we started out to recover the animals. Two horses which I was after led me a long chase, and as I passed over some broken ground close to a mass of rock, my horse stumbled and threw me over his head. I wasn't hurt much by the fall, but the horse acted in a manner unaccountable to me. He ran off at the top of his speed, never heeding my signal calls, and my rifle was strapped to the saddle and my revolvers in the holsters. For a minute I was lost in astonishment at his conduct, but then the mystery was explained in a way to startle me. About five rods off, standing beside a bush, was one of the largest lions I ever saw. He stood facing me, and was switching his tail right and left.

In the mass of rock ten feet to my right was an opening, and I jumped for it and squeezed in just as the lion came up. Luckily for me, at least on this occasion, I was thin in flesh, weighing less than 120 pounds. The whole was very irregular and ran back about eight feet, and was tall enough for me to stand up in. It was also lucky that the lion was a big fellow, for he worked his hardest to get at me, and gave up only after fifteen minutes' trial. His head was too big for the opening, and when he reached for me with his paws he fell short by three or four feet. When I first realized that I was safe I regarded the situation as a good joke on the lion, but later on I had reason to change my views.

The lion had been asleep under the bush when I came galloping up. His near presence was what frightened my horse into running off as he did, and the beast had been somewhat confused over the row and had delayed rushing on me until I had gained shelter. When he found me beyond his reach he got very mad and growled and roared and bit at the rocks and I shouted and kicked at him to keep the fun going. After ten or fifteen minutes useless work the lion backed away and lay down in front of my prison, and then I began to realize the situation. It was a hot morning and I was already thirsty, while I had been in such a hurry to leave camp that I had eaten nothing. The rocks were my house, my bed was my couch, my table was spread with a plenty of good things for my appetite, but I was a prisoner, and the lion was my jailer. My people had no doubt searched for me, but they had not come in the right direction, and I might as well prepare to spend the night in the cave. I was very hungry and thirsty by this time. I licked the damp moss all around me to cool my tongue, but had not a morsel of anything to stay my stomach. With a loose stone I broke off pieces from the rocks and flung them out at the lion, but he only growled and showed his teeth in reply. I then made as if I would crawl out, but he had his head in the opening in an instant, and his eyes were as full of fire that they were almost like lanterns. While the situation was unpleasant, it might be worse, and as my sleep had been broken for several nights I turned in as soon as darkness came down, and was soon oblivious to all things earthly.

Some time in the night I was aroused by the lion roaring and making a great row, and I made out that another male was in the neighborhood and challenging him to fight. It was none of my affair however, and after listening for awhile I dropped to sleep, and did not waken again until daylight. The first thing I saw as I looked out was my lion. He had not moved a rod, and had lost none of his determination to make a meal off my poor flesh. I was hopeful up to noon, but heard nothing. All the long afternoon I felt sure that help would come, but the sun went down and I was still a prisoner and the lion had not moved. He must be thirsty and hungry and his roaming where he was showed that he possessed a dogged obstinacy unknown in many others of his kind. The nearest water was four miles away. As darkness came I determined to add to the brute's sufferings, and I therefore worked my body as near the opening as I dared to and kicked at him until he was worked into a state of fury. This added to his thirst, and when he finally quieted down he walked about uneasily. Had he trotted off in the direction of the river I should not have dared leave my retreat, as the route to camp was a dangerous one by night, but he did not go.

About nine o'clock in the evening I heard another lion roar close by, and he was instantly answered by my jailer. I had made the old fellow mad all the way through, and he was now anxious to fight. The other must have been in the same frame of mind for it was not ten minutes before he advanced to the attack, and, although I could see nothing I could catch the sounds of a most tremendous struggle. I believe the fight lasted a full half hour, and two or three times the combatants rolled against the mass of rock. They finally drew away, the sounds became faister, and I went to sleep, hoping for release in the morning. When morning came my jailer was not visible. After taking due precautions against surprise I crept out to find the coast actually clear, and I made a bee-line for camp and reached it without adventure. The men had just got news that a lion had been captured in a pit about two miles away. I went with them after breakfast to get him out, and from certain marks on the body I recognized the animal as the one who had besieged me. We had no more trouble in getting him out than if he had been a dog, but the mystery was explained as we lifted him out. He was half dead with the injuries received in the fight with the other lion. His right eye was destroyed, his jaw fractured, the end of his tongue bitten off, his left hind leg broken, and he had been bitten and clawed in fifty different places. We did not believe that he would ever get well, and therefore killed him for the value of his hide.

About four months later I had an adventure with a black rhinoceros, which the reader may deem worth printing. This beast, as all readers of natural history are aware, is one of the most pugnacious on earth. He never waits to be attacked, but is always on the lookout to attack. He's a true fighter from way back, and will leave off eating to accommodate any living thing with a scrimmage. I fully realized his pugnacity, but did not credit him with any great amount of persistency until the

I had forty rods to go to reach the open woods, and when forty the start of the foliage I knew his speed, and I dropped my rifle as I started. I was go only a man can when his life is at stake, but I was not over six feet ahead of him when I reached the end of the jungle and turned sharply to the right. The rhino was under a full head of steam, and could not bring up until he had gone a hundred feet ahead of me. I used the short time allotted me to climb a tree, and had only got seated on a branch about twelve feet above the earth when he was beneath me. He had turned quick enough to see me go up. It was lucky for me I got into the tree I did. The soil over its roots was full of rocks, and the trunk of the tree was eighteen inches thick. He first tried to push it down, and it was wonderful to observe his sagacity. Resting his heavy body forward and back, and such was the momentum given that tree that several dead branches above me were broken off and buried to the ground. A smaller tree, or one growing in light soil, would have been uprooted in three minutes.

When the beast found his efforts on a pusher useless he made a circle of the tree and dug up the soil with his horn. At one spot he encountered a root larger than a man's arm, and this he uncovered a distance of ten feet and then broke it off. The gentle soil kept him at bay in all other places, however, and he finally backed off and remained quietly watching me. I rather enjoyed the adventure for the first hour, but when I suddenly noticed that the sun was getting low I began to get uneasy. I remembered how quickly I had left camp and the distance I was from it, and it dawned upon me that I was in a bad fix. I broke off branches and hurled them at the rhino, but he stamped his feet and maintained his position. I made believe to drop on the ground, and in his eagerness to get at me he reared up on his end. When I remained quiet he stood stock still, and I finally made up my mind that I was doomed to a night in the forest. I had my hunting knife, but no other weapon. I cut some branches to make my seat more comfortable, peeled a stout rope of bark to tie myself fast, and darkness came before I was nearly ready.

Of all the nights I ever put in on the African continent that was the longest. Darkness brought myriads of insects to bite and sting me; lions roared in a dozen different directions; the chatter of jackals was continuous, and I distinctly felt a serpent creeping along the limbs over my head. During the long night three or four lions passed close to the tree and saluted my guard with hoarse growls, and shortly before day break an animal which I believed to be a cougar or panther would have climbed up after me from the ground had not the rhino chased him away. I was the happiest man in Africa when daylight came at last. The ugly beast stood just below me, lifting his head now and then to see that I had not vanished. I was in a desperate mood and ready to take any chance, and in about ten minutes I gave him a great surprise. Cutting the rope which held me, and taking my knife in my teeth, I dropped plump on the old fellow's broad back, rolled off astern, and before he could comprehend what was going on I grabbed him by the tail and woke him up with the point of the knife. He bolted at once, and he must have been pretty badly scared to go at the pace he did.

EMMA ABBOTT'S WILL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—The will of Emma Abott, the opera singer, was filed for probate to-day. The greater portion of the estate goes to relatives and friends. Nine churches, including Plymouth and the Brooklyn tabernacle, receive $5,000 each. The residue of the estate goes to build half a dozen charitable institutions, and to ladies who are requested to use their charm in charity. The will directs that Miss Abbott's body be tested by electricity to ascertain if life is extinct, and then to be cremated.

THE AGE OF DISCOVERY!

What a Canadian Has Done to Relieve Suffering Humanity.

The civilized world has recently been deeply agitated over the announcement that Dr. Koch, of Germany, German physician, had at last found a remedy for the cure of consumption. This disease has been dreaded throughout the world, and fastened upon as one of the greatest achievements of modern medical science. Of equal, if not greater importance, is a discovery made by a well-known Canadian druggist, which, while it does not pretend to cure consumption after the lungs have been affected, is offered with every confidence as a preventative of that disease. Medical testimony bears out the statement that more than two-thirds of the cases of consumption occurring in this country annually, are of catarrhal origin. The trouble begins with a cold in the head, which the sufferer treats as a light matter, and too frequently neglects. This in time invariably develops into catarrh; the mucous membrane becomes thickened; inflamed and hardened, and there is a profuse discharge of watery and poisonous matter from the nostrils, or else the poisonous secretions become hardened. In either case the breath is inhaled over this poisonous matter, and produces baleful results. The inflamation gradually extends to the bronchial tubes, and thence to the lungs, which, already poisoned and weakened by the foul breath inhaled, are ripe for that dread disease—consumption, which ends in death. A remedy that will prevent these disastrous consequences must be regarded as a boon to mankind, and, as already stated, such a remedy has been discovered by a Canadian druggist. There is no case of cold in the head which it will not instantly relieve and permanently cure. Do not, for an instant, neglect a cold in the head, for, by its prompt treatment, you will prevent its developing into catarrh—the second stage on the road to the grave. If, however, catarrh has already developed, the use of this great remedy will prove equally beneficial, as it affords speedy relief, and will affect a certain cure, even in the most aggravated cases, if persistently used. It removes the secretions, frees the clogged nostrils, and sweetens the breath, stops the inflamation and thus saves the lungs and prevents the disease developing into consumption. This great discovery is known and sold throughout the country under the name of Nasal Balm. It is a positive and certain cure, and the thousands of testimonials in the hands of its proprietors prove that it is all they claim for it. It is sold by all dealers, and every sufferer from cold in the head or catarrh should use it.

A strange and painful incident occurred to William McGillivray, a typo employed in the Brantford Expositor office. The first "take" of news handed him to set was a telegraphic despatch stating that his brother had been bounced to death at Midland.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Health's Defences. None save the strongest can with impunity pass through the sudden transitions from wet to dry, from cold to muggy weather so prevalent during the autumnal and early winter months. Influenza, bronchitis, cough, sore throat, or quinsey will attack the most watchful of their health; but they can readily arrest any of these complaints by rubbing Holloway's Ointment twice a day upon the skin over the affected parts, and by assisting its corrective action with appropriate doses of his Pills. This well-known, safe, and easy mode of treatment efficiently protects the invalid both from present and future danger without weakening or even disturbing the system in the slightest degree.

Mrs. Bailey Lupton, an old lady aged about 70 years, who has been a resident of Kimmondville, adjoining Scarforth, for a number of years, was found lying on the floor of her house last Thursday. Fears of foul play are entertained, Lupton, her husband, being under the influence of liquor and unable to tell a very straight story. The old couple were comfortably well off and have no family.

A smaller tree, or one growing in light soil, would have been uprooted in three minutes.

When the beast found his efforts unavailing he made a circle to the tree and dug up the soil with his horn. At one spot he encountered a root larger than a man's arm, and this he uncovered a distance of ten feet and then broke it off. The gentle soil kept him at bay in all other places, however, and he finally tired of and remained quietly watching me. I rather enjoyed the adventure for the first hour, but when I suddenly noticed that the sun was getting low I began to get uneasy. I remembered how quietly I had left camp and the distance I was from it, and it dawned upon me that I was in a bad fix. I broke off branches and buried them at the rhino, but he stamped his feet and maintained his position. I made believe to drop on the ground, and in his eagerness to get at me he reared up on his end. When I remained quiet he stood stock still, and I finally made up my mind that I was doomed to a night in the forest. I had my hunting knife, but no other weapon. I cut some branches to make my seat more comfortable, peeled a stout rope of bark to tie myself fast, and darkness came before I was nearly ready.

Of all the nights I ever put in on the African continent that was the longest. Darkness brought myriads of insects to bite and sting me; lions roared in a dozen different directions; the chatter of jackals was continuous, and I distinctly felt a serpent creeping along the limbs over my head. During the long night three or four lions passed close to the tree and saluted my guard with hoarse growls, and shortly before day break an animal which I believed to be a ranger or panther would have climbed up after me from the ground had not the rhino chased him away. I was the happiest man in Africa when daylight came at last. The ugly beast stood just below me, lifting his head now and then to see that I had not vanished. I was in a desperate mood and ready to take any chance, and in about ten minutes I gave him a great surprise. Cutting the rope which held me, and taking my knife in my teeth, I dropped plump on the old fellow's broad back, rolled off astern, and before he could comprehend what was going on I grabbed him by the tail and woke him up with the point of the knife. He bolted at once, and he must have been pretty badly scared to go at the pace he did.

EMMA ABBOTT'S WILL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—The will of Emma Abott, the opera singer, was filed for probate to-day. The greater portion of the estate goes to relatives and friends. Nine churches, including Plymouth and the Brooklyn tabernacle, receive $5,000 each. The residue of the estate goes to build half a dozen charitable institutions, and to ladies who are requested to use their shares in charity. The will directs that Miss Abbott's body be tested by electricity to ascertain if life is extinct, and then to be cremated.

Ten years later, when England was agitated by the question whether the Spaniards had or had not cut off an ear from the head of the smuggler Capt. Jenkins, and when it was resolved that the matter was to be decided by war instead of similar demonstration, King George II. issued a royal warrant incorporating the two companies of the Black Watch into a regiment, and gave the command to Col. John, Earl of Crawford. In the month of May following, three companies, with four others newly raised, were assembled in a field between Cupridge and Aberfeldy, and constituted into the Highland regiment.

THE AGE OF DISCOVERY!

When a Remedy Can Be Found to Relieve Suffering Humanity.

The civilized world has recently been startled throughout over the announcement that the long sought for medicinal German preparation, said to contain a specific for the cure of consumption, has been discovered. This discovery has been heralded throughout the world, and knocked upon the door of the profession of medicine of modern medical science, for expert, if not positive, recognition, in a discovery made by a well known German druggist, which, while it does not pretend to cure consumption, when the lungs have been affected, is offered with every confidence as a preventative of that disease. Medical testimony bears out the statement that more than two-thirds of the cases of consumption occurring in this country annually, are of catarrhal origin. The trouble begins with a cold in the head, which the sufferer treats as a light matter, and too frequently neglects. This in time invariably develops into catarrh; the mucous membrane becomes thickened; inflamed and hardened, and there is a profuse discharge of watery and poisonous matter from the nostrils, or else the poisonous secretions become hardened. In either case the breath is inhaled over this poisonous matter, and produces baleful results. The inflamation gradually extends to the bronchial tubes, and thence to the lungs, which, already poisoned and weakened by the foul breath inhaled, are ripe for that dread disease—consumption, which ends in death. A remedy that will prevent these disastrous consequences must be regarded as a boon to mankind, and, as already stated, such a remedy has been discovered by a Canadian druggist. There is no case of cold in the head which it will not instantly relieve and permanently cure. Do not, for an instant, neglect a cold in the head, for, by its prompt treatment, you will prevent its developing into catarrh—the second stage on the road to the grave. If, however, catarrh has already developed, the use of this great remedy will prove equally beneficial, as it affords speedy relief, and will effect a certain cure, even in the most aggravated cases, if persistently used. It removes the secretions, frees the clogged nostrils, and sweetens the breath, stops the inflamation and thus saves the lungs and prevents the disease developing into consumption. This great discovery is known and sold throughout the country under the name of Nasal Balm. It is a positive and certain cure, and the thousands of testimonials in the hands of its proprietors prove that it is all they claim for it. It is sold by all dealers, and every sufferer from cold in the head or catarrh should use it.

A strange and painful incident occurred to William McGillivray, a typo employed in the Brantford Expositor office. The first "take" of news handed him to set was a telegraphic despatch stating that his brother had been burned to death at Midland.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Health's Defences. None save the strongest can with impunity pass through the sudden transitions from wet to dry, from cold to muggy weather so prevalent during the autumnal and early winter months. Influenza, bronchitis, cough, sore throat, or quinsey will attack the most watchful of their health; but they can readily arrest any of these complaints by rubbing Holloway's Ointment twice a day upon the skin over the affected parts, and by assisting its corrective action with appropriate doses of his Pills. This well-known, safe, and easy mode of treatment efficiently protects the invalid both from present and future danger without weakening or even disturbing the system in the slightest degree.

Mrs. Bailey Lupton, an old lady aged about 70 years, who has been a resident of Ramsondville, adjoining Seaforth, for a number of years, was found lying on the floor of her house last Thursday. Fears of foul play are entertained, Lupton, her husband, being under the influence of liquor and unable to tell a very straight story. The old couple were comfortably well off and have no family.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

An effort sent out by the Provincial Government of Quebec, to immigrate the unexplored forests of the North-ern Ottawa region reports his discovery of about 2,500 square miles covered with fine white pine, spruce, and other valuable timber, with excellent streams to float it out.

Last week the Toronto Globe sup-plied a number of country Reform newspapers with a report of Sir Dick Cartwright's blue-ruin speech, which he delivered at Chatham a few weeks ago. The people are becoming very discrimi-nating in this tinted carpet bagger's rant, and in nearly every instance his speech-es have little or no effect. The people of Canada will treat the country's mon-ument with Sir John A. Macdonald, and Sir Dick or his fellow politicians need not apply for a few years yet.

THE MAYOR'S MESSAGE.

His Address to the Council—New Members Take their Seats—Valuable Suggestions Contained in the Mayor's Clever Speech.

The members of the town council for 1891 assembled at the council chamber on Monday morning. Shortly after 11 o'clock his worship Mayor Walsh called the city legislators to order, and after [illegible] and you in accord with me.

I cannot conclude the hope that we will be able to secure new additions to our manufacturing industries this year. The low latitude as from numerous manufactories who are already located anxious to remain here by promising them. The office of city is to labor in this direction, and with those who are not already established in business, but who are looking for a favorable home from some place to induce them to enter the ranks of the manufacturers. These are generally men who are without capital or experience, and who expect to commence business with the money which the municipality gives them and quit when that is all gone. We are better off without them.

I would like to see our leading roads put in decent shape this year. The prosperity of the town depends upon the extent to which the farming community can be brought to do their trading and marketing here. We must encourage this trade by offering to the farmer good roads over which to carry their loads. Unless we do this they will come here just as little as they can. I trust that the Road and Bridge committee will develop a wise course of action in this direction.

While the condition of the town is such as to demand the closest economy at our hands consistent with the proper administration of the affairs of the corporation, it is not to be had when compared with other municipalities so to give an income so far for the future. On the contrary, we have every have an good faith in our town, for, according to the last report of the Bureau of Industries, Orangeville's rate of taxation per head of the population is lower than that of any city or town in Ontario with three exceptions. Surely that is a standing to be proud of. With prudence and enterprise characterizing the council and faith in the place manifested by its citizens, there is no reason why Orangeville should not prosper and be the habitation of that prosperity I trust that

TOWN COUNCIL.

The Pathway East and Gravelbrow Very Quietly Settled—The Committees.

When Chief Thomas came up the town hall and opened the door of the council chamber on Monday evening there were present the mayor, reeve and deputy reeve and Ald. Green, Gillespie, Petitt, Young, Colbourne and Kershaw. Ald. Tennant and Adamson putting in an appearance shortly after.

The new members ranged themselves alongside Ald. Colbourne on the south side of the table, and as they are a striking handsome lot and had their hair brushed for the occasion, the impression one on entering the room is that he has inadvertently stepped into an art gallery. A study of the mantle decorations of the seventies, however, soon convinces the observer that they are men of substance and influence.

As the newspaper rolls had been mislaid, some beyond conjecture, Mr. Andrew Hawkins offered to take them in hand and locate the lost and blunder that had occurred some or two stolen sometime during '90. Henry Flanter also applied for the reporter's ship, and last but not least came Dick Mortimer's modest request for the appointment. He would perform the work properly—and be satisfied with less than $300 this time. The applications were referred to the Assessment committee.

Ald. Kershaw called attention to the fact that lot 13, Kershaw's survey, (E. Beatty's property) did not appear on the roll. He also mentioned several other omissions, and later on THE SUN cover Mines presented a list of oversights. This again was supplemented by a few

WADSWORTH WAS HERE.

A Second Sixteen Shot Theory Exploded—So is a Third.

A considerable number of interest was aroused by the appearance of a young Englishman in Wadsworth from Wallenberg a short time ago. All sorts of stories were in circulation regarding Wadsworth's disappearance, as it was said he had three thousand dollars in his possession when he left Wallenberg. A number of papers announced the theory that it was a second Birdall case. Mine Host Thos. Tupper enlightened from London, Eng., nothing information about the matter. Not a trace of the Englishman could be found until the night of the 21st December, when he occupied a bed of the Commercial hotel here. He was also in Orangeville on New Year's day and went to bed at the same hotel in the evening. He got out some time during the night and left without paying his hotel bill. On the 2nd of this month he appeared he went out to the farm of Mr. Benj. Bradley, brother of Deputy-postmaster Bradley, in Eastgeorge, about six miles from town. He remained there that night, and when he left next morning it was found he had taken a purse and $9.50 from a coat that was in the room he occupied. While in the country he said he wanted to purchase a small farm, horses, sheep, etc. He also stated he came from Michigan, where he made himself very unpopularly and where he had resided previously to coming to Wallenberg. At anyrate Wadsworth has disappeared from around Orangeville, and the people who have been victimized by his

TRAMPING ACROSS AFRICA.

Chapter XXIII.

Hunting Lions in Mashonaland.

Lions are very plentiful in Mashonaland, and I had a good deal of sport with them. I shot a good many, and had some very exciting adventures. I will now give a few of the most interesting.

I had ridden out one morning with a Kaffir boy to a place where I had seen a lot of game the day before, and had shot a wildebeest. I had left the carcass there, and was returning to it to cut some meat off it, when I saw a lion and lioness feeding on it. I had no rifle with me, but I had a Kaffir boy who was carrying a rifle for me, and I had him with me. I had ridden on ahead of him, and was alone when I came in view of the lions. I had no fear of them, and I rode on to within about 200 yards of them before they left the carcass and walked into the bush. I then dismounted and waited for my boy to come up. When he came I gave him the rifle and told him to hold my horse while I went after the lions. I had no fear that they would attack us, as I had never heard of a lion attacking a party of mounted men. We had a long chase before we came up with the lions, and they kept on walking and not hurrying themselves much. At last we came to a small patch of open ground with a few bushes on it, and I saw the lioness standing in the shade of a bush looking back at us. I told my boy to hold the horse, and I took the rifle and crept on to the open ground to get a shot at the lioness. I had to cross about 50 yards of open ground, and I was in full view of the lioness all the time. She did not move until I had crossed the open ground and was within 50 yards of the bush she was in, when she turned and walked into the bush. I had seen the lion lying down in the bush, but could not see his head. I had to cross a small stream to get into the bush, and I had to stand on the bank of the stream and throw stones into the bush before I could induce the lion to move. At last he got up and came out of the bush on the other side of the stream, and I had a good chance of a shot at his shoulder as he stood broadside on to me. He ran off at the top of his speed, never heeding my signal calls, and my rifle was strapped to the saddle and my revolvers in the holsters. For a minute I was lost in astonishment at his conduct, but then the mystery was explained in a way to startle me. About five rods off, standing beside a bush, was one of the largest lions I ever saw. He stood facing me, and was switching his tail right and left.

In the mass of rock ten feet to my right was an opening, and I jumped for it and squeezed in just as the lion came up. Luckily for me, at least on this occasion, I was thin in flesh, weighing less than 120 pounds. The whole was very irregular and ran back about eight feet, and was tall enough for me to stand up in. It was also lucky that the lion was a big fellow, for he worked his hardest to get at me, and gave up only after fifteen minutes' trial. His head was too big for the opening, and when he reached for me with his paws he fell short by three or four feet. When I first realized that I was safe I regarded the situation as a good joke on the lion, but later on I had reason to change my views.

The lion had been asleep under the bush when I came galloping up. His near presence was what frightened my horse into running off as he did, and the beast had been somewhat confused over the row and had delayed rushing on me until I had gained shelter. When he found me beyond his reach he got very mad and growled and roared and bit at the rocks and I shouted and kicked at him to keep the fun going. After ten or fifteen minutes useless work the lion looked away and lay down in front of my prison, and then I began to realize the situation. It was a hot morning and I was already thirsty, while I had been in such a hurry to leave camp that I had eaten nothing. The rocks were to fight. The other must have been in the same frame of mind for it was not ten minutes before he advanced to the attack, and, although I could see nothing I could catch the sounds of a most tremendous struggle. I believe the fight lasted a full half hour, and two or three times the combatants rolled against the mass of rock. They finally drew away, the sounds became fainter, and I went to sleep, hoping for release in the morning. When morning came my jailer was not visible. After taking due precautions against surprise I crept out to find the coast actually clear, and I made a bee-line for camp and reached it without adventure. The men had just got news that a lion had been captured in a pit about two miles away. I went with them after breakfast to get him out, and from certain marks on the body I recognized the animal as the one who had besieged me. We had no more trouble in getting him out than if he had been a dog, but the mystery was explained as we lifted him out. He was half dead with the injuries received in the fight with the other lion. His right eye was destroyed, his jaw fractured, the end of his tongue bitten off, his left hind leg broken, and he had been bitten and clawed in fifty different places. We did not believe that he would ever get well, and therefore killed him for the value of his hide.

About four months later I had an adventure with a black rhinoceros, which the reader may deem worth printing. This beast, as all readers of natural history are aware, is one of the most pugnacious on earth. He never waits to be attacked, but is always on the lookout to attack. He's a true fighter from way back, and will leave off eating to accommodate any living thing with a scrimmage. I fully realized his pugnacity, but did not credit him with any great amount of persistency until the African contest that was the longest. Darkness brought myriads of insects to bite and sting me; lions roared in a dozen different directions; the chatter of jackals was continuous, and I distinctly felt a serpent creeping along the limbs over my head. During the long night three or four lions passed close to the tree and saluted my guard with hoarse growls, and shortly before day break an animal which I believed to be a ocager or panther would have climbed up after me from the ground had not the rhino chased him away. I was the happiest man in Africa when daylight came at last. The ugly beast stood just below me, lifting his head now and then to see that I had not vanished. I was in a desperate mood and ready to take any chances, and in about ten minutes I gave him a great surprise. Cutting the rope which held me, and taking my knife in my teeth, I dropped plump on the old fellow's broad back, rolled off astern, and before he could comprehend what was going on I grabbed him by the tail and woke him up with the point of the knife. He bolted at once, and he must have been pretty badly scared to go at the pace he did.

EMMA ABBOTT'S WILL.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—The will of Emma Abott, the opera singer, was filed for probate to-day. The greater portion of the estate goes to relatives and friends. Nine churches, including Plymouth and the Brooklyn tabernacle, receive $5,000 each. The residue of the estate goes to build half a dozen charitable institutions, and to ladies who are requested to use their shares in charity. The will directs that Miss Abbott's body be tested by electricity to ascertain if life is extinct, and then to be cremated.

Africa's Great Remedy.

Dr. Livingstone, Stanley, Emin Pasha and other celebrated travellers in Africa, speak of the great benefit they derived from the use of Holloway's Pills and Ointment. These famous preparations are the best known remedies for the diseases of Africa, and should be used by all travellers in that country and adjoining districts, as they are the most efficacious and easily administered of any medicines known to civilized nations.

Cold in the Head.

Catarrh is the first stage of Consumption, which ends in death. A remedy that will prevent these disastrous consequences must be regarded as a boon to mankind, and, as already stated, such a remedy has been discovered by a Canadian druggist. There is no case of cold in the head which it will not instantly relieve and permanently cure. Do not, for an instant, neglect a cold in the head, for, by its prompt treatment, you will prevent its developing into catarrh—the second stage on the road to the grave. If, however, catarrh has already developed, the use of this great remedy will prove equally beneficial, as it affords speedy relief, and will affect a certain cure, even in the most aggravated cases, if persistently used. It removes the secretions, frees the clogged nostrils, and sweetens the breath, stops the inflammation and thus saves the lungs and prevents the disease developing into consumption. This great discovery is known and sold throughout the country under the name of Nasal Balm. It is a positive and certain cure, and the thousands of testimonials in the hands of its proprietors prove that it is all they claim for it. It is sold by all dealers, and every sufferer from cold in the head or catarrh should use it.

A strange and painful incident occurred to William McGillivray, a typo employed in the Brantford Expositor office. The first "take" of news handed him to set was a telegraphic despatch stating that his brother had been burned to death at Midland.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Health's Defences. Home save the strongest can with impunity pass through the sudden transitions from wet to dry, from cold to muggy weather so prevalent during the autumnal and early winter months. Influenza, bronchitis, cough, sore throat, or quinsy will attack the most watchful of their health; but they can readily arrest any of these complaints by rubbing Holloway's Ointment twice a day upon the skin over the affected parts, and by assisting its corrective action with appropriate doses of his Pills. This well-known, safe, and easy mode of treatment efficiently protects the invalid both from present and future danger without weakening or even disturbing the system in the slightest degree.

Mrs. Bailey Lupton, an old lady aged about 70 years, who has been a resident of Kennoville, adjoining Seaforth, for a number of years, was found lying on the floor of her house last Thursday. Fears of foul play are entertained, Lupton, her husband, being under the influence of liquor and unable to tell a very straight story. The old couple were comfortably well off and have no family.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

AN effort must out by the Provincial Government of Quebec to immortalize the energetic forests of the Northern Ottawa region reports his discovery of about 2,500 square miles covered with a fine growth of spruce, and other valuable timber, with excellent streams to float it out.

MANY wait the Toronto Globe supplied a number of country Reform newspapers with a report of Sir Dick Cartwright's Hamilton speech, which he delivered at Chatham a few weeks ago. The people are becoming weary listening to this tiresome expert burgoo's rant, and in nearly every instance his speeches have little or no effect. The people of Canada will treat the country's management with Sir John A. Macdonald, and Sir Dick or his fellow politicians need not apply for a few years yet.

THE MAYOR'S MESSAGE.

His Annual Address to the Council—New Members Take their Seats—Valuable Suggestions Contained in the Mayor's Clever Speech.

The members of the town council for 1891 assembled at the council chamber on Monday morning. Shortly after 11 o'clock his worship Mayor Walsh called the civic legislators to order, and, after showing them to their proper chairs, he read his annual address. There were present Mayor Walsh, Reeve Lindsey, Deputy reeve Endscott, Ald. Youmans, Ketchum, North Ward; Fiddis, Young, South ward; Cobean, Adamson, East ward; Green and Gillespie, West ward.

A committee consisting of Messrs. Lindsey, Endscott, Youmans, Cobean, Fiddis and Gillespie was appointed to strike the standing committees, and the council adjourned until 7:30 in the evening. A report of the evening's proceedings will be found in each of our columns.

HIS WORSHIP'S ADDRESS was as follows:

GENTLEMEN, — Before proceeding with the regular business of the meeting, I wish to mention a few matters of more or less importance which will come before us during the course of the year, and respecting which I have some suggestions to make.

Our electric light contract will expire this fall. The responsibility of making a new agreement for the lighting of the streets, rests by reason of the existing contract, or substitution for it, will devolve upon us. I will go in at once the necessary [illegible] and submit upon this important matter in due time.

Debentures amounting to $8,000 will fall due on the 1st of September next. These are the debentures which were issued to the town to Stevenson & Graham. They will be met by a new issue of debentures under the Act consolidating the debt of the town. I think it would be advisable to make the new debentures payable in instalments, if we have the power to do so, as in this way the inconvenience of dealing with a sinking fund will be avoided.

Under By-law 328 it will be necessary for us to appoint an overseer of highways, whose duties are of such import that we should make it imperative that we find you in accord with us.

I cannot conceive the hope that we will be able to encourage any additions to our manufacturing industries this year. The law forbids us from bonusing manufacturers who are already located elsewhere to remove here by bonusing them. The effect of this is to bolster up into common competition with them those who are not already established in business, but who are looking for a large bonus from some place to induce them to enter the ranks of the manufacturers. These are generally men who are without capital or experience, and who expect the manufacturing business with the money which the municipality gives them and quit when that is all gone. We are better off without them.

I would like to see our leading roads put in decent shape this year. The prosperity of the town depends upon the extent to which the farming community can be brought to do their trading and marketing here. We must encourage this trade by offering to the former good roads over which to carry their loads. Unless we do this they will come here just as little as they can. I trust that the Road and Bridge committee will develop a wise course of action in this direction.

While the condition of the town is such as to demand the closest economy at our hands consistent with the proper administration of the affairs of the corporation, it is not so bad when compared with other municipalities as to give us reason to fear for the future. On the contrary, we have every have to have faith in our town, for, according to the last report of the Bureau of Industries, Orangeville's rate of taxation per head of the population is lower than that of any city or town in Ontario with three exceptions. Surely that is a standing to be proud of. With prudence and enterprise characterizing the council and faith in the place manifested by its citizens, there is no reason why Orangeville should not prosper and to the attainment of that prosperity I trust that the actions and deliberations of the council of 1891 will be no small measure conducive.

SALEM.

Miss Patterson, the new school mistress boards at Mr. Brown's and is well liked by the pupils.

Miss Henderson, who has taught school here for two years, removed to Orangeville, last Thursday.

Mr. Joseph Foster has been elected school trustee in place of John Adair, who has removed to Corbetton. The school board is constituted of Messrs. Joseph Foster, Wm. Allen and Isaac Pearson—all good men.

Your Glen Cross correspondent reported the conflagration that occurred at the residence of Wm. Nelson last week. The insurance company assessed the damage at $40, and Mr. Nelson was allowed that amount.

Missionary services were held in St. George's church here on Thursday evening last, and were well attended. Rev. Mr. Hart, of Cardwell, and Henderson, of Orangeville, conducted the services and preached eloquent sermons.

SHELBURNE.

[illegible]

Mr. Simpson, of Orangeville, occupied the pulpit of Shelburne Methodist church last Sunday, the pastor, Rev. R. McFarlane, being at Bellwood.

Mr. A. McLaggart, V. S., of Shelburne, was bitten by one of his horses on Monday. The animal seized him by the side and bolted so that requisition the services of Dr. Burton to put in a few stitches.

On Monday last Joseph Watson appeared before Magistrates Graham and Dunbar charged with disturbing the Salvation Army meeting on the night of the stabbing affray. Watson, it will be remembered, is the man who [illegible]

Local Intelligence.

THE SUN will not be issued next week.

The market was crowded with wood on Tuesday.

A meeting of the board of trade was held on Tuesday evening.

Miss A. Doyle, of Toronto, is paying Orangeville friends a visit.

East Garafraxa township printing comes to THE SUN office this year.

The Dufferin county council will meet in this town on Tuesday, the 27 inst.

Mr. J. W. Simpson and family are removing from Mono Centre to Orangeville.

Those indebted to W. J. Price are requested to call and settle their accounts at once.

You should carefully peruse Bookless, Haley & Co's ad. in this issue, as they announce a general bargain sale.

The annual meeting of the Canadian Press Association will be held at Toronto the 13th and 14th of next month.

New Scott commissioners are being appointed throughout Ontario, but so far no changes have been announced for Dufferin.

Mr. Thos. Hall will refit off three of the famous Fairchild vanning machines in the building east of the Paisley house to-morrow evening.

Thomas Little, an old man who has resided in Mono for the past twenty years, was on Saturday committed to jail for vagrancy by P. M. Pettitte.

Attention is directed to the advertisement of Hughes Brothers, the well known merchant tailors of this town. If you want a nobby suit give this firm a call.

The Empire's patriotic army flag for Dufferin, which was won by Master John Kearns, will be raised at the public school a week from to-morrow. The scholars are being taught patriotic songs to celebrate the event.

The public should remember that half of this county sheet is not printed at Hamilton or Toronto, but is entirely made up in Orangeville. Therefore, if you want to keep posted in local happenings you should subscribe for THE SUN.

On Tuesday [illegible] and contents of Mr. [illegible] grocery, corner of Mr. [illegible] Broadway and Tower streets, were destroyed by fire. The fire was caused by Mr. Keys accidentally upsetting a lantern while doing up the shutters.

TOWN CAPTAIN.—Mr. Thomas Dick, of Detroit, son of Mr. David Dick of this town, and formerly on the gentlemen staff here, was married last week to Miss Lillie F. Wickens, a charming belle of that city. Tom's many friends around here will be pleased to learn that he enjoys a lucrative situation in Detroit and they extend their best wishes.

OUR HOLIDAY.—THE SUN will take its Christmas holiday next week, consequently the issue of that week will be a day later than usual.

WEDDING AT MONO MILLS.—A very happy event took place at St. John's church, Mono Mills, on Wednesday, it being the marriage of Mr David McMullen of Toronto, to Miss Maggie Patterson of Albion. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. C. Watt, pastor of St. John's, in the presence of a large company of friends. The bride, who was handsomely attired in a dress of cream dress cloth trimmed to match, was assisted by Miss Annie McMullen, and the groom was supported by Mr. John Patterson. Presents both hand some and costly testified the esteem in which the young couple are held. The happy pair left on a bridal tour, a large number of friends accompanying them to Orangeville and wishing them many years of wedded bliss.

THE "CASTLE" (CROWDED.—"Castle" O., daughter of the late Dr. Tuck, Rev. A. Gandanus, pastor of St. Mark's church, tied the nuptial knot in the presence of a few intimate friends. The presents were many and expensive. The happy couple spent their honeymoon in the Queen city and have taken up their residence on Third avenue. Paradise!

HIRE THAT BELL!—Complaints are constantly reaching this office about the way the town bell is rung these times. It should be rung at least two minutes, but instead of that it scarcely sounds a sufficient length of time to be distinguishable from the clatter of carriages on Broadway. If the present employee has not enough muscle to pull the string for at least two minutes some one who should be selected to the rope. The services demanded from the waterworks engineer are not so fatiguing that he need shirk this particular duty. Ring the town bell!

GIVE US A HINT.—This from an exchange expresses our sentiments exactly: "Many persons feel offended because their comings and goings are not mentioned, while others are, and wonder what the matter was be. The explanation of the matter is that the editor means to be impartial, but must occupy information. The likes and dislikes of an editor have nothing whatever to do with it and while it is not pretended the edition is more than human, he knows the success of his paper depends on his fairness and impartiality to all. No one feels worse about any coming unless or impartial performances of duty than himself." If you know of any one coming or going give us a hint.

THE NAUGHTY GIRL.—The naughty girl, who was mentioned in THE SUN's last issue as having victimized several storekeepers out of shoes and overshoes, has also injured the reputation of an innocent young lady. While getting the overshoes the unknown victimizer gave the name of Miss Coulson, a domestic at Mr. G. H. Hawkins'. The police and a clerk employed at one of the stores where the bogus Miss Coulson visited called at Mr. Hawkins' residence to identify the alleged swindler, but the young lady there was not the person. Miss Coulson and her parents are very respectable people, the latter residing in East Garafraxa, and it has greatly annoyed them to have their names in any way connected with the case.

TOWN COUNCIL.

The Printers Bill and Grumbler—A Very Quiet Session—The Committees.

When Chief Smith ran up the flag and sounded the shell and summoned to the council chamber on Monday evening there were present the mayor, reeve and deputy reeve and Ald. Green, Gillespie, Fiddis, Young, Cobean and Ketchum. Ald. Youmans and Adamson putting in an appearance shortly after.

The new members ranged themselves alongside Ald. Cobean on the south side of the table, and as they were a striking looking lot and had their hair trimmed for the occasion, the impression one receives upon entering the room is that he has inadvertently stepped into an art gallery. A study of the mobile features of the newly-elect, however, soon convinces the observer that they are men of action—not noddowers.

As the aforementioned rolls had been mangled almost beyond recognition, Mr. Andrew Hughes offered to take them in hand and locate the hits and blocks that had swayed away or were stolen sometime during '90. Harry Fisher also applied for the assessorship, and lest but not least came Dick Mortimer's modest request for the appointment. He would perform the work properly—and be satisfied with ten thou $500 this time. The applications were referred to the Assessment committee.

Ald. Ketchum called attention to the fact that lot 18, Kenyon's survey, (R. Beatty's property) did not appear on the roll. He also mentioned several other omissions, and later on Tax gatherer Minns presented a list of oversights. This again was supplemented by a few more blunders discovered by the worship (after the elections). The whole bag of tricks was referred to the Assessment committee as quietly and quickly as possible.

On behalf of the "gentlemen" who are getting up the ball to compete with New York's 400 on the 27th inst, Mr. Wilson applied for a rebate on the usual rent on account of having to decorate the town hall. The latters argument that a "clean up" would be beneficial, and decided "to give up" $2 provided no champagne corks were left lying about.

The following accounts were referred: Musgrove Bros., $18; R. Allen, $1 25; R. Allen, $1 55. H. Fisher's account of $5 50 was ordered paid, as was also that of T. G. Porter, 50c; W. Frenlis, $2 96 and George Grey, $2 34.

The following report was adopted on motion of Reeve Lindsey. The first named is chairman of the committee to which he is assigned:

FINANCE—Ketchum, Endscott, Green.
ROAD AND BRIDGES—Adamson, Fiddis, Gillespie, Cobean, Lindsey.
TOWN PROPERTY—Endscott, Ketchum, Young.
ASSESSMENT—Green, Lindsey, Endscott.
PRINTING—Youmans, Cobean, Adamson.
CHARITY—Cobean, Young, Youmans.
CEMETERY—Ketchum, Young, Gillespie.
FIRE AND WATER—Gillespie, Fiddis, Adamson.
STREET LIGHTING—Fiddis, Cobean, Endscott.

The F. and W. committee recommended the payment of the following accounts: W. Little, $27 56; James McDonald, $2 72; H. S. Tome, $4 12.

A communication from C. S. King in reference to the emptying of the town sewer into the mill race was referred to the B. and S. committee.

A by-law to appoint officers for the current year was introduced and read a first and second time.

WADSWORTH WAS HERE.

A Second Division Case Theory Exploded—He is a Thief.

A considerable amount of interest was caused by the appearance during progress of a young Englishman around Wadsworth from Walkerton a short time ago. All sorts of stories were in circulation regarding Wadsworth's disappearance, as it was said he had stolen thousand dollars in the possession when he left Walkerton. A member of the press advanced the theory that he was a special Baseball man. Even Sir Chas. Tupper autographed from London, Eng., asking information about the matter. But a trace of the Septimus would be found until the night of the 31st December, when he accosted a bad of the Commercial hotel here. He was also in Orangeville on New Year's day and went to bed at the same hour in the evening. He got up some time during the night and left without paying his hotel bill. On the 2nd of the month it appears he went out to the farm of Mr. Benj Bradley, brother of postmaster Bradley, in East Garafraxa, about six miles from town. He remained there that night, and when he left next morning it was found he had taken a purse and $9 50 from a vest that was in the room he occupied. While in the country he said he wanted to purchase a small farm, horses, sheep, etc. He also stated he came from Michigan, where his uncle formed very extensively and where he had resided previously to coming to Walkerton. At current Wadsworth has disappeared from around Orangeville, and the people who have been victimized by him hope he and all of his kind will give this town a wide berth in future.

THE CARNIVAL.

At Balmoral Rink on Monday Evening was a Grand Success.

Balmoral rink was all aglow with electric light on Monday night last, and, as Manager Smyth announced, the carnival of the season was to be held there that evening. The managers, as well as the spectators, were very numerous, the capacity of the rink being taxed to its utmost.

The principal race of the evening was a three mile contest between Jno. Foster, Wm. Irvine and B. Hobbs, for a beautiful silver tea-urn. The rules governing this trophy is that a competitor has to win it three times before it becomes his property. Hobbs won it a few weeks ago, but this time Foster came in first, Irvine second and Hobbs last. In the boys race (under 16) Willie Shields captured the prize, as did Johnny Irving in the barrel race. The other prize winners were: Race, lady and gent, H. Hobbs and Maggie Irving; boys race, S. Kennedy; most graceful lady skater, Jessie Carter; prettiest costumed lady, Mills Wayte; best comical costume, C. W. Rumsey; best costumed clown, G. Campbell; prettiest costumed flower girl, Jessie Duff. The following boys backed among the managers: Night, Fred McHarris; flower-girl, Jennie Duff; snow ball, Louis Hessner; flower girl, May Graham; Swiss maid, Minnie Carey; eight, Sam Foley; judge, Ellis Shields; Egyptian lady, Annie Irving; cows, Nellie McLean; winter, Tessie Rose; sailor, Dan Mann; flower girl, Nellie Wetherup; Queen Anne, Annie Quinn; cow, Emma McLean; flower girl, Minnie Morton; Japanese lady, Miss Wayte; dairy maid, Emma Foley; flower girl, Hattie Williamson; maid of honor, Frances Harris; red riding hood, Annie Foster.

CHARLESTON.

A correspondent of the Sentinel of Kent county will appear shortly.

Mr. W. J. Dayes is confined to his house with an attack of la grippe.

Miss Tessie Hart has gone to Orangeville to take a course at music here.

The friends of Mr. Jas. Lamb will be glad to hear that he is gradually recovering from his late serious illness.

The sympathy of their many friends in this vicinity will go out to Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Dayes in the loss of their little one whose death took place on Sunday last.

CAMILLA.

E. J. Gibson was delivering merchandise in Camilla with a severe attack of la grippe. We hope he may soon recover.

Rev. G. B. Morley, formerly of Camilla, is holding meetings in Stayner a day or two at a time. All are cordially invited.

The programme of the weekly meeting of the Debating Society was adjudicated. Debate, "resolved that an agricultural country is to be preferred to a manufacturing one," was decided in favor of the negative. The attendance needs to be greatly increased, and we wish it would come up to return to prosperity.

The long concert under the auspices of the A. O. U. W. of this place was a decided success. The spacious hall was filled till there was scarcely standing room. Dr. Barr occupied the chair. The Orangeville orchestra took a leading part, and Miss Riley gave a recitation that was thoroughly appreciated. Uncle Scotch songs by Mr Baird carried all before them. Walter Scarrow came forward with an excellent reading and Mr. Geo. Reid brought down the house by two comic songs. The Workmen are to be congratulated.

GRAND VALLEY.

The night school has been closed for the season.

The last snowstorm blocked up the roads around here.

Frank Stark, the skater, is now a resident of Columbus, Ohio.

Election of officers of the I. O. F. took place on Friday of last week.

Dr. Hopkins has purchased the brick residence lately occupied by George Tough.

Rev. Mr. Elliott has accepted a call from the Prince' Corners Presbyterian church.

A barload of horses was recently shipped from Grand Valley. Poor prices were paid.

Jack Mann, a good specimen of the tramp kind, who broke into the school house here, has been sent to jail for thirty days.

Mrs. Arthur Atkinson, who has been an invalid for some time, died on Thursday. Funeral took place at South Luther on Sunday.

Ac Richardson, of Pa., was in town on Monday week for a chance of water claimed by Mr. Hobbs, as replevin, and was included in the division court case. The case was referred to the county court to money.

MONO CENTRE.

Dame Rumor has it that we may expect the marriage bells to ring again before long.

On Tuesday the residence of John Bentley, Esq., "Bentville Farm," was the scene of a very happy event, being the marriage of his daughter Miss Beatrice, to Mr. James Anderson, of Cardale. ## THE MAYOR'S MESSAGE.

His Annual Address to The Council—New Members Take their Seats—Valuable Suggestions Contained in the Mayor's Clever Speech.

The members of the town council for 1891 assembled at the council chamber on Monday morning. Shortly after 11 o'clock his worship Mayor Walsh called the civic legislators to order, and, after showing them to their proper chairs, he read his annual address. There were present Mayor Walsh, Reeve Lindsey, Deputy reeve Endscott, Ald. Youmans, Ketchum, North Ward; Fiddie, Young, South ward; Cobean, Adamson, East ward; Green and Gillespie, West ward.

A committee consisting of Messrs. Lindsey, Endscott, Youmans, Cobean, Fiddie and Gillespie was appointed to strike the standing committees, and the council adjourned until 7.30 in the evening. A report of the evening's proceedings will be found in another column.

HIS WORSHIP'S ADDRESS

ran as follows:

GENTLEMEN, — Before proceeding with the regular business of the meeting, I wish to mention a few matters of more or less importance which will come before us during the course of the year, and respecting which I have some suggestions to make.

Our electric light contract will expire this fall. The responsibility of making a new agreement for the lighting of the streets, either by renewal of the existing contract or in substitution for it, will devolve upon us. I will ask to [illegible] upon it shortly of time.

Debentures amounting to $5,000 will fall due on the 1st of September next. These are the debentures which were issued by the town to Stevenson & Graham. They will be met by a new issue of debentures under the Act consolidating the debt of the town. I think it would be advisable to make the new debentures payable in instalments, if we have the power to do so, as in this way the inconvenience of dealing with a sinking fund will be avoided.

Under By-law 338 it will be necessary for us to appoint an overseer of highways, whose duties are of such importance as to make it imperative that we should secure a thoroughly good man for the position. The appointment must be made by the date of the first meeting of the council in April. I would suggest that before that date the enumeration to be paid to this official be fixed and that an advertisement be then published calling for applications for the position, which, after being considered by the Road and Bridge committee, shall be forwarded to the council with such recommendation as the committee may see fit to make.

In this connection I would draw the attention of the gentleman who may be appointed chairman of the Road and Bridge committee to this By-law 338, which clearly defines his duties. This is a new by-law, which has not yet received a trial, but as I am satisfied that a thorough compliance with all of its provisions will be of benefit to the town, I will insist upon a strict adherence to it.

In my inaugural address to the council of 1890 I advised that more consideration should be given to the appointment of an assessor than had formerly been the case. My advice was ignored, but I am not, by reason of that, deterred from repeating it. My experience of this appointment has been that upon the night upon which the selection is made the names of all of the applicants are for the first time laid before the council. This important office is then filled from a number of applicants as to whose fitness for the position no opportunity for investigation is afforded. Of course some of the applicants are known before then through the canvassing to which they subject the members of the council, but this does not apply to all of them. There is no appointment which should secure such mature consideration as this because there is no municipal officer invested with such authority as the assessor. I think that some such plan as I have suggested with reference to the appointment of an overseer might be followed with advantage in the selection of an assessor. I sincerely trust that you will do something in this direction. Whatever you do should be done to-night, as we must make the appointment at our first meeting in February. I venture to suggest that you will secure a more satisfactory assessment if you pay decently for the work. The law allows the assessor seventy-five days in which to do his work, and it takes him all that time and sometimes longer. For this he has heretofore been paid $80 or about $1·06 per day. That is, that the most important municipal duty is performed at a lower rate of wages than the most menial labor of the most unskilled corporation employee commands. No wonder that our assessment rolls are unsatisfactory when the man who compiles them could make bigger wages driving nails into a sash! I am prepared to support a proposition to pay $150 to a thoroughly competent person, and I would be very much pleased to [illegible]

THE MAYOR'S MESSAGE.

His Annual Address to the Council—New Members Take their Seats—Valuable Suggestions Contained in the Mayor's Clever Speech.

The members of the town council for 1891 assembled at the council chamber on Monday morning. Shortly after 11 o'clock his worship Mayor Walsh called the civic legislators to order, and, after showing them to their proper chairs, he read his annual address. There were present Mayor Walsh, Reeve Lindsay, Deputy reeve Endicott, Ald. Yeomans, Ketchum, North Ward; Fiddis, Young, South ward; Coburn, Adamson, East ward; Green and Gillespie, West ward.

A committee consisting of Messrs. Lindsay, Endicott, Yeomans, Coburn, Fiddis and Gillespie was appointed to strike the standing committees, and the council adjourned until 7:30 in the evening. A report of the evening's proceedings will be found in another column.

HIS WORSHIP'S ADDRESS

was as follows:

GENTLEMEN, — Before proceeding with the regular business of the meeting, I wish to mention a few matters of more or less importance which will come before us during the course of the year, and respecting which I have some suggestions to make.

Our electric light contract will expire this fall. The responsibility of making a new agreement for the lighting of the streets, either by renewal of the existing contract or by substitution for it, will devolve upon us. I will see to it that the necessary [illegible] are ready and open to notice early of time.

Debentures amounting to $6,000 will fall due on the 1st of September next. These are the debentures which were issued by the town to Stevenson & Graham. They will be met by a new issue of debentures under the Act consolidating the debt of the town. I think it would be advisable to make the new debentures payable in installments, if we have the power to do so, as in this way the inconvenience of dealing with a sinking fund will be avoided.

Under By-law 338 it will be necessary for us to appoint an overseer of highways, whose duties are of such importance as to make it imperative that we should secure a thoroughly good man for the position. The appointment must be made by the date of the first meeting of the council in April. I would suggest that before that date the enumeration to be paid to this official be fixed and that an advertisement be then published calling for applications for the position, which, after being considered by the Road and Bridge committee, shall be forwarded to the council with such recommendation as the committee may see fit to make.

In this connection I would draw the attention of the gentleman who may be appointed chairman of the Road and Bridge committee to this By-law 338, which clearly defines his duties. This is a new by-law, which has not yet received a trial, but as I am satisfied that a thorough compliance with all of its provisions will be of benefit to the town, I will insist upon a strict adherence to it.

In my inaugural address to the council of 1890 I advised that more consideration should be given to the appointment of an assessor than had formerly been the case. My advice was ignored, but I am not, by reason of that, deterred from repeating it. My experience of this appointment has been that upon the night upon which the selection is made the names of all of the applicants are for the first time laid before the council. This important office is then filled from a number of applicants as to whose fitness for the position no opportunity for investigation is afforded. Of course some of the applicants are known before then through the canvassing to which they subject the members of the council, but this does not apply to all of them. There is no appointment which should secure such mature consideration as this because there is no municipal officer invested with such authority as the assessor. I think that some such plan as I have suggested with reference to the appointment of an overseer might be followed with advantage in the selection of an assessor. I sincerely trust that you will do something in this direction. Whatever you do should be done to night, as we must make the appointment at our first meeting in February. I venture to suggest that you will secure a more satisfactory assessment if you pay decently for the work. The law allows the assessor seventy five days in which to do his work, and it takes him all that time and sometimes longer. For this he has heretofore been paid $80 or about $1·06 per day. That is, that the most important municipal duty is performed at a lower rate of wages than the most menial labor of the most unskilled corporation employee commands. No wonder that our assessment rolls are unsatisfactory when the man who compiles them could make bigger wages driving nails into a sidewalk. I am prepared to support a proposition to pay $150 to a thoroughly competent person, and I would be very much pleased to [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] Burt, of Cardwell, and Henderson, of Orangeville, conducted the services and preached eloquent sermons.

SHELBURNE.

[illegible]

Mr. Simpson, of Orangeville, occupied the pulpit of Shelburne Methodist church last Sunday, the pastor, Rev. H. McTavish, being at Bellinafad.

Mr. A. McTaggart, V. S., of Shelburne, was bitten by one of his horses on Monday. The animal seized him by the skin and flesh near that required the services of Dr. Burton to put in a few stitches.

On Monday last Joseph Wattam appeared before Magistrates Graham and Dunbar charged with disturbing the Salvation Army meeting on the night of the stabbing affray. Wattam, it will be remembered, is the person who threatened, and is said to have attacked Cole. The magistrates imposed a fine of $10 and costs, with the option of spending a month in gaol. Wattam preferred going to gaol, and he was accordingly committed for the above named period. The general opinion is that it serves him right.

A public meeting of the Dufferin Farmers' Institute was held in the town hall, Shelburne, on Wednesday, Jan. 14, 1891. The attendance in the forenoon was small, but the addresses given by several speakers were first class. The forenoon session was opened about half past ten, the president of the Institute, Mr. J. F. Breen, occupying the chair. The first speaker was J. H. Panton, M. A., F. G. S., who delivered a very interesting and instructive address on "The Micro-scope and Agriculture," which was listened to with great attention. He was followed by Mr. D. E. Smith, who took for his subject "The feeding of Dairy Cattle," on which he gave a good deal of valuable information. Mr. A. H. Pettit's remarks on "Apple Growing, Picking, Packing and Marketing" were very interesting and elicited some remarks from several in the audience.

People who have to pass the Shelburne Salvation Army barracks, and those who are unfortunate enough to live close by, have had just cause for complaint for some time past at the disgraceful conduct of some of those who attend the meetings. The management has of late been altogether too loose, and the Cole Sanderson stabbing affray is one of the results of this looseness. By a species of bribery, in the way of purchasing provisions, etc., for the female officers, the "toughs" who have congregated there almost nightly, have also been able to maintain privileges in the exercise of which they have not only disgraced themselves, but have also lowered the Army in the estimation of people who have heretofore been in sympathy with their work. A most disgusting exhibition was that of last Thursday evening on the street in front of the officers' residence, and a repetition of such conduct will probably cause another magistrate's case and a visit to "Castle Sutherland" by those who took part in the performance, as well as an acceptance of the challenge to "put that in the paper." People cannot endure being disturbed nightly by such boodlums.

On Wednesday last Tommy, the 13-year-old son of Mr. R. Holborn, of Grand Valley, was playing around the barn. He got on to a separator, from which he fell, receiving internal injuries from the effects of which he died the following day.

The Toronto medical experts who deliberated on the question of the appointment of a successor to Dr. Canniff as medical health officer, have put in a bill for $2,500 for their services, and the council are kicking against paying it.

[illegible]

Mr. Thos. Hall will sell off three of the famous Potsdiff threshing machines in the Building east of the Valley hotel to-morrow evening.

Thomas Little, an old man who has resided in Mono for the past twenty years, was on Saturday committed to jail for vagrancy by P. M. Pettitte.

Attention is directed to the advertisement of Hughes Brothers, the well known merchant tailors of this town. If you want a nobby suit give this firm a call.

Pat. Kelly has purchased Mr. Mc Carthy's interest in the Royal hotel and takes possession on Wednesday next. Denny O'Keefe, late bartender at the Gordon, will fill a similar st. at the Royal.

The Empire's patriotic song flag for Dufferin, which was won by Master John Kearns, will be raised at the public school a week from to-morrow. The scholars are being taught patriotic songs to celebrate the event.

The public should remember that half of this newsy sheet is not printed at Hamilton or Toronto, but is entirely made up in Orangeville. Therefore, if you want to keep posted in local happenings you should subscribe for THE SUN.

[illegible] contents [illegible] of Mr [illegible] Corners, were consumed by fire. The fire was caused by Mr. Kaye accidentally upsetting a lantern while doing up the chores.

TOWN OFFICERS.—Mr. Thomas Dick, of Detroit, son of Mr. David Dick of this town, and formerly on the possession staff here, was married last week to Miss Lillie F. Wickens, a charming belle of that city. Tom's many friends around here will be pleased to learn that he enjoys a lucrative situation in Detroit and they extend their best wishes.

OUR HOLIDAY.—THE SUN will take its Christmas holiday next week, consequently there will be no issue of this paper on the 29th. Our staff has worked hard during the festive season when everybody else have been enjoying themselves, and we think we are entitled to a well-merited holiday, even if it is a couple of weeks after the time.

ST. ANDREW'S Y. P. A.—At the annual meeting of St. Andrew's church Young People's Association, held a few days ago, the following officers were elected: Rev. D. C. Hossack, honorary-president; J. A. Aikin, president; Miss Sade Caldwell, vice-president; Miss Jennie Sproul, secretary; Miss Kate Sutherland, treasurer; Miss J. McMillan, organist; Wm. Henderson, auditor.

SALE OF PERIODICALS.—The directors of the Mechanics' Institute will offer for sale by public auction on Friday evening, Jan. 30th, at 8 o'clock, in the reading-room, the magazines and periodicals in use in the reading-room that have accumulated, and also those of the present year. Purchasers will receive their periodicals when removed from the fire in the reading room. The list of periodicals includes Harper's Monthly, Overland Monthly, Leisure Hour, Pack, Grip, Illustrated News of the World, Dominion Illustrated, etc. 2

COLE GOES DOWN.—Stephen Cole, the Shelburne youth who stabbed Harry Sanderson of the same place in the head about a month ago, appeared before Judge McCarty at the court house on Monday and was sentenced to two months' imprisonment in the Orangeville jail, sentence to commence from the time he was incarnated shortly after the affray took place. Cole is a printer, but he won't "stick" type for a few days yet.

RECOVERING.—Miss M. J. Conner, who was referred to in last week's issue of THE SUN as having fractured her skull, is recovering very rapidly and will be around again before long. She has so far recovered that it was decided to remove her from Perfect's hotel to her home at Bowling Green and she was accordingly taken home yesterday. Dr. Lewis and Mrs. Perfect, the kind hostess of the hotel, did everything in their power for the unfortunate young lady, and their efforts were not unsuccessful.

WHEELOCK—TUCK NUPTIALS.—A very quiet wedding took place at the residence of Mrs. Tuck, York street, on Thursday last, when Mr. Charles R. Wheelock, P. L. S., was joined in the bonds of matrimony to Miss Gertie [illegible]

[illegible]

THE NAUGHTY GIRL.—The naughty girl, who was mentioned in THE SUN's last issue as having victimized several storekeepers out of shoes and overshoes, has also injured the reputation of an innocent young lady. While getting the overshoes the unknown victimizer gave the name of Miss Coulson, a domestic at Mr. G. H. Hawkins'. The police and a clerk employed at one of the stores where the bogus Miss Coulson visited called at Mr. Hawkins' residence to identify the alleged swindler, but the young lady there was not the person. Miss Coulson and her parents are very respectable people, the latter residing in East Garafraxa, and it has greatly annoyed them to have their names in any way connected with the case.

WEDDED AT MONO MILLS.—A very happy event took place at St. John's church, Mono Mills, on Wednesday, in being the marriage of Mr. David McMullen of Toronto, to Miss Maggie Patterson of Albion. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. C. Watt, pastor of St. John's, in the presence of a large company of friends. The bride, who was handsomely attired in an elegant costume of brown to match, was assisted by Miss Annie McMullen, and the groom was supported by Mr. John Patterson. Presents both handsome and costly testified the esteem in which the young couple are held. The happy pair left on a bridal tour, a large number of friends accompanying them to Orangeville and wishing them many years of wedded bliss.

THE "CASTLE" CROWDED.—"Castle Sutherland, alias the Orangeville jail, is in a pretty crowded state at present. There are more prisoners in now than there ever has been before; the largest number heretofore was twenty-eight. Just now there are confined in that institution twenty-nine persons—twenty-two males and seven female. Four of the masculine gender are serving short sentences—two for larceny, one for non payment of a fine, one for assault and the remaining twenty-five are vagrants. In consequence of the boom the genial jailer, Mr. A. Sutherland, has to furnish several of his "guests" with shake downs in the corridors. When a newspaper has too much matter some of it is crowded out; but a jail is something like Pat McCabe's 'bus—there's always room for one more.

VICK'S FLORAL GUIDE FOR 1891.—No lover of a fine plant or garden can afford to be without a copy. It is an elegant book of over 100 pages 8½ x 11½ inches, beautiful colored illustrations of Sunrise Amaranthus, Hydrangea and Potatoes. Instructions for planting, cultivating, etc. Full list of everything that can be desired in the way of Vegetable and Flower Seeds, Plants, bulbs, etc. Also full particulars regarding the cash prizes of $1,000 and $200. The novelties have been tested and found worthy of cultivation. We hope it will be our good luck to see the Nellie Lewis Carnation and taste the Grand Rapids Lettuce. It costs nothing because the 10 cents you send for it can be deducted from the first order forwarded. We advise our friends to secure a copy of James Vick Seedsman, Rochester, N.Y.

A PLEASURE PARTY'S HARD LUCK.—A short time ago several of the fair sex of this town agreed among themselves to hold a pleasure party at the residence of a Caledon farmer. With that intention the young ladies corresponded with the gentleman beyond the hills, but in doing so they neglected to attach their autographs to the letter, hence the farmer did not know whom to expect. The days flew swiftly by until Thursday evening, the time the great social event was to take place. At 8 o'clock about twenty-two belles and their beaux embarked in two sleighs and sled them selves off to the farmer's. When the way party arrived at the house, which is about four miles from town, and announced their intention to dance the golden minutes away, the agriculturist coldly told them "they might come in and warm themselves, but they couldn't dance." Three other places were visited, and three similar replies were received. And the dance was declared off; and the half frozen pleasure-seekers returned home!

STREET LIGHTING—Fiddis, Coburn, Endicott.

The F. and W. committee recommended the payment of the following accounts: W. Little, $39·60; James McDonald, 58.72; H. N. Young, $4 12.

A communication from C. H. King in reference to the employment of the town cover into the mill race was referred to the R. and B. committee.

A by-law to appoint officials for the current year was introduced and read a first and second time.

Auditors were then appointed, J. M. Benner being the mayor's nominee and W. R. Kent the council's choice. The remuneration will be $17.50.

The Assessment committee was empowered to receive applications for the assessorship, and will report at next meeting of council.

The time for the return of the collector's roll was extended to Jan. 31.

The mayor asked for and received $25, as per agreement, to cover expenses incurred in connection with the convening of the railway bonus meeting.

The underwriters' association want some little improvements made in the fire protection service before they consent to reduce the rate of insurance. This brought Ald. Adamson to his feet. The East ward warrior wanted to know what difference it would make in the rates of insurance on property outside the limits of the waterworks. When told that it would make no difference he sat down with a dull thud. The mayor said the ratepayers who were benefitted by any addition outlay in that direction would probably bear the expense.

Chief Shields then chained up the dog, kicked the cat, set the bear trap, and the solons departed.

NOTES.

As Chairman Gillespie is a pusher he may be able to push through with two inexperienced men on the Fire and Water committee.

With this exception the composition of the committees is medium to choice.

Ald. Adamson, as chairman of the Road and Bridge, can fill in his spare hour nicely.

Completing the Panama canal is a pastime compared with the contract Ald. Green has undertaken as chairman of the Assessment committee.

Ald. Ketchum pled pathetically for a place on the Fire and Water committee, but when it was pointed out that he was on the R. and B and T. P committees and was chairman of the graveyard combination he dropped off to sleep.

Ald. Fiddis and Young preserved a golden silence, but when they do speak princes will turn pale, thrones will totter and the cat will make a sneak for the cellar.

Although the young ladies say Ald. Coburn's head is softer than his heart he is a careful chairman of the Charity committee.

There was a jagged hole in the atmosphere where ex Ald Bailey was wont to sit and sing.

Ald. Ketchum is as deep as a railroad cut. Note his shrewdness (?) in spotting assessment errors after the elections.

The individuals who think those in high places have nothing to do but pocket fame and big salaries should survey the hairless domes of the triumvirate who direct and control aldermen not born in captivity. The mayor, reeve and deputy reeve do some heavy thinking and are entitled to shining crowns. Three of a kind beat two pair.

THE CARNIVAL.

At Balmoral Rink on Monday Evening was a Grand Success.

Balmoral rink was all aglow with electric light on Monday night last, and, as Manager Smyth announced, the carnival of the season was to be held there that evening. The marquee, as well as the spectators, were very numerous, the capacity of the rink being taxed to its utmost.

The principal race of the evening was a three mile contest between Jos. Foster, Wm. Irvine and B. Hulme, for a beautiful silver tea-urn. The rules governing this trophy is that a competitor has to win it three times before it becomes his property. Hulme won it a few weeks ago, but this time Foster came to first, Irvine second and Hulme last in the boys' race (under 16) Willie Shields captured the prize, as did Johnny Irvine in the barrel race. The other prize winners were: Race, lady and gent, B. Hulme and Aggie Young; pogo swell, S. Kennedy; most graceful lady skater, Jennie Carter; prettiest costume lady, Nellie Whyte; best sustained costume, C. W. Embrey; best sustained clown, G. Campbell; prettiest costumed flower girl, Jennie Duffy. The following were noticed among the masquerade: Nightingale, Nellie McMorris; flower-girl, Jennie Duffy; mere ball, Louie Bennett; flower-girl, May Graham; Zulu maid, Jennie Carter; night, Rose Foley; lady, Ella Shields; Egyptian lady, Aggie Irvine; man, Nellie McLean; sister, Tessie Bean; sailor, Dan Mann; flower girl, Nellie Westcott; Queen Anne, Annie Quinn; cow, Bertie McLean; flower girl, Minnie Morris; Japanese lady, Miss Whyte; dairy maid, Emma Foley; flower girl, Mabel Williamson; maid of honor, Francis Martin; and riding hood, Annie Fisher; knight, Ella McGuire; mother Hubbard, Hebbie McGuire; mother Hubbard, Maggie Wright; squaw, Polly Foley; clown, Godfrey Campbell; old woman, Albert Lathwell; colored jockey, Willie Austin; negro lady, E Ferguson; negro swell, J. Wylie; pirate, Mr. Shaw; colored lady, Peter Campbell; swell, Mr. Bowcliffe; negro swell, George Trimble; pirate captain, Mr. Jago; hilland laddie, Victor Pattullo; colored gent, S. Tate; African lady, Albert Carter; colored dude, D. O'Keef; girl of the period, Herb Bennett; negro great, Willie Morrow; prince, C. W. Embrey; lady, Willie Shields; negro, E McGuire; clown, Norman Cregier; nigger wench, A. Martin; clown, T. Brett; negro girl, Frank Hoffman; wild Irishman, Allen Westrope; uncle Tom, N. McMillan.

Mr. Arthur Atkinson, who has been so jovial for some time, died on Thursday of last week at the age of 67 years. The interment took place at South Luther on Sunday.

A. C. Richardson, J. P., was [illegible] on Monday week for a balance of wages claimed by Mr. Hebdon, as employee, and not included in the division court case. The case was referred to the county crown attorney.

MONO CENTRE.

Dame rumor has it that we may expect the marriage bells to ring again before long.

On Tuesday the residence of John Barclay, Esq., "Burnside Farm," was the scene of a very happy event, being the marriage of his daughter, Miss Beatrice, to Mr. James Anderson, of Caledon. The ceremony, which was witnessed by a large number of friends of the contracting parties, was performed by Rev. G. Ballantyne. The bride was handsomely attired in a [illegible] garment made and trimmed by Miss Keang, the groom, being supported by Mr. Smith Crossley, of Orangeville. The happy couple stood up to the [illegible] about 12 noon, and sat down to an elegant wedding breakfast. After ample justice had been done to the splendid spread the happy couple accompanied by their friends drove to Orangeville and spent an hour very pleasantly at the Commercial hotel, after which the couple amidst hearty congratulations and good wishes for their future welfare left on the evening train for Toronto to spend the honey moon. Numerous guests were present from Toronto and elsewhere. The bride was the recipient of a large number of beautiful presents. After seeing the happy young couple safely off the guests drove back to the home of the bride, music was provided and a merry time was spent. The party broke up at an early hour next morning, all having enjoyed themselves.

Mrs. J. H. Simpson's residence was on Tuesday evening of last week the scene of a pleasant gathering. The occasion was that of a presentation to Mr. and Mrs. Simpson, who intend removing to Orangeville in the near future. After a pleasant evening had been spent in music, speeches and social chat a copy of Matthew Henry's Commentary and a set of china were presented, and the following address was read:

To Mr and Mrs. Simpson. Having heard with deep regret of your proposed departure from amongst us, we, the members and friends of Ebenezer church, desire to show our appreciation of services so freely and generously rendered by presenting to you some slight memorial of our regard and esteem. We recall with feelings of pleasure many delightful associations in which you have taken part and into which you have infused new life and vigour by your sprightliness of mind and congeniality of disposition; but above all do we wish to express our gratitude for the readiness with which you have given your hand to every good work. By your removal the church loses two of its most promising members and ever ready helpers. But that this memorial may not altogether consist of empty thanks we desire in the presentation of this commentary and set of china to give you a more tangible proof of our esteem, wishing that you will not consider the relative value but rather regard it as a feeble expression of good will on our part. With sadness do we part from you; often when you are gone will our minds conjure up old associations, the remembrance of which will fill us with joy and gladness. In departing from our midst you carry with you our best wishes for your temporal and eternal welfare, and we trust that wherever you may choose a home, kind friends may never be wanting and when the sands of life are run you may receive a crown of life that fadeth not away. Signed on behalf of Ebenezer church.

[illegible] legislation to order, and after showing them to their proper places, he read the annual address. There were present Mayor Walsh, Reeve Lindsay, Deputy reeve Endacott, Ald. Yeomans, Ketchum, North Ward; Fiddis, Young, South ward; Cobean, Adamson, East ward; Green and Gillespie, West ward.

A committee consisting of Messrs. Lindsay, Endacott, Yeomans, Cobean, Fiddis and Gillespie was appointed to strike the standing committees, and the council adjourned until 7:30 in the evening. A report of the evening's proceedings will be found in another column.

HIS WORSHIP'S ADDRESS

was as follows:

GENTLEMEN, — Before proceeding with the regular business of the meeting, I wish to mention a few matters of more or less importance which will come before us during the course of the year, and respecting which I have some suggestions to make.

Our electric light contract will expire this fall. The responsibility of making a new agreement for the lighting of the streets rather by renewal of the existing contract or by substitution for it, will devolve upon us. I will pass in a short time the necessary [illegible] to hand upon the subject in ample of time.

Debentures amounting to $6,000 will fall due on the 1st of September next. These are the debentures which were issued by the town to Stevenson & Graham. They will be met by a new issue of debentures under the Act consolidating the debt of the town. I think it would be advisable to make the new debentures payable in instalments, if we have the power to do so, as in this way the inconvenience of dealing with a sinking fund will be avoided.

Under By-law 338 it will be necessary for us to appoint an overseer of highways, whose duties are of such import ance as to make it imperative that we should secure a thoroughly good man for the position. The appointment must be made by the date of the first meeting of the council in April. I would suggest that before that date the enumeration to be paid to this official be fixed and that an advertisement be then published calling for applications for the position, which, after being considered by the Road and Bridge committee, shall be forwarded to the council with such recommendation as the committee may see fit to make.

In this connection I would draw the attention of the gentleman who may be appointed chairman of the Road and Bridge committee to this By law 338, which clearly defines his duties. This is a new by law, which has not yet received a trial, but as I am satisfied that a thorough compliance with all of its provisions will be of benefit to the town, I will insist upon a strict adherence to it.

In my inaugural address to the council of 1890 I advised that more consideration should be given to the appointment of an assessor than had formerly been the case. My advice was ignored, but I am not, by reason of that, deterred from repeating it. My experience of this appointment has been that upon the night upon which the selection is made the names of all of the applicants are for the first time laid before the council. This important office is then filled from a number of applicants as to whose fitness for the position no opportunity for investigation is afforded. Of course some of the applicants are known before then through the canvassing to which they subject the members of the council, but this does not apply to all of them. There is no appointment which should secure such mature consideration as this because there is no municipal officer invested with such authority as the assessor. I think that some such plan as I have suggested with reference to the appointment of an overseer might be followed with advantage in the selection of an assessor. I sincerely trust that you will do something in this direction. Whatever you do should be done to night, as we must make the appointment at our first meeting in February. I venture to suggest that you will secure a more satisfactory assessment if you pay decently for the work. The law allows the assessor seventy five days in which to do his work, and it takes him all that time and sometimes longer. For this he has heretofore been paid $80 or about $1·06 per day. That is, that the most important municipal duty is performed at a lower rate of wages than the most menial labor of the most unskilled corporation employee commands. No wonder that our assessment rolls are unsatisfactory when the man who compiles them could make bigger wages driving nails into a street. I am prepared to support a proposition to pay $150 to a thoroughly competent person, and I would be very much pleased to [illegible]

[illegible] the serious and deliberation of the council of 1891 will be as much secure as [illegible].

SALEM.

Miss Patterson, the new school mistress blends at Mr. Brown's and is well liked by the pupils.

Miss Henderson, who has taught school here for two years, removed to Orangeville, last Thursday.

Mr. Joseph Foster has been elected school trustee in place of John Adair, who has removed to Corbetton. The school board is constituted of Messrs. Joseph Foster, Wm. Allen and Isaac Pearson—all good men.

Your Glen Green correspondent reported the conflagration that occurred at the residence of Wm. Nelson last week. The insurance company assessed the damage at $40, and Mr. Nelson was allowed that amount.

Missionary services were held in St. George's church here on Thursday evening last and were well attended. Revs. Burt, of Cardwell, and Henderson, of Orangeville, conducted the services and preached eloquent sermons.

SHELBURNE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Mr. Simpson, of Orangeville, occupied the pulpit of Shelburne Methodist church last Sunday. The pastor, Rev. H. McTavish, being at Ballinafad.

Mr. A. MacTaggart, V. S., of Shelburne, was bitten by one of his horses on Monday. The animal seized him by the side and inflicted quite that required the services of Dr. Horton to put in a few stitches.

On Monday last Joseph Watters appeared before Magistrates Graham and Dunbar charged with disturbing the Salvation Army meeting on the night of the stabbing affray. Watters, it will be remembered, is the person who threatened, and is said to have attacked Cole. The magistrates imposed a fine of $10 and costs, with the option of spending a month in gaol. Wattam preferred going to gaol, and he was accordingly committed for the above named period. The general opinion is that it serves him right.

A public meeting of the Dufferin Farmers' Institute was held in the town hall, Shelburne, on Wednesday, Jan. 14, 1891. The attendance in the forenoon was small, but the addresses given by several speakers were first class. The forenoon session was opened about half past ten, the president of the Institute, Mr. J F. Breen, occupying the chair. The first speaker was J. H. Panton, M. A., F. G. S., who delivered a very interesting and instructive address on "The Micro-cope and Agriculture," which was listened to with great attention. He was followed by Mr. D. E. Smith, who took for his subject "The feeding of Dairy Cattle," on which he gave a good deal of valuable information. Mr. A. H. Pettit's remarks on "Apple Growing, Picking, Packing and Marketing" were very interesting and elicited some remarks from several in the audience.

People who have to pass the Shelburne Salvation Army barracks, and those who are unfortunate enough to live close by, have had just cause for complaint for some time past at the disgraceful conduct of some of those who attend the meetings. The management has of late been altogether too loose, and the Cole Sanderson stabbing affray is one of the results of this looseness. By a species of bribery, in the way of purchasing provisions, etc., for the female officers, the "toughs" who have congregated there almost nightly, have also been able to maintain privileges in the exercise of which they have not only disgraced themselves, but have also lowered the Army in the estimation of people who have heretofore been in sympathy with their work. A most disgusting exhibition was that of last Thursday evening on the street in front of the officers' residence, and a repetition of such conduct will probably cause another magistrate's case and a visit to "Castle Sutherland" by those who took part in the performance, as well as an acceptance of the challenge to "put that in the paper." People cannot endure being disturbed nightly by such hoodlums.

On Wednesday last Tommy, the 13-year-old son of Mr. R. Holborn, of Grand Valley, was playing around the barn. He got on to a separator, from which he fell, receiving internal injuries from the effects of which he died the following day.

The Toronto medical experts who deliberated on the question of the appointment of a successor to Dr. Canniff as medical health officer, have put in a bill for $2,500 for their services, and the council are kicking against paying it.

[illegible] girl, who was mentioned in THE SUN's last issue as having violated several storekeepers out of them and overcoats, has also injured the reputation of an innocent young lady. While giving the overpower the unknown victimizer gave the name of Miss Coulson, a domestic at Mr. G. H. Hawkins'. The police and a clerk employed at one of the stores where the bogus Miss Coulson visited called at Mr. Hawkins' residence to identify the alleged swindler, but the young lady there was not the person. Miss Coulson and her parents are very respectable people, the latter residing in East Garafraxa, and it has greatly annoyed them to have their names in any way connected with the case.

WEDDED AT MONO MILLS.—A very happy event took place at St. John's church, Mono Mills, on Wednesday, it being the marriage of Mr David McMullen of Toronto, to Miss Maggie Patterson of Albion. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. C. Watt, pastor of St. John's, in the presence of a large company of friends. The bride, who was handsomely attired in a dress of mauve silk with bonnet, to match, was assisted by Miss Annie McMullen, and the groom was supported by Mr. John Patterson. Presents both handsome and costly testified the esteem in which the young couple are held. The happy pair left on a bridal tour, a large number of friends accompanying them to Orangeville and wishing them many years of unalloyed bliss.

THE "CASTLE" CROWDED.—"Castle" Sutherland, alias the Orangeville jail, is in a pretty crowded state at present. There are more prisoners in now than there ever has been before; the largest number heretofore was twenty-eight. Just now there are confined in that institution twenty-nine persons—twenty-two males and seven female. Four of the masculine gender are serving short sentences—two for larceny, one for non payment of a fine, one for assault and the remaining twenty five are vagrants. In consequence of the boom the genial jailer, Mr. A. Sutherland, has to furnish several of his "guests" with shake downs in the corridors. When a newspaper has too much matter some of it is crowded out; but a jail is something like Pat McCabe's bus—there's always room for one more.

VICK'S FLORAL GUIDE FOR 1891.—No lover of a fine plant or garden can afford to be without a copy. It is an elegant book of over 100 pages 8½ x 10½ inches, beautiful colored illustrations of Sunrise Amaranthus, Hydrangea and Potatoes. Instructions for planting, cultivating, etc. Full list of everything that can be desired in the way of Vegetable and Flower Seeds, Plants, bulbs, etc. Also full particulars regarding the cash prizes of $1,000 and $200. The novelties have been tested and found worthy of cultivation. We hope it will be our good luck to see the Stellis Lewis carnation and taste the Grand Rapids Lettuce. It costs nothing because the 10 cents you send for it can be deducted from the first order forwarded. We advise our friends to secure a copy of James Vick Seedsman, Rochester, N.Y.

A PLEASURE PARTY'S HARD LUCK.—A short time ago several of the fair sex of this town agreed among themselves to hold a pleasure party at the residence of a Caledon farmer. With that intention the young ladies corresponded with the gentleman beyond the hills, but in doing so they neglected to attach their autographs to the letter, hence the farmer did not know whom to expect. The days flew swiftly by until Thursday evening, the time the great social event was to take place. At 8 o'clock about twenty-two belles and their beaux embarked in two sleighs and bled them selves off to the farmer's. When the gay party arrived at the house, which is about four miles from town, and announced their intention to dance the golden minutes away, the agriculturist coldly told them "they might come in and warm themselves, but they couldn't dance." Three other places were visited, and three similar replies were received. And the dance was declared off; and the half frozen pleasure-seekers returned home!

[illegible] slip (what the deuce!) The chief of police was referred to the Sun committee to act quietly and quickly on the case.

On behalf of the "gentlemen" who are putting up the ball to compare with New York's 600 on the 27th inst., Mr. Wilson applied for a reduction on the usual rent on account of having to abandon the tour ball. The tenters agreed that a "reduction" would be inadvisable, and decided to "give up" $2 provided no champagne corks were left lying about.

The following convicts were informed: Mungovan Bros., $18; R. Allen, $1 25; R. Allen, $1 55. H. Flesher's account of $5 80 was ordered paid, as was also that of T. O. Porter, 50c; W. Fryzelle, $2 96 and George Grey, $2 34.

The following report was adopted on motion of Messrs. Lindsay. The first named is chairman of the committee to which he is appointed:

FINANCE—[illegible] Endacott, Green.

ROAD AND BRIDGE—[illegible] Adamson, Fiddis, Green, [illegible], Lindsay.

TOWN PROPERTY—Endacott, Ketchum, Yeomans.

ASSESSMENT—Green, Lindsay, Endacott.

PRINTING—Yeomans, Cobean, Adamson.

CHARITY—Cobean, Young, Yeomans.

CEMETERY—Ketchum, Young, Gillespie.

FIRE AND WATER—Gillespie, Fiddis, Adamson.

STREET LIGHTING—Fiddis, Cobean, Endacott.

The F. and W. committee recommended the payment of the following accounts: W. Little, $29 50; James McDonald, $8 12; H. N. Young, $4 12.

A communication from C. S. Eling in reference to the emptying of the town sewer into the mill race was referred to the R. and B. committee.

A by-law to appoint officials for the current year was introduced and read a first and second time.

Auditors were then appointed, J. N. Bennett being the mayor's nominee and W. R. Kent the council's choice. The remuneration will be $17.50.

The Assessment committee was empowered to receive applications for the assessorship, and will report at next meeting of council.

The time for the return of the collector's roll was extended to Jan. 31.

The mayor asked for and received $5, as per agreement, to cover expenses incurred in connection with the convening of the railway bonus meeting.

The underwriters' association want some little improvements made in the fire protection service before they consent to reduce the rate of insurance. This brought Ald. Adamson to his feet. The East ward warrior wanted to know what difference it would make in the rates of insurance on property outside the limits of the waterworks. When told that it would make no difference he sat down with a dull thud. The mayor said the ratepayers who were benefitted by any additional outlay in that direction would probably bear the expense.

Chief Shields then chained up the dog, kicked the cat, set the bear trap, and the solons departed.

NOTES.

As Chairman Gillespie is a pusher he may be able to push through with two inexperienced men on the Fire and Water committee.

With this exception the composition of the committees is medium to shbiss.

Ald. Adamson, as chairman of the Road and Bridge, can fill in his noon hour nicely.

Completing the Panama canal is a pastime compared with the contract Ald. Green has undertaken as chairman of the Assessment committee.

Ald. Ketchum pled pathetically for a place on the Fire and Water committee, but when it was pointed out that he was on the R. and B and T. P committees and was chairman of the graveyard combination he dropped off to sleep.

Ald. Fiddis and Young preserved a golden silence, but when they do speak princes will turn pale, thrones will totter and the cat will make a sneak for the cellar.

Although the young ladies say Ald. Cobean's head is softer than his heart he is a careful chairman of the Charity committee.

There was a jagged hole in the atmosphere where ex Ald Bailey was wont to sit and sing.

Ald. Ketchum is as deep as a railroad cut. Note his shrewdness (?) in spotting assessment errors after the elections.

The uninitiated who think those in high places have nothing to do but pocket fame and big salaries should survey the hairless domes of the triumvirate who direct and control aldermen not born in captivity. The mayor, reeve and deputy reeve do some heavy thinking and are entitled to shining crowns. Three of a kind beat two pair, [illegible] hope to all of the Mill will give this news a wide berth in future.

THE CARNIVAL.

At Balmoral Rink on Monday Evening was a Grand Success.

Balmoral rink was all ablaze with electric light on Monday night last, and, as Manager Smyth announced, the carnival of the season was to be held there that evening. The management, as well as the spectators, were very numerous, the capacity of the rink being taxed to its utmost.

The principal race of the evening was a three mile contest between Jos. Foster, Wm. Archer and R. Hobbs, for a beautiful silver tea-urn. The rules governing this trophy is that a competitor has to win it three times before it becomes his property. Hobbs won it a few weeks ago, but this time Foster came in first, Irvine second and Hobbs last. In the boys' race (under 16) Willie Shields captured the prize, as did Johnny Irvine in the barrel race. The other prize winners were: Race, lady and gent, H. Hobbs and Aggie Irvine; negro swell, S. Kennedy; most graceful lady skater, Jennie Carter; prettiest costumed lady, Nellie Weyte; best amateur costume, C. W. Embury; best costumed clown, G. Campbell; prettiest costumed flower girl, Jennie Duffy. The following were twirled across the floor: Mamie Hight, Nellie McMorris; Swan girl, Jennie Duffy; snow ball, Louie Bennett; flower girl, May Graham; Kate mild, Jennie Carter; night, Kate Foley; fairy, Ella Shields; Egyptian lady, Angie Lathwell; wee, Nellie McMillan; sister, Tessie Bean; [illegible], Dot Moore; flower girl, Nellie Westrope; Queen Anne, Annie Quinn; [illegible], Maggie Mc Leod; flower girl, Minnie Morris; Japanese lady, Miss Weyte; dairy maid, Emma Foley; flower girl, Mabel Williamson; maid of honor, Florence Morris; red riding hood, Annie Dicker; sailor, Ida McGuire; mother Hubbard, Nellie McIlwire; mother Hubbard, Maggie Wright; squaw, Polly Foley; clown, Godfrey Campbell; old woman, Albert Lathwell; colored jockey, William Annis; negro lady, E Ferguson; negro swell, J. Wylie; pirate, Mr. Shaw; colored lady, Peter Campbell; coral, Mr. Rowsiffe; negro swell, George Trimble; pirate captain, Mr. Jago; island ladcie, Victor Pattullo; colored coral, S. Tate; African lady, Albert Carter; colored dude, D. O'Keef; girl of the period, Herb Bennett; negro coral, Willie Morrow; prince, C. W. Embury; lady, Willie Shields; negro, E McGuire; clown, Norman Crozier; nigger wench, A. Martin; clown, T. Brett; negro girl, Frank Hoffman; wild Irishman, Allen Westrope; uncle Tom, N. McMillan.

MONO CENTRE.

Dear Sunshine, by the time we may expect the marriage bells to ring again before long.

On Tuesday the residence of John Barclay, Esq., "Bonnie Farm," was the scene of a very happy event, being the marriage of his daughter Miss Beatrice, to Mr. James Anderson, of Cardale. The ceremony, which was witnessed by a large number of friends of the contracting parties, was performed by Rev. G. Ballantyne. The bride was handsomely attired in a dress of garnet satin and was assisted by Miss Young, the groom being supported by Mr. Smith Graham, of Orangeville. After the marriage, about 1.30 p.m., sat down to an elegant wedding breakfast. After ample justice had been done the splendid spread the happy couple accompanied by their friends drove to Orangeville and spent an hour very pleasantly at the Commercial hotel, after which the couple amidst hearty congratulations and good wishes for their future welfare left on the evening train for Toronto to spend the honey moon. Numerous guests were present from Toronto and elsewhere. The bride was the recipient of a large number of beautiful presents. After seeing the happy young couple safely off the guests drove back to the home of the bride, music was provided and a merry time was spent. The party broke up at an early hour next morning, all having enjoyed themselves.

Mr. J. H. Simpson's residence was on Tuesday evening of last week the scene of a pleasant gathering. The occasion was that of a presentation to Mr. and Mrs. Simpson, who intend removing to Orangeville in the near future. After a pleasant evening had been spent in music, speeches and social chat a copy of Matthew Henry's Commentary and a set of china were presented, and the following address was read:

To Mr and Mrs. Simpson. Having heard with deep regret of your proposed departure from amongst us, we, the members and friends of Ebenezer church, desire to show our appreciation of services so freely and generously rendered by presenting to you some slight token of our regard and esteem. We recall with feelings of pleasure many delightful associations in which you have taken part and love which you have infused new life and vigour by your sprightliness of mind and congeniality of disposition; but above all do we wish to express our gratitude for the readiness with which you have given your hand to every good work. By your removal the church loses two of its most promising members and ever ready helpers. But that this memorial may not altogether consist of empty thanks we desire in the presentation of this commentary and set of china to give you a more tangible proof of our esteem, wishing that you will not consider the relative value but rather regard it as a feeble expression of good will on our part. With sadness do we part from you; often when you are gone will our minds conjure up old associations, the remembrance of which will fill us with joy and gladness. In departing from our midst you carry with you our best wishes for your temporal and eternal welfare, and we trust that wherever you may choose a home, kind friends may never be wanting and when the mists of life are run you may receive a crown of life that fadeth not away.

Signed on behalf of Ebenezer church,

W. AUSTHEE,
J. WALLACE,
V. DYRIE.

committee may see fit to make.

In this connection I would draw the attention of the gentleman who may be appointed chairman of the Road and Bridge committee to this By-law 338, which clearly defines his duties. This is a new by-law, which has not yet received a trial, but as I am satisfied that a thorough compliance with all of its provisions will be of benefit to the town, I will insist upon a strict adherence to it.

In my inaugural address to the council of 1890 I advised that more consideration should be given to the appointment of an assessor than had formerly been the case. My advice was ignored, but I am not, by reason of that, deterred from repeating it. My experience of this appointment has been that upon the night upon which the selection is made the names of all of the applicants are for the first time laid before the council. This important office is then filled from a number of applicants as to whose fitness for the position no opportunity for investigation is afforded. Of course some of the applicants are known before then through the canvassing to which they subject the members of the council, but this does not apply to all of them. There is no appointment which should secure such mature consideration as this because there is no municipal officer invested with such authority as the assessor. I think that some such plan as I have suggested with reference to the appointment of an overseer might be followed with advantage in the selection of an assessor. I sincerely trust that you will do something in this direction. Whatever you do should be done to-night, as we must make the appointment at our first meeting in February. I venture to suggest that you will secure a more satisfactory assessment if you pay decently for the work. The law allows the assessor seventy five days in which to do his work, and it takes him all that time and sometimes longer. For this he has heretofore been paid $80 or about $1·06 per day. That is, that the most important municipal duty is performed at a lower rate of wages than the most menial labor of the most unskilled corporation employee commands. No wonder that our assessment rolls are unsatisfactory when the man who compiles them could make bigger wages driving nails into a street. I am prepared to support a proposition to pay $150 to a thoroughly competent person, and I would be very much pleased to forenoon was small, but the addresses given by several speakers were first class. The forenoon session was opened about half past ten, the president of the Institute, Mr. J. F. Breen, occupying the chair. The first speaker was J. H. Panton, M. A., F. G. S., who delivered a very interesting and instructive address on 'The Micro-scope and Agriculture,' which was listened to with great attention. He was followed by Mr. D. E. Smith, who took for his subject "The feeding of Dairy Cattle," on which he gave a good deal of valuable information. Mr. A. H. Pettit's remarks on 'Apple Growing, Picking, Packing and Marketing' were very interesting and elicited some remarks from several in the audience.

People who have to pass the Salvation Army barracks, and those who are unfortunate enough to live close by, have had just cause for complaint for some time past at the disgraceful conduct of some of those who attend the meetings. The management has of late been altogether too loose, and the Cole Sanderson Stabbing affray is one of the results of this looseness. By a species of bribery, in the way of purchasing provisions, etc., for the female officers, the "toughs" who have congregated there almost nightly, have also been able to maintain privileges in the exercise of which they have not only disgraced themselves, but have also lowered the Army in the estimation of people who have heretofore been in sympathy with their work. A most disgusting exhibition was that of last Thursday evening on the street in front of the officers' residence, and a repetition of such conduct will probably cause another magistrate's case and a visit to "Castle Sutherland" by those who took part in the performance, as well as an acceptance of the challenge to "put that in the paper." People cannot endure being disturbed nightly by such boodlums.

On Wednesday last Tommy, the 13-year-old son of Mr. R. Holborn, of Grand Valley, was playing around the barn. He got on to a separator, from which he fell, receiving internal injuries from the effects of which he died the following day.

The Toronto medical experts who deliberated on the question of the appointment of a successor to Dr. Canniff as medical health officer, have put in a bill for $2,500 for their services, and the council are kicking against paying it.

SALE OF PERIODICALS.—The directors of the Mechanics' Institute will offer for sale by public auction on Friday evening, Jan. 30th, at 8 o'clock, in the reading-room, the magazines and periodicals in use in the reading-room that have accumulated, and also those of the present year. Purchasers will receive their periodicals when removed from the file in the reading room. The list of periodicals includes Harper's Monthly, Overland Monthly, Leisure Hour, Puck, Grip, Illustrated News of the World, Dominion Illustrated, etc. 2

COLE GOES DOWN.—Stephen Cole, the Shelburne youth who stabbed Harry Sanderson of the same place in the head about a month ago, appeared before Judge McCarty at the court house on Monday and was sentenced to two months' imprisonment in the Orangeville jail, sentence to commence from the time he was incarnated shortly after the affray took place. Cole is a printer, but he won't "stick" type for a few days yet.

RECOVERING.—Miss N. J. Conner, who was referred to in last week's issue of THE SUN as having fractured her skull, is recovering very rapidly and will be around again before long. She has so far recovered that it was decided to remove her from Perfect's hotel to her home at Bowling Green and she was accordingly taken home yesterday. Dr. Lewis and Mrs. Perfect, the kind hostess of the hotel, did everything in their power for the unfortunate young lady, and their efforts were not unsuccessful.

WHEELOCK—TUCK NUPTIALS.—A very quiet wedding took place at the residence of Mrs. Tuck, York street, on Thursday last, when Mr. Charles R. Wheelock, P. L. S., was joined in the bonds of matrimony to Miss Gertie A. payment of a fee, one for assault and the remaining twenty five are vagrants. In consequence of the boom the genial jailer, Mr. A. Sutherland, has to furnish several of his "guests" with shake downs in the corridors. When a newspaper has too much matter some of it is crowded out; but a jail is something like Pat McCabe's bus—there's always room for one more.

VICK'S FLORAL GUIDE FOR 1891.—No lover of a fine plant or garden can afford to be without a copy. It is an elegant book of over 100 pages 8½ x 10½ inches, beautiful colored illustrations of Sunrise Amaranthus, Hydrangea and Potatoes. Instructions for planting, cultivating, etc. Full list of everything that can be desired in the way of Vegetable and Flower Seeds, Plants, bulbs, etc. Also full particulars regarding the cash prizes of $1,000 and $200. The novelties have been tested and found worthy of cultivation. We hope it will be our good luck to see the Nellie Lewis Carnation and taste the Grand Rapids Lettuce. It costs nothing because the 10 cents you send for it can be deducted from the first order forwarded. We advise our friends to secure a copy of James Vick Seedsman, Rochester, N.Y.

A PLEASURE PARTY'S HARD LUCK.—A short time ago several of the fair sex of this town agreed among themselves to hold a pleasure party at the residence of a Caledon farmer. With that intent the young ladies corresponded with the gentleman beyond the hills, but in doing so they neglected to attach their autographs to the letter, hence the farmer did not know whom to expect. The days flew swiftly by until Thursday evening, the time the great social event was to take place. At 8 o'clock about twenty-two belles and their beaux embarked in two sleighs and tied themselves off to the farmer's. When the gay party arrived at the house, which is about four miles from town, and announced their intention to dance the golden minutes away, the agriculturist coldly told them "they might come in and warm themselves, but they couldn't dance." Three other places were visited, and three similar replies were received. And the dance was declared off; and the half frozen pleasure-seekers returned home!

incurred in connection with the conveying of the railway bonus meeting.

The underwriters' association want some little improvements made in the fire protection service before they consent to reduce the rate of insurance. This brought Ald. Adamson to his feet. The East ward warrior wanted to know what difference it would make to the rates of insurance on property outside the limits of the waterworks. When told that it would make no difference he sat down with a dull thud. The mayor said the ratepayers who were benefitted by any additional outlay in that direction would probably bear the expense.

Chief Shields then chained up the dog, kicked the cat, set the bear trap, and the solons departed.

---

NOTES.

As Chairman Gillespie is a pusher he may be able to push through with two inexperienced men on the Fire and Water committee.

With this exception the composition of the committees is medium to chilled.

Ald. Adamson, as chairman of the Road and Bridge, can fill in his noon hour nicely.

Completing the Panama canal is a pastime compared with the contract Ald. Green has undertaken as chairman of the Amusement committee.

Ald. Ketchum pled pathetically for a place on the Fire and Water committee, but when it was pointed out that he was on the B. and B. and T. P committees and was chairman of the graveyard combination he dropped off to sleep.

Ald. Fiddis and Young preserved a golden silence, but when they do speak princes will turn pale, thrones will totter and the cat will make a mask for the collar.

Although the young ladies say Ald. Coleman's heed is softer than his heart he is a careful chairman of the Charity committee.

There was a jagged hole in the atmosphere where ex Ald Bailey was wont to sit and slag.

Ald. Ketchum is as deep as a railroad cut. Note his shrewdness (?) in spotting assessment errors after the elections.

The uninitiated who think those in high places have nothing to do but pocket fees and big salaries should survey the hairless domes of the triumvirate who direct and control aldermen not born to captivity. The mayor, reeve and deputy reeve do some heavy thinking and are entitled to shining crowns. Three of a kind beat two pair.

A WARNING TO MOTHERS.

The great feverishness which pale, sickly and weakly children are subject to, and the terrible convulsions which follow, are the cause of many a life. The young children of the present generation are not the hearty, robust, rosy boys and girls that their grandfathers and grandmothers were. They are the victims of a system that is poisoned, and they are the victims of blood poisoning, shaping course in the form of humors and rash, scrofula, bronchitis, consumption, and other diseases of a similar character. All these diseases originate in a condition of the blood, which is then sent to the pores of the skin, which it clogs and irritates, and is accompanied by excited and other unnatural conditions which give sickness and suffering to the young. Mothers can prove that an early resort to a certain period in their lives. If they are, as you value their lives do not delay to procure a remedy that will save them. Delays in such cases are not only dangerous, but positively criminal. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People is a remedy composed especially for such cases. These pills are not a patent medicine, but a remedy prepared with the greatest care from the formula of an experienced physician who has used it for years in his daily practice with unerring success. These pills are especially rich in those elements which give vitality to coursing blood, restore health and vigor. They are in all cases a nerve-building blood-builder and nerve tonic, acting upon the system in a natural manner and restoring health and strength to all who suffer from a watery or depraved condition of the blood or from any of those weaknesses peculiar to females. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price (50 cents a box) by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A $750 COTTAGE.

GET A FLAG

FOR YOUR

SCHOOLHOUSE

The movement for hoisting the Canadian flag on the schoolhouses on anniversaries of noted events in our history is spreading rapidly throughout the Dominion and evoking the hearty approval of all patriotic citizens. Already

The Empire

has done its share in helping on this movement, by awarding a handsome flag to one schools in each county of Ontario, but the number of enquiries from all parts of the Dominion as to how flags can be obtained by other schools has determined the publishers of THE EMPIRE to offer a handsome of best bunting, 12 feet long (regular price $12), as a premium for 30 new yearly subscribers to the WEEKLY EMPIRE at $1 or eight new yearly subscribers to THE DAILY EMPIRE at $5 per annum, or a proportion of each, one subscription in Daily counting for FOUR Weeklies.

Every school in the Dominion ought to have a national flag, and this offer presents an opportunity for each obtaining it without cost, and with little trouble. Let those who are interested in getting a flag for their schoolhouse join in getting up a club, and while subscribers get full value for their money in the best newspaper in the Dominion, the school obtains its flag FREE OF COST.

The WEEKLY EMPIRE has recently been enlarged to twelve pages, and is now, without doubt, the best weekly newspaper in Canada, while the reputation of THE DAILY EMPIRE as the leading morning journal of the Dominion is well known.

Send for sample copies and special clubbing lists, and go in for a flag for your school.

ADDRESS THE EMPIRE, Toronto.

The Key Stone.

REGULARITY of the bowels is the keystone of health. The use of B. B. B. insures it and cures constipation, dyspepsia, etc.

Miss F. Williams, 445 Sherbourne Street, Toronto, writes: "I have used your Burdock Blood Bitters for constipation and pain in the stomach with great success. I improved from the second dose."

A three-year-old Arthur Mill named Trelford was nearly killed last week by lumbering in sleighs.

Tottenham citizens are clamoring for a grain [illegible] stamping to show all they are doing.

Medical Hints.

THE quickest, surest and best remedy for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sore Throat, Sores and Lameness is Hagyard's Yellow Oil. It also cures Burns, Scalds, Bruises, Cuts, Sprains, etc. Use enough, quite freely, and apply the oil externally also, and you will find relief will result.

Montreal had twenty-five fires last week.

Billy Sunderland, manager of a circus, died in jail at Fredericton one day last week.

Mary Robinson, daughter of a rich farmer, has been charged with a crime.

Wind Throw Liver, Kidneys and B. B. B. Regulate Stomach and Bowels. B. B. B. will cure Constipation. B. B. B. will cure Dyspepsia. B. B. B. will cure Bad Blood. B. B. B. will cure Scrofula. B. B. B. is sold by druggists at $1 per bottle or six bottles for $5. Large Sample Bottle to Introduce, 25 cents. Address, Bloodine Co., New York.

Lawrence Quinn, of Guelph, left $[illegible] to the county poor; [illegible] to the city poor; [illegible] to the Guelph Orphans' Home.

There was a lively market.

Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, speaking at Birmingham, criticised Mr. Gladstone's refusal to take the country into his confidence in regard to the new lymph for the Irish disease.

A report has been submitted to the Chicago Ship Canal Company on the proposed ship canal to run from Joliet to Chicago, the cost of which would reach $27,000,000.

Ex-Ald. E. A. Macdonald, of Toronto, has had a writ issued to unseat Mayor Clarke. Macdonald says the mayor has a contract with the city and is therefore disqualified.

Coming Events.

Coming consumption is foreshadowed by a hacking cough, night sweats, pain in the chest, etc. Arrest its progress at once by taking Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, which never fails to cure coughs, colds, bronchitis, hoarseness, etc., and even in confirmed consumption affords great relief.

A number of Jewish refugees from Russia arrived at Winnipeg on Thursday and will settle in Manitoba.

of best bunting, 12 feet long (regular price $12), as a premium for 30 new yearly subscribers to the WEEKLY EMPIRE at $1 or eight new yearly subscribers to THE DAILY EMPIRE at $5 per annum, or a proportion of each, one subscription to Daily counting for four Weeklies.
Every school in the Dominion ought to have a national flag, and this offer presents an opportunity for each obtaining it without cost, and with little trouble. Let those who are interested in getting a flag for their schoolhouse join in getting up a club, and while subscribers get full value for their money in the best newspaper in the Dominion, the school obtains the flag FREE OF COST.
The WEEKLY EMPIRE has recently been enlarged to twelve pages, and is now, without doubt, the best weekly newspaper in Canada, while the reputation of THE DAILY EMPIRE as the leading morning journal of the Dominion is well known.

A BIG ROBBER'S CAVE

Discovery of the Underground Headquarters of the Notorious James and Younger Gangs.

LE SUEUR, Minn., Jan. 10.—Great excitement prevails in Le Sueur and Nicollet counties over the discovery in Lake Prairie township, Nicollet county, of the subterranean rendezvous of the Younger and James boys and their band of outlaws before and after their raid upon the Northfield bank in 1876, in which six men were killed. One of the Missouri bandits evidently died in this wonderfully constructed home in the earth, as the bones were found there.

Yesterday afternoon a party of young farmers started out on a rabbit shooting expedition, and while traversing what is known as the Ramey Fay ravine from the foot or base towards its head one of the party stumbled and fell, rolling down the embankment to the bed of a creek. In attempting to scramble back up the bank he discovered an old weather beaten door, which was held fast in place by a couple of pieces of leather. The door stood partly ajar, opening into an apartment as dark as midnight and as mysterious as it was dark. The young men shouted to his companions, who promptly responded, and after carefully surveying the exterior of the mysterious premises a lantern was sent for and a thorough exploration of the interior was commenced.

The first compartment entered was a common dungeon only about eight feet square, and had seemingly been used as a sort of ante-room, with earthen floor and walls, but on the back end a space of about six feet was covered from the ceiling to the ground floor with hewn logs stood on end and close together. The only possible way to get in it with a horse is to follow the creek bed from its mouth, five miles west, at the edge of the prairie, and then there are places which would seem absolutely impassable by animals, and to reach the cave with any sort of a vehicle would be utterly impossible. The only theory advanced as to what became of the dirt which was taken out in making this rendezvous which sounds at all plausible is that the place was built by a band of horse thieves under the notorious Conway early in the '70s, that several years were consumed in digging, and that the loose earth was dumped into Indian creek, which in early days was quite a stream, and carried down the steep declivity by the water. Members of this gang of thieves evidently joined the Younger-James outlaws in 1876 and placed them to this rendezvous, as they could never have found it without assistance.

CANADIANS AS SOLDIERS.

Speaking of soldiers, Major Edmond Rolls remarked that they made the best soldiers physically that he ever saw. In his company, the 61st New York volunteer infantry, in the late war, he said he had forty-five of them, and no hardships could dampen their gay spirits nor tell against their hearty humor. In those terrible forced marches of the Army of the Potomac in the Fredericksburg, with the thermometer far up in the nineties and the dust a foot deep, when thousands of men fell out by the roadside, many of them never to march again, these Canadians trudged along cheerily, beguiling the weary way with jokes and song. They could not understand the weariness of their American comrades, who could hardly make overcoats, blankets and other impedimenta on a hard march without a thought, so they would carefully gather them up, add them to their own load, and bring them into camp. "One evening, I remember," said the major, "a

WHAT MATTERS IT?

What matters it, my evident friend, where
Is
Our heavenly home? Are you sure of one?
We where is he beyond the seas of time
Or in some nearer world? God knows enough
Is often away from our ears, and on
What matters whether it be high or low,
Or whether only what some should manifest know?

Rest from the contrasts of hardened days,
Of bitter longings and of cold hours,
Of dreary looking on through the veil
And time effects far beyond our powers,
Of dark temptations into sorrowful,
Of sunshine taken, and to poor goods to vain,
Of spirits darkened by the cloth and dim.

It matters nothing as to where or where
We find the haven and the welcome home;
Let earthly doubt give place to trusting prayer,
And to wait and through speculation roam.
We wait for ended up secrets hidden things;
Enough for us if on eternal wings
We reach the country of those better things.

You not thy spirit, oh, anything more!
But live the days as earnest workers meet;
Not try to sleep through God's mysterious plan
Which obligated thee to a life of trust,
Some day, somewhere, while contending roll,
Thy hungry heart shall compensated the whole,
The veil be parted for thy thankful soul.

A BIG ROBBER'S CAVE

Discovery of the Underground Headquarters of the Celebrated James and Younger Gangs.

LE SUEUR, Minn., Jan. 10.—Great excitement prevails in Le Sueur and Nicollet counties over the discovery in Lake Prairie township, Nicollet county, of the subterranean rendezvous of the Younger and James boys and their band of outlaws before and after their raid upon the Northfield bank in 1876, in which six men were killed. One of the Missouri banditti evidently died in this wonderfully constructed home in the earth, as the bones were found there.

Yesterday afternoon a party of young farmers started out on a rabbit shooting expedition, and while traversing what is known as the Barney Fay ravine from its foot or base towards its head one of the party stumbled and fell, rolling down the embankment to the bed of a creek. In attempting to scramble back up the bank he discovered an old weather beaten door, which was held to its place by a couple of pieces of leather. This door stood partly ajar, opening into an apartment as dark as midnight and as mysterious as it was dark. The young man shouted to his companions, who promptly responded, and after carefully surveying the exterior of the mysterious premises a lantern was sent for and a thorough exploration of the interior was commenced.

The first compartment entered was a common dungeon only about eight feet square, and had seemingly been used as a sort of ante-room, with earthen floor and walls, but on the back end a space of about six feet was covered from the ceiling to the ground floor with hewn logs stood on end and close together. In these logs were numerous nails driven, apparently for the purpose of hanging clothing on. A careful examination, however, revealed the fact that these logs formed a blind door, which led into a room twenty feet long and perhaps sixteen feet wide, along side of which banks were arranged something after the fashion of berths on a steamboat, and from the number of these at least thirty persons had found sleeping accommodations in this secluded and mysterious place of abode. This room contained several benches and stools, an old table, tin plates and cups, kettles, a cook stove and various utensils. In one corner stood an old box on end, which had evidently served as a cupboard, near which was found a rough board box, which had been used as a flour chest. This box was partitioned off, and one end contained thirty or forty pounds of buckwheat flour. Several old faded decks of playing cards, a few old newspapers and a badly dilapidated copy of Kit Carson were found scattered about on the rude earth floor.

In the back was found this poorly written letter, which was apparently from Frank James to Thomas Younger in reference to the stealing of some horses:

HERMAN, Minn., April 8.—Friend: I think you had better not come for a few days more. I was in Le Sueur this week and there was a good deal of talk of organizing a vigilance committee to enter the country in search of the gray mares, and I think it would be best for you to wait a few days longer. The only possible way to get in is with a horse is to follow the creek bed from the road, five miles west, at the edge of the prairie, and then there are places which would seem absolutely impossible by animals, and to reach the cave with any sort of a vehicle would be utterly impossible. The only theory advanced as to what became of the dirt which was taken out in making this rendezvous which sounds at all plausible is that the place was built by a band of horse thieves under the notorious Conway early in the '70s, that several years were consumed in digging, and that the loose earth was dumped into Ludina creek, which in early days was quite a stream, and carried down the steep decline by the water. Members of this gang of thieves evidently joined the Younger-James outlaws in 1876 and piloted them to this rendezvous, as they could never have found it without assistance.

CANADIAN'S AS SOLDIERS.

Speaking of soldiers, Major Edmond Heine remarked that they made the best soldiers physically that he ever saw. In his company, the 21st New York volunteer infantry, in the late war, he said he had forty-five of them, and no hardships could dampen their gay spirits nor tell upon their hearty frames. In these terrible forced marches of the Army of the Potomac in the Peninsula, with the thermometer far up in the nineties and the dust a foot deep, when thousands of men fell out by the roadside, many of them never to march again, these Canadians trudged along cheerily, beguiling the weary way with jokes and song. They could not understand the weaselfaces of their American comrades, who could hurl into overcoats, blankets, and other impedimenta on a hard march without a thought, as they would carefully gather them up, add them to their own load, and bring them into camp. "One evening, I remember," said the major, "a Canadian soldier came into bivouac, after a fearful march from early dawn, with twelve overcoats piled on his knapsack, which he had carried all day. He sold them back to their original owners for $1 each."

FARMING IN MAINE.

Statistics relating to the condition of agriculture in Maine, prepared by the labor commissioner of the state, confirm the view of the Boston Herald that "there has been a decadence in the farming interest in New England." Returns from 370 representative farmers in Maine give an average value per acre of farm property, including buildings, of only $15.25, a rate much lower than prevails in any part of old Canada. Only ninety eight of these old farms have been yielding a profit, while 270 show an absolute loss, the average profit of the paying farms being $233, and the average loss of the unprofitable farms $310. The aggregate number of "abandoned farms" reported is 3 318. Estimating the number in the delinquent towns and plantations, on the average basis, at 60, the total number in the state is 3 398. The total acreage of the abandoned farms reported is 254,513, an average to each farm of 76.7 acres. These figures, taken from official sources, seem to teach that something more than free access to a market of sixty millions is essential to agricultural prosperity. The truth is the conditions of farming have undergone a radical change since the great West was opened up to settlement, and the product of the fertile prairies brought within reach of Eastern consumers by cheap and rapid transportation. In spite of improved methods the farming land in New England declines. "My farm, nine years ago," a Hebron man says, "was valued at $3,000, and cost at that time about 15 tons hay, and raised

WHAT MATTERS IT?

What matters it, my restless friend, where this
Our temporary habitat and our land of rest?
Whether it be beyond the seas or here
Or in somebodyness world? God knoweth best.

It often seems from our point of view, and so
What matters whether it be high or low,
It seems best; what more should mortals know?

Rest from the restlessness of burdened days,
Of bitter longings and of vain hours,
Of dreams leading us through darkened ways
And into efforts far beyond our powers,
Of dark temptations into error led,
Of contact taking earth's poor goods to wife,
Of spirits darkened by the strife and dim,
It matters nothing as to when or where
We find the haven and the welcome home;
Let surfaces darkle give place to trusting prayer,
And we work and through speculation roam.
We seek for united up secrets hidden things;
Enough for us if on eternal wings
We reach the country of those better things.

Yes, set thy spirit, oh, aspiring mind
But then the deepest moment explore and;
Nor try to pierce through God's mysterious plan
Which obligates thee to a life of trust,
Some day, somewhere, while counsel upon roll,
Thy hungry heart shall comprehend the whole,
The veil be parted for thy thankful soul.

The weather has moderated in Europe, and now there is danger from a rapid thaw.

Country districts in Spain have suffered severely from the late snowstorms, while heavy gales have prevailed on the coasts.

A BIG ROBBER'S CAVE

Discovery of the Underground Hiding-place of the Celebrated James and Younger Gangs.

LA SUEUR, Minn., Jan. 10.—Great excitement prevails in La Sueur and Blue Earth counties over the discovery in Lake Prairie township, Nicollet county, of the subterranean rendezvous of the Younger and James boys and their band of outlaws before and after their raid upon the Northfield bank in 1876. In which six men were killed. One of the bloodiest bandits evidently died in this extraordinary apartment hewn in the earth, as the bones were found there.

Yesterday afternoon a party of young farmers started out on a rabbit shooting expedition, and while traversing what is known as the Barney Day ravine from its foot as been towards its head one of the party stumbled and fell, rolling down the embankment to the bed of a creek. In attempting to scramble back up the bank he discovered an old weather beaten door, which was held in its place by a couple of pieces of leather. This door stood partly ajar, opening into an apartment as dark as midnight and as mysterious as it was dark. The young man shouted to his companions, who promptly responded, and after carefully surveying the exterior of the mysterious premises a lantern was sent for and a thorough exploration of the interior was commenced.

The first compartment entered was a common dungeon only about eight feet square, and had seemingly been used as a sort of ante-room, with earthen floor and walls, but on the back end a space of about six feet was covered from the ceiling to the ground floor with hewn logs stood on end and close together. In these logs were numerous nails driven, apparently for the purpose of hanging clothing on. A careful examination, however, revealed the fact that these logs formed a blind door, which led into a room twenty feet long and perhaps sixteen feet wide, along side of which banks were arranged something after the fashion of berths on a steamboat, and from the number of these at least thirty persons had found sleeping accommodations in this secluded and mysterious place of abode. This room contained several benches and stools, an old table, tin plates and cups, kettles, a cook stove and various utensils. In one corner stood an old box on end, which had evidently served as a cupboard, near which was found a rough board box, which had been used as a flour chest. This box was partitioned off, and one end contained thirty or forty pounds of buckwheat flour. Scattered about were old decks of playing cards, a few old newspapers and a badly dilapidated copy of Kirton's Reader was found scattered about on the rude slab floor.

In the book was found this poorly written letter, which was apparently from Frank James to James Younger in reference to the stealing of some horses:

ELTHAM, Minn., April 8.—Friend: I think you had better not come for a few days more. I was in La Sueur this week and there was a good deal of talk of organizing a vigilance committee to scour the country in search of the gray mares, and I think it would be best to wait a little, as you know these cursed vigilant committees won't wait for judge or jury or anything else. If they get after us it will be a case of kill or get killed. By the way, Jim, do you know that I am a little suspicious of Brown, who claimed to hail from Wisconsin when he joined us? Ed. told me the other day that he knows positively of three different letters received by Brown which were post-marked at Chicago. He may be one of those d——d Pinkerton detectives for all we know, and the sooner we investigate the case the better it will be. He seems like a jolly brave fellow, and I would be sorry to find him to be a traitor and have to "plant" him, but self protection is the first law of nature, you know, and it is best to be on the safe side. I expect to be over at the "half-way" some time next week. I wish you would meet me there. I have a big scheme. Good by this time. FRANK.

The above letter naturally aroused the curiosity of the visitors, and the task of taking up the slab floor was soon completed, but no new discoveries were made until the old box which acted the part of a cupboard was pulled down. Behind it was another opening or door leading into another apartment, which horses had been secreted, the room, or artificial cave, being large enough to accommodate twenty head at a time. Eighteen hitching posts were driven three feet apart, and each post supplied with a square box for feeding. Old curry combs and brushes were also promiscuously scattered about.

In rummaging about a skull and other bones belonging to a human being were found under a pile of partly decayed corn-stalks. Different theories are advanced as to the presence of the skull. There are many who entertain the belief that the man Brown referred to in the letter was found to be a detective and was murdered, while others think that one of the gang wounded in the Northfield fight died and was buried there. The place is as impregnable as Gibraltar, and twenty men with plenty of food and ammunition could hold it against a regiment for a month.

The strangest feature about the matter is what has become of the hundreds of cart loads of dirt which must have necessarily been taken out in order to give the room which is found there.

The only opening was through a door in a house in a secluded part of the town, and this door was placed with great cleverness beneath the cellar, and to reach the cave with any sort of a vehicle would be utterly impossible. The only theory advanced as to what became of the dirt which was taken out in making this underground cave which stands at all plausible is that the place was built by a band of horse thieves under the notorious Cow Boys early in the '70s, that several years were consumed in digging, and that the loose earth was deposited into Indian creek, which in early days was quite a stream, and carried down the creek by the water. Members of this gang of thieves evidently joined the Younger-James outlaws in 1876 and pilloted them to this underground cave, or they could never have found it plausible manner.

CANADIANS AS SOLDIERS.

Speaking of soldiers, Major Edward Hale remarked that they made the best soldiers physically that he ever saw. In his company, the 21st New York volunteer infantry, in the late war, he said he had forty five of them, and no hardships could dampen their gay spirits nor tell upon their hardy frames. In those terrible forced marches of the Army of the Potomac in the Wilderness, with the thermometer far up in the nineties and the dust a foot deep, when thousands of men fell out by the roadside, many of them never to march again, these Canadians trudged along cheerily, beguiling the weary way with jokes and song. They could not understand the waterfalls of their American comrades, who could hard while overcoats, blankets, and other impediments on a hard march without a thought, so they would carefully gather them up, add them to their own load, and bring them into camp. "One evening, I remember," said the major, "a Canadian soldier came into bivouac, after a fearful march from early dawn, with twelve overcoats piled on his knapsack, which he had carried all day. He sold them back to their original owners for $1 each."

FARMING IN MAINE.

Statistics relating to the condition of agriculture in Maine, prepared by the labor commissioner of the state, confirm the view of the Boston Herald that "there has been a decadence in the farming interest in New England." Returns from 370 representative farmers in Maine give an average value per acre of farm property, including buildings, of only $15.25, a rate much lower than prevails in any part of old Canada. Only ninety eight of these old farms have been yielding a profit, while 270 show an absolute loss, the average profit of the paying farms being $233, and the average losses of the unprofitable farms $310. The aggregate number of "abandoned farms" reported is 3 318. Estimating the number in the delinquent towns and plantations, on the average basis, at 80, the total number in the state is 6 398. The total acreage of the abandoned farms reported is 254,513, an average to each farm of 76.7 acres. These figures, taken from official sources, seem to teach that something more than free access to a market of sixty millions is essential to agricultural prosperity. The truth is the conditions of farming have undergone a radical change since the great West was opened up to settlement, and the product of the fertile prairies brought within reach of Eastern consumers by cheap and rapid transportation. In spite of increased productiveness the farming land in New England declines. "My farm, nine years ago," a Hebron man says, "was valued at $2,000, and cut at that time about 15 tons hay, and raised 40 barrels apples. It now produces 40 tons hay and 100 barrels apples, and if I have my health, it shall double this crop in a few years. I think it would be hard work to sell it now for $2,500," and this is the burthen of nearly all the reports. "Farming at present is a precarious business," is what a North Troy farmer writes, "owing to the depressed condition of all agricultural products. The true value of real estate is hard to determine. If valued according to net income it would have to be valued very low. At present we are taxed to the utmost care and economy to live within our income. The adage, 'He that by the plough would thrive must either hold himself or drive,' becomes painfully apparent now, as we have to both hold and drive in order to live." In some parts of Canada, unfortunately, the returns of the husbandman are meagre, and the margin of profit slim, but our farmers have certainly no cause to envy their neighbors to the south.

For two years a young man named James Brady has been working for the J. B Armstrong manufacturing company, Guelph, and boarding at the Union hotel, and was engaged to marry one of the girls there, Mary Ryan. She threw up her situation at the Union, while he had arranged, or said he had, as to the furniture. Together they visited Our Lady's rectory and asked to have their names called on Sunday. On Saturday Brady started out to procure the stoves, but did not show up again, and inquiry revealed that he had drawn his back wages and that he had departed, leaving the girl in the lurch.

Mr. Wm. Saunders, director of the Dominion Experimental Farms, has published a bulletin giving the comparative results of early and of late seeding of barley, oats and spring wheat. The result is to show in a very marked way the advantage of early seeding. In one variety of barley the seed sown on April 22nd produced nearly sixteen bushels more than the seed sown a week later, and in another the difference was eleven bushels. In oats the difference did not appear so quickly, but the yields of the first sowings were 39 bushels and 35 bushels, while the yields of the last sowings, a month later were 17 bushels and 19 bushels. In spring wheat the greatest difference was seen between the sowing of May 6th and the sowing of May 13th; the former yielded 8 bushels and the second four bushels. Taking the statistics of the Ontario Bureau of Industries as a basis, Mr. Saunders estimates the loss to the farmers of Ontario from a delay of a week in sowing barley at $3,730,000; two weeks' delay in sowing spring wheat would mean a loss of $741 669, and a delay of one or two weeks in sowing oats would mean a loss of $752,000.

of the life and work of John Brown, the hero of Harper's Ferry, and of the free soil movement in Kansas. The paper dealt especially with the hero's stay in Canada, where, in the town of Chatham, the mission of Harper's Ferry was planned. In 1858, Brown, with two small companies of men, entered Missouri to repel attacks made upon free soil settlers in Kansas. Their bold mess created no great a commotion that Brown determined to carry the slaves he had rescued to freedom. They reached Chatham after a weary and dangerous march of three months. Here the conspiracy against Harper's Ferry was planned in the old wooden fire hall which formerly stood near Princess street and King street, Chatham. Mr. Hamilton had views with him of the building, the old school house and Baptist church in which the preliminary meetings were held.

John Brown was described as a man of fine physique and intelligence, a Calvinist in religion, at once bold and kindly. At one time he was in this city and held meetings of colored men in Temperance hall. Of the members of the Chatham convention only three survive in Canada. They are J. M. Jones, Isaac Holden and Hunton. They still reside in Chatham. Mr. John Laidlaw told of his connection with the anti-slavery movement in Canada. Dr. Abbott, who was a surgeon in the Federal army during the war, confirmed the statements made in Mr. Hamilton's paper about Chatham. He practised in Chatham for a number of years and knew Jones, Holden and others of the convention. John Copeland, one of those who fell at Harper's Ferry, had attended Oberlin College, in Ohio, with Dr. Abbott, who described him as a quiet fellow whom nobody imagined to be the hero he had turned out to be. He also knew the history of the Elgin settlement made at Buxton, near Chatham, in 1850 for refugees. Mr. Laidlaw, Rev. Wm. King, Dr. Willis and others secured 9,000 acres which composed the original settlement. Mr. Arthur Harvey said he was in Kansas in 1858 and 59, and while he could not agree with Mr. Hamilton's views of the circumstances yet congratulated him on the able manner in which he had presented them.

A somewhat modest New York lawyer says that only twice in his life has he really been proud. "The first time was years ago in court. I'd been admitted, and had had charge of the preparation of an important suit. The jury brought in a verdict for our side and I felt happy. But after I'd collected all the papers and books and was going out, my chief, who was one of the lights of the bar in those days, put his hand on my shoulder and said: 'You prepared that case well, my boy; if it hadn't been for you we'd have been beaten.' And I knew it was so, for he'd come back from Washington only that morning and had to depend entirely on my work. And the second time I felt proud was when my married sister came into my library early one afternoon and said in a half whisper: "It's a boy." Every one will admit that on the latter occasion, at least, his self congratulations were justified.

The Woodstock Standard says one applicant for the position is said to have written Mr. Mowat urging his fitness for the position in words something like these: "Dear Sir,—Kindly allow me to apply for the position of sheriff of this county. I am a Presbyterian and worship at Dr. McMullen's church. Know Jim Sutherland well and have always backed the tug-of-war team against the world. I think I can fill the position as well, if not better than Jim Brady, of Innerkeil. If another Birchall case should come up will do the hanging my self. Please send appointment by first mail. Regards to Mrs Mowat. Yours truly."

The Princess of Wales is said to be the youngest looking woman of her age in England, and so owe the wonderful preservation of her youth and beauty to her ability to take a little sleep at her will, a power which she is able to call to her assistance even for a five or ten minute interval in the rush of her many duties. IS LIFE WORTH LIVING?

The great frequency with which pale, sallow and enfeebled girls are met now-a-days is cause for genuine alarm. The young girls of the present generation are not the healthy, robust, rosy lassies their mothers and grandmothers were before them. Their complexion is pale and sallow or waxy in appearance, and they are the victims of heart palpitation, ringing noises in the head, cold hands and feet, often fainting spells, racking headaches, backaches, shortness of breath, and other distressing symptoms. All these betoken chlorisis or anæmia—or in other words, a watery or impoverished condition of the blood, which is thus unable to perform its normal functions, and unless speedily enriched with those natural remedies which give richness and redness to the blood corpuscles, organic disease and an early grave is the inevitable result. Is not this prospect sufficient to cause the gravest alarm? Mothers are your daughters suffering from any of the symptoms indicated above, or from any of the irregularities incident to a critical period in their lives? If they are, as you value their lives do not delay in procuring a remedy that will save them. Delays in such cases are not only dangerous, but positively criminal. Dr. William's Pink Pills for Pale People is a remedy compounded especially to meet such cases. These pills are not a patent medicine, but a remedy prepared with the greatest care from the formula of an experienced physician, who has used it for years in his daily practice with unvarying success. These pills are especially rich in those constituents which stimulate the blood and give it that rich, red color necessary to preserve health and life. They are in all cases a never-failing blood-builder and nerve tonic, acting upon the system in a natural manner and restoring health and strength to all who suffer from a watery or depraved condition of the blood or from any of those weaknesses peculiar to females. Dr. William's Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price (50 cents a box) by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The deepest lake in the world, so far as known, is Lake Baikal, in Siberia. While 9,000 square miles in area, or nearly as large as Lake Erie, it is 4,000 to 4,500 feet deep, so that it contains nearly as much water as Lake Superior. Its surface is 1,350 feet above sea level, and its bottom nearly 3,000 feet below it.

BREADMAKER'S YEAST.

BREAD made of this Yeast took the First Prize at Ontario Fall Shows in 1887.

Over twenty ladies have written to say it is the most reliable yeast ever used by them.

It makes 50 loaves, sweeter, whiter, sweetest bread, rolls, buns, and buckwheat pancakes.

Bakers in nearly every town in Canada are using it.

"The new dog bounded to his feet and looked for something to seek, but, finding nothing, lay down again.

The parrot clambered down from his perch and waddled across to where the dog was lying.

"S-s-sick 'em, Tige," he said again.

"This time Tige found something to seek. He pounced upon the parrot, tore him, shook him, and boxed him about until the poor bird was well-nigh dead. When the dog had been called off the parrot labored up to his perch, looked about the floor where his beautiful feathers lay scattered, scanned himself minutely noted his one remaining tail feather, and said:

"I know what's the matter with me; I talked too blamed much."

ORANGEVILLE, FEB. 6, 1891.

THE ELECTIONS.

Owing to pressure on our columns this week, THE SUN is unable to say a great deal about the Dominion elections, which take place a month from today, Tuesday, March 6th. The indications are that the Government of Sir John Macdonald will be returned with an increased majority.

In Cardwell Messrs. R. S. White, Wm. Welsh, James Snell and two or three others will go before the constituency, which is to be held on Friday, the 13th inst. Centre Wellington Grits will stick to Andrew Semple, but he may find a worthy opponent in W. H. Hunter, of East Garafraxa, or Dr. Grosvenor, of Fergus. McMullen, as usual, will be found in North Wellington, and there is some talk of Dr. Louie going up to unhorse the riding.

Next week's SUN will contain full particulars.

DUFFERIN COUNTY COUNCIL.

Dufferin's county council met for the transaction of business at 2 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon of last week. The members present were:

Orangeville — Reeve, J. Lindsay; deputy-reeve, H. Endecott.

Southern—Reeve, W. Jelly.

East Garafraxa—Reeve, Thos. Hamilton; deputy-reeve, James H. Simpson.

East Luther—Reeve, John Park, deputy-reeve, Wm. McLelland.

Amaranth—R. Wansbrough; deputy reeve, W. Johnston.

Mono—R. Allen; 1st deputy, George Island, 2nd deputy, Wm. Dyers.

Melmur — Reeve, R. Gallagher; deputy-reeve, Wm. Wiggins.

Mulmuster—Reeve, Robt. McGhee; 1st deputy, S. McDowell; 2nd deputy, F. Gowan.

When Mr. J. C. Reid, county clerk, began to receive the certificates of qualification it was discovered that the reeve and deputy reeve of Melmur and the reeve of Mono were minus their "commissions." This occasioned a wearisome discussion, and the matter was finally settled by Mr. Allen presenting his certificate and Melmur's representatives being allowed to take their seats on the understanding that they file their papers before the end of the session.

THE WARDENSHIP

On motion of Mr Hamilton, seconded by Mr. Park, Mr. Richard Allen, reeve of Mono, was unanimously elected warden of Dufferin for 1891. The warden-elect then made a short but practical speech. He thanked the council for the honor conferred upon him, and promised to perform the duties pertaining to the office to the best of his ability.

THE STANDING COMMITTEES.

DOMINION ELECTIONS!

TAKE PLACE ON MARCH 6TH.

Conservatives Securing Money Trade Questions with the U. S.

On Monday last writs were issued for holding the elections to the Dominion House, nominations taking place on February 26th, polling to take place on March 5th.

READING FOR THE APPEAL.

In view of the foregoing important statement, the question will naturally be asked: What are the reasons that have induced the Government to appeal to the country at the present time? It is understood that the Dominion has, through Her Majesty's Government, made certain proposals to the United States for negotiations looking to an extension of our commerce with that country. These proposals have been submitted to the president for his consideration, and the Canadian Government is of the opinion that if the negotiations are to result in a treaty which must be ratified by the Parliament of Canada, it is expedient that the Government should be able to deal with a Parliament fresh from the people rather than with a moribund House.

THE FLAG OF CANADA,

Is Hoisted Amid Loyal Enthusiasm on the Orangeville School.

When the Empire flag was won for the county of Dufferin by a pupil of the Orangeville public school the trustees very properly decided that the event should be celebrated in a becoming manner. They accordingly had a splendid pole raised in the school grounds and made arrangements for a public demonstration upon the occasion of hoisting the flag. On Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock the town hall was packed to the down with school children, their parents and friends and the leading men of the town who were present in response to the invitation of the trustees. The trustees, under the energetic guidance of Chairman Savage, had been most thorough in their work and had entered into it with enthusiasm and zeal. The audience that had assembled was in good humor and full of loyalty. The addresses that were delivered were as a rule most excellent in their wording and delivery, and the part taken by the children in the loyal recitations and choruses that they rendered reflected credit on their instructors.

ON THE PLATFORM.

The chair was occupied by Mayor Walsh, and seated around him on the platform were the following gentlemen: Chairman Savage and Public School Trustees Lightbon, Fleming, Bennett, Kelly, Perdue, High School Trustees McLaren (chairman), Kearns and Smith, and Alex. Steele, principal of the high school; Deputy-reeve Endecott and Town Councillors Ketchum, Fiddis, Gillespie and Green; Sheriff Bowles, County Attorney Myers, County Treas-

ASSESSORS APPOINTED.

THE TOWN COUNCIL TRIES A NEW RAKE.

[illegible]

The special meeting of the new town council took place on Monday night. Mayor Walsh, Reeve Lindsay, Deputy-reeve Endecott and Councillors Green, Ketchum, Gillespie, Adams, Fiddis and Fleming were present. After the chair took the meeting in hand the mayor read from Wm. Bell, re an overcharge of interest on a certain loan. The treasurer replied to Mr. Fleming, and a reduction of $1.50 was allowed.

W. T. Bailey, secretary of the board of trade, wrote to say that the board wanted a registrar to examine cows; it would be necessary to provide a few feet of new hose, a new hose reel and an electric fire alarm system. The cost would be about $600. Referred to F. and W. committee to report at next meeting.

United States Consul Pope, of Toronto, penned a letter to say that no more vice consuls will be appointed in this part of the country for some time to come. Consequently Orangeville has no chance for a U.S. office.

B. C. Lemont, B. F. West and A. Conley thought they could assess the town satisfactorily.

ACCOUNTS

from E. McLean, $7.50; J. C. Browne, $1.50; R. Lawson, $2.50; R. Allen, $1.50; H. N. Young & Bros., $1.50; B. Fletcher, $2.25, were ordered paid. W. Francis, $4.50, referred to R. and B. committee. R. Irvine, $3.10, referred to T. P. committee.

THE TOWN WRESTED AT LAW.

The mayor startled the council by saying that the town had come off second best in the law suit tried at the last division court. Bill Ryan sued the town to recover damages for the breaking of his wagon on a defective street, and was awarded $4.50 damages and costs. John R. Cook brought an action against the town for injuries received near the C.P.R. station some three years ago. Judgment was given in this case for $20 and costs.

REPORTS.

Reeve Lindsay read the treasurer's statement for December.

Ald. Youmans brought down an important report from the Printing committee.

Ald. Gillespie reported that every thing was in shipshape order at the waterworks, and asked permission to lay in a yearly stock of wood. Adopted.

Ald. Youmans introduced a by law to appoint a high school trustee. At a later stage of the proceedings Dr. Smith was reappointed.

Deputy-reeve Endecott's by law re the leasing of a few feet of ground to T. T. King was read a third time.

The worst fib of all. If the Globe had said "there is no worse tempered man in Canadian politics" everybody would have said it was nearer the truth. He left the Conservative ranks because he wanted to rule rather than serve, and ever since he has been a Liberal for revenge. The student of our political history will search Sir Richard's speeches since 1874 in vain for a single kindly reference to his opponents; while he will be shocked and grieved by the malignity of his attacks on Conservatives. We might even go further. It is perhaps impossible to find a single sentiment of kindly regard for anybody, friend or foe, in all Sir Richard's utterances. Many persons have come to regard Sir Richard Cartwright as an enemy to this country. He is seeking to undermine and break down all that makes for the growth of the Dominion and the well being of our people. He is only in political life for the purpose of revenge. For fifteen years he has pursued the honored premier with unchanging hatred, and at times it would seem as if he were willing to wreck everything Canadians hold dear for the sake of triumphing in his work of revenge. It is when such a man is held up as a hero that the plain truth ought to be told about him.—London Free Press.

The Princess of Wales is said to be the youngest looking woman of her age in England, and to owe the wonderful preservation of her youth and beauty to her ability to take a little sleep at her will, a power which she is able to call to her assistance even for a five or ten minute interval in the rush of her many duties. She seems like a sister to her three tall daughters, and a sister but slightly in advance of them in years.

Hopeless Hope.—He—"May I hope?" She—"Yes; if you will promise never to refer to the matter again."

or the present generation are not the healthy, robust, rosy lassies their mothers and grandmothers were before them. Their complexion is pale and sallow or waxy in appearance, and they are the victims of heart palpitation, ringing noises in the head, cold hands and feet, often fainting spells, racking headaches, backaches, shortness of breath, and other distressing symptoms. All these betoken chlorosis or anæmia—or in other words, a watery or impoverished condition of the blood, which is thus unable to perform its normal functions, and unless speedily enriched with those natural remedies which give richness and redness to the blood corpuscles, organic disease and an early grave is the inevitable result. Is not this prospect sufficient to cause the gravest alarm? Mothers are your daughters suffering from any of the symptoms indicated above, or from any of the irregularities incident to a critical period in their lives? If they are, as you value their lives do not delay in procuring a remedy that will save them. Delays in such cases are not only dangerous, but positively criminal. Dr. William's Pink Pills for Pale People is a remedy compounded especially to meet such cases. These pills are not a patent medicine, but a remedy prepared with the greatest care from the formula of an experienced physician, who has used it for years in his daily practice with unvarying success. These pills are especially rich in those constituents which stimulate the blood and give it that rich, red color necessary to preserve health and life. They are in all cases a never-failing blood-builder and nerve tonic, acting upon the system in a natural manner and restoring health and strength to all who suffer from a watery or depraved condition of the blood or from any of those weaknesses peculiar to females. Dr. William's Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price (50 cents a box) by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE ELECTIONS.

Owing to pressure on our columns this week, THE SUN is unable to say a great deal about the Dominion elections, which take place a month from today, Thursday, March 5th. The indications are that the Government of Sir John Macdonald will be returned with an increased majority.

In Cardwell Messrs. R. S. White, W. H. Welsh, James Snell and two or three others will go before the convention, which is to be held on Friday, the 13th inst. Centre Wellington Grits will stick to Andrew Semple, but he may find a worthy opponent in W. H. Hunter, of East Garafraxa, or Dr. Groves, of Fergus. McMullen, as usual, will be found in North Wellington, and there is some talk of Dr. Lewis going up to redeem the riding.

Next week's Sun will contain full particulars.

DUFFERIN COUNTY COUNCIL.

Dufferin's county council met for the transaction of business at 2 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon of last week. The members present were:

Orangeville — Reeve, J. Lindsey; deputy-reeve, H. Endacott.

Shelburne—Reeve, W. Jelly.

East Garafraxa—Reeve, Thos. Hamilton; deputy reeve, James H. Simpson.

East Luther—Reeve, John Park; deputy-reeve, Wm. McLelland.

Amaranth—R. Wansbrough; deputy reeve, W. Johnson.

Mono—R. Allen; 1st deputy, George Island. 2nd deputy, Wm. Dynes.

Mulmur — Reeve, R. Gallaugher; deputy-reeve, Wm. Wiggins.

Melancthon—Reeve, Robt. McGhee; 1st deputy, S. McDowel; 2nd deputy, F. Gowan.

When Mr. J. C. Reid, county clerk, began to receive the certificates of qualification it was discovered that the reeve and deputy reeve of Mulmur and the reeve of Mono were minus their "commissions." This occasioned a wearisome discussion, and the matter was finally settled by Mr. Allen presenting his certificate and Mulmur's representatives being allowed to take their seats on the understanding that they file their papers before the end of the session.

THE WARDENSHIP

On motion of Mr Hamilton, seconded by Mr. Park, Mr. Richard Allen, reeve of Mono, was unanimously elected warden of Dufferin for 1891. The warden-elect then made a short but practical speech. He thanked the council for the honor conferred upon him, and promised to perform the duties pertaining to the office to the best of his ability.

THE STANDING COMMITTEES.

Messrs. Jelly, Hamilton, Lindsey, Wansbrough, McGhee, Island and Park were appointed a committee to strike the standing committees.

After an hour's wrestling with the subject the committee brought in the following report, which was adopted, the gentlemen first named being chairmen:

FINANCE—Endacott, Island, McGhee, Gallaugher, Hamilton, Wansbrough, Jelly, Park and Gowan.

ASSESSMENT—McGhee, Jelly, Gallaugher, Island, Wansbrough, Simpson, Lindsey and Park.

DOMINION ELECTIONS!

TAKE PLACE ON MARCH 5TH.

Conservatives Bearing Closer Trade Relations with the U. S.

On Monday last bills were issued for holding the elections in the Dominion House, nominations taking place on February 26th, polling to take place on March 5th.

REASONS FOR THE APPEAL.

In view of the foregoing important statement, the question will naturally be asked: What are the reasons that have induced the Government to appeal to the country at the present time? It is understood that the Dominion has, through Her Majesty's Government, made certain proposals to the United States for negotiations looking to an extension of our commerce with that country. These proposals have been submitted to the president for his consideration, and the Canadian Government is of the opinion that if the negotiations are to result in a treaty which must be ratified by the Parliament of Canada, it is expedient that the Government should be able to deal with a Parliament fresh from the people rather than with a moribund House.

THE FLAG OF CANADA,

Is Hoisted Amid Loyal Enthusiasm on the Orangeville School.

When the Empire flag was won for the county of Dufferin by a pupil of the Orangeville public school the trustees very properly decided that the event should be celebrated in a becoming manner. They accordingly had a splendid pole raised in the school grounds and made arrangements for a public demonstration upon the occasion of hoisting the flag. On Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock the town hall was packed to the doors with school children, their parents and friends and the leading men of the town who were present in response to the invitation of the trustees. The trustees, under the energetic guidance of Uberman Savage, had been most thorough in their work and had entered into it with enthusiasm and zeal. The audience, that had assembled was in good humor and full of loyalty. The addresses that were delivered were as a rule most excellent in their wording and delivery, and the part taken by the children in the loyal recitations and choruses that they rendered reflected credit on their instructors.

ON THE PLATFORM.

The chair was occupied by Mayor Walsh, and seated around him on the platform were the following gentlemen: Chairman Savage and Public School Trustees Lighton, Fleming, Bennett, Kelly, Perdue, High School Trustees McLaren (chairman), Kearns and Smith, and Alex. Steele, principal of the high school; Deputy-reeve Endacott and Town Councillors Ketcham, Fiddis, Gillespie and Green; Sheriff Bowles, County Attorney Myers, County Treasurer Haun, Public School Inspector Gordon, and the following clergymen: Rev. A. Henderson (Episcopal), R. L. Pearson (Methodist), J. L. Gilmour (Baptist) and F. Burt (Episcopal), of Cardwell.

MAYOR WALSH'S ADDRESS.

Mayor Walsh delivered a short speech, in which he recited the circumstances leading up to the gathering together of so many people and expressed the pride that he felt in the successful effort of the youthful citizen who had written the prize essay in the Empire competition for the county of Dufferin. Proceeding, he remarked with satisfaction the growing tendency to bring matters relating to Canada and Canadian history more prominently before the attention of the children than was the case in his school days, and trusted that still greater advances in this direction would mark the future. He complimented the Empire upon its patriotic venture, and trusted that it would receive the reward which it merited. At the conclusion of the chairman's address the flag was carried in by Master Leigh McCarthy, son of Judge McCarthy, and Master Harold Pearson, son of Rev. Mr. Pearson, and was greeted with enthusiastic cheering.

ASSESSORS APPOINTED

THE TOWN COUNCIL TRIES A NEW FAKE.

[illegible]

The second meeting of the new council took place on Monday evening, Mayor Walsh, Deputy-Reeve Endacott and Ald. Kennedy, Keachie, Green, Gillespie, Coleman, Adamson, Young and Fiddis were present. After the usual read the last meeting's minutes, the mayor read from Wm. Snell, on behalf of tenants in a certain lot. The assessment roll in Mt. Forest, and a reduction of $10 was ordered.

W. T. Bailey, secretary of the board of trade, wrote to say that if the town wanted a reduction in insurance rates it would be necessary to purchase 400 feet of new hose, a new hose reel and an electric fire alarm system. The whole to cost about $600. Referred to F. and W. committee to report at next meeting.

United States Consul Pope, of Toronto, penned a letter to say that on such occasions will be appointed in this part of the country for some time to come. Consequently Orangeville has no chance for a U. S. official.

D. C. Lamont, R. F. West and A. Conley thought they could assess the town satisfactorily.

ACCOUNTS

from E. McLean, $7 50; J. C. Browne, $1 50; R. Lewton, $2 50; R. Allen, $1 50; H. N. Young & Bros., $1 50; H. Fletcher, $2 29, were ordered paid. W. Prentice, $4 50, referred to R. and B. committee. R. Irvine, $3.19, referred to T. P. committee.

THE TOWN WORSTED AT LAW.

The mayor startled the council by saying that the town had come off second best in the law suit tried at the last division court. Bill Ryan sued the town to recover damages for the breaking of his wagon on a defective street, and was awarded $4 50 damages and costs. John R. Cook brought an action against the town for injuries received near the C.P.R. station some three years ago. Judgment was given in this case for $20 and costs.

REPORTS.

Reeve Lindsay read the treasurer's statement for December.

Ald. Yeomans brought down an important report from the Printing committee.

Ald. Gillespie reported that every thing was in shipshape order at the waterworks, and asked permission to lay a yearly stock of wood. Adopted.

Ald. Yeomans introduced a by-law to appoint a high school trustee. At a later stage of the proceedings Dr. Smith was reappointed.

Deputy reeve Endacott's by-law re the leasing of a few feet of ground to T. T. King was read a third time.

TWO ASSESSORS.

The matter of the appointing of an assessor was the occasion of a prolonged farce. Some members were completely at sea on the voting. The deputy-reeve moved that two assessors be appointed, and this motion carried. After a great deal of squabbling Andrew Hughson and D. C. Lamont were chosen, at a salary of $75 each. The other town officials were: F. Irwin, treasurer, salary $200 per annum; A. A. Hughson, clerk, $200; Wm. Nixon collector, $100 (advanced $20); R. Shields, constable, $725; J. K. Doctor, T. Dobson, Wm. Avison, fence-viewers, free; Umbrella Henderson, poundkeeper, fee.

STRAY SHOTS.

Ald. Keachie gave notice that he would introduce a by-law at the next meeting to fix the town hall tariff and change the order of proceedings.

Ald. Kennedy thought the T.P. committee should be allowed to pass the chamber door and part of the town hall floor. The T.P. committee will see.

Ald. Yeomans thought the town hall should be properly ventilated.

The T.P. committee will report on

CAMILLA.

Mr. and Mrs. James I. Anderson returned home last week from an extended wedding tour. May all their troubles be little ones.

A very pleasing event occurred on Wednesday evening at 5 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. McNaughton, the occasion being the marriage of her daughter Clara Blanche to Mr. Thos. Turnbull, son of Thos. Turnbull, Esq., of Mono Centre. Rev. Mr. Ballantyne tied the silken knot in the presence of a large number of invited guests. The bride was beautifully attired in dress of pink silk. The bridesmaids were Miss Anderson and Miss Leamon while the groom was supported by Mr. A. Turnbull, of Orangeville, and Mr. Morrow. The presents which were numerous and varied showed much taste in selection. After partaking of a sumptuous feast music was provided by Miss Culp and Mr. McCabe, of Orangeville, and a pleasant evening was spent.

CARDWELL.

MR. EDITOR.—What is the matter with your regular Cardwell correspondent? Is he a foreigner or does he live at home?

Mr. Wm. Jackson visited friends at Sandhill recently.

Mr. Wesley McMaster is recovering from the effects of a serious accident.

Messrs. Hall and Armstrong are doing a rushing business sawing lumber.

Rev. G. B. Morley, of Tullamore, paid friends at Cardwell a flying visit lately.

Rev. F. Burt delivered an interesting discourse in Herald Angel church on the 25th ult.

Mrs. Pigott and Miss M. K. Jackson are visiting friends at Tullamore and other places.

Misses E. and J. McKim and Mr. John McKim, of Orangeville, were visitors at Mr. R. Jackson's a few days ago.

Mr. Thomas Gill is engaged with the McMaster Binder company. This is a first class business and we wish him success.

Rumor has it that Mr. James Armstrong has sold to Geo. Green of Orangeville man for $3,300, but the report is not corroborated.

Rev. Mr. Orr, of Toronto, assisted Rev. F. Burt in West Mono mission last Sunday. He is feeble and [illegible] in his old dresses.

TARBERT.

The result that was confidently expected the amount of snow and sleighing is not as good as formerly.

Parties and dances are not as numerous as of late. Why? Because they are a bit [illegible]. We wonder if the young people are sleeping—if they are it would be a good idea to wake them up and [illegible] more sport.

Mrs. John Heaton, who has been ailing for some time past, still lies in a precarious condition and it is not expected she will recover.

An epidemic of measles has struck Tarbert and a number of people are sick. We hope the afflicted ones will soon recover.

Mr. Chas. Miller has leased his farm, but he will remain here for some time yet.

Mrs. Hinton is still living, but she is in a very low condition.

Mr. George Riley had a wood bee a few days ago. The young people held a dance in the evening.

Rumors of a fashionable wedding around here are flying and we expect something in that line to report before long. Wait!

The measle scourge still continues and Mr. Ritchie is the latest victim.

Mr Graham of Orangeville was here last week.

An Orangeville peddler is around this part of the county once more.

Mrs. McGhee, whose husband died some time ago, held a successful sale of stock, implements, etc., last Thursday. Purchasers from Orangeville, Erin and other places attended.

Mr. Thos. Cadney is holding prayer meetings in the school house of S. S. No. 8, Amaranth, but the meetings are thinly attended.

THE ELECTIONS.

Owing to pressure on our columns this week, we are unable to give a great deal about the Dominion elections which take place a month from to-day, Thursday, March 5th. We do know, however, that the Government of Sir John Macdonald will be returned with an increased majority.

In Cardwell, Messrs. R. S. White, W. H. Welsh, James Snell and two or three others will go before the constituencies, which is to be held on Friday, the 20th inst. Centre Wellington Grip will stick to Andrew Semple, but he may find a worthy opponent in W. H. Hearst, of East Garafraxa, or Dr. Grosser, of Fergus. McMillan, we meant, will be found in North Wellington, and there is some talk of Dr. Lewis going up to redeem the riding.

Next week's Sun will contain full particulars.

DUFFERIN COUNTY COUNCIL.

Dufferin county council met for the transaction of business at 9 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon of last week. The members present were:

Orangeville — Reeve, J. Lindsay; deputy-reeve, R. Endacott.

Southern — Reeve, W. Jelly.

East Garafraxa — Reeve, Thos. Hamilton; deputy reeve, James H. Simpson.

East Luther — Reeve, John Park; deputy-reeve, Wm. McLelland.

Amaranth — R. Wansbrough; deputy reeve, W. Johnston.

Mono — R. Allen; 1st deputy, George Island; 2nd deputy, Wm. Dynes.

Melmar — Reeve, R. Gallaugher; deputy-reeve, Wm. Wiggins.

Melancthon — Reeve, Robt. McGhee; 1st deputy, S. McDowell; 2nd deputy, F. Gowan.

When Mr. J. C. Reid, county clerk, began to receive the certificates of qualification it was discovered that the reeve and deputy reeve of Melmar and the reeve of Mono were minus their "commissions." This occasioned a wearisome discussion, and the matter was finally settled by Mr. Allen presenting his certificate and Melmar's representatives being allowed to take their seats on the understanding that they file their papers before the end of the session.

THE WARDENSHIP.

On motion of Mr Hamilton, seconded by Mr. Park, Mr. Richard Allen, reeve of Mono, was unanimously elected warden of Dufferin for 1891. The warden-elect then made a short but practical speech. He thanked the council for the honor conferred upon him, and promised to perform the duties pertaining to the office to the best of his ability.

THE STANDING COMMITTEES.

Messrs. Jelly, Hamilton, Lindsay, Wansbrough, McGhee, Island and Park were appointed a committee to strike the standing committees.

After an hour's wrestling with the subject the committee brought in the following report, which was adopted, the gentlemen first named being chairmen:

FINANCE — Endacott, Island, McGhee, Gallaugher, Hamilton, Wansbrough, Jelly, Park and Gowan.

ASSESSMENT — McGhee, Jelly, Gallaugher, Island, Wansbrough, Simpson, Lindsay and Park.

EDUCATION — Dynes, Hamilton, Endacott, Wiggins, McGhee, McLelland, McDowell and Johnston.

ROADS AND BRIDGES — Jelly, McGhee, Wansbrough, Dynes, Hamilton, McDowell, Lindsay and McLelland.

COUNTY PROPERTY — Lindsay, McGhee, Island, McDowell, Johnston, Wiggins, Simpson and Jelly.

PRINTING, ETC. — Island, Gowan, Wansbrough, Hamilton, Gallaugher, Park and Simpson.

COMMITTEE ON ACCOUNTS.

Several communications and accounts were disposed of. A petition for the retention of Inspector Gordon failed to carry, there being three or four petitions for his retention.

MORNING SESSION.

Tenders were nominated John McLaren, Elgin, and the council appointed R. Mortimer, of Shelburne. Messrs. Kearns and Steele were appointed tellers.

A motion moved, seconded by Messrs. Jelly and Park, that the R. and B committee be requested to give its most serious consideration to the advisability of devising some scheme to improve county roads. The R. and B will proceed to devise. On motion of Mr. Dynes, seconded by Mr. Wansbrough, able-bodied prisoners may have to work for their keep hereafter.

An adjournment was then taken until 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The warden then read an address which showed that county finances are in a satisfactory state, and from this proceeded to argue that something should be done to improve the roads. A by-law was read a first and second time to appoint Judge McCarthy and Messrs. W. Jelly and A. A. Hughson criminal auditors. After this ten minutes session an adjournment was taken until 7 o'clock in the evening.

[The remainder of the proceedings will be given on the first page of our next issue.]

GLEN CROSS.

There are rumors of a dance near here shortly.

Mr. Dodds has moved into his new residence. We hear he intends giving a house warming soon.

Mr. R. S. White, M.P., is expected to be present at St. George's church tea meeting at Salem on Tuesday. The ladies have prepared a magnificent spread, and a good time may be expected.

The Orange lodge of this section are asking for tenders for the erection of a new hall. Messrs. James Pearson and Thos. White are on the building committee, and we may expect to have a stately edifice.

A lunatic who was confined in Conn gaol jail for nearly killing his sister broke loose the other day and almost clubbed a fellow prisoner to death.

THE FLAG OF CANADA,

Is Hailed Amid Loyal Enthusiasm on the Orangeville School.

When the Empire flag was won for the county of Dufferin by a pupil of the Orangeville public school the trustees very properly decided that the event should be celebrated in a becoming manner. They accordingly had a splendid pole raised in the school grounds and made arrangements for a public demonstration upon the occasion of hoisting the flag. On Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock the town hall was packed to the doors with school children, their parents and friends and the leading men of the town who were present in response to the invitation of the trustees. The trustees, under the energetic guidance of Chairman Savage, had been more thorough in their work and had entered into it with enthusiasm and zeal. The audience that had assembled was in good humor and full of loyalty. The addresses that were delivered were as a rule most excellent in their wording and delivery, and the part taken by the children in the loyal recitations and choruses that they rendered reflected credit on their instructors.

ON THE PLATFORM.

The chair was occupied by Mayor Walsh, and seated around him on the platform were the following gentlemen: Chairman Savage and Public School Trustees Leighton, Fleming, Bennett, Kelly, Perdue, High School Trustees McLaren (chairman), Kearns and Smith, and Alex. Steele, principal of the high school; Deputy-reeve Endacott and Town Councillors Ketchum, Fiddis, Gillespie and Green; Sheriff Bowles, County Attorney Myers, County Treasurer Hunn, Public School Inspector Gordon, and the following clergymen: Rev. A. Henderson (Episcopal), M. L. Pearson (Methodist), J. L. Gilmour (Baptist) and F. Burt (Episcopal), of Cardwell.

MAYOR WALSH'S ADDRESS.

Mayor Walsh delivered a short speech, in which he recited the circumstances leading up to the gathering together of so many people and expressed the pride that he felt in the successful effort of the youthful citizen who had written the prize essay in the Empire competition for the county of Dufferin. Proceeding, he remarked with satisfaction the growing tendency to bring matters relating to Canada and Canadian history more prominently before the attention of the children than was the case in his school days, and trusted that still greater advances in this direction would mark the future. He complimented the Empire upon its patriotic venture, and trusted that it would receive the reward which it merited. At the conclusion of the chairman's address the flag was carried in by Master Leigh McCarthy, son of Judge McCarthy, and Master Harold Pearson, son of Rev. Mr. Pearson, and was greeted with enthusiastic cheering, which broke into a perfect torrent of applause.

THE PRIZE ESSAYIST.

Master John Kearns, the prize essayist, then stepped forward to read his essay. This young man who was probably the most self possessed schoolboy in the room, read his essay through without a falter, and at its conclusion he stepped to his seat: the accompaniment of most enthusiastic applause.

Brief but vigorous and patriotic addresses were then delivered by the following gentlemen: J. S. Leighton, for the public school board; Chairman McLaren, Trustee Kearns and Principal Steele, for the high school; Deputy-reeve Endacott and Councillor Gillespie, for the town council; Sheriff Bowles, Elgin Myers, Q. C., Rev. A. Henderson, Rev. M. Pearson, Rev. Mr. Gilmour and Rev. F. Burt.

AN ANNUAL GATHERING PROPOSED.

All of these gentlemen joined in hearty expressions of loyalty to Canada and the British Empire, and many of them took occasion to compliment the Empire up on its patriotism and enterprise. The suggestion was made that an annual gathering of this kind would be productive of great good in directing the attention of the children to their duty as Canadians and in creating in them a greater love for their country.

The proceedings were pleasantly varied by recitations from some of the scholars and singing by all the children, the recitations and songs being appropriate to the occasion. When the proceedings at the hall were ended a procession was formed, headed by the flag, and made its way to the school grounds where the flag was hoisted to the breeze. Cheers for the Queen, Canada, the flag, the Empire and John Kearns, brought to an end a most successful day and everybody went home thoroughly satisfied that a good day's work for Canada had been done.

A few days ago a stranger left a valise at the house of a resident of Hannah street, saying he would call for it shortly. The longer the valise was in the house the more its custodian began to suspect there was something wrong. A strong smell seemed to come from the valise and all sorts of theories were advanced, the favorite being that the body of a dead infant was concealed. The constable was called in and the valise investigated. A lot of greasy shirts and other clothing were found to have given rise to all the excitement. The owner of the valise has not yet called for it.—Brampton Banner.

DUFFERIN COUNTY COUNCIL

Dufferin's county council met for the transaction of business in Orangeville on Tuesday afternoon of last week. The members present were:

Orangeville — Reeve, J. Lindsay; deputy-reeve, H. Endacott.

Shelburne — Reeve, W. Jelly.

East Garafraxa — Reeve, Thos. Hamilton; deputy-reeve, James H. Simpson.

East Luther — Reeve, John Park; deputy-reeve, Wm. McLelland.

Amaranth — R. Wansbrough; deputy reeve, W. Johnston.

Mono — R. Allen; 1st deputy, George Island; 2nd deputy, Wm. Dynes.

Mulmur — Reeve, R. Gallaugher; deputy-reeve, Wm. Wiggins.

Melancthon — Reeve, Robt. McGhee; 1st deputy, S. McDowell; 2nd deputy, F. Gowan.

When Mr. J. C. Reid, county clerk, began to receive the certificates of qualification it was discovered that the reeve and deputy reeve of Mulmur and the reeve of Mono were minus their "credentials." This occasioned a wearisome discussion, and the matter was finally settled by Mr. Allen presenting his certificate and Mulmur's representatives being allowed to take their seats on the understanding that they file their papers before the end of the session.

THE WARDENSHIP

On motion of Mr. Hamilton, seconded by Mr. Park, Mr. Richard Allen, reeve of Mono, was unanimously elected warden of Dufferin for 1891. The warden-elect then made a short but practical speech. He thanked the council for the honor conferred upon him, and promised to perform the duties pertaining to the office to the best of his ability.

THE STANDING COMMITTEES.

Messrs. Jelly, Hamilton, Lindsay, Wansbrough, McGhee, Island and Park were appointed a committee to strike the standing committees.

After an hour's wrestling with the caucus the committee brought in the following report, which was adopted, the gentlemen first named being chairmen:

FINANCE — Endacott, Island, McGhee, Gallaugher, Hamilton, Wansbrough, Jelly, Park and Gowan.

ASSESSMENT — McGhee, Jelly, Gallaugher, Island, Wansbrough, Simpson, Lindsay and Park.

EDUCATION — Dynes, Hamilton, Endacott, Wiggins, McGhee, McLelland, McDowell and Johnston.

ROADS AND BRIDGES — Jelly, McGhee, Wansbrough, Dynes, Hamilton, McDowell, Lindsay and McLelland.

COUNTY PROPERTY — Lindsay, McGhee, Island, McDowell, Johnston, Wiggins, Simpson and Jelly.

PRINTING, ETC. — Island, Gowan, Wansbrough, Hamilton, Gallaugher, Park and Simpson.

COUNTY ACCOUNTS AND ACCOUNTS.

Several communications and accounts were disposed of. A petition for the dismissal of Inspector Gordon failed there being three or four in favor of its retention.

MORNING'S SESSION.

[illegible] was nominated John McKee, and the council appointed Mortimer, of Shelburne. [illegible] Kearns was appointed [illegible]

The R. and B will proceed to devise. On motion of Mr. Dynes, seconded by Mr. Wansbrough, able-bodied prisoners may have to work for their keep hereafter.

An adjournment was then taken until 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The warden then read an address which showed that county finances are in a satisfactory state, and from this proceeded to argue that something should be done to improve the roads. A by-law was read a first and second time to appoint Judge McCarthy and Messrs. W. Jelly and A. A. Hughson criminal auditors. After this ten minutes session an adjournment was taken until 7 o'clock in the evening.

[The remainder of the proceedings will be given on the first page of our next issue.]

GLEN CROSS.

There are rumors of a dance near here shortly.

Mr. Dodds has moved into his new residence. We hear he intends giving a house warming soon.

Mr. R. S. White, M.P., is expected to be present at St. George's church tea-meeting at Salem on Tuesday. The ladies have prepared a magnificent spread, and a good time may be expected.

The Orange lodge of this section are asking for tenders for the erection of a new hall. Messrs. James Pearson and Thos. White are on the building committee, and we may expect to have a stately edifice.

A lunatic who was confined in Cornwall jail for nearly killing his sister broke loose the other day and almost wicked a fellow-prisoner to death.

THE FLAG OF CANADA,

Is Raised Amid Loyal Enthusiasm at the Orangeville School.

When the Empire flag was won for the county of Dufferin by a pupil of the Orangeville public school, the trustees very properly decided that the event should be celebrated in a becoming manner. They accordingly had a splendid pole raised in the school grounds and made arrangements for a public demonstration upon the occasion of hoisting the flag. On Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock the town hall was packed to the doors with school children, their parents and friends and the leading men of the town who were present in response to the invitation of the trustees. The trustees, under the energetic guidance of Ulysses Savage, had been most thorough in their work and had entered into it with enthusiasm and zeal. The audience that had assembled was in good humor and full of loyalty. The addresses that were delivered were as a rule most excellent in their wording and delivery, and the part taken by the children in the loyal recitations and choruses that they rendered reflected credit on their instructors.

ON THE PLATFORM.

The chair was occupied by Mayor Walsh, and seated around him on the platform were the following gentlemen: Chairman Savage and Public School Trustees Leighton, Fleming, Bennett, Kelly, Perdue, High School Trustees McLaren (chairman), Kearns and Smith, and Alex. Steele, principal of the high school; Deputy-reeve Endacott and Town Councillors Ketchum, Fiddis, Gillespie and Green; Sheriff Bowles, County Attorney Myers, County Treasurer Hunn, Public School Inspector Gordon, and the following clergymen: Rev. A. Henderson (Episcopal), M. L. Pearson (Methodist), J. L. Gilmour (Baptist) and F. Burt (Episcopal), of Cardwell.

MAYOR WALSH'S ADDRESS.

Mayor Walsh delivered a short speech, in which he recited the circumstances leading up to the gathering together of so many people and expressed the pride that he felt in the successful effort of the youthful citizen who had written the prize essay in the Empire competition for the county of Dufferin. Proceeding he remarked with satisfaction the growing tendency to bring matters relating to Canada and Canadian history more prominently before the attention of the children than was the case in his school days, and trusted that still greater advances in this direction would mark the future. He complimented the Empire upon its patriotic venture, and trusted that it would receive the reward which it merited. At the conclusion of the chairman's address the flag was carried in by Master Leigh McCarthy, son of Judge McCarthy, and Master Harold Pearson, son of Rev. Mr. Pearson, and was greeted with enthusiastic cheering, which broke into a perfect torrent of applause.

THE PRIZE ESSAYIST.

Master John Kearns, the prize essayist, then stepped forward to read his essay. This young man, who was probably the most self possessed schoolboy in the room, read his essay through without a falter, and at its conclusion he stepped to his seat amid the accompaniment of most enthusiastic applause.

Brief but vigorous and patriotic addresses were then delivered by the following gentlemen: J. S. Leighton, for the public school board; Chairman McLaren, Trustee Kearns and Principal Steele, for the high school; Deputy-reeve Endacott and Councillor Gillespie, for the town council; Sheriff Bowles, Elgin Myers, Q. C., Rev. A. Henderson, Rev. M. Pearson, Rev. Mr. Gilmour and Rev. F. Burt.

AN ANNUAL GATHERING PROPOSED.

All of these gentlemen joined in hearty expressions of loyalty to Canada and the British Empire, and many of them took occasion to compliment the Empire up on its patriotism and enterprise. The suggestion was made that an annual gathering of this kind would be productive of great good in directing the attention of the children to their duty as Canadians and in creating in them a greater love for their country.

The proceedings were pleasantly varied by recitations from some of the scholars and singing by all the children, the recitations and songs being appropriate to the occasion. When the proceedings at the hall were ended a procession was formed, headed by the flag, and made its way to the school grounds where the flag was hoisted to the breeze. Cheers for the Queen, Canada, the flag, the Empire and John Kearns, brought to an end a most successful day and everybody went home thoroughly satisfied that a good day's work for Canada had been done.

A few days ago a stranger left a valise at the house of a resident of Hannah street, saying he would call for it shortly. The longer the valise was in the house the more its custodian began to suspect there was something wrong. A strong smell seemed to come from the valise and all sorts of theories were advanced, the favorite being that the body of a dead infant was concealed. The constable was called in and the valise investigated. A lot of greasy shirts and other clothing were found to have given rise to all the excitement. The owner of the valise has not yet called for it.—Brantford Expositor.

THE FLAG OF CANADA,

In Public and Separate Schools on the Grangeville School.

When the Empire flag was sent for the county of Dufferin by a pupil of the Grangeville public school the trustees very properly decided that the event should be celebrated in a befitting manner. They accordingly had a splendid pole raised in the school grounds and made arrangements for a public demonstration upon the occasion of hoisting the flag. On Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock the town bell was pushed to the doors with school children, their parents and friends and the leading men of the town who were present in response to the invitation of the trustees. The best home talent has been secured for the occasion, among whom are Mrs. R. T. Dunn, Miss B. Hunn, Mrs. Chapman, Miss Stewart, Mr. Thos. Donner, the Wright family and others. Jimmy Fox, the well known Canadian Funny-man, will be there as large as life. If you want to enjoy an evening's fun, you should "take in" this entertainment.

MANGLED IN A CRUSHER.—On Thursday week Wesley, son of ex-Deputy-reeve McMaster of Mono, met with an accident that almost cost him his left arm. The young man was engaged in chopping cattle feed in a grain crusher at his father's barn, when by some means his arm was caught between the cogs and before the machine could be stopped the flesh was nearly all stripped from the limb. A doctor dressed the young fellow's wounds, but it will be some time before he can use the arm.

Paul; most graceful lady skater, Miss Jennie Carter; prettiest costumed lady, Miss Carter; best historical character, Miss Emma Foley as Queen Elizabeth.

SHOT THROUGH THE WRIST.—Teller T. L. Cranston of the bank of Commerce met with an accident on Sunday evening of last week which came very nearly ending his career. He was in the bank at 8 o'clock and was presumably preparing to go to church. He had occasion to open a drawer to get a towel and in doing so he disturbed a 32-calibre, self-cocking revolver. A loud report was heard and the bullet went crashing through his wrist. The wound was dressed and the young man has nearly recovered from the effects of the accident. Had Mr. C. been standing a few inches in the other direction the ball would have gone clean through his body.

GLEN CROSS.

There are rumors of a dance near here shortly.

Mr. Dodds has moved into his new residence. We hear he intends giving a house warming soon.

Mr. R. S. White, M.P., is expected to be present at St. George's church tea-meeting at Salem on Tuesday. The ladies have prepared a magnificent spread, and a good time may be expected.

The Orange lodge of this section are asking for tenders for the erection of a new hall. Messrs. James Pearson and Thos. White are on the building committee, and we may expect to have a stately edifice.

A lunatic who was confined in Cornwall jail for nearly killing his sister broke loose the other day and almost blocked a fellow prisoner to death.

CAMILLA.

Mr. and Mrs. James I. Anderson entered home last week from an extended wedding tour. May all their troubles be little ones.

A very pleasing event occurred on Wednesday evening at 5 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. McNaughton, the occasion being the marriage of her daughter Clara Blanche to Mr. Thos. Turnbull, son of Thos Turnbull, Esq., of Mono Centre. Rev. Mr. Ballentyne tied the silken knot in the presence of a large number of invited guests. The bride was beautifully attired in dress of pink silk. The bridesmaids were Miss Anderson and Miss Leamon while the groom was supported by Mr. A. Turnbull, of Orangeville, and Mr. Morrow. The presents which were numerous and varied showed much taste in selection. After partaking of a sumptuous feast music was provided by Miss Culp and Mr. McCabe, of Orangeville, and a pleasant evening was spent.

CARDWELL.

EDITOR.—What is the matter with our new reporter Cardwell correspondent? Is he a foreigner or does he live at home?

Mr. Wm. Jackson visited friends at Sandhill recently.

Mr. Wesley McMaster is recovering from the effects of a serious accident.

Messrs. Hall and Armstrong are doing a rushing business sawing lumber.

Rev. G. B. Morley, of Tullamore, paid friends at Cardwell a flying visit lately.

Rev. F. Burt delivered an interesting discourse in Herald Angel church on the 25th ult.

Mrs. Picott and Miss M. K. Jackson are visiting friends at Tullamore and other places.

Misses E. and J. McKim and Mr. John McKim, of Orangeville, were visitors at Mr. E. Jackson's a few days ago.

Mr. Thomas Pill is engaged with the McMaster Binder company. Tom is a first class workman and we wish him success.

Rumor has it that Mr. James [illegible] strong has sold his farm to an Orangeville man for $3,800, but the report is not corroborated.

Rev. Mr. Orr, of Toronto, assisted Rev. F. Burt in West Mono mission last Sunday. He is forcible and eloquent in his addresses.

We understand G. H. Reid has invented a saw-mill built after the model of the endless shingle mill. It is estimated the saw-mill will save 1,800 feet in every 8,000 feet of lumber sawn.

About two weeks ago a Trinity college student drove a valuable horse be longing to Mr Burt to Tullamore and from there to Toronto. The animal took sick and is unable to return at present.

Mr. John J. Matthews, formerly of this place but now of the mounted police, is making his mark in Battleford. He runs a blacksmith shop in connection with the force, and Hon. Edward Dewdney is one of his patrons

A short time ago a scholarly-looking young man calling himself White called upon several farmers here soliciting homes for girls and boys belonging to Miss Macpherson's orphans' home, Stratford. A couple of farmers agreed to take girls from the home, but they never came, and communication with the home revealed the fact that Miss Macpherson has no agents soliciting homes for either girls or boys and that no person of the name of White was connected with the institution. He got a couple of good meals and a night's lodging, however, for his trouble at Cardwell.

We notice in last week's Cardwell correspondence to the Advertiser several incoherent, nonsensical items. Paragraph four says: "An effort is being made to have another school house here. A petition has been circulated, but was not largely signed. It is thought the effort will not prove successful." Part of this is very misleading and erroneous and should be nailed down. In the first place, Cardwell does not want two school houses; in the next, a petition to form a new school house, largely signed by influential ratepayers in this vicinity, has been laid before the Mono council, and there is every reason to believe a school section will be formed and a school house erected in due time.

MARSVILLE.

Mr. J. H. Simpson, our popular deputy reeve, was attending the session of the county council at Orangeville last week. Mr. Simpson will always be found at his post.

A number attended the services at St. Andrew's church, Hillsburg, on Wednesday of last week. The Rev. Mr. Elliott was inducted into the charge of Hillsburg and Price's Corners Presbyterian congregations. May success crown his efforts in his new sphere.

MONO CENTRE.

We had another wedding yesterday. Particulars next week.

Mr. George White spent a few days this week at Orangeville and Hockley.

On Monday Mr. J. H. Simpson moved to Orangeville. A number of his neighbors took out their teams and assisted in moving his furniture etc. He was a good neighbor and all will miss him.

No Shadow of Doubt.

NO sane person doubts that what we say of B. B. B. is true. The evidence of its power and popularity is too overwhelming to combat, besides it is all home testimony, making it certain that B. B. B. will cure dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, scrofula and all blood diseases.

Hagyard's Yellow Oil.

This great internal and external remedy always allays all pain. It is a specific for croup, and promptly cures coughs, colds, sore throat, sprains, bruises, burns, rheumatism, cuts, wounds, etc. Good for man or beast. Stands all tests. Sold everywhere. Price 25 cents. Hagyard's Yellow Oil.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Vicissitude of climate, exposure and hardships, tell heavily on soldiers and sailors, sowing the seeds of diseases which may ultimately break up the constitution. Naturally careless of their health a word in season may avert many evils, and may cause them to resort to timely measures without any difficulty or publicity. Holloway's celestial remedies are so suitable, and are so easily adapted for the varied complaints to which our soldiers and sailors are liable, that a supply should always be obtained before proceeding abroad. It may with confidence be stated that many a valuable life might have been saved, or confirmed cripple prevented from begging in the streets, if Holloway's remedies had been used in time.

If you want to borrow money you had better go to R. B. Brown, as he is always to the front with the cheap money.

Bankers' Banquet.

A very pleasant bankers' banquet may produce very unpleasant symptoms of dyspepsia, which disease is often caused by overloading the stomach with rich food, etc. For years Burdock Blood Bitters has held first place at home and abroad as a prominent and reliable cure for dyspepsia in any form. The proprietors intend it to cure dyspepsia or return the money.

MONO COUNCIL.

Members present: Richard Allen, Mono; George Island, 1st deputy reeve; Thos. Dyne, 3rd deputy reeve; David Reid and Jas. Reid councillors. The above named members having made and subscribed to the required declarations of qualification and of office the reeve took the chair. The minutes of last meeting were read and adopted.

A communication from the mayor of Orangeville respecting petitioning the Government for a grant of money to be paid to the municipalities who granted bonuses to the construction of the Toronto, Grey & Bruce railway, was laid before council, and on motion of Mr. Reid seconded by Mr. Dynes the sum of five dollars was granted towards the payment of the necessary expenses that may be incurred in pressing the claim on the Government.

Moved by Mr. Dynes, seconded by Mr. Island, that R. J. Maguire be appointed collector of rates for the east part of the township, for the year 1891 and that his salary be $50.

Moved by Mr. Island, seconded by Mr Reid, that W. E. Reid be collector of rates for the west part of the township, and that his salary be $58.

Moved by Mr Reid, seconded by Mr Dynes that Alfred Glover be appointed assessor for the year 1891, and that his salary be $55.

Moved by Mr Still seconded by Mr. Dynes that the sum of $12.50 be granted towards the support of Wm Irwin who is now in the hospital for incurable, and that the auditors be authorized to pay to Robert Irwin for that purpose.

Petition of Hugh Kane and others praying that a new school section be formed from parts of school section No. 5, 6, 7 and 14 was read and laid before the council, and on motion of Mr. Reid seconded by Mr. Still the clerk was instructed to notify the trustees of said school sections that the petitioners will be taken into consideration at the next meeting of the council on the first Friday in March.

Moved by Mr. Dynes, seconded by Mr. Still that 40 cents per rod be paid to G. F. Stewart to assist in paying for erecting one hundred rods of wire fence, east half of lot 24 Con. 4.

Moved by Mr Still seconded by Mr. Island, that the sum of $40 be granted to Thomas Smith, indigent, and that Wm Montgomery expend the same for his benefit.

Moved by Mr Island seconded by Mr Reid that Henry Carson be appointed auditor of accounts for the current year. The reeve then appointed Wm. Glover for the other auditor.

On motion the sum of 40 cents was ordered to be paid to W. H. Young for repairing a road scraper.

On motion the sum of $1 93 was ordered to be struck off the roll as the property occupied by Wesley Thompson was assessed to R G Canning.

On motion the sum of $1 50 was ordered to be paid to each of the collectors of rates for the year 1891, being for postage and stationery.

The council then adjourned to meet on the first Friday in March, at the hour of ten o'clock a. m.

Poetry.

MINE TO-DAY.

I bid day on high ye rise to the sky,
Great mountains, my message convey,
And tell to the Heaven the joy that is given
To me and to mine to-day.

Ye hill, roaring trees, tell ye to the breeze,
And bid it to pass on my way
And to the ocean the words that I bring;
My love is my own to-day."

And you, little bird, your voice must be heard;
Come out to the skies my lay.
As o'er them you hover, oh say that I love her,
And say she is mine to-day.

And ye, busy bees, give heed to my pleas,
By being engaged obey;
As ye fly to and fro, let your fellows all know
The joy that is mine to-day.

And nature all are my joy, and for me
Her many-tongued pow'rs array,
And bid them rejoice, and sing with one voice,
Because of my joy to-day.

A LOST HOUR.

A golden hour on a summer noon
When half the world was still,
The dew was fresh on the new-mown hay
And the bridal veil of the fair young day
Hung over the purple hill.

The sheep bells tinkled across the slopes
Sweet as an elfin chime;
Butterflies fluted all over the downs,
Bees went murmuring, busy and brown,
Over the fragrant thyme.

A languid calm and a dull content,
Silence instead of speech;
The wind sang low, and the lark sang high,
But the golden hour of our lives went by,
And drifted out of reach.

We both went back to an eager life,
But in its pause to-day
The dream of that golden hour returns,
And my jaded spirit frets and yearns
For one chance swept away.

The years creep on, and the heart grows tired
Even of hopes fulfilled,
And turns away from the world's strong wine,
With fevered lips that must ever pine
For that pure draught once spilled.

And yet, perchance when our long day wanes
(Age hath its joy late born)
We shall meet again on the green hillside,
And find in the autumn eventide
The hour we lost at morn.

SUNBEAMS.

Usually under cover—The table.

The doctor's rounds—Pills.

Turns by use—Door knobs.

A great falling off—Niagara.

New York spends about $1,000,000 a year in bouquets.

The second sober thought usually comes after the banquet.

On a Regular Plan.—"How does Henpeck take married life?" "Oh, I guess he takes it according to directions."

"I'll bet," said Chollie, "judging from the way these trousers shrink, the wool was shorn from an unusually timid lamb."

Good Advice.—"If you want to be a specialist, be rather a dentist than an aurist, for man has thirty-two teeth and only two ears."

Good Return.—"I ordered partridge and you bring me a pigeon." "O, pardon! You see all those little birds look so much alike!"

The man who will complain that a twenty minute sermon is too long will sit half a day watching a couple of chess players making two moves.

Borrowit—"That's rather a swell boarding-house you are stopping at, Gazzleton." Gazzleton—"Why, yes. I tried a cheaper one but I couldn't afford it. I fell away so that I had to buy a new suit in six weeks."

Wickwire—"Did Mudge have any remark to make when he found he had been swindled in the foot race?" Yabsley—"Well, if they could be printed a 100-yard flash would be about the proper thing."

"I shall now give you the effect of distance," he said to her, and he sang so low as to be scarcely heard. "A little further, please," she said cruelly, and he picked up his voice and went away with it into the chilly air.

A Cincinnati school girl, coming home to report having won two prizes, remarked that one of them was for having the best memory. Being asked what the other was for she replied: "For the life of me, I can't just now think what that was for."

Dr. Guttam, of Berlin, proved to a gathering of German physicians that Koch's lymph tended to cure ulceration of the bowels as well as of the lungs. In typhoid fever as well as consumption to be robbed of its terrors? This is a question in which those cities which have polluted water supplies that tend to produce typhoid will take a deep interest.

The business women and workers of the world are those who are the most liberal toward their sister women, and the most courteous in their treatment of them. Perhaps this may be because they themselves are so chivalrously treated by men, with whom they are daily brought in contact, and their earnest purpose in life raises them above such petty failings, but certain it is that women of many duties and large responsibilities, are those of the largest charity and most sincere courtesy toward their own sex.

Clara Belle quotes a Broadway, New York, merchant as saying that the very best way for a merchant to call attention to his window is to put in a complimentary mirror. "One must be very careful, however, to secure a mirror that softens blemishes. In my window is a mirror, as you have of course, noticed. It is the only mirror to be seen from the sidewalk between Madison Square and Thirty third street. There is not a regular promenader in the neighborhood who doesn't know my mirror. Women anticipate it a block away, and when they arrive opposite to it they take a quick glance to see if they are looking well. It is just here that I catch them. That is a peculiar mirror. It lends a fresh color to nearly every face. It refines to reflect sallowness, and at the same time it softens the tip of a too red nose. The men and women have grown to love me and my store, they get such a picture of themselves that they are made happy."

ARGANATH TOWNSHIP.

Lavery, Jan. 19, 1891.

The council met for the transaction of business pursuant to the town hall, Lavery, on Monday, Jan. 12th, as per notice, when the following members were present: Cameron, Robert Wansbrough, deputy reeve, Wm. Johnston; councillors, Elijah Hamilton, John Dodgson and Joseph A. Turner.

Ewing to remove his fence off road allowance next spring.—Carried.

Moved by E. Hamilton, seconded by W. Johnston, that S. J. Brown be paid the sum of $4, part pay of contract for clearing out drain on w½ lot 8, con. 4.—Carried.

The council then adjourned to meet again on Saturday, February 14th, to receive auditors' report and appoint pathmasters. The ratepayers are requested to select the persons whom they wish appointed pathmaster in each division and notify the clerk not later than February 14th. M. G. VARCOE, Clerk.

EXCHANGE ECHOES.

Blind Tom is dying of consumption, and the $500,000 which he earned by his skill as a pianist has mysteriously disappeared, leaving him a pauper inmate of a lunatic asylum.

Seven children of Mr. Finlay McLean, of Eramosa, have been in the Guelph general hospital for some time suffering from diphtheria. One of them died the other day, and the other six are in a precarious condition.

Senator Scott, author of the Scott Act, says the defeat of the Act in Charlottetown, P.E.I., does not arise from any inherent defect in the law so much as from the laxity displayed in enforcing its provisions. He declares that the Scott Act has resulted in a reduction in the consumption of liquors.

The following resolution was passed by the Collingwood town council at its last meeting: "That the Council communicate with the neighboring municipalities with the view to the foundation of a new county, and that a committee be appointed consisting of the reeve, deputy reeve, mover and seconder, to take any other steps which they may deem necessary for the accomplishment of the above object."

Rev. C. O. Johnson, a prominent Methodist clergyman of Napanee, is being severely criticized for declaring from the pulpit that Queen Victoria was stingy and hoarded up money which she could well spare, and that it would do a great deal of good in darkest England; that there were many opportunities in that country for philanthropy, but she never embraced them. The criticism provoked the preacher to return to the subject again last Sunday, when he was more emphatic than ever.

Mrs. Mary Totten, widow of the late John Totten, died in Toronto on Friday last. The deceased was a sister of the late Mrs. Dugan of this town, and Mrs. Kent, of Orangeville, who is the survivor of eleven children. Mrs. Totten was a native of Ireland. For many years she and her husband resided in Toronto township, and until recently the deceased was a resident of Brampton. She had been delicate for several years, but apoplexy was the cause of death. The remains were interred at the stone church, Dixie, on Sunday last.—Brampton Banner.

SCHOOLHOUSE

The movement for hoisting the Canadian flag on the schoolhouses on anniversaries or noted events in our history is spreading rapidly throughout the Dominion and evoking the hearty approval of all patriotic citizens. Already

The Empire

has done its share in helping on this movement, by awarding a handsome flag to one schools in each county of Ontario, but the number of enquiries from all parts of the Dominion as to how flags can be obtained by other schools has determined the publishers of THE EMPIRE to offer a handsome

CANADIAN FLAG

of best bunting, 12 feet long, regular price $12, as a premium for 30 new yearly subscribers to the WEEKLY EMPIRE at $1 or eight new yearly subscribers to THE DAILY EMPIRE at $3 per annum, or a proportion of each, one subscription to Daily counting for Eight Weeklies.

Every school in the Dominion ought to have a national flag, and this offer presents an opportunity for each obtaining it without cost, and with little trouble. Let those who are interested in getting a flag for their schoolhouse join in getting up a club, and while subscribers get full value for their money in the best newspaper in the Dominion, the school obtains its flag FREE OF COST.

The WEEKLY EMPIRE has recently been enlarged to twelve pages, and is now, without doubt, the best weekly newspaper in Canada, while the reputation of THE DAILY EMPIRE as the leading morning journal of the Dominion is well known.

Send for sample copies and special clubbing lists, and go in for a flag for your school.

Oxygenized
OF
PURE COD LIVER OIL

Among the merits which distinguish Slocum's Oxygenized Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil above all other preparations are:

1st. The excellence of its method of preparation.
2nd. Its freedom from disagreeable taste and odor!
3rd. Its fitness for immediate absorption!
4th. The thoroughness in which it retains permanently its good qualities.
5th. And the fact that Slocum's Oxygenized Emulsion is the only Cod-Liver Oil amalgamation in the market in which the oil is not mixed with the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, or some other equally injurious foreign substance, and consequently rendered worse than worthless!

All Pulmonary Disorders find Speedy Relief.
If you have any Throat Trouble ..... Use it.
If you have Tightness of the Chest ..... Use it.
If you have Difficulty of Breathing ..... Use it.
If you have a wasting away of Flesh ..... Use it.
If you have Weak Lungs ..... Use it.

The years creep on, and the heart grows tired
Even of hopes fulfilled,
And turns away from the world's sparkling wine,
With flavored lips that must ever pine
For that pure draught once spilled.

And yet, purchance when cooling day comes
(Age hath its joy late born)
We shall meet again on the green hillside,
And find in the solemn eventide
The hour we lost at morn.

Usually under cover—The table.

The doctor's rounds—Pills.

Turns by use—Door knobs.

A great falling off—Niagara.

New York spends about $1,000,000 a year in bouquets.

The second sober thought usually comes after the banquet.

On a Regular Plan.—"How does Hopeck take married life?" "Oh, I guess he takes it according to directions."

"I'll bet," said Chollie, "judging from the way these trousers shrink, the wool was shorn from an unusually timid lamb."

Good Advice.—"If you want to be a specialist, be rather a dentist than an aurist, for man has thirty-two teeth and only two ears."

Good Reason.—"I ordered partridge and you bring me a pigeon." "O, pardon! You see all those little birds look so much alike!"

The man who will complain that a sermon or even sermons is too long will think nothing of half a day watching a couple of chess players making two moves.

Borrowit—"That's rather a swell boarding-house you are stopping at, Gazzleton." Gazzleton—Why, yes. I tried a cheaper one but I couldn't afford it. I fell away so that I had to buy a new suit in six weeks."

Wickwire—"Did Mudge have any remark to make when he found he had been swindled in the foot race?" Yabsley—"Well, if they could be printed a 100-yard flash would be about the proper thing."

"I shall now give you the effect of distance," he said to her, and he sang so low as to be scarcely heard. "A little further, please," she said cruelly, and he picked up his voice and went away with it into the chilly air.

A Cincinnati school girl, coming home to report having won two prizes, remarked that one of them was for having the best memory. Being asked what the other was for she replied: "For the life of me, I can't just now think what that was for."

Dr. Guttam, of Berlin, proved to a gathering of German physicians that Koch's lymph tended to cure ulceration of the bowels as well as of the lungs. Is typhoid fever as well as consumption to be robbed of its terrors? This is a question in which those cities which have polluted water supplies that tend to produce typhoid will take a deep interest.

The business women and workers of the world are those who are the most liberal toward their sister women, and the most courteous in their treatment of them. Perhaps this may be because they themselves are so chivalrously treated by men, with whom they are daily brought in contact, and their earnest purpose in life raises them above such petty failings, but certain it is that women of many duties and large responsibilities, are those of the largest charity and most sincere courtesy toward their own sex.

Clara Belle quotes a Broadway, New York, merchant as saying that the very best way for a merchant to call attention to his window is to put in a complimentary mirror. "One must be very careful, however, to secure a mirror that softens blemishes. In my window is a mirror, as you have of course, noticed. It is the only mirror to be seen from the sidewalk between Madison Square and Thirty third street. There is not a regular promenader in the neighborhood who doesn't know my mirror. Women anticipate it a block away, and when they arrive opposite to it they take a quick glance to see if they are looking well. It is just here that I catch them. That is a peculiar mirror. It lends a fresh color to nearly every face. It softens to reflect sallowness, and at the same time it softens the tip of a too red nose. The men and women have grown to love me and my store, they get such a picture of themselves that they are made happy."

Moved by J. A. Turner, seconded by E. Hamilton, that R. Woodhouse be paid the sum of $2 70 expended over and above amount granted as commissioner for the year 1890.—Carried.

Moved by J. Dodgeon, seconded by E. Hamilton, that Walter Scott be paid the sum of $4 for conveying Duncan McNeil to jail and the reeve issue his order for the same.—Carried.

Moved by E. Hamilton, seconded by J. Dodgeon, that tenders be received up to February 14th for tearing down town hall and rebuilding the same, the new structure to be of the same dimensions as the Presbyterian church at Laurel.—Carried.

Moved by W. Johnston, seconded by J. Dodgeon, that the reeve and clerk be paid the sum of $8 for preparing and posting financial statement for 1890, and the reeve issue his order for the same.—Carried.

Moved by W. Johnston, seconded by E. Hamilton, that the clerk notify Samuel Bennett and Albert Frenell to remove all rails and timber encumbering the 6th line, opposite lot 24 and have the same completed before the 14th February, or the council will have the same removed at the expense of said parties; also notify Wm. Ewing to remove his fence off road allowance next spring.—Carried.

Moved by E. Hamilton, seconded by W. Johnston, that S. J. Brown be paid the sum of $4, part pay of contract for clearing out drain on W½ lot 8, con. 4.—Carried.

The council then adjourned to meet again on Saturday, February 14th, to receive auditors' report and appoint pathmasters. The ratepayers are requested to select the persons whom they wish appointed pathmaster in each division and notify the clerk not later than February 14th. M. G. VARCOE, Clerk.

EXCHANGE ECHOES.

Blind Tom is dying of consumption, and the $500,000 which he earned by his skill as a pianist has mysteriously disappeared, leaving him a pauper inmate of a lunatic asylum.

Seven children of Mr. Finlay McLean, of Eramosa, have been in the Guelph general hospital for some time suffering from diphtheria. One of them died the other day, and the other six are in a precarious condition.

Senator Scott, author of the Scott Act, says the defeat of the Act in Charlottetown, P.E.I., does not arise from any inherent defect in the law so much as from the laxity displayed in enforcing its provisions. He declares that the Scott Act has resulted in a reduction in the consumption of liquors.

The following resolution was passed by the Collingwood town council at its last meeting: "That the Council communicate with the neighboring municipalities with the view to the foundation of a new county, and that a committee be appointed consisting of the reeve, deputy reeve, mover and seconder, to take any other steps which they may deem necessary for the accomplishment of the above object."

CALLED AWAY.

Rev. Father McPhillips, the newly appointed pastor of St. Peter's church here was presented with a purse and an address by his former parishioners. Referring to the presentation the Irish Canadian says:

The members of Branch No. 111, C.M.B.A., waited upon Rev. Father McPhillips at the Presbytery, Brockton, on the evening of the 16th instant (previous to his departure for Orangeville, of which mission he has been appointed pastor), and presented him with a purse and an address. Father McPhillips was the organizer and first President of the Branch, and much regret is felt at his removal from Brockton. The following is a copy of the address, which was read by the Recording Secretary, Mr. P. J. Ryan:

To the Rev. H. J. McPhillips, P.P., Orangeville, Chancellor of the C.M.B.A.

Newspaper Decisions.

1. Any person or persons who take a paper regularly from the post office, whether directed in his name or another's, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for payment.
2. If a person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and then collect the whole amount whether the paper is taken or not.
3. The courts have decided that refusing to take a newspaper or periodical from the post office or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intended fraud.

AN OLD WIFE'S VALENTINE.

The old wife stood at the garden gate
The evening of St. Valentine's Day;
She could see for the mist, that blurred her sight
Just stamped and then gathered away
Two stooped, and then, in her waning light,
Passed over the hill and out of sight.

Her grandchild tugged at her shawl and said,
"Granny, come in, for the cakes are brown."
And her daughter called, sweet and clear,
"Mother, come in, for the tea is poured."
"Ah, yes," she said, "and the night is cold;
I quite forgot that I'm growing old."

At breakfast by at the father's place
A letter an inch in the center lay;
He looked at it with a curious face,
And said, "Now, I want to know!"
The boys sat smiling; the mother gave
One look and turned a crimson wave.

He opened the dainty letter then,
And to! in its envelope fold
Was another a rose and forget-me-not,
And lilies with hearts of gold;
And under the whole, just one sweet line—
"Forever, forever, thy Valentine."

He touched the rose with a tender care,
And he went to his sweet wife's side;
He stroked with his hand her snow-white hair,
And kissed her with loving pride,
Saying with smiles and misty tears,
"My Valentine through fifty years."

"Oh, hush," he said, with a youthful pride,
"After fifty years of life,
If you find, in your home and by your side,
A fair and faithful wife,
Count your life lucky, as I count mine,
And loyally kiss your Valentine."

CONSEQUENCE.

"If I could only live that year over again how differently I would conduct myself."

So said an almost broken-spirited mother as she was discussing with a friend the best way of governing and training her daughter Alice. This daughter was a "hard case" self-willed, selfish, unmanageable at times, unloving yet of remarkable beauty, and of some very winning ways.

"It was this way," the mother went on. "My husband was hardly started in his profession, our income was very narrow, my boy was still a mere baby, and the prospect of additional care and expense was unendurable. I was at war with my surroundings, with myself, with God. I dared not literally break the sixth commandment, but in my heart I broke it every day. Alice is the incarnation of my state of mind at that time. And the worst thing about it is that when she is in one of her unhappy moods she induces the same condition in me, and I am so occupied in controlling myself that I am in no case to do the best thing by her. I keep saying to myself: 'If you had only submitted cheerfully to the will of God, everything would have been different. Alice might have been a lovely child, and as much a comfort to you as she is now a trial. Now you must submit to them some consequence of your own folly, and turn them, if possible, into the nutriment of virtue.'

"Then I am so sorry for Alice, and study over the problem continually how to turn the baleful influences that went into her make-up into means of growth in her of goodness and usefulness. I cultivate the best traits in her character and never stir up the evil ones if I can help it. She has immense energy, and I keep her occupied with what she likes to do, and make her like to do for rewards to follow what she otherwise might be averse of doing. Since she experienced religion in our revival last winter she is quite manageable, but at times she has hard battles with herself and with every thing and every body that comes in her way.

"If I could live that year over again! I wish every young mother could have the benefit of my experience, and I am sure she would take pains to cultivate such a spirit and such traits of character and disposition as she would wish to live with herself during life, and see reproduced in her children."

A GIRL WHO CRIES GLASSY TEARS.

FINDLAY, Ohio, January 26.—The physicians and oculists of this city are greatly puzzled over the case of Jennie Sutton. From the right eye of the girl fifty-four pieces of broken glass were taken by Dr. C. T. Fritch. These pieces of glass have been coming from the eye of the girl for the last month, and only day before yesterday Dr. Fritch removed every evidence of glass in the eye and announced that all were taken out. Yeiterday she had fifty-four more pieces removed. The girl is a domestic in the family of ex County Surveyor String fellow, whose wife has been taking the particles of glass from the girl's eye for a month past. It is estimated that over one hundred pieces of glass have been taken from the since the case first attracted attention.

A SHOCKING STORY.—People have been often shocked to read of the want and squalor in which millions of the civilized nations of the world live, but occasionally incidents are brought to light in this fair country which might surpass them for the misery and degradation shown. In Guelph, for instance, there is a family composed of what is termed a man, his wife and eight small children. The wife is dying of consumption. Not being able to rise from bed, the house has become so filthy as to defy description. Two neighbors attempted to clean it out but turned sick before they had gone far, and, it is reported, almost had to burn their clothes. A charwoman refused to have anything to do with it. A minister stayed in two minutes, and those who have seen it say they never saw anything like it. The husband is a drunken brute, cares nothing for the rest of the family, so that his own appetites may be fed. He came home the other evening intoxicated and deliberately squirted tobacco juice down the throat of the helpless woman, as she was speaking to him. In other ways he has abused her so that the neighbors coming in have taken her for dead. Temporary arrangements were made on Saturday whereby the woman was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, the children will be cared for, and the man allowed to shift for himself. It is understood that no action can be taken against him, as the wife is not in a condition to lay the information.

CALLED AWAY.

Rev. Father McPhillips, the newly appointed pastor of St. Peter's church here was presented with a purse and an address by his parishioners Reference to the presentation the Irish Canadian says:

The members of Branch No. 111 C.M.B.A., waited upon Rev. Father McPhillips at the Presbytery, Brockton, on the evening of the 16th instant (previous to his departure for Orangeville, of which mission he has appointed pastor), and presented him with a purse and an address. Father McPhillips was the organizer and first President of the Branch, and much regret is felt of his removal from Brockton. The following is a copy of the address, which was read by the Recording Secretary, Mr. P. J. Dolan.

To the Rev. H. J. McPhillips, P. P., Orangeville, Chancellor of the C.M.B.A.

REV. AND DEAR FATHER—We, the members of the C.M.B.A., Branch 111, wish to express to you the deep regret we all feel at your departure from our midst.

A year ago this Branch was only spoken of as something possible; now it is regarded as one of the prominent Branches of the city. This success is in a very great measure owing to your untiring zeal for its welfare.

We wish to put on record our high appreciation of your activity in organizing this Branch, and of the able manner in which, as first President, you presided over its meetings during the past year.

Though sorry to lose your valuable aid and guidance, we see in your appointment to a parish a recognition of your worth, and we beg to tender you our congratulations in the honor which our illustrious Archbishop has conferred on you.

May success crown your efforts in your new home; and may you, while discharging the sacred duties of your calling, still find time to foster and spread the benefits of the C.M.B.A. Be assured, though separated, we will ever have a warm corner for you in our hearts, and often ask our Heavenly Father to bless you.

In saying good by, we beg your acceptance, Rev. and dear Father, of this purse as a slight token of our deep and lasting esteem. Signed,

VERY REV. DEAN MCCANN, President.
JAMES PROG, 1st Vice President.
P. J. DOLAN, Recording Secretary.

BRADLAUGH IS DEAD.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—Charles Bradlaugh, M. P. for Northampton, and one of the ablest debaters in the House, died at 6 o'clock this morning.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—Mr. Bradlaugh's end was quiet and peaceful. He was insensible when he died, and seemed to suffer no pain. The immediate cause of death was uræmia. The funeral will take place Tuesday. There will be no funeral procession, no show of mourning and no religious services.

[CHARLES BRADLAUGH,

in many respects a unique personality in the British politics of this generation, was born in the year end of London the 26th Sept., 1833. His education, so far as schools were concerned, was of the most meagre kind, and he was successively errand boy, coal dealer, Sunday school teacher, heavy dragoon, free thought propagandist, anti jurist and member of Parliament. In his nineteenth year he enlisted in the 7th Dragoon Guards, but they couldn't make a soldier of him, and eighteen months after receiving his "shilling" he was tendered his discharge. In the barrack room his potential proclivities, if stories are true, had to be severely snubbed occasionally by his fellows. He graduated from a Sunday school platform to the rostrum, and began to write to the self-styled secularist press above the pseudonym "Iconoclast." In 1876 all England rang with his name, in conjunction with that of Annie Besant, when he took his stand in the box of Old Bailey to answer a charge of printing and publishing doctrines against public morals, etc. He was convicted, but on appeal was sustained. At the general elections of 1880 he was returned for Northampton, having thrice before contested that constituency in vain. Then his name was again in everybody's mouth. He refused to take the oath and was not allowed to take his seat; indeed, he was removed from the House by force. However, he came round in the spirit of expediency and went through the formality, to him "a meaningless mockery," of adjuring on Holy writ. His career in Parliament has been an uneventful one. He made annual motions on the abuses of the Privy List, but on many points he refused to follow the Radicals into the lobby. The Labor Bureau was established on his motion. For the past three or four years he has proven the truth of Mr. Chamberlain's dictum—it is as natural for a young man to be radical in his opinions as it is that he should tend to adopt conservative methods with advancing years. "Iconoclast," became a constructionist. Perhaps his weaker health and financial troubles had something to do with this. Last spring he went to India for his health, and the last public act of his life, and an important one, was a criticism of the last Indian budget, and the presentation of a bill for the removal of several alleged abuses in English rule in India. A by-law was introduced and passed to authorize the trustees of the new school section, formed out of Nos. 12 and 4, to borrow $600 to aid in building a new school house.

"FRUITS OF PHILOSOPHY,"

Moved by Messrs. Turner and Carroll, that leave be given to introduce a by-law to provide for the performance of statute labor and to define the duties of overseers of highways, and that it now be read a first and second time.—Carried. By-law read a first and second time.

Moved by Messrs. Hamilton and Simpson, that the council go into Committee of the Whole on by-law to provide for the performance of statute labor, etc. Council went into Committee of the Whole. Committee rose and reported the following by law, viz.:

BY LAW NO 64.

By-law No. 64, to provide for the performance of Statute Labor and to define the duties of Overseers of Highways.

Be it enacted by the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the Township of East Garafraxa,

That, from and after the passing of this By law, every male inhabitant of this municipality of the age of twenty-one years and upwards, and under sixty years of age, who is not otherwise assessed to any amount, and who is not exempt by law from performing statute labor, shall be liable to two days of statute labor on the public highways, but shall be liable to commute for the same at the rate of one dollar per day by tendering the money to the overseer within three days from the time he was notified to perform his statute labor.

That all persons whose names shall appear on the assessment roll or roll of those who are liable by law to be assessed, and not otherwise exempt by law, shall if his or her property is assessed at not more than $800 be liable to perform 2 days' labor; at more than $800, but not more than $1,800, 3 days' labor; at more than $1,800 but not more than $3,000, 4 days' labor; at more than $3,000 but not more than $4,000, 5 days' labor; at more than $4,000 but not more than $5,000, 6 days' labor; at more than $5,000 but not more than $6,400, 7 days' labor; at more than $6,400 but not more than $8,000, 8 days' labor, and for every additional $1,500 one day.

That any person or persons liable to perform statute labor may commute and pay to the overseer of the division entitled to receive the same the sum of one dollar per day for each days' labor of eight hours, if paid to the overseer previous to the time the work was to be performed.

That it shall be the duty of the overseer of highways, after receiving notice of their appointment, either personally served or left at their usual place of abode, to take the declaration of office at or before the time named in such notice, and to furnish the clerk with the names of all persons liable to perform statute labor in their division, stating the lot and concession and number of acres, and distinguishing between parties assessed and those not assessed, and shall give to persons liable to work on the highways at least three days' notice, stating the time and place at which they are required to work, and shall at all times during their term of office superintend, make and keep in good repair the highways within their division, and expend faithfully to the best of their ability all moneys received by them in lieu of statute labor or otherwise for the improvement of the highways in their division, between the first day of June and the fourteenth day of December in each year.

That it shall be the duty of Overseers of Highways to make statute labor go as far as possible on the highways in their division, and in case of any swamp or other impassable place on any road, it shall be the duty of the Overseer of the division to repair the same lowest estimate, if necessary, to call out the taxpayers of his division for such purpose, at the request of their statute labor for the ensuing year, and the Overseer who performs such work shall be sufficient to exempt all such persons from the statute of statute labor thus performed, and if the money in the hands of the Overseer shall not be sufficient to repair the damage he shall immediately report to the nearest member of the township council, and the Overseer shall not be responsible for any loss or damage that might occur in consequence of such defective bridge or embankment afterwards.

That it shall be the duty of the Overseer to make a correct return to the clerk of the municipality on or before the 21st day of December in each year of all the statute labor performed, and also of what has not been performed (if any); also, an account of the receipts and expenditures of all moneys that may have come into his hands by virtue of his office. It shall also be the duty of Overseers of Highways to prosecute parties within their division for the contravention of any of the provisions of this By-law.

That any person or persons who neglect or refuse to perform their statute labor, or commute for the same in the manner aforesaid, when required by the Overseer, shall forfeit and pay a fine of not less than one dollar per day, together with costs, for each day or part of a day so in default; and any person performing statute labor who refuses or neglects to obey the reasonable orders of the Overseer or to work faithfully, may be discharged by the Overseer, and shall be liable to the penalties imposed for the non performance of their statute labor.

That overseers shall be entitled to all the statute labor within the limits of their respective divisions, unless otherwise ordered by the council, and shall keep in repair the sideroads adjoining such division to half way between the concessions, except where overseers are appointed on the sideroads, when they shall be entitled to the labor of one lot on each side of said road.

That if any person or persons shall injure or destroy any tree or shrub planted for shade or ornament upon any public highway allowance, or appropriated for a public road, or shall cut down or deface any sign boards or any printed or written notices, such person or persons being convicted thereof before a justice of the peace, shall be liable to the penalties imposed for the contravention of this By law.

That it shall not be lawful for any person or persons to leave any timber, stone, wood, or any other incumbrance whatsoever upon any road allowance or public highway, or to remove any stone, timber, sand, gravel or any other materials from any road allowance belonging thereto, or commit any wilful injury to any public highway or bridge thereon.

That the following shall be the scale to be allowed by pathmasters for horses or oxen and driver, with wagons, plows, harrows, scrapers or rollers: Three days' work of one man for one span of horses or oxen and driver, and all persons having such animals or implements in their possession shall, upon being notified by the pathmaster that he requires the same to work upon the public highways, furnish and employ the same when and where directed by the overseer.

That all pathmasters or overseers of highways shall be allowed one day's work for the performance of their duty as overseers of highways in case their statute labor amounts to eight days, and in case the statute labor of the overseer is less than three days then he shall be allowed to the extent of his statute labor.

That for the purposes of this By-law eight hours' work of one man shall constitute and represent one day's labor.

That all persons holding lands in more than one road division shall be rated for statute labor according to the whole valuation thereof, but shall perform their labor proportionally in the respective divisions where the property is situated.

That any person or persons who neglect or refuse to perform the duties hereby imposed, or who contravene any of the provisions of this By law, shall upon conviction thereof be liable to a fine of not less than two dollars nor more than twenty dollars, and if not paid, and no sufficient distress can be found on which to levy, it shall and may be lawful for the convicting justice to commit the defendant to jail for any period not exceeding twenty days, or until the fine and costs, including the costs of committal, shall be paid.

That all By-laws inconsistent with this By-law be, and they are hereby repealed.

Passed the 19th day of January, 1891.

THOMAS HAMILTON, Reeve.
JOHN PRESTON, Clerk.

Moved by Messrs. Simpson and Turner, that By-law No 64 be now read a third time and passed.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Simpson and Carroll, that the collector be instructed to have all taxes collected on or before the 12th of February.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Simpson and Turner, that the council do now adjourn to meet at Marsville on Saturday, the 21st day of March, at 10 o'clock a.m.

JOHN PRESTON, Clerk.

Severe Cold Cured.

DEAR SIRS,—My mother was attacked with inflammation of the lungs which left her very weak and never free from cold, till at last she got a very severe cold and cough. She resolved to try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, and, on so doing, found it did her more good than any other medicine she ever tried. MRS. KENNEDY,

CONSEQUENCE.

"If I could only live that year over again how differently I would conduct myself."

So said an almost broken-spirited mother to one was discussing with a friend the best way of governing and training her daughter Alice. This daughter was a "hard case" self-willed, selfish, unmanageable at times, unloving yet of remarkable beauty, and of some very winning ways.

"It was this way," the mother went on. "My husband was hardly started in his profession, our income was very narrow, my boy was still a mere baby, and the prospect of additional care and expense was unendurable. I was at war with my surroundings, with myself, with God. I dared not literally break the sixth commandment, but in my heart I broke it every day. Alice is the incarnation of my state of mind at that time. And the worst thing about it is that when she is in one of her unhappy moods she induces the same condition in me, and I am so occupied in controlling myself that I am in no case to do the best thing by her. I keep saying to myself: 'If you had only submitted cheerfully to the will of God, everything would have been different. Alice might have been a lovely child, and as much a comfort to you as she is now a trust. Now you must submit to them come quence of your own folly, and turn them, if possible, into the nutriment of virtue.'

"Then I am so sorry for Alice, and study over the problem continually how to turn the baleful influences that want into her make-up into means of growth in her of goodness and usefulness. I cultivate the best traits in her character and never stir up the evil ones if I can help it. She has immense energy, and I keep her occupied with what she likes to do, and make her like to do for rewards to follow what she otherwise might be averse of doing. Since she experienced religion in our revival last winter she is quite manageable, but at times she has hard battles with herself and with every thing and every body that comes in her way.

"If I could live that year over again! I wish every young mother could have the benefit of my experience, and I am sure she would take pains to cultivate such a spirit and such traits of character and disposition as she would wish to live with herself during life, and see reproduced in her children."

A GIRL WHO CRIES GLASSY TEARS.

FINDLAY, Ohio, January 26.—The physicians and oculists of this city are greatly puzzled over the case of Jennie Sutton. From the right eye of the girl fifty-four pieces of broken glass were taken by Dr. C. T. Fritch. These pieces of glass have been coming from the eye of the girl for the last month, and only day before yesterday Dr. Fritch removed every evidence of glass in the eye and announced that all were taken out. Yesterday she had fifty-four more pieces removed. The girl is a domestic in the family of ex County Surveyor Stringfellow, whose wife has been taking the particles of glass from the girl's eye for a month past. It is estimated that over one hundred pieces of glass have been taken from the sinew the case first attracted attention.

A SHOCKING STORY.—People have been often shocked to read of the want and squalor in which millions of the civilized nations of the world live, but occasionally incidents are brought to light in this fair country which might surpass them for the misery and degradation shown. In Guelph, for instance, there is a family composed of what is termed a man, his wife and eight small children. The wife is dying of consumption. Not being able to rise from bed, the house has become so filthy as to defy description. Two neighbors attempted to clean it out but turned sick before they had gone far, and, it is reported, almost had to burn their clothes. A charwoman refused to have anything to do with it. A minister stayed in two minutes, and those who have seen it say they never saw anything like it. The husband is a drunken brute, cares nothing for the rest of the family, so that his own appetites may be fed. He came home the other evening intoxicated and deliberately squirted tobacco juice down the throat of the helpless woman, as she was speaking to him. In other ways he has abused her so that the neighbors coming in have taken her for dead. Temporary arrangements were made on Saturday whereby the woman was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, the children will be cared for, and the man allowed to shift for himself. It is understood that no action can be taken against him, as the wife is not in a condition to lay the information.

Rev. and Dear Father:—We, the members of the C.M.B.A., Branch 111, wish to express to you the deep regret we all feel at your departure from our midst.

A year ago this Branch was only spoken of as something possible; now it is regarded as one of the prominent Branches of the city. This success is in a very great measure owing to your untiring zeal for its welfare.

We wish to put on record our high appreciation of your activity in organizing this Branch, and of the able manner in which, as first President, you presided over its meetings during the past year.

Though sorry to lose your valuable aid and guidance, we see in your appointment to a parish a recognition of your worth, and we beg to tender you our congratulations in the honor which our Illustrious Archbishop has conferred on you.

May success crown your efforts in your new home; and may you, while discharging the sacred duties of your calling, still find time to foster and spread the benefits of the C.M.B.A. Be assured, though separated, we will ever have a warm corner for you in our hearts, and often ask our Heavenly Father to bless you.

In saying good by, we beg your acceptance, Rev. and dear Father, of this purse as a slight token of our deep and lasting esteem. Signed,

VERY REV. DEAN MCCANN, President.
JAMES PEGG, 1st Vice President.

BRADLAUGH IS DEAD.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—Charles Bradlaugh, M. P. for Northampton, and one of the ablest debaters in the House, died at 6 o'clock this morning.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—Mr. Bradlaugh's end was quiet and peaceful. He was insensible when he died, and seemed to suffer no pain. The immediate cause of death was uræmia. The funeral will take place Tuesday. There will be no funeral procession, no show of mourning and no religious services.

[CHARLES BRADLAUGH,

in many respects a unique personality in the British politics of this generation, was born in the east end of London the 26th Sept. 1833. His education, so far as schools were concerned, was of the most meagre kind, and he was successively errand boy, coal dealer, Sunday school teacher, heavy dragoon, free thought propagandist, anti jurist and member of Parliament. In his nineteenth year he enlisted in the 7th Dragoon Guards, but they couldn't make a soldier of him, and eighteen months after receiving his "shilling" he was tendered his discharge. In the barrack room his potential proclivities, if stories are true, had to be severely snubbed occasionally by his fellows. He graduated from a Sunday school platform to the rostrum, and began to write to the self-styled secularist press above the pseudonym "Iconoclast." In 1876 all England rang with his name, in conjunction with that of Annie Besant, when he took his stand in the box of Old Bailey to answer a charge of printing and publishing doctrines against public morals, etc. He was convicted, but on appeal was sustained. At the general elections of 1880 he was returned for Northampton, having thrice before contested that constituency in vain. Then his name was again in everybody's mouth. He refused to take the oath and was not allowed to take his seat; indeed, he was removed from the House by force. However, he came round in the spirit of expediency and went through the formality, to him "a meaningless mockery," of adjuring on Holy writ. His career in Parliament has been an uneventful one. He made annual motions on the abuses of the Privy List, but on many points he refused to follow the Radicals into the lobby. The Labor Bureau was established on his motion. For the past three or four years he has proven the truth of Mr. Chamberlain's dictum—it is as natural for a young man to be radical in his opinions as it is that he should tend to adopt conservative methods with advancing years. "Iconoclast," became a constructionist. Perhaps his weaker health and financial troubles had something to do with this. Last spring he went to India for his health, and the last public act of his life, and an important one, was a criticism of the last Indian budget, and the presentation of a bill for the removal of several alleged abuses in English rule in India. A striking example of how a man may live down or change the current of public opinion is given in Charles Bradlaugh's later life, and a no less noteworthy instance of the generosity of that public opinion in England is the unopposed motion made this very week in the House of Commons for the expunging from the records of the House of the expulsion of Mr. Bradlaugh.]

"FRUITS OF PHILOSOPHY,"

BY LAW NO 64.

By-law No. 64, to provide for the performance of Statute Labor and to define the duties of Overseers of Highways.

Be it enacted by the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the Township of East Garafraxa,

That, from and after the passing of this By law, every male inhabitant of this municipality of the age of twenty-one years and upwards, and under sixty years of age, who is not otherwise assessed to any amount, and who is not exempt by law from performing statute labor, shall be liable to two days of statute labor on the public highways, but shall be liable to commute for the same at the rate of one dollar per day by tendering the money to the overseer within three days from the time he was notified to perform his statute labor.

That all persons whose names shall appear on the assessment roll as owners or who are liable by law to be assessed, and not otherwise exempt by law, shall if his or her property is assessed at not more than $800 be liable to perform 2 days' labor; at more than $800, but not more than $1,800, 3 days labor; at more than $1,800 but not more than $3,000, 4 days' labor; at more than $3,000 but not more than $4,000, 5 days' labor; at more than $4,000 but not more than $5,000, 6 days' labor; at more than $5,000 but not more than $6,400, 7 days' labor; at more than $6,400 but not more than $8,000, 8 days' labor, and for every additional $1,500 one day.

That any person or persons liable to perform statute labor may commute and pay to the overseer of the division entitled to receive the same the sum of one dollar per day for each days' labor of eight hours, if paid to the overseer previous to the time the work was to be performed.

That it shall be the duty of the overseer of highways, after receiving notice of their appointment, either personally served or left at their usual place of abode, to take the declaration of office at or before the time named in such notice, and to furnish the clerk with the names of all persons liable to perform statute labor in their division, stating the lot and concession and number of acres, and distinguishing between parties assessed and those not assessed, and shall give to persons liable to work on the highways at least three days' notice, stating the time and place at which they are required to work, and shall at all times during their term of office superintend, make and keep in good repair the highways within their division, and expend faithfully to the best of their ability all moneys received by them in lieu of statute labor or otherwise for the improvement of the highways in their division, between the first day of June [illegible] clerk of the municipality on or before the 21st day of December in each year of all the statute labor performed, and also of what has not been performed (if any); also, an account of the receipts and expenditures of all moneys that may have come into his hands by virtue of his office. It shall also be the duty of Overseers of Highways to prosecute parties who for their division for the contravention of any of the provisions of this By-law.

That any person or persons who neglect or refuse to perform their statute labor, or commute for the same in the manner aforesaid, when required by the Overseer, shall forfeit and pay a fine of not less than one dollar per day, together with costs, for each day or part of a day so in default; and any person performing statute labor who refuses or neglects to obey the reasonable orders of the Overseer or to work faithfully, may be discharged by the Overseer, and shall be liable to the penalties imposed for the non performance of their statute labor.

That overseers shall be entitled to all the statute labor within the limits of their respective divisions, unless otherwise ordered by the council, and shall keep in repair the sideroads adjoining such division to half way between the concessions, except where overseers are appointed on the sideroads, when they shall be entitled to the labor of one lot on each side of said road.

That if any person or persons shall injure or destroy any tree or shrub planted for shade or ornament upon any public highway allowance, or appropriated for a public road, or shall cut down or deface any sign boards or any printed or written notices, such person or persons being convicted thereof before a justice of the peace, shall be liable to the penalties imposed for the contravention of this By law.

That it shall not be lawful for any person or persons to leave any timber, stone, wood, or any other incumbrance whatsoever upon any road allowance or public highway, or to remove any stone, timber, sand, gravel or any other materials from any road allowance belonging thereto, or commit any wilful injury to any public highway or bridge thereon.

That the following shall be the scale to be allowed by pathmasters for horses or oxen and driver, with wagons, plows, harrows, sumpers or rollers: Three days' work of one man for one span of horses or oxen and driver, and all persons having such implements or implements in their possession shall, upon being notified by the pathmaster that he requires the same to work upon the public highways, furnish and employ the same when and where directed by the overseer.

That all pathmasters or overseers of highways shall be allowed one day's work for the performance of their duty as overseers of highways in case their statute labor amounts to eight days, and in case the statute labor of the overseer is less than three days then he shall be allowed to the extent of his statute labor.

That for the purposes of this By-law eight hours' work of one man shall constitute and represent one day's labor.

That all persons holding lands in more than one road division shall be rated for statute labor according to the whole valuation thereof, but shall perform their labor proportionally in the respective divisions where the property is situated.

That any person or persons who neglect or refuse to perform the duties hereby imposed, or who contravene any of the provisions of this By law, shall upon conviction thereof be liable to a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than twenty dollars, and if not paid and no sufficient distress can be found on which to levy, it shall and may be lawful for the convicting justice to commit the offender to jail for any period not exceeding twenty days, or until the fine and costs, including the costs of committal, shall be paid.

That all By-laws inconsistent with this By-law be, and they are hereby repealed.

Passed the 19th day of January, 1891.

THOMAS HAMILTON, Reeve.
JOHN PRESTON, Clerk.

Moved by Messrs. Simpson and Turner, that By-law No 64 be now read a third time and passed.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Simpson and Carroll, that the collector be instructed to have all taxes collected on or before the 12th of February.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Simpson and Turner, that the council do now adjourn to meet at Marsville on Saturday, the 21st day of March, at 10 o'clock a.m.

JOHN PRESTON, Clerk.

Severe Cold Cured.

DEAR SIRS,—My mother was attacked with inflammation of the lungs which left her very weak and never free from cold, till at last she got a very severe cold and cough. She resolved to try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, and, on so doing, found it did her more good than any other medicine she ever tried. MRS. KEENEY,
50 Smith Ave., Hamilton, Ont.

Joshua Matthews, while at work at Sarnia burst into a fit of laughter suddenly, apparently at something he had thought of. Immediately after it he began to stagger, and was carried home in a state of stupor, from which he never recovered. A blood vessel of the brain had burst.

Newspaper Decisions.

1. Any person or persons who take a paper regularly from the post office, whether directed in his name or another's, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for payment.
2. If a person orders his paper discontinued he must pay all arrears, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and then collect the whole amount whether the paper is taken or not.
3. The courts have decided that refusing to take a newspaper or periodical from the post office or removing and leaving them uncalled for is prima facie evidence of intended fraud.

AN OLD WIFE'S VALENTINE.

[Published on St. Valentine's Day.]

Three score years and ten past, then like a Fate
Just alone to end then gathered away . . .
Sun stopped, and then, like a vanishing light,
Passed over the hill and out of sight.

Her grandchild tugged at her shawl and gown,
And daughter called, sweet and clear:
"Mother, come in for the dews are heavy,
And the boys and father are here"
"Ah, yes," she said, "and the night is cold;
I quite forgot that I'm growing old."

At twilight by all the father's place
A letter on whitest the snow;
He looked at it with a curious face,
And said, "How, I want to know!"
The boys all smiled; the mother grew
Over him and read a curious line.

He opened the dainty letter then,
And to! in its dainty fold
Was painted a rose and forget-me-not,
And lilies with hearts of gold;
And under the whole, just one sweet line—
"Forever, forever, thy Valentine."

He touched the note with a tender care,
And he went to his sweet wife's side;
He stroked with his hand her snow-white hair,
And kissed her with loving pride,
Saying with smiles and misty tears,
"My Valentine through fifty years."

"Oh, hush," he said, with a youthful pride,
"After fifty years of life,
If you find, in your house cast by your side,
A fair and faithful wife,
Count your life lucky, as I count mine,
And loyally kiss your Valentine."

CONSEQUENCE.

"If I could only live that year over again how differently I would conduct myself."

So said an almost broken-spirited mother as she was discussing with a friend the best way of governing and training her daughter Alice. This daughter was a "hard case" self-willed, selfish, unmanageable at times, unloving yet of remarkable beauty, and of some very winning ways.

"It was this way," the mother went on. "My husband was hardly started in his profession, our income was very narrow, my boy was still a mere baby, and the prospect of additional care and expense was unendurable. I was at war with my surroundings, with myself, with God. I dared not literally break the sixth commandment, but in my heart I broke it every day. Alice is the incarnation of my state of mind at that time. And the worst thing about it is that when she is in one of her unhappy moods she induces the same condition in me, and I am so occupied in controlling myself that I am in no case to do the best thing by her. I keep saying to myself: 'If you had only submitted cheerfully to the will of God, everything would have been different. Alice might have been a lovely child, and as much a comfort to you as she is now a trial. Now you must submit to these consequences of your own folly, and turn them, if possible, into the nutriment of virtue.'

"Then I am so sorry for Alice, and study over the problem continually how to turn the baleful influences that went into her make up into means of growth in her of goodness and usefulness. I cultivate the best traits in her character and never stir up the evil ones if I can help it. She has immense energy, and I keep her occupied with what she likes to do, and make her like to do for rewards to follow what she otherwise might be averse of doing. Since she experienced religion in our revival last winter she is quite manageable, but at times she has hard battles with herself and with every thing and every body that comes in her way.

"If I could live that year over again! I wish every young mother could have the benefit of my experience, and I am sure she would take pains to cultivate such a spirit and such traits of character and disposition as she would wish to live with herself during life, and see reproduced in her children."

A GIRL WHO CRIES GLASSY TEARS.

FINDLAY, Ohio, January 26.—The physicians and oculists of this city are greatly puzzled over the case of Jennie Sutton. From the right eye of the girl fifty-four pieces of broken glass were taken by Dr. C. T. Fritch. These pieces of glass have been coming from the eye of the girl for the last month, and only day before yesterday Dr. Fritch removed every evidence of glass in the eye and announced that all were taken out. Yeiterday she had fifty-four more pieces removed. The girl is a domestic in the family of ex County Surveyor String fellow, whose wife has been taking the particles of glass from the girl's eye for a month past. It is estimated that over one hundred pieces of glass have been taken from the since the case first attracted attention.

A SHOCKING STORY.—People have been often shocked to read of the want and squalor in which millions of the civilized nations of the world live, but occasionally incidents are brought to light in this fair country which might surpass them for the misery and degradation shown. In Guelph, for instance, there is a family composed of what is termed a man, his wife and eight small children. The wife is dying of consumption. Not being able to rise from bed, the house has become so filthy as to defy description. Two neighbors attempted to clean it out but turned sick before they had gone far, and, it is reported, almost had to burn their clothes. A charwoman refused to have anything to do with it. A minister stayed in two minutes, and those who have seen it say they never saw anything like it. The husband is a drunken brute, cares nothing for the rest of the family, so that his own appetites may be fed. He came home the other evening intoxicated and deliberately squirted tobacco juice down the throat of the helpless woman, as she was speaking to him. In other ways he has abused her so that she neighbors coming in have taken her for dead. Temporary arrangements were made on Saturday whereby the woman was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, the children will be cared for, and the man allowed to shift for himself. It is understood that no action can be taken against him, as the wife is not in a condition to lay the information.

CALLED AWAY.

Rev. Father McPhillips, the newly-appointed pastor of St. Peter's church here was presented with a purse and an address by his having parishioners. Referring to the presentation the Irish Canadian says:

The members of Branch No. 111, C.M.B.A., waited upon Rev. Father McPhillips at the Presbytery, Beaubien on the evening of the 10th instant (previous to his departure for Orangeville) to bid him adieu on his appointed pastor), and presented him with a purse and an address. Father McPhillips was the organizer and first President of the Branch, and much regret is felt of his removal from Brockton. The following is a copy of the address, which was read by the Recording Secretary, Mr. P. J. Dolan:

To the Rev. H. J. McPhillips, P.P., Orangeville, Chancellor of the C.M.B.A.

REV. AND DEAR FATHER—We, the members of the C.M.B.A., Branch 111, wish to express to you the deep regret we all feel at your departure from our midst.

A year ago this Branch was only spoken of as something possible; now it is regarded as one of the prominent Branches of the city. This success is in a very great measure owing to your untiring zeal for its welfare.

We wish to put on record our high appreciation of your activity in organizing this Branch, and of the able manner in which, as first President, you presided over its meetings during the past year.

Though sorry to lose your valuable aid and guidance, we see in your appointment to a parish a recognition of your worth, and we beg to tender you our congratulations in the honor which our illustrious Archbishop has conferred on you.

May success crown your efforts in your new work; and may you, while discharging the sacred duties of your calling, still find time to foster and spread the benefits of the C.M.B.A. Be assured, though separated, we will ever have a warm corner for you in our hearts, and often ask our Heavenly Father to bless you.

In saying good by, we beg your acceptance, Rev. and dear Father, of this purse as a slight token of our deep and lasting esteem. Signed,

VERY REV. DEAN MCCANN, President.
JAMES PROG, 1st Vice President.
P. J. DOLAN, Recording Secretary.

BRADLAUGH IS DEAD.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—Charles Bradlaugh, M. P. for Northampton, and one of the ablest debaters in the House, died at 6 o'clock this morning.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—Mr. Bradlaugh's end was quiet and peaceful. He was insensible when he died, and seemed to suffer no pain. The immediate cause of death was uræmia. The funeral will take place Tuesday. There will be no funeral procession, no show of mourning and no religious services.

[CHARLES BRADLAUGH,

in many respects a unique personality in the British politics of this generation, was born in the east end of London the 28th Sept., 1833. His education, so far as schools were concerned, was of the most meagre kind, and he was successively errand boy, coal dealer, Sunday school teacher, heavy dragoon, free thought propagandist, anti jurist and member of Parliament. In his nineteenth year he enlisted in the 7th Dragoon Guards, but they couldn't make a soldier of him, and eighteen months after receiving his "shilling" he was tendered his discharge. In the barrack room his polemical proclivities, if stories are true, had to be severely snubbed occasionally by his fellows. He graduated from a Sunday school platform to the rostrum, and began to write to the self-styled secularist press above the pseudonym "Iconoclast." In 1876 all England rang with his name, in conjunction with that of Annie Besant, when he took his stand in the box of Old Bailey to answer a charge of printing and publishing doctrines against public morals, etc. He was convicted, but on appeal was sustained. At the general elections of 1880 he was returned for Northampton, having thrice before contested that constituency in vain. Then his name was again in everybody's mouth. He refused to take the oath and was not allowed to take his seat; indeed, he was removed from the House by force. However, he came round in the spirit of expediency and went through the formality, to him "a meaningless mockery," of adjuring on Holy writ. His career in Parliament has been an uneventful one. He made annual motions on the abuses of the Privy Lisc, but on many points he refused to follow the Radicals into the lobby. The Labor Bureau was established on his motion. For the past three or four years he has proven the truth of Mr. Chamberlain's dictum—it is as natural for a young man to be radical in his opinions as it is that he should tend to adopt conservative methods with advancing years. "Iconoclast," became a constructionist. Perhaps his weaker health and financial troubles had something to do with this. Last spring he went to India for his health, and the last public act of his life, and an important one, was a criticism of the last Indian budget, and the presentation of a bill for the removal of several alleged abuses in English rule in India. A striking example of how a man may live down or change the current of public opinion is given in Charles Bradlaugh's later life, and a no less noteworthy instance of the generosity of that public opinion in England is the unopposed motion made this very week in the House of Commons for the expunging from the records of the House of the expulsion of Mr. Bradlaugh.]

"FRUITS OF PHILOSOPHY,"

Moved by Messrs. Turner and Carroll, that leave be given to introduce a by-law to provide for the performance of statute labor and to define the duties of overseers of highways, and that it now be read a first and second time.—Carried. By-law read a first and second time.

Moved by Messrs. Hamilton and Simpson, that the council go into Committee of the Whole on by-law to provide for the performance of statute labor, etc. Council went into Committee of the Whole. Committee rose and reported the following by law, viz.:

BY LAW NO 64.

By-law No. 64, to provide for the performance of Statute Labor and to define the duties of Overseers of Highways.

Be it enacted by the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the Township of East Garafraxa,

That, from and after the passing of this By law, every male inhabitant of this municipality of the age of twenty-one years and upwards, and under sixty years of age, who is not otherwise assessed to any amount, and who is not exempt by law from performing statute labor, shall be liable to two days of statute labor on the public highways, but shall be liable to commute for the same at the rate of one dollar per day by tendering the money to the overseer within three days from the time he was notified to perform his statute labor.

That all persons whose names shall appear on the assessment roll or roll s or who are liable by law to be assessed, and not otherwise exempt by law, shall if his or her property is assessed at not more than $800 be liable to perform 2 days' labor; at more than $800, but not more than $1,800, 3 days labor; at more than $1,800 but, not more than $3,000, 4 days' labor; at more than $3,000 but not more than $4,000, 5 days' labor; at more than $4,000 but not more than $5,000, 6 days' labor; at more than $5,000 but not more than $6,400, 7 days' labor; at more than $6,400 but not more than $8,000, 8 days' labor, and for every additional $1,500 one day.

That any person or persons liable to perform statute labor may commute and pay to the overseer of the division entitled to receive the same the sum of one dollar per day for each days' labor of eight hours, if paid to the overseer previous to the time the work was to be performed.

That it shall be the duty of the overseer of highways, after receiving notice of their appointment, either personally served or left at their usual place of abode, to take the declaration of office at or before the time named in such notice, and to furnish the clerk with the names of all persons liable to perform statute labor in their division, stating the lot and concession and number of acres, and distinguishing between parts assessed and those not assessed, and shall give to persons liable to work on the highways at least three days' notice, stating the time and place at which they are required to work, and shall at all times during their term of office superintend, make and keep in good repair the highways within their division, and expend faithfully to the best of their ability all moneys received by them in lieu of statute labor or otherwise for the improvement of the highways in their division, between the first day of June and the fourteenth day of December in each year.

That it shall be the duty of Overseers of Highways to cause sufficient gravel to be spread in all dangerous places across the highways in their division, and in case of any accident happening to a bridge or embankment, or by reason of an impediment by snow, it shall be the duty of the Overseer of the division to report the same forthwith, and, if necessary, to call out the ratepayers of his division for such purpose at the request of their statute labor for the current year, and the Overseers respectively shall be sufficient to exempt all such persons from the amount of statute labor they have performed, and if the sum so in the disposal of the Overseers shall not be sufficient to repair the damage, he shall immediately report to the council member of the township concerned, and the Overseer shall not be responsible for any loss or damage that might occur in consequence of such defective bridge or embankment sitewards.

That it shall be the duty of the Overseer to make a correct return to the clerk of the municipality on or before the 31st day of December in each year of all the statute labor performed, and also of what has not been performed (if any); also, an account of the receipts and expenditures of all moneys that may have come into his hands by virtue of his office. It shall also be the duty of Overseers of Highways to prosecute parties within their division for the contravention of any of the provisions of this By-law.

That any person or persons who neglect or refuse to perform their statute labor, or commute for the same in the manner aforesaid, when required by the Overseer, shall forfeit and pay a fine of not less than one dollar per day, together with costs, for each day or part of a day in default; and any person performing statute labor who refuses or neglects to obey the reasonable orders of the Overseer or to work faithfully, may be discharged by the Overseer, and shall be liable to the penalties imposed for the non-performance of their statute labor.

That overseers shall be entitled to all the statute labor within the limits of their respective divisions, unless otherwise ordered by the council, and shall keep in repair the sideroads adjoining such division to half way between the concessions, except where overseers are appointed on the sideroads, when they shall be entitled to the labor of one lot on each side of said road.

That if any person or persons shall injure or destroy any tree or shrub planted for shade or ornament upon any public highway allowance, or appropriated for a public road, or shall cut down or deface any sign boards or any printed or written notices, such person or persons being convicted thereof before a justice of the peace, shall be liable to the penalties imposed for the contravention of this By-law.

That it shall not be lawful for any person or persons to leave any timber, stone, wood, or any other incumbrance whatsoever upon any road allowance or public highway, or to remove any stone, timber, sand, gravel, or any other materials from any road allowance belonging thereto, or commit any wilful injury to any public highway or bridge thereon.

That the following shall be the rates to be allowed by pathmasters for horses or oxen and driver, with wagons, plows, harrows, rollers or rollers: Three days' work of one man for one span of horses or oxen and driver, and all persons having such animals or implements in their possession shall, upon being notified by the pathmaster that he requires the same to work upon the public highways, furnish and employ the same when and where directed by the overseer.

That all pathmasters or overseers of highways shall be allowed one day's work for the performance of their duty as overseers of highways in case their statute labor amounts to eight days, and in case the statute labor of the overseer is less than three days then he shall be allowed to the extent of his statute labor.

That for the purposes of this By-law eight hours' work of one man shall constitute and represent one day's labor.

That all persons holding lands in more than one road division shall be rated for statute labor according to the whole valuation thereof, but shall perform their labor proportionally in the respective divisions where the property is situated.

That any person or persons who neglect or refuse to perform the duties hereby imposed, or who contravene any of the provisions of this By law, shall upon conviction thereof be liable to a fine of not less than two dollars nor more than twenty dollars, and if not paid and no sufficient distress can be found on which to levy, it shall and may be lawful for the convicting justice to commit the offender to jail for any period not exceeding twenty days, or until the fine and costs, including the costs of committal, shall be paid.

That all By-laws inconsistent with this By-law be, and they are hereby repealed.

Passed the 19th day of January, 1891.

THOMAS HAMILTON, Reeve.
JOHN PRESTON, Clerk.

Moved by Messrs. Simpson and Turner, that By-law No 64 be now read a third time and passed.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Simpson and Carroll, that the collector be instructed to have all taxes collected on or before the 12th of February.—Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Simpson and Turner, that the council do now adjourn to meet at Marsville on Saturday, the 21st day of March, at 10 o'clock a.m.

JOHN PRESTON, Clerk.

Severe Cold Cured.

DEAR SIRS,—My mother was attacked with inflammation of the lungs which left her very weak and never free from cold, till at last she got a very severe cold and cough. She resolved to try Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, and, on so doing, found it did her more good than any other medicine she ever tried.

A GIRL WHO CRIES GLASSY TEARS.

FINDLAY, Ohio, January 26.—The physicians and oculists of this city are greatly puzzled over the case of Jennie Sutton. From the right eye of the girl fifty-four pieces of broken glass were taken by Dr. C. T. Fritch. These pieces of glass have been coming from the eye of the girl for the last month, and only day before yesterday Dr. Fritch removed every evidence of glass in the eye and announced that all were taken out. Yesterday she had fifty-four more pieces removed. The girl is a domestic in the family of ex County Surveyor String fellow, whose wife has been taking the particles of glass from the girl's eye for a month past. It is estimated that over one hundred pieces of glass have been taken from the since the case first attracted attention.

A SHOCKING STORY.—People have been often shocked to read of the want and squalor in which millions of the civilized nations of the world live, but occasionally incidents are brought to light in this fair country which might surpass them for the misery and degradation shown. In Guelph, for instance, there is a family composed of what is termed a man, his wife and eight small children. The wife is dying of consumption. Not being able to rise from bed, the house has become so filthy as to defy description. Two neighbors attempted to clean it out but turned sick before they had gone far, and, it is reported, almost had to burn their clothes. A charwoman refused to have anything to do with it. A minister stayed in two minutes, and those who have seen it say they never saw anything like it. The husband is a drunken brute, cares nothing for the rest of the family, so that his own appetites may be fed. He came home the other evening intoxicated and deliberately squirted tobacco juice down the throat of the helpless woman, as she was speaking to him. In other ways he has pluned her so that the neighbors coming in have taken her for dead. Temporary arrangements were made on Saturday whereby the woman was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, the children will be cared for, and the man allowed to shift for himself. It is understood that no action can be taken against him, as the wife is not in a condition to lay the information.

BRADLAUGH IS DEAD.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—Charles Bradlaugh, M. P. for Northampton, and one of the ablest debaters in the House, died at 8 o'clock this morning.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—Mr. Bradlaugh's end was quiet and peaceful. He was insensible when he died, and seemed to suffer no pain. The immediate cause of death was uræmia. The funeral will take place Tuesday. There will be no funeral procession, no show of mourning and no religious services.

[CHARLES BRADLAUGH,

in many respects a unique personality in the British politics of this generation, was born in the east end of London the 26th Sept., 1833. His education, so far as schools were concerned, was of the most meagre kind, and he was successively errand boy, coal dealer, Sunday school teacher, heavy dragoon, free thought propagandist, anti jurist and member of Parliament. In his nineteenth year he enlisted in the 7th Dragoon Guards, but they couldn't make a soldier of him, and eighteen months after receiving his "shilling" he was tendered his discharge. In the barrack room his polemical proclivities, if stories are true, had to be severely snubbed occasionally by his fellows. He graduated from a Sunday school platform to the rostrum, and began to write to the self-styled secularist press above the pseudonym "Iconoclast." In 1876 all England rang with his name, in conjunction with that of Annie Besant, when he took his stand in the box of Old Bailey to answer a charge of printing and publishing doctrines against public morals, etc. He was convicted, but on appeal was sustained. At the general elections of 1880 he was returned for Northampton, having thrice before contested that constituency in vain. Then his name was again in everybody's mouth. He refused to take the oath and was not allowed to take his seat; indeed, he was removed from the House by force. However, he came round in the spirit of expediency and went through the formality, to him "a meaningless mockery," of adjuring on Holy writ. His career in Parliament has been an uneventful one. He made annual motions on the abuses of the Privy List, but on many points he refused to follow the Radicals into the lobby. The Labor Bureau was established on his motion. For the past three or four years he has proven the truth of Mr. Chamberlain's dictum—it is as natural for a young man to be radical in his opinions as it is that he should tend to adopt conservative methods with advancing years. "Iconoclast," became a constructionist. Perhaps his weaker health and financial troubles had something to do with this. Last spring he went to India for his health, and the last public act of his life, and an important one, was a criticism of the last Indian budget, and the presentation of a bill for the removal of several alleged abuses in English rule in India. A striking example of how a man may live down or change the current of public opinion is given in Charles Bradlaugh's later life, and a no less noteworthy instance of the generosity of that public opinion in England in the unopposed motion made this very week in the House of Commons for the expunging from the records of the House of the expulsion of Mr. Bradlaugh.]

"FRUITS OF PHILOSOPHY,"

Bankers' Banquet.

A very pleasant banquet may produce very unpleasant symptoms of dyspepsia, which disease is often caused by overloading the stomach with rich food, etc. For years Burdock Blood Bitters has held first place at home and abroad as a permanent and reliable cure for dyspepsia or indigestion in any form. The proprietors guarantee it to cure dyspepsia or return purchaser money.

At Winnipeg on Sunday the thermometer registered 12 below zero, and at Qu'Appelle 42 below.

So Says the Unanimous Choice of the Convention and His Election is Assured.

The most enthusiastic and unanimous gathering of Liberal Conservatives that Centre Wellington has ever seen was that held at Fergus yesterday, when Mr. W. H. Hunter, of East Garafraxa, was unanimously selected as the standard-bearer of the party in the coming contest. Although the date for holding the convention was not decided upon until late in the afternoon of Saturday last, so great was the activity and so thorough the enthusiasm of the leaders of the party throughout the entire constituency that every polling division had its full complement of two delegates on hand.

President Hugh Roberts, of Nichol, occupied the chair, and within forty-five minutes from the time he opened the meeting W. H. Hunter stood before the electors assembled as the choice of the convention, without a ballot and without a dissenting voice. The only other can-

RICHARD ALLEN, ESQ.,
WARDEN OF DUFFERIN COUNTY.

Mr. Richard Allen, whose portrait we publish this week, for now the third of day in the township of Mono, the banner township of Dufferin, of which county he is at present the able and popular Warden. Mr. Allen was born on the 14th day of January, 1846, and is therefore just entering upon his 46th year. In contradistinction to the average young man of the time he has never thought "there is no place like home," and has passed his entire life upon the farm where he now resides. While his schoolmates and the companions of his youth have wandered off up and down creation," Richard has been content to sit quietly under his own vine and fig tree and take advantage of opportunities as they arose around and about the old homestead. While others have been struggling, with more or less success, among strangers, he has kept steadily on his way, and when he passes over the River he will leave behind him a name and a record of which his children may be proud. Mr. Allen is a Conservative in politics and a Presbyterian in religious belief. He was married on the 23rd day of December, 1869, to Miss Margaret Ann, second daughter of the late Thomas Scott, Esq., of Mono, and sister of Mr. Thomas Scott, the popular proprietor of the Commercial Hotel, Orangeville. Mrs. Allen died on the 3rd day of March, 1882, leaving behind her a family of four sons and three daughters, all of whom are living and have attained to years of maturity, a record of which any parents may be proud. Mr. Allen is a man who has always had the confidence of his fellow-ratepayers, and has been called upon to fill many of the offices in the municipality. He has been a member of the Township Council for many years, and has been Reeve of Mono for the past three years. He was first elected Warden of Dufferin County in 1888, and was re-elected by acclamation last year. He

ORANGEVILLE CONSERVATIVES.

Met and Appoint Delegates to Attend the Convention at Fergus.

A meeting of the Orangeville Liberal Conservative Association took place in the town hall on Monday evening and a large number were present. The meeting was called for the purpose of preparing for the approaching elections and to appoint delegates to attend the Centre Wellington Conservative convention which was called for yesterday. After the transaction of minor business the following delegates were appointed: Mayor Walsh, F. C. Stewart, ex M.P.P., J. C. Fox, Wm. Judge, John Crozier, Dr. Lewis, Jos. Foster and A. A. Hughson.

The Conservatives are determined to redeem the riding and every legitimate course will be pursued to reach that end.

POLITICAL POINTS.

Montreal Reformers are disinterested and the Conservative standard-bearer will have a walk-over.

Mr. W. A. McCallis has been again chosen as the Conservative candidate for Peel. He will be re-elected by an increased majority.

Mr. L. H. Clarke of Palermo is the Conservative nominee for North Wellington. James McMullen, ex M.P., your politics take it down.

The next issue of THE SUN will contain a full report of the Cardwell Conservative convention, which is to be held at Mono Mills to-morrow (Friday).

When Laurier's government gets into power Sir Richard Cartwright will be the first United States Senator for Ontario! But that time hasn't come yet.

The Grits held a meeting at Shelburne on Friday last. Dr. Macdonald, ex-member for Huron and James McMullen, ex-M. P. for Centre Wellington, harangued the crowd for three hours, and their arguments bordered on annexation. Not much enthusiasm was displayed by the crowd, who repeatedly cheered for Sir John.

It is reported that Mr. Algie of Alton manufacturer of woollens, for years an active Conservative and nominator of Mr. White at the last election in Cardwell, will work with the Liberals and vote for their candidate in this contest. —Globe. Such claptrap talk as the above deserves to go unnoticed; but everyone who knows Mr. Algie can correctly estimate it.

The Toronto Evening Telegram foolishly believes that R. S. White's vote on the Jesuit and dual language bills "will settle his chances for nomination in Cardwell." If that idea holds good Sample, McMullen and Innes, who voted the same way as White, will be knocked higher than a kite in Centre North and South Wellington. By that way of doing business the Conservatives would win three seats here.

Between two parties the issue is clear. Sir John says—Reciprocity is good. Canada has been fair to the United States. It wants to be a neighborly neighbor, and is anxious to trade freely with the great Republic. The Conservative policy is a demand for reciprocity, tempered by the declaration that Canada will not sell its own future for the boon of partial free trade. Unhappily, the Liberal leaders have Americanized their party. Their speeches make Canada a Lazarus begging for bread at the gates of Dives. Their policy jars upon the self respect of Canadians, while Sir John promises reciprocity with honor to Canada.—Toronto Telegram.

Mrs. George Brown, of Black's Corners, died on Thursday, Jan. 29th, at her son's residence in Duntroon, where she was visiting. The corpse was taken home on Friday. The funeral took place on Sunday to the Orangeville cemetery. A large number of friends and acquaintances assembled at Mr. Brown's to pay the last tribute of respect to the deceased. She will be missed very much in her own home and by the immediate neighborhood.

HUNTER THE MAN!

Centre Wellington to be Redeemed.

W. H. HUNTER WILL BE THE CONSERVATIVE STANDARD-BEARER.

GRAND RALLY AT FERGUS YESTERDAY

So Was the Unanimous Choice of the Convention and His Election is Assured.

The most enthusiastic and unanimous gathering of Liberal-Conservatives that Centre Wellington has ever seen was that held at Fergus yesterday, when Mr. W. H. Hunter, of East Garafraxa, was unanimously selected as the standard-bearer of the party in the coming contest. Although the date for holding the convention was not decided upon until late in the afternoon of Saturday last, so great was the activity and so thorough the enthusiasm of the leaders of the party throughout the entire constituency that every polling division had its full complement of two delegates on hand.

President Hugh Roberts, of Nichol, occupied the chair, and within forty-five minutes from the time he opened the meeting W. H. Hunter stood before the electors assembled as the choice of the convention, without a ballot and without a dissenting voice. The only other candidates seriously proposed were John MacGowan, ex M.P.P., of the township of Peel, and Dr. Groves, of Fergus. The former retired in favor of Mr. Hunter. It was then thought that a ballot would have to be taken between Mr. Hunter and Dr. Groves, but the latter gentleman, in a brief but enthusiastic address, said that Mr. Hunter would make an ideal candidate, and he accordingly retired in his favor. Upon motion of Dr. Groves, seconded by Mr. MacGowan, the meeting then declared Mr. Hunter the unanimous choice of the convention.

The scene that followed was one of wildest enthusiasm. Cheer upon cheer rent the air, and lusty lungs gave vigorous expression to the universal satisfaction that prevailed.

Mr. Hunter accepted the nomination in a vigorous speech, in which he announced his intention to use every legitimate effort within his power to inscribe the name of Centre Wellington upon the banner of victory for Conservative principles. Stirring addresses were delivered by Mr. MacGowan, Dr. Groves, Dr. Lewis, Mr. W. L. Walsh and Mr. Cross, of Peel, after which the organization of the party was put upon a satisfactory footing.

The Orangeville delegates present were: Mayor Walsh, F. C. Stewart, Dr. Lewis, J. C. Fox, A. A. Hughson, Joseph Foster, Wm. Judge and John Crozier.

The feeling of the meeting was such as to inspire confidence in the successful issue of the contest, and Mr. Hunter goes into the fight backed by a phalanx of his friends that upon the 5th of March he will be M. P. for Centre Wellington.

CHARLESTON.

The directors of the Caledon Agricultural Society met here on Saturday, Jan. 31st, and it was decided to hold the fall fair here on the 1st and 2nd of Oct. next.

The spring fair will be held at Caledon East this year, that place having offered a bonus of $60. Accordingly the fair will be held there on Thursday, April 23rd.

A grand concert will be given at Charleston on Wednesday, the 18th inst., under the auspices of the Canadian Order of Chosen Friends. Messrs. J. H. Cameron and Jas. Fax have been engaged for the occasion and they should be greeted with a full house.

We hear that Mrs. Vogan and family of Toronto, formerly of this place will remove here and take possession of the hotel at the expiration of Mr. W. J. Dwyer's lease. Mr. Dwyer intends removing to his own hotel at Hillsburg.

The township of Caledon, and society at large lament the death of James E. Bacon Esq., long a prominent figure in the social and political arena of that prosperous community. For several years the electors of his township conferred on him the honor by year after year electing him to the position of councillor of the municipality, the duties of which office he performed with a zeal and fidelity which secured the approbation of the entire community. In politics Mr. Bacon was a staunch Reformer. Deceased was born in the township 59 years ago, being the son of one of the original settlers. Mrs. Bacon, three sons and five daughters survive him. We heartily sympathize with the bereaved family and mourning ones. The remains were interred in the Forest Lawn cemetery Orangeville the funeral being largely attended.

MONO MILLS.

Who did Tom take to Orangeville on Tuesday night?

The great Conservative convention to settle the question as to who will be member for Cardwell takes place in our midst to-morrow (Friday). How it will end is a mystery, even to those old and far sighted politicians. The aspirants are almost as many as the sands on the seashore. But we hope there will be no underhand work or wire-pulling. Mr. White made a good member and if we were betting we would take him.

A couple of weeks ago Mr. John Wilson's team ran away on the 5th line, Mono, and threw the gentleman out of the sleigh onto the hard road, rendering him insensible from some time. The frightened horses ran only a short distance when they stumbled and fell. Both were injured, but one much more seriously than the other. A mare, worth about $90, broke two of her legs and had to be despatched. This will be a serious loss to Mr. Wilson and all regret the accident. He is about all right again.

It is rumored that a new bus line will be established in town. Opposition is the life of trade.

Messrs. E. Moody, Thos. Hewitt and J. Patterson are the new board of management of St. Andrew's church.

Mr. George Mumford, of Rosemont, is lying dangerously ill at the residence of his brother-in-law, Mr. S. Watson.

On Wednesday of last week Mr. Jos. Harshaw's team ran away from McMaster's foundry and almost demolished the sleigh.

WANTED.—Strong boy to do general work; must be well recommended; steady job; for particulars apply at THE SUN office.

REORGANIZED. — The high school board met for reorganization on Friday evening. The old officers were re-elected: Messrs. John McLaren, chairman; John Kearns, treasurer, and F. Irwin, secretary.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.—Our correspondents will confer a favor by sending their productions so as to reach this office not later than Tuesday night. By paying strict attention to the above correspondents will greatly oblige us.

FARM FOR SALE.—Mrs. F. McLaughlin, of Toronto, will sell that desirable fifty-acre farm in Caledon adjoining the village of Mono Mills, by public auction on Tuesday, Feb. 24, at 1 o'clock. For further particulars apply to Jas. Patterson, auctioneer.

ST. MARK'S LITERARY.—The Church of England Temperance Society held a meeting in the basement of St. Mark's church on Monday evening and the room was uncomfortably crowded. Pleasing music and interesting debates were the chief pieces on the programme.

BROKE HER WRIST.—While Mrs. Robt. McKeown was proceeding home from the Methodist Y. P. A. on Tuesday night she slipped on the sidewalk when a short distance from her residence York street, and broke her left wrist. The limb was set, and the injured lady is recovering.

LARGE FUNERAL.—The funeral of the late James E. Bacon, of Caledon township, took place on Friday to the Forest Lawn cemetery, and was very largely attended, nearly one hundred teams being in the cortege, showing the esteem in which the deceased was held by his many friends and acquaintances.

OYSTER SOCIAL.—The ladies of the First avenue Methodist church will give another of these delightful socials in the basement of the church on Tuesday evening next. During the evening oysters, cake, bread and butter and coffee will be served. As this is the last entertainment in aid of the organ fund, a large turnout is expected. Admission 10 cents.

DISSOLVED. — Messrs. Patterson & White, the well-known East Broadway implement men, have dissolved partnership. Mr. White will carry on the business, and Mr. Patterson will act as head agent for J. A. McMaster, manufacturer of the celebrated Turnbull binder. We wish Mr. White continued success, and we are sure Jimmy will make himself famous as head pusher for the Turnbull.

DEAD.—We are sorry to have to chronicle the death of Mr. William Giles Lang, which occurred at his mother's residence, lot 22, con. 10, Erin, on Thursday last. Mr. Lang was well known in Orangeville, having resided here for some time. The young man, who was only twenty-five years of age, was studying for the ministry, and was for a time with Rev. A. Henderson. Everyone who knew him will regret to hear of his early death.

CREDIT SALE.—On lot 31, con. 1, township of Albion, on Monday, Feb. 23rd, at 12 o'clock sharp, a lot of valuable farm stock, implements, household furniture, etc., the property of Wm. Bible, will be sold by public auction. Terms—fat pigs and fowl and all sums under $10, cash at time of sale; over that amount nine months' credit will be given. As Mr. Bible has rented his farm everything will be sold without reserve. James A. Patterson, auctioneer.

A NEW FAKE.—A gang of swindlers are now at work with a new wrinkle. They offer to paint the roof of your house for $5, and when they come for payment they present you with a bill for $65, adding to the contract 40 gallons of paint and oil at $1.50 per gallon, which you never thought of when making the bargain. You sign an agreement and you are caught. Remember these fellows affectionately, but avoid any business relations with them.

A GREAT POWER SCHEME.—THE SUN has been informed on excellent
